Boston Blockaded.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—Train service out of Boston was suspended late yesterday because of the snow storm which had been raging over New England since last night. At the same time passenger congestion in two mid-city subway terminals became so serious that the stations were closed.

Lightship Ashore

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—The steamer Greylock, bound for Boston, reported by radio late Thursday that the lightship at Pollock Rip, south of Cape Cod, had gone ashore on Bearae's Shoal, about seven miles west of her station. The message contained no further details.

The lightship, which was on relief duty in place of the regular boat, now under repairs, was commanded by Captain Jameson, of New Bedford, and had a crew of 10 men.

Bearse's Shoal is just off Monomoy Point, a long finger of land running due south from the Cape. Wires were down to the Monomoy Point life-saving station on account of the storm, and the coastguard station at Chatham at the northern end of the peninsula had heard nothing of the accident.

Ship Provisioned.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 5 (Canadian Press). — A message Thursday from Cape Race, reported that the Schooner General Byng, owned in Grand Bank, had been spoken in lat. 44.02 north, long. 36.16 west, short of provisions.

The steamer Elmpark, which made the report, stated that the necessary provisions had been placed aboard the General Byng.

A new discovery is said to add 14 per cent to the conductivity of copper.

"WOMEN MUST WEEP"

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Feb. 5.—A sailor's sweetheart waited in vain for a man who will never return from the sea when the American liner President Roosevelt docked Wednesday. She was Hilda Draun, 18 years old, who was to have been married to Ernest Heitman, the Roosevelt's boatswain's mate, who lost his life in the first attempt to rescue the Antinoe's crew.

She learned of her fiance's death for the first time when the liner came in, four days late as a result of its mission of rescue.

Heitman was known here as Fritz Steger, and a simple wedding at the girl's modest home was to have ended a three years' courtship. During that period the sailor had paid for his sweetheart's education, as she is the daughter of an invalid father.

Hilda broke down when Heitman's comrades told her of his tragic but heroic death. Captain Fried and members of his crew consoled her as best they could.

She left the ship to inform her waiting parents that there would be no wedding.

SPANISH PLANE ARRIVES AT RIO

Lap of 1,264 Miles From Pernambuco Completed Thursday.

NEAR DESTINATION

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 5.—The Spanish trans-Atlantic seaplane, piloted by Commander Franco, arrived here at 5.25 p.m., Thursday, completing the 1,264-mile flight from Pernambuco.

The fliers thus brought their total mileage since leaving Palos, Spain, to 4,845 miles. The remaining lap from this city to Buenos Aires is about 1,380 miles.

Captain Franco and his comrades left Palos on January 22, arriving at Los Palmas, Canary Islands, the same day. They flew to Porto Praya, Cape Verde Islands, on January 26, to the island of Fernando do Noronha on January 30, and thence the next day to Pernambuco, where yesterday's flight began.

OLD BOYS UNION MEETING FAILED

No Citizens Responded When When Mayor Called For Gathering.

T O ABANDON IDEA.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 5. — Mayor Kingston called a public meeting for last night to discuss the question of holding an old boys' reunion this year, but none of the citizens responded, and the idea is likely to be abandoned. The suggestion that such an affair be held was made by the members of the I.O.D.E. Fifty years ago Campbellford was incorporated as a village and 20 years ago it reached the status of a town. On the latter occasion a very successful reunion was held, a celebration that left a balance in the treasury.

In 1923 the newly organized Chamber of Commerce took up this question, but after a number of meetings had been held and committees appointed the matter was dropped

NOW, HONESTLY

Don't try to tell me that it isn't fun to sit around the able after supper an' just loaf—letting the well known dishes stand there all fooded up.

We all do it—and yet it's a mighty foolish habit.

The good wife can't get the dishes off her mind until they are washed, dried and put away.

She's just kidding herself—and you're kidding her—when you let them slide. How can she enjoy the evening When she knows dirty dishes are waiting?

The next time you do that—don't do it. Hop up and sail in.

You'll be surprised how quickly the dishes are ready to be dirtied again.

KILL CHRISTIANS AS REVENGE FOR HANGED BANDITS

Three Brigands Were Convicted and Executed in Damascus Square.

THREATS FOLLOWED.

Catholic Patriarch Threatened With Destruction of His Home.

LONDON, Feb. 5. — (Canadian Press).—A Reuter's correspondent at Damascus, Syria, says the massacre of forty Christians in the village of Maruneh, news of which was received last night, indicates that an anti-Christian movement is developing and this is confirmed by happenings in Damascus.

On Monday, he reports Hassan-El-Kharrat, bandit chief, was hanged with two other convicted brigands in the public square in Damascus. This caused bad feeling and brought threats that three Europeans would be hanged for revenge.

Letters also were sent to the Catholic Patriarch at Maidan, threatening to burn his house because some of the witnesses for the prosecution at the trial of Hassan-El-Kharrat's son were Catholics.

Incidents of this sort have caused bitter feeling among the population against Europeans generally, the correspondent says.

OUTING ENJOYED.

Old People of the House of Providence Treated By Knights of Columbus.

The Sisters wish to thank the Knights of Columbus, on behalf of the old people of the House of Providence for the rare treat given them on Wednesday afternoon last.

The Knights chartered one of the new buses, which conveyed the happy old people who were able for the trip to the 'Capitol,' where they enjoyed the afternoon performance of 'The Prodigal Son.'

This being the first time they have had the pleasure of an outing of this nature, the old people are enthusiastic in their appreciation of the kindness of the Knights.

THREE ACCUSED OF POST OFFICE $38,600 ROBBERY

Jail Conversation Incriminates Postal Clerk as Confederate.

MOOSE JAW TRIAL

Brother of One Prisoner Passed Known Bills at Bank.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Feb. 5. — (Canadian Press).—Evidence given by a prisoner in Prince Albert Penitentiary, named Charles Althouse, who is serving seven years for theft and safe blowing, was the principal development yesterday in the trial of Jones, Collins and Padgett, charged with being concerned in the hold-up and robbery of the sum of $38,600 from the post office here on December 1, 1924.

Althouse told the court of a conversation which was purported to have taken place in Regina Jail when both men were waiting trial, and in this Collins is alleged to have told Althouse that the sum of $38,600 was obtained in the robbery, that it was an 'inside' job, 'Jimmy' being the inside man, and the automobile used for the get-away was Collins' car.

Jones, one of the three accused, was employed as registration clerk on the night of the robbery, and the reference to "Jimmy" as the inside man was understood to apply to him.

Bills Identified.

Evidence was also given by a teller from the Canadian Bank of Commerce, local branch, of receiving two money bills, paid in by the brother of James G. Jones, these being ones for which he was on the look-out, having been supplied with the numbers of the bills stolen from the post office.

Mrs. Daisy Arnold, a neighbor of Collins at the time of the robbery, gave evidence of watching the premises of the latter and of seeing Collins and Padgett leave the house about 9 o'clock on the night of the robbery in Collins' car, of hearing a car return about midnight, and of seeing Padgett leave in the automobile the following morning, taking with him a pick and shovel. Padgett returned some two hours later with a package wrapped in what appeared to be a raincoat, stated Mrs. Arnold.

Many Witnesses.

It is not anticipated that the case will be concluded for several days, as numerous witnesses have still to be examined for the prosecution prior to the opening of the case for the defence.

OTTAWA ISSUES RABIES EDICT

Unmuzzled Dogs at Large May Be Destroyed Forthwith.

OWNERS LIABLE

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 5.—(Canadian Press).—The existence of rabies having been reported in certain portions of Ontario and Quebec and all within the vicinity of Ottawa has resulted in Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, issuing an order declaring that all dogs found at large unmuzzled may be destroyed forthwith and the owner liable to prosecution under the Animal Contagious Diseases Act.

The territory declared to be infected areas by the Department of Agriculture in the Province of Ontario are the counties of Russell, Grenville, Dundas, and Carleton, which of course includes Ottawa.

The infected areas in the Province of Quebec as set forth by the Federal order are the Townships of Alleyn, Coarwood, Aldfield, and Onslow in the County of Pontiac; the County of Hull lying south of the Townships of Wright, Northfield, and Blake, and the Townships of Bigelow, Bowman, Portland and Templeton in the County of Papineau.

Four Men, One Lady and One Fire Brigade Assist In Putting Out Small Blaze In a Couch Cover

Two young men on their way home from a party, another young man taking his best girl home, a refractory match, and the fire brigade all contributed their share towards making the East side a place of interest in the wee small hours of this morning. When the occupant of 362 Burnham struck a match the head flew off and landed on a couch, setting it on fire. The owner carried it outside where it blazed merrily until Homer Lundy and Spencer Hope, who were passing at the time, doused the couch with snow, extinguishing the blaze. In the meantime, the young man crossing the bridge with his young lady saw the blaze and ran to the corner of Hunter and Mark streets and pulled the larm on box 54. The entire department responded and completed the good work.

BOHN IS FOUND WHEN HE SEEKS FOOD CHEMONG

Missing Man Comes to the Home of William Fobert Early To-day.

HIS FEET FROZEN.

Unable To Walk Without Assistance—Offers No Explanation.

After a mysterious absence of three days, during which time no word was received of his whereabouts, Albert Edward Bohn, of 413 London Street, was brought back to his home by Provincial Constable Norman F. Maker in a car driven by Edgar Miller, after William Fobert, of Bridgenortrh, had notified them of his presence there this morning. According to the story related by Constable Maker, Mr. Bohn went to the door of Mr. Fobert's home and asked for something to eat. He told the people in the house that he had been wandering about all night. After he had eaten breakfast he lay down on the couch, where he was when Mr. Miller and the constable arrived. He was bundled up warmly in a fur overcoat and brought back to his wife, who had been notified as to the discovery of her husband.

Mr. Bohn was so weakened from exposure that it was only with the assistance of his companions that he was escorted into the house. He was immediately prepared for bed, and when his shoes were removed his feet were shown to be swollen and blue with cold. Constable Maker was of the opinion that they were frozen. As soon as he had entered the door Mrs. Bohn exclaimed, "Oh! where have you been now?" but Mr. Bohn was either unable or disinclined to reply. He offered no explanation of his absence prior to the time he was wrapped in warm sheets and put to bed.

It will be recalled that on the last occasion of his disappearance, Mr. Bohn was unable to give any information concerning his wanderings other than the fact that he had walked for a considerable distance and had slept in a barn one night. That time he had been away two days and the weather was comparatively mild, whereas in his latest lapse three days of severely cold weather have greatly increased the risks of exposure.

FARMER NAMES CHICKEN THIEF

Harry Laity Identifies Earl Cooper as Companion's Slain Man.

CHARGE IS LAID.

WELLAND, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—Harry Laity, employed on the farm of Joseph Palmer, of Wainfleet Township, yesterday identified Earl Cooper as one of the men involved in the alleged raid on Palmer's chicken house a week ago, when a gun battle resulted in the death of one of the raiders, Oliver Gilson, and the wounding of Palmer.

"I flashed a light in the faces of the two men," said Laity. "The dead man, Oliver Gilson, was one of them. This man, Earl Cooper, was the other."

As the result of the evidence, a charge of attempting to steal chickens and honey from Palmer was laid against Cooper.

MONTREAL, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—Five persons were rescued by firemen and carried down ladders to the street, while twenty-five families were driven from their homes for a short time by a fire that broke out in the East End this morning. The flames were quickly cornered by the firemen and little damage was done. All the occupants of the dwelling were later able to return to their apartments.

OBJECTIONS IN COMBINE TRIAL ARE DISMISSED

Mr. Justice McDonald Overruled Defense Contentions in Vancouver.

JURY RETURNED

Admissability of Documents Proved to Satisfaction of Court.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 5. — (Canadian Press).—Resuming the defence for their "fanning the air" tactics in impeding progress of the trial, Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald yesterday over-ruled objections to the defence against documentary evidence, and prosecution proceedings against the Nash fruit interests continued.

"You may be able to stop the trial for a month or two, but the Crown still will be waiting for you," His Lordship remarked to E. P. Davis, K.C., when argument developed over copies of documents the Crown said could not be found by the police.

"Trial within a trial" halted suddenly after the court convened, and the jury returned Thursday morning. A. MacLeod Sinclair, K.C., announced that the accused would not go on the witness stand in view of the wide range allowed in cross-examination, and advanced as his argument that the onus was on the Crown to prove papers were admissable as exhibits. On the basis, he argued, the prosecution had failed.

During the dispute that followed between J. C. McRuer, Crown counsel, and E. P. Davis, senior defence counsel, over the legality of copies of the Nash records made by Commissioner Lewis Duncan, Mr. Justice McDonald said: "If there has been any slight oversight by the Crown, I will grant an adjournment and allow an amendment to be made."

To further remarks of Mr. Davis, the Judge remarked:

"If you feel that the onus is upon the Crown to prove the admissability of these documents, I am satisfied that the onus has been discharged and dismiss your objections."

MAY WITHDRAW FROM CABLE CO.

Canada Objects To Duplication of Cable to Fiji.

GETTING NO PROFIT.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5. — (Canadian Press). — Hon. Charles Murphy, Postmaster-General, has notified the Pacific Cable Board that he will recommend the withdrawal of Canada from partnership with the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand, under which the Pacific cable was constructed, if the Board persists in duplication of the Pacific cable from Fiji to Canada. This statement is made in a letter from Mr. Murphy to the Auditor-General, and contained in correspondence issued in the report of the Auditor-General last night. In November last the Auditor-General called attention to the fact that the Pacific cable had recently been reporting a regularly occurring surplus, and he raised the question whether the Canadian Government was receiving its share of these profits as it had previously paid its share of losses in earlier days.

In his reply, Mr. Murphy, under the date of December 14th last, called attention to the proposal of the Pacific Cable Board to duplicate the cable from Fiji to Canada, not only without obtaining Canada's consent but in defiance of protests of her representatives on the Board."

BRIDGE LIGHTS ARE BETTER NOW

New Standards Relieve the Shadows Between Lanterns.

USE LESS POWER.

With four new standards, each bearing a 300 watt lamp, in position between the concrete standards with which the bridge was originally furnished, the Hunter street bridge presents a gala apeparance at night now, compared to the checkerboard of light and dark which it presented before the new installation was made.

The new standards are fluted iron, and have rippled glass globes. Two of them are mounted in the alcoves in the centre of the main span, and the others are mounted on the railings about half way between the river's edge and the toboggan slide. One will be installed opposite the Quaker Oats plant.

The new standards are level with the sidelights of the big standards. The appearance might have been slightly improved by a higher standard but the main purpose (that of improving the lighting of the bridge) has been successfully achieved. The old standards had formerly twenty 300-watt lamps, and now have four 300-watt lamps, and sixteen 100-watt lamps. The five new standards will require five 300-watt lamps.

The new scheme means that less power will be required, but all the light will not be thrown on a few places, as it was formerly, so that the bridge will be more efficiently lighted.

In addition to the new standards and lights the wiring on the bridge has been thoroughly overhauled and is now in first class condition.

In addition to the work on the bridge the Utilities Commission's workmen have been busy recently on the Ashburnham street lighting system. A great many of the brackets have been placed and some of the control wire strung, and the work now is about one-third completed.

BURGESS TELLS WHY HE ENTERED

Purely in Protest Against Manner Seat Was Delegated.

SHORT SPEECH.

SHELLBROOK, Sask., Feb. 5 (Canadian Press)—D. L. Burgess, Independent candidate opposing Premier W. L. Mackenzie King in the Prince Albert by-election, opened his speaking campaign here last night. It was a very short speech, lasting but fifteen minutes.

Mr. Burgess declared he was in the field purely in protest against the manner in which Charles MacDonald, the Liberal member who retired to make way for Premier King, had delegated his seat.

I. D. Agnew, official agent for Mr. Burgess, in a brief talk stated that the Independent campaign was financed entirely by small contributions.

WORRY CAUSES AWFUL ACTION

Brantford Deaf Mute Becomes Insane and Throws Her Baby in Furnace.

CHILD NORMAL.

BRANTFORD, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Margie Mitchell, a deaf mute, who resides at 255 Greenwich Street, became suddenly insane yesterday afternoon and threw her three-months'-old baby boy into the furnace. Dr. T. H. Bier has been attending the women, who was somewhat worried over the child, although it was quite normal in every respect. This, it is presumed, has preyed on her mind, prompting her to commit the awful deed. The woman brought the child upstairs from the cellar herself after life was extinct. An inquest will be held.

CHAPTER VIII.

The man went down in a heap under the impact of Jimmy's fist, bumping into his advancing companion as he fell. He clapped his hand to his mouth and brought it away reddened with blood. His trim little mustache was a trifle awry as he twisted his mouth to spit.

Jimmy stood menacingly, waiting for the other one. It was quite evident that he had only one to deal with now. The man on the pavement seemed to have had all the fight knocked out of him.

The man who had been driving darted a swift glance at Jimmy and then at his fallen companion. If he had been drunk, he was suddenly sober again.

He dropped his fists to his sides and bent over Jimmy's victim, helping him to his feet. Then he half dragged him into the automobile, took his seat behind the wheel and drove off.

Jimmy had quite forgotten the girl. When he turned and found her behind him he half started in surprise.

"I—I beg your pardon," he stammered, removing his hat. He remembered now that he had spoken to her as if she were an old friend, and hastened to explain why.

"I understood as soon as you spoke. It was quite fine of you. I—I thank you." She looked at him, straight into his eyes, and held out her hand.

So many girls, he thought, would have been all nervous and aflutter, perhaps crying. He had never before filled the role of the gallant knight dashing to a lady's rescue. The thought that he had been playing a story-book role amused him, and he smiled, half to himself, as he put out his hand to take hers.

He saw his knuckles were bloody and hastily withdrew and took Merg proffered hand in his left. His action, however, did not escape her.

"You've hurt your hand!" she cried. There was concern in her voice.

Jimmy fished his handkerchief out of his coat pocket and applied it to the injured knuckles. One of them was bleeding quite freely; it had landed on his opponent's teeth.

"It's nothing," he said. "Didn't even know it was there." He wrapped the handkerchief around his hand and stuck it in his pocket.

"You're not telling the truth," she accused. "I'm so sorry to have caused you this trouble."

"No trouble at all." Jimmy was fidgety and embarrassed. He realized how awkward he must look with one hand in his pocket and the other holding his hat. He calmped the hat on his head. "Perhaps," he offered, "you'd better let me see you home."

"This sort of thing has never happened to me before." She smiled. "I'm quite sure it isn't likely to happen twice in one evening. Besides, I've only a few blocks to walk."

"I'm sorry for that," he commented. She glanced at him, puzzled. "I'm sorry," he explained, "that we've only a few blocks to walk."

She laughed. "Very well, Mr. Galahad—or shall I call you Sir Launcelot—I've a good mind to lead your home by the longest way."

"My name," he added, "is neither Galahad nor Launcelot, but Rand—James Rand. Strange as it may seem, my friends call me Jimmy."

"And mine," she countered, "is neither Guinevere nor Elaine, but Lowell—Mary Lowell. My friends call me Mary, but not on such short notice as this."

"Score one for the Lowells," he said. "Mr. Rand can pick up his marbles and go home." For the first time in days the old light-hearted mood was back upon him. The conversation stimulated him. He was able to forget.

"Seriously, Mr. Rand," she was saying, "it was a mighty fine thing for you to do. I don't know what would have happened if you hadn't come along just when you did."

"Oh, they probably would have driven away when they found you weren't the—the sort they were looking for," he finished lamely. "You know, I've got a sister."

She surveyed his tall, slender, broad-shouldered form. "Your sister," she said simply, "must be proud."

He realized that she was being serious. He flushed uncomfortably.

She had stopped in front of an apartment building. She held out her hand. "Good night, Mr. Rand—and thank you. Mother will be expecting me. She had a headache and couldn't come to church with me."

"Thank heaven," Jimmy grinned, "for the headache. That is" he amended, "if it isn't serious."

She laughed. "Good night. I only wish I could repay the favor. I'm dreadfully sorry about your hand."

"About the biggest favor I could get right about now," said Jimmy, "would be a job."

"You—you mean you're looking for work?"

"Well, I am and I'm not. I hope I don't have to." He stopped. "Gosh, that sounds like Greek, doesn't it? I mean that if I stay long in Chicago—and I hope I don't have to—I'll have to find a job. We must eat, you know."

"Well, perhaps I can repay the favor, after all," she said. "That is, if you're really serious. I'm secretary to the chief clerk of the Q. and R. Railroad. I'll speak to him about you. The office is downtown. You'll find the address in the directory."

"Thank you, Miss Lowell. I may drop in. This is rather unexpected, to be steered into a job by a young lady."

"What else could a lady do when she has been rescued?" she countered. "Good night, Mr. Rand." She took his hand, and he thrilled at the little squeeze she imparted to the grip.

Detective Mooney drained his coffee cup and lighted a large cigar. "We'll sit behind Mr. Fogarty," he remarked comfortably, "and when the show's over we'll spring a little surprise party on him. By the way"—he stared at Jimmy's hand—"what's the matter with your fist?"

Jimmy rubbed his damaged knuckles, which were covered with squares of court plaster, and smiled. "Another little surprise party, Mooney." He told about the adventure of the night before.

The little detective surveyed him shrewdly. "I'd like to see the other fellow." He swore softly. "Rand, don't you go hitting me. I don't like the looks of them shoulders of yours . . . Regular Romeo, aren't you? What was the lady like?"

"She was wonderful!" exclaimed Jimmy, and stopped short. His face was red to the roots of his hair. "Oh well," he added hastily, "let's forget it."

Mooney gazed at him thoughtfully and said nothing.

"All right, Rand," he said, "we'll be getting in the theater."

They had not long to wait. A few minutes before the curtain rose Mooney suddenly poked Jimmy sharply in the ribs. "Fogarty!" he whispered.

Jimmy surveyed intently the man who was taking his seat just in front of them—a burly man of perhaps 220 pounds, large-faced, heavy of jowl, with deep-set eyes beneath bushy eyebrows. His hair, of dull sandy color, was sparse on top with a large bald spot on the crown. It was trimmed close at the sides.

He stood up to take off his lightweight topcoat, and Jimmy saw the flash of a large diamond on the little finger of his left hand. He waved to several persons in the orchestra seats and settled heavily in his chair.

Jimmy felt alternately hot and cold. This man before him what secret did he hold locked in that fat throat of his? The murder of Jimmy's father?

All through the play Jimmy watched him—even stood close to him in the smoking room between acts. Beside him Detective Mooney's face was a mask—studying, thinking. . . .

The curtain fell. Fogarty got up stiffly and clamped on his hat, struggling meanwhile into his coat. Jimmy felt the pressure of Mooney's hand on his arm. "Stick close, Rand; we're goin' with him."

Fogarty did not loiter. He struck up a swift pace, surprising in one of his weight, that brought him in a few minutes to the Mayfair Hotel. Mooney and Jimmy were close behind him when he entered.

In the lobby he paused to greet the girl behind the cigar counter, who smiled wordlessly at his remarks and turned quickly to another customer. He stopped at the bell captain's desk, and Jimmy heard the words, "Ginger ale and cracked ice." Then he got into the elevator.

Jimmy would have followed him had not Mooney held him back. "We'll take the next one," he whispered.

Jimmy's heart was pounding as they got off at the fourth floor and walked along the hall. In front of Room 407, Mooney stopped.

"Just sit tight, Rand," he cautioned, "and leave this to me. Let me do the talkin'."

He transferred his revolver from its holster to his overcoat pocket and left his hand there with it. Then he knocked on the door.

MOTHERS' ALLOWANCES.

One of the requests made by the Provincial Government at the beginning of the week was that the Mothers' Allowance Act be extended to include widows with but one child, and that a totally disabled husband be considered as a dependent under the Act and an allowance made for him.

Both of these requests can easily be justified, although they would add considerably to the expenditure under the Mothers' Allowances Act, which is already heavy.

The widow with one child is often in need of assistance, perhaps nearly as much so as the woman who is left with two.

It is often a difficult problem for her to secure employment and at the same time to attend to the proper rearing of her child, and this has prompted the representatives of Labour to press for further consideration of the widow with one child.

The Government did not commit itself on this point, merely promising consideration.

THE CAUSE OF FIRES.

In his report to the Council Fire Chief Gimblett included a classification of the causes of the fire alarms answered during last year, and an examination of his figures shows that 160 alarms, or almost 50 per cent. of the total, were the result of stove-pipes or chimneys catching fire.

That fact suggests that the regulations in regard to the proper cleaning of pipes and chimneys in force here are not strict enough to afford any real protection.

The scarcity of coal has led to more burning of wood than usual, with the result that frequent cleaning of the accumulation of soot from stove-pipes and chimneys should be insisted upon.

When it is seen that an average of one fire every two days last year was the direct result of a failure to have this operation performed at frequent intervals, and it is further realized that any one of these chimney fires might have been the origin of a conflagration that would do heavy property damage and perhaps take a toll of lives, the necessity for greater attention to this matter becomes apparent.

Regulations in regard to the cleaning of chimneys and pipes should be made tight, and then efficiently enforced, if as a community we are to give ourselves that protection that common sense tells us is essential.

MAKES A DIFFERENCE.

There is a much saner tone running through U. S. papers now that the first steps have been taken to put that country into the business of producing crude rubber, says the London Advertiser. Investigators have been at work looking for locations and estimate that it will be from five to seven years before there will be a supply ready. California is selected as a likely spot to do the growing.

The Wall Street News says the situation that enabled British growers to secure a high price was that "they had temporarily outwitted us in the handling of a basic industry."

The New York Journal of Commerce is emphatic in its announcement that there is nothing to show that rubber growers have more than cleared expenses, and adds "this simple business fact more than any amount of preaching or discussion is likely to put an end to the windy nonsense which now surrounds the whole subject."

It seems to have worked out this way—as long as British growers controlled the market the prices were denounced as the result of a deliberate holdup, but when United States is likely to become interested as a producer it shifts into an economic study and keen discussion as to whether it will be a profitable industry or a sink-hole.

THE FIRE CHIEF'S RECOMMENDATIONS.

Fire Chief George Gimblett in his annual report to the City Council has once more submitted his recommendations that the south portion of the city be protected by a sub fire station and that a triple combination pumper be added to the equipment of the department.

In addition, Chief Gimblett recommends the motorization of the ladder truck.

For a number of years the head of the Fire Department has urged that these improvements should be carried out, convinced that the efficiency of the fire brigade will be materially improved, and the general protection against fire greatly increased by the additions mentioned.

Probably, in view of the Council's repeated declaration of a policy of rigid economy, Chief Gimblett is not very confident of his requests being granted, but as a concientious official he could not feel satisfied that he had measured up to his duty if he did not point out what in his opinion as a fire fighting expert is essential to give this city adequate protection.

The responsibility is thus passed on to the City Council, who must, of course, take the onus of either acting upon or refusing to act upon the advice of the head of the department.

The Chief's report on last year's operations showing a falling off in the number of alarms of 61 during 1925 was undoubtedly full of interest to the citizens generally.

A SPEEDY INQUIRY.

The charges made against the Dominion Government by H. H. Stevens, M.P. of Vancouver, who alleges that there has been inefficiency, favouritism and exact non-collection of custom duties, are to be investigated by a parliamentary committee, over the composition of which Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, and Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Leader of the Opposition, have been in conference.

The Government has done well to so promptly deal with these very serious allegations.

If only a fraction of the conditions charged by Mr. Stevens exists the leakage must be stopped as soon as possible.

If there are crooked or inefficient officials participating in or overlooking the smuggling into Canada of vast amounts of dutiable goods, they must be located and punished.

The inquiry should be complete and thorough, and the committee appointed to deal with it should not only have the fullest possible powers, but should have the assistance of all the political parties in bringing out the truth.

It has long been charged that Canada was losing a vast sum each year through smuggling, and it has generally been accepted that this illicit traffic has tremendously increased as the result of the bootlegging of Canadian liquor into the United States.

It did not take those who plunged into that line of activity long to discover that a north traffic could be carried out that was as profitable as the south-bound trade, with the result that it is claimed that the smuggling of tobacco, silks, cotton and other goods into Canada has reached tremendous proportions.

AGRICULTURE.

In Hon. John S. Martin, a member of Mr. Ferguson's Cabinet, agriculture has a worthy exponent, leader and defender. Mr. Martin's admirable address before the Border Cities Kiwanis Club yesterday provided ample demonstration of the Minister's aptitude for the important post he holds.

If there are still city dwellers who consider that the agricultural industry is of minor importance in Ontario, or elsewhere, they should hear Mr. Martin. He will tell them a few things and provide them with a few facts calculated to open the eye. Even those who are closely in touch with agriculture have probably failed to appreciate its importance in the scheme of things. How many of us know, for instance, that agriculture in this Province brought a return of 465 millions in one year as compared with 75 millions from mining and approximately 100 millions from all branches of the lumbering industry, including the manufacture of paper?

This was one of the interesting ponits set forth by Mr. Martin in his address before the Kiwanians yesterday. It was one of many calculated to increase the city man's interest in the affairs of his rural brother; to give him a proper appreciation of the farmer's trials and worries, his problems and his efforts to meet them. Unfortunately there are all too many of us in the towns and cities who seem to think that that part of the Province or nation lying beyond the borders of the towns and cities is of really little importance. We appreciate, in a hazy way, that the farmers and their families are engaged in the business of growing food for us and the rest of the urban world, but until a pinch comes we think little or nothing about it. If the average man were asked, off hand, to tell which of the natural resources of the country produced the most wealth he would be inclined, probably, to say minerals. Visions of gold and silver and nickel and other precious commodities would bring the answer. Yet, as Mr. Martin pointed out in his address yesterday, agricultural production is several times the value of mineral production each year.

What is needed is a greater measure of co-operation, and generally a better understanding and bond of sympathy between town and country. Each must appreciate the importance of the other. Both must understand that they are the parts of the perfect whole. Both must see that the happiness and success of each is dependent, in a large degree, upon the other. The city cannot be prosperous unless the country is prosperous. And the country, speaking broadly, must feel the effects of every depression in town. Of the two classes, the farmer is the less dependent, but the wise farmer knows that the sun of prosperity cannot shine long for him unless the city man is prospering, too.

From a farmer's standpoint—and many Essex County farmers were present yesterday, thanks to the enterprise and thoughtfulness of the Kiwanis Club—Mr. Martin's remarks on the necessity for maintaining high standards in agricultural products were of especial interest. His illustration of Ontario apples bringing 10 shillings a barrel more than their Nova Scotia competitors on the London market because greater attention had been paid to grading and packing gives the proof, if more be needed, of what careful work will accomplish. Improved methods means extra profits all the way through. In the past, too many farmers have been content to go along in the old-fashioned way, wasting little time on the idea of trying to reach a greater standard of quality. These methods have cost Canadian farmers a great deal of money. They are now being rapidly discarded, thanks to Mr. Martin and other agricultural leaders, and the results are apparent to all.

Agriculture always has been, is and probably always will be, Canada's premier industry. When city people—and particularly city politicians—forget or overlook this, they are falling into an error that may have serious consequences.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Mr. Stevens, M.P., speaking of certain customs officials, might have wound up his speech with the statement, "And if there is anything I haven't called them, they are that, too."

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SPEAKING OF SENTIMENT.

Speaking of sentiment, there is no method of keeping your wife safely on the right side of the fence that is quite as efficient as that of remembering a few choice anniversaries such as birthdays and weddings.

There are many better occupations than throwing mud and bricks at others. Many a man has paved his own road to perdition in that manner.

No one knows your assets better than your neighbor. But what's more, he knows your liabilities. Ask him about them some day.

Wise and Otherwise.

Nice thing about winter is the weather is mostly too bad to play golf.

Since women started getting haircuts a man has to go around to a pool room to cuss.

Well it's a terrible world. The weather never gets hot in winter or cold in summer.

When mother asks dad if he remembered to mail her letter he always say, "yes." And that's when he remembers that he forgot to mail it.

Nice thing about having a family is that you can wish you didn't instead of wishing you did.

You certainly can't keep your hands in your pockets when you have a wife on them.

This winter is not so hard as last winter. Very few of us are forced to work crossword puzzles this winter.

So live that you can make a face at anybody.

If you ask the average little boy what he is going to the store for, he can't think of any good reason. When for his supper he was late,

He found his wife in trim.
For, though his meal was very cold,
She made it hot for him.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

STATEMENT IN REPLY TO DR. EPHRAIM SCOTT.

The Editor of The Examiner:

The best answer to the claims set forth in the letter by Dr. Ephraim Scott, which appeared in the press on February 1st, is found in the following correspondence, which presents the attitude of The United Church of Canada in the matter;

"Toronto, Sept. 10th, 1925.

"Rev. W. G. Wallace, D.D.,
"Confederation Life Building,
"Toronto.

"Dear Sir:—

"I beg to forward you the following resolution, which was passed by the General Assembly to which your attention is called:

'Whereas it is now definitely settled that this Church is to go on as the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and as the records of Assembly, Synod, Presbytery, Sessions and Congregations logically belong to those who remained in the Church, the Assembly therefore instructs the Clerk of the Assembly to make a formal request for the official Minutes of the Presbyterian Church in Canada since 1875; and it instructs Synods and Presbyteries to make similar requests regarding any minutes of which they may have been deprived; and in the event of these requests being refused, our representatives on the Commission be urged to press our claim to the possession of all records formerly in the custody of the Courts of the Presbyterian Church in Canada."

"Yours truly,
"T. WARDALAW TAYLOR,
"Clerk of the Assembly.
"J. W. McNAMARA,
"Clerk of the Assembly.

The United Church of Canada,
"The General Council
"Toronto, Jan. 16th, 1926.

"Rev. T. Wardlaw Taylor,
"Rev. J. W. MacNamara,
"320 Bay St.,
"Toronto 2, Ont.

"Dear Sirs:—

"Your letter of September 10th last, to Rev. W. G. Wallace, D.D., was presented to the Executive Committee of the United Church, at its recent meeting, and, as Secretary of the General Council, I have been instructed to reply as follows:

"I enclose for your information a copy of a resolution and declaration passed by the General Council of The United Church on 18th of June, 1925. This resolution and declaration covers the subject matter of your communication.

"As on the 10th of June, 1925, the Presbyterian Church in Canada united with the Methodist and Congregational Churches to form The United Church of Canada, the records of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, as well as the records of the Methodist and Congregational churches, became the records of The United Church, and are inseparably associated with the continuity of these churches within The United Church and are necessary for the work of the The United Church. The non-concurring congregations of the Presbyterian Church can have no valid claim to the minutes or records of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, save the minutes or records of the individual congregations which voted not to concur in the Union. The right of those congregations to retain thier own records has never been questioned and is not now questioned.

"In your letter you refer to the Commission dealing with the records. We should point out that this is not a matter that comes within the purview of he Commission, and the Commission would have no authority to adjudicate upon it. The courts, and the courts alone, can deal with it.

"If you and the non-concurring congregations you represent question the right of The United Church to retain the records of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, The United Church will place no obstacle in the way of an early judicial determination of the matter; on the contrary The United Church will facilitate a speedy trial and final disposition of the issue.

"Yours faithfully,
"T. ALBERT MOORE,
"Secretary."

The resolution referred to in the above letter is too long for quotation here in full, but the following clauses may be cited as bearing directly upon the legality of the use of the name "Presbyterian Church in Canada":

"Whereas it is expedient for the information of the members of the United Church of Canada that this General Council should make a definite statement of the position of The United Church in regard to the matter hereinafter referred to, this General Council hereby affirms:

"(2) That the said churches have entered into the Union without loss of their identity and continue to live within, and as integral parts of, The United Church. Neither the Methodist church onr the Presbyterian church in Canada continues, except within, and as part of, The United Church of Canada.

"(3) That no non-concurring congregations of any of the uniting churches or any association of congregations or persons can validly claim to be the parent church or to be a continuation of the parent church or to use the name of the parent church.

"(5) That the non-concurring congregations of any of the uniting churches have the right to unite and constitute a new denomination or body of Christians, which may be designated by any name or names other than the names of any of the uniting churches, namely The Presbyterian Church in Canada, The Methodist Church and The Congregational Churches of Canada." (See Section 10, subsection (c) The United Church of Canada Act.)

T. ALBERT MOORE,
Secretary.

ACCIDENT INSURANCE

To the Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir.—I would be pleased to have the privilege of using a small space of your valuable paper to correct any wrong impression that may be inferred from the account of the City Council meeting held on Feb. 1st.

The Continental Casualty Co. and Municipal Liability Insurance for the City of Peterborough.

Not having been advised that council would consider tenders for the above insurance, I was unaware of the matter until it appeared in The Examiner of January 26, and I at once took the matter up with the committee, and requested my company to submit a tender, which they did.

For Alderman Fife's information, I wish to state the Continental Casualty Company operates independently, under Goverument supervision. The company has over $16,000,000 avaiable for the protection of policy holders.

We consider that we were not taking an unfair advantage of the other companies tendering. The Continental Casualty Company figure their premiums on claims rates of over 40 years successful underwriting, and not on the other fellows' offer. If tenders had been called for in our local paper, our quotation would have been just the same, namely $1,450.00.

In note Alderman Turner's objection to the peddling of the City's business. I wonder what he means. Have some of the Council peddled the information to their insurance friends, that the Council was considering liability insurance for the City for 1926. Where did the companies tendering get their information?

Yours truly,
H. PEYTON.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—The undertone of Eastern Canadian markets is weaker due to larger arrivals of American fresh. Winnipeg reports one car of fresh local rolling east.

Toronto—Local fresh unchanged. American fresh, easier, wholesaling 38 1-2 to 39.

Montreal—Fresh steady, storage weak. American fresh lower.

Winnipeg—Fresh receipts increasing, paying country shippers delivered extras 35, firsts 30, seconds 20.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN

Oats—No. 3 white 38 3-8 to 38 5-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Sharp breaks in foreign markets had a depressing effect today in the wheat market here, reducing the volume of business and cutting down values as well. Total transactions were the smallest noted of late. Wheat closed heavy 1 3-8 to 1 7-8c net lower, May (new) $1.75 5-8 to $1.75 3-4 and July $1.53 5-8 to $1.53 3-4; with corn 1-2 to 7-8c off; oats 1-8 to 3-8c down, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a setback of 15 cents.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—There was little demand from foreign buyers for grain on the Montreal market today with prices the same as yesterday.

The receipts of butter today were 1,127 packages. The market showed no important change, the undertone being very firm, with a restricted demand.

The receipts of cheese were 154 boxes. A steady feeling prevails in the market, but the volume of business continues small.

The feature of the egg trade was the weakness in stictly fresh stock. Prices were reduced 1c to 2c per dozen. Only a moderate amount of business was done, with sales of extras at 46c, firsts at 42c, and seconds at 35c per dozen. The receipts today were 406 cases. There was no further change in prices for storage eggs.

BRITISH BIRTH RATE IS LOWEST

FIGURES STARTLE

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Britain has the lowest birth rate in the world, according to figures just published.

Even the French low record is being passed and there has been a 25 per cent. reduction in the size of families recently. The startling revelations are made known in the provisional figures issued by the registrar-general, which are causing considerable anxiety and perturbation.

During last year the birth rate in England and Wales fell to 18.6 per 1,000, which compares with Russia, with 46.2 per 1,000, and France, 18.7. While the birth rate dropped from 24.1, where it stood in 1913, the marriage rate is the same as during that year.

Fell By Quarter.

Thus, the number of children per marriage decreased by one-quarter. This is allegedly attributable to insufficient nourishment and wrong living conditions, which, in turn, is due to the housing shortage and to the spread of the doctrine of birth control.

The publication of the figures is already stirring the churches and the Bishop of Winchester, presiding at a meeting last Friday, entered a protest.

BAY RUM ORGY FATAL TO SIX AMERICAN SOLDIERS - SIXTEEN ARE IN HOSPITAL

Drinking Bout at Honolulu May Increase Death Total to Nine—Native Whiskey Also Drunk by Privates.

HONOLULU, Feb. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Six enlisted men in the United States army are dead and sixteen are in the hospital at the Schofield Barracks as a consequence of drinking bay rum.

The dead are: John C. O'Brien, Ernest Devic, George W. Hapgood, all of Company C, 21st Infantry; Mont L. Duty, Sam G. Weiner, 27th Infantry, and George S. Harrington, 8th Field Artillery. All are privates. Three of those made ill may die.

The bay rum which caused the deaths was purchased at the post exchange where it was offered as a hair tonic. Some of those in the hospital are believed also to have drunk okalehao, a native whiskey.

The drinking bout took place Sunday. Two men died Monday, two Tuesday and two on Wednesday.

SIX MEN KILLED BY COLLAPSE OF BRICK WALL, ELEVEN IN HOSPITAL AND SIX OTHERS ON MISSING LIST

Wall Buckled Under Weight of Snow on Roof of Foundry.

AT NEW BRITAIN

Wall Tell Into Street—Roof Dropped on Workmen.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—The collapse of a brick wall at the foundry of the North and Judd Manufacturing Company in East Main Street, Thursday, brought death to at least six workmen; eleven others are in the New Britain General Hospital, some in a serious condition, and six men are unaccounted for.

The accident was a direct result of the blizzard, which swept this section Wednesday night and yesterday, snow gathering on the roof of the one-storey building causing one wall to buckle. The wall fell into the street and the roof of the structure dropped on the workers below.

The dead: Toney Cherisafski, Joseph Revis, Elfio Brunetto, Omar Bastile, Joseph Catanzro, Peter Szyszkowski.

The building, a brick structure 150 feet long and 90 feet wide, was wrecked by the crash. The brick wall facing East Main Street crashed down with the roof and left a scene of twisted masses of steel and bricks. It was from under this mass of brick and timbers that the bodies of the workers were found.

The cause of the accident was in doubt for several hours, it first being believed that an explosion was responsible.

7,923 CANADIANS HOME IN DECEMBER

Total for Nine Months, 33,529, Statistics Show.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5. — Canadian Press).—In the month of December, 1925, a total of 7,923 Canadians who had been living in the United States for six months or longer returned to the Dominion, according to a statement of the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

For the first nine months of the present fiscal year the total is 33,529. The December total is a record since April, 1924, when the Department began to keep a count of Canadians returning to their own country. It is 2,796 higher than the previous best monthly total of 5,127 recorded in July, 1924. The increase in the movement of Canadians returning from the United States is regarded by immigration officials as indicative of the improving business conditions throughout the Dominion.

Immigration for October, November and December, 1925, also shows an increase of 1,671 over the corresponding three months of 1924.

The total immigration to Canada for the nine months of the present fiscal year, ended December 31, was 74,115. Of this number, 31,004 were British, 14,988 from the United States and 28,123 from other countries.

AGAINST DRY ACT

Episcopal Church Temperance Society Favors Beer Sale.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—The Church Temperance Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church, feeling that prohibition has undone the work of 50 years of the temperance movement, will work for modification of the Volstead Act, to permit the sale of light wines and beer.

This decision, as announced by Dr. James Empringham, national secretary, is the result of answers received during the past year to 20,000 members of the society, including both clergy and laity.

Among the reasons for modification of prohibition were the complaints that the Volstead Act has "resulted in increased drinking among young people; is class legislation, discriminating in favor of the rich, and has brought about disrespect for all laws."

CONSERVATIVES REITERATE THEIR OPPOSITION TO ADJOURNMENT IN SERIES OF SPEECHES ON THURSDAY

Donald Sutherland Says Carload of People From Quebec in His Riding.

DURING ELECTION

All the Changes of Adjournment Motion Rung by the Opposition.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5. — The Conservative opposition Thursday Continued its argument against the proposed six weeks adjournment of the House. Donald Sutherland, South Oxford, took up most of the afternoon session discussing alleged irregularities in the election campaign in his riding. J. A. Denis of Joliet, interrupted Mr. Sutherland's history of the battle of South Oxford to ask what it had to do with the motion under debate but Mr. Sutherland undertook to connect up the two matters and continued to make his speech.

Mr. Sutherland was strongly opposed to the government proposal for a six weeks' adjournment. The request had been made on Feb. 2nd, and there was an old tradition that on this date the bear came out of his winter refuge and if the weather did not appear propitious he went back for another six weeks. "The political weather," said Mr. Sutherland, "does not look propitious to the Liberal party.'

The minister of customs in reply to the charge made by H. H. Stevens of Centre Vancouver, declared that Liberal members had been very strongly opposed by men on the Quebec Conservative organization who were connected out of the rum-running and smuggling industry. "I did not know," said Mr. Sutherland, "that Conservatives had much of organization in Quebec at all."

The member for South Oxford charged that a whole carload of people from Quebec had been brought into South Oxford, and that an attempt had been made to get them on the voters list prior to the recent election.

Workers in His Riding.

"On October 19," said Mr. Sutherland, "he published a notice in the papers warning registrars and returning officers that he had personal knowledge that attempts would be made to register people who were not entitled to vote and declaring action would be taken against any violators of the elections act.

"Finally an arrest was made of the ringleader who was responsible for bringing in these people from outside of the constituency and it proved to be one of the 83,000 deputy returning officers appointed by the government."

He further charge' that political workers from western Canada were brought into his riding of South Oxford. These included Duncan Marshall, a western Liberal, who had drawn $1,900 from the Dominion government while he was an organizer for the Liberal party but who had been forced off the pay roll.

An editor from Western Canada was employed to edit a full page in the local paper. Another westerner, a former member of the Liberal government of Alberta, also came into the riding but he could not say much of him as he is being tried in Edmonton for an offense of looting the treasury.

Mr. Sutherland painted a picture of Premier King "dodging around the corridors" while he was deprived by the electorate of the right to enter the House. "He is up in Prince Albert now," added Mr. Sutherland, "whining about a young fellow up there who is going to lose $200 because he has the temerity to oppose the great William Lyon Mackenzie King.

Public Perturbed.

J. A. Clark (Conservative-Burrard) said people were very much upset by the tragedy being enacted daily by the government. The country was struggling under an unparalleled burden of taxation, yet the government expected industries to carry on. In Vancouver, probably the most prosperous of any city in Canada, there was a company which in 1922 had produced one logging engine per month, and had employed 30 men, but with the removal of the duty in 1923 the employees had been reduced to four men and the proprietor was to-day the agent of an American company. There were other examples of important orders lost to Canadian firms because of the cutting of duties and the permitting of dumping in this country. American capital was welcome in this country, but a Conservative government would see that the game was played correctly and that Canadian markets were retained for Canadian industries.

Mr. Clark charged the Minister of Customs with the full knowledge of the situation revealed in Mr. Stevens' speech ever since he took office as Minister.

Hon. George Boivin, Minister of Customs, said he denied having had any knowledge whatever of anything connected with the department prior to the first of November, and within 15 days of the time there were any irregularities, an investigation was going on in Montreal.

Mr. Clark said that the Minister knew of the charges since the first of December concerning the customs administration at the Port of Montreal. The Ministers were all aware of it, yet the government had the effrontery to ask for an adjournment of six weeks in the hope that the charges might be burned.

If, as the Minister of Customs had said, he had a statement prepared some time ago regarding the customs department, why had he not made it on the opening day of the session, knowing as he did the seriousness of the situation. The only conclusion to be drawn was that the Minister intended to withhold the information from the public.

Mr. Clark said he regretted that the "committee of parliament" was absent from the House. He was referring at the moment to the Progressive members, who were all absent.

Mr. Clark ironically remarked that the Progressive leader might desire the adjournment in order to prepare the legislation proposed by the government.

Continuing, he declared that the country was opposed to the adjournment and would not submit to the interests of the people being hampered or tampered with. He thought that Progressives would sound "the death knell" of their party if they aligned themselves with the government which intended to delay the investigation of the charges made against the Customs department. The call of the government to the Progressives for help in this instance was that of a "shipwrecked" government."

"Stump Speeches."

J. J. Denis (Liberal-Joliette) expressed the opinion that the debate had degenerated into stump speeches and political propaganda. The attitude of the opposition was contrary to logic. For practically one month Conservatives had used every term in the dictionary to describe the Liberal party, but the government had been sustained in its course twice on the vote of parliament within the past two weeks. Conservatives had described the government as being decrepit, ramshackle and dilapidated. Parliament however had shown its choice for the so-called "decrepit, ramshackle and dilapidated" administration in preference to the Tory party.

Mr. Denis dealt with the propriety of the motion for adjournment. The understanding had been from the outset that parliament would be assembled to cast a vote for or against the present administration. The government had been asked by a majority vote to carry on and carrying on implied a reorganization of the cabinet.

He criticized the Conservatives sharply in respect to Mr. Boivin's offer of a committee to investigate the Stevens' charges. While negotiations for the appointment of such a committee were going forward, the Conservatives, he thought, should not continue to make speeches about them. With the consent of Parliament the committee could proceed to function and probe into conditions in the Customs and Excise department could be proceeded with. When the committee had given the House the result of its investigation and the findings which it had arrived at, the House could debate the whole subject and every member would have a chance to discuss the charges. That would be the proper time to do so. The position now was that Conservative members of the house were trying the case before the properly constituted tribunal could do so. In Mr. Denis' opinion it was "merely political propaganda."

Ryckman Opposed.

E. B. Ryckman (Conservative-Toronto East) was unalterably opposed to the "six weeks' holiday." He admired the Minister of Customs for his speech on the non-confidence motion some weeks ago. On Tuesday night Mr. Boivan's speech had been the best possible under the circumstances. The Minister had pulled out of his pocket a resolution dealing with the whole question. He was to be congratulated on being so forehanded. The frankness of the newest offer was questionable.

Mr. Ryckman criticized the Minister of Customs for not having taken criminal action against offenders. The report of Inspector Duncan, no doubt, involved other law breakers, and if action was not taken the country would hold the Minister personally responsible for allowing the criminals to go untried.

Any Others Involved?

Mr. Ryckman asked if there were others involved in the report on customs affairs made to Mr. Boivin. The natural inference was that there were others implicated. If there were not why was there so much secrecy in regard to the report? If in that report there was evidence of offences committed against this country "by Bisaillon and others" and the Minister of Justice has not taken action against them "the Ministers of the government will be held responsible before the country."

There was an inference, stated Mr. Ryckman, which he was justified in holding until a report was produced, and that inference was that "the minister and the government are protecting somebody."

If opportunity were given to any criminals involved to flee the land, the government would be held responsible by the people of the country.

Mr. Ryckman asked that the government immediately prosecute those who it knew to be guilty of customs irregularities and that the committee be appointed at once so that it could function immediately. He further suggested to the government that the motion for adjournment be withdrawn.

The customs investigation could not properly be proceeded with unless the House were in session. In his opinion the people of the Dominion would not approve of a member voting himself a six weeks' holiday and a salary at the same time.

Raymond Morand

Raymond Morand (Conservative-Essex East) objected to the adjournment. His constituents had by their ballots on October 29th registered a strong protest against the King government. The government had had ample time to prepare its legislation and take the necessary steps to enable it to function as a government. It had claimed the right in parliament to continue in office but it now admitted its inability to proceed with the administration the affairs of the people.

HAD GOOD DESIGN.

The design submitted by Miss Frances Loring (top) and Mr. W. Somerville for the Canadian national war memorial to be erected at a cost of $100,000 on Connaught Place, in front of the Ottawa post office, was among the final seven designs selected by the judge to be elaborated into models for further comparison. Vernon March's design was the one finally decided upon for the national memorial.

LOCAL YOUTH "CUT DASH" IN LINDSAY

No Money For Hotel Bill After "Romeoing."

LINDSAY, Feb. 5.—The attractions of the big Kiwanis Picadilly Circus being held this week, together with the charms of a fair maiden, proved too much for a youthful visitor from Peterboro on Wednesday night, and as a result of his depleted treasury, had some difficulty yesterday morning in getting outside the limits.

After taking in all the attractions at the big event in the Armories he escorted the fair one to her home, and then registered at a local hotel for the night. He arose at an early hour for the purpose of catching the six o'clock train for home, and told the night porter that he had been relieved of ninety-two dollars in a very mysterious manner.

The porter felt that the Chief of Police should hear the story, and the officer was accordingly aroused from his slumbers. He heard the tale of woe repeated, and at once concluded that the youth had spent his money at the circus not wisely but too well. It happened that another Peterboro man was registered at the hotel, and he came across with sufficient money to pay the hotel bill. The youth went on his way rejoicing.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

KEEPING OF PROPER RECORDS IS ESSENTIAL IN RUNNING FARM ON A REALLY PROFITABLE BASIS

Many Invisible Leaks Drain Away Profits on Some Articles.

FEW KEEP BOOKS.

Farming One Business in Which Very Few Records Are Kept.

Although a system of cost accounting is part of the business routine of every well-organized industry in every civilized country, book-keeping, even on the most elementary scale, is conspicuous by its absence in the avrrage farmer's scheme of thiugs. Farmers are business men producing commodities which are offered for sale in a market where competition is invariably of the keenest. Therefore it behoves them to adopt the methods, universally used, by which this intense competition is encountered.

Invisible Leakages.

Farmers often lose money, in directions which are not at once apparent to the careless or casual observer. The proportion of farmers who can tell off-hand the actual cost—in money and labor—of raising their own crop is very small. The cost per bushel of wheat, of a ton of their hay, or the sums expended in raising the hogs or beef cattle which he markets are things of which he has only the haziest idea, although he is the person most intimately concerned. Sometimes an uneasy feeling crosses his mind that some of these operations leave a very little margin of profit on overall expenditure, but he shrugs his shoulder, and, too often, goes on in the old way.

Loss at the Manure Heap.

No inconsiderable amount of money is lost in the neighbourhood of the manure pile. Successful agriculture depends on proper manuring. Notwithstanding that, there is a great leaking of invaluable fertilizing matter going on every day of the year in many farms. The familiar odor around every manure pile tells of valuable ammonia being allowed to escape out into the air. Generally the manure is left in the yard near the sheds, where it is exposed to every rainfall and to the intense heat of the summer sun—two excellent agencies for depleting the manure of its fertiliring ingredients. Yet the remedy is simple. A covered yard is provided where the cattle can obtain all the necessary exercise, and wherein they are fed. The straw is placed in this yard, and each fresh addition is laid on top until sufficient is ready for present requirements, when it is taken out of the yard and carted immediately to the field and plowed under. By this method, the manure escapes the influence of the sun, the rain has not been allowed to wash out two thirds of its valuable properties, and although the covered yard may have involved a fair outlay at the start, the interest which will be returned will be compound, and at least one hundred-fold. It is also worthy of note that hogs given lots of straw produce excellent fertilizing material—a fact that is often overlooked.

First Aid for Animals.

A fruitful source of lost money is a lack of skill and simple knowledge with regard to first aid treatment for animals. While the farmer cannot be expected to add the attainments of a fully qualified veterinary surgeon to all the other virtues he is called upon to exhibit, he should at least know how to deal with an animal suddenly taken ill, and should be able to carry on until the "vet" gets on the job. There are not many farmers who exert themselves to any extent along this line, despite the fact that every farmer loses his entire stock by death within a period of twenty years, and in some cases within a shorter space of time. That is to say, that on an average, the farmer loses 5 per cent. of his cattle every year—and all this loss is not in any way inevitable.

Intelligent Co-operation.

A further cause of loss in money which may be enumerated, arises from the failure of the farmer to co-operate Co-operative efforts in the past have not been invariably successful; Peterborough farmers indeed have made attempts in this direction which have not been in the nature of unqualified success, but first attempts are often unsuccessful, and there are many object lessons of the huge benefits to be derived from active and intelligent co-operation. By combining their resources and capital, farmers can purchase manures in large quantities at greatly reduced prices, food is to be had at similar reduced cost, and the cheaper freight rates, resulting from larger consignments, help to stop the leakage of revenue. In disposing of farm produce co-operation has been found of inestimable benefit. Co-operation has long been an established practice in the Danish butter trade, while the French not only join forces in production, but do their selling along the same lines and among other outstanding advantages resultant from this system, the reduction in the cost of conveyance occupies a prominent place. This system might easily be applied to this country to sales of meat, milk, butter, cheese, poultry, eggs and vegetables; for, by combination, the marketing can be done on a more economical basis than by individual effort.

Economy in the Stable.

There are other methods by which saving may be effected. The long winter here necessitates a lengthy period of stable or stall feeding for live stock. But feeding and stabling can be so regulated as to produce the best results and most economical returns. All vermin on the bodies of the animals should be exterminated as soon as they are brought into winter quarters; sunlight, the cheapest and most effective agency in the promotion and maintenance of health should be freely admitted; and some form of exercise suitable for the different classes of live stock should be a part of the daily program.

In feed there are three factors that deserve consideration, namely, succulency. Mineral content and a proper balance between those constituents that furnish heat for the body and the elements that repair wastage or add to the bone tissue and vital organs of the animal. Without balance in the feeds, there can be no true economy in live stock husbandry.

AIDS WOMEN.

Mrs. Mary C. Puncke is beginning an exhaustive survey of farm home conditions throughout the United States.

Mrs. Puncke is a native of Holland, emigrating to America in 1909 and homesteading in Canada, 40 all the work the average farm miles from a railroad. She has done woman has to do and knows from practical experience just what life in the open is. She was for years active in community work, became a director of the United Farm Women of Alberta, organized, studied, wrote and helped in every possible way to improve social life and economic status of farm women in the prairie provinces.

CHEESE MAKER GIVEN DIPLOMA

United Dairymen Praise the Quality of Ormonde Factory Output.

HIGH STANDARD.

HASTINGS, Feb. 4.—The cheesemaker of the Ormonde cheese factory at Hastings is receiving congratulations on his successful year in cheesemaking. A letter received from the United Dairymen Co-operative Limited states: "We take pleasure in advising you that the cheese from Ormonde cheese factory sold by us last season graded, for the season, 97.3 per cent specials and firsts. This is a very fine showing and entitles you to receive one of the diplomas we give to those cheesemakers whose cheese scores 95 per cent or over, firsts and seconds."

NO CO-OPERATION.

You remember the story of the man who was being directed through an insane asylum? The guide took him from one part of the institution to another, and after a while they came to an open court, and sat on a balcony looking down into the courtyard. They looked at a group of some fifty men, and a little guard who was with them.

The visitor said to the guide, "How many guards do you have to have with that bunch?"

The guide replied, "One."

"Which one is he?"

"The little fellow over there at the right."

"Where is his rifle?"

"He has no rifle."

"You mean to tell me that that little chap takes care of those 50 men?"

The guide said, "Yes, he is strong, and can easily handle any of those fellows."

"Yeas'm," said the visitor, "but suppose they get together; they could easily overpower him in a minute."

"That may be," said the guide, but if those fellows had enough sense to get together—to co-operate—they wouldn't be here."

START CHICKS EARLY.

By hatching a part of the poultry flock between Jan. 15 and Feb. 15, so that the birds will mature in July, the poultryman takes a big step toward maintaining his late summer and early fall production, says R. R. Hannas, poultry research specialist.

FROZEN CORN SEED.

Tests made of many lots of corn seed indicate that the germinating power of much of the corn was injured by the low temperatures which occurred in October before corn had dried out thoroughly. The Dept. of Agriculture urges farmers to make sure that the seed they plant is going to grow before planting.

Cure Found To Remove Tapeworms From Poultry

By NEA Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Kamala, a brownish powder obtained from a plant in India and lon used there as a drug, has been found satisfactory for removing tapeworms from poultry.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture tried the drug out on 120 chickens and six turkeys. The result indicated that a dose of one gram to a chicken removed all the worms in approximately 19 cases out of 20.

DROP IN EGGS ONLY CHANGE

Prices at Cobourg Market Have Been Steady All Month.

APPLES PLENTIFUL.

COBOURG, Feb. 4 (Special).—Market prices in Cobourg have undergone little change during January, excepting that eggs have dropped from 65c and 70c to 40c and 45c. Butter on the farmers' market has sold all the month at 40c and 45c, with some going at 48c. Potatoes are from $2.80 to $3.00 a bag and not many are being offered.

Apples are very plentiful. A farmer brought a load into town the other day, mostly of the Wagener variety, and disposed of them to householders at 60c per bushel. Spies are offered at $1.00 a bushel.

Some chickens were sold on the farmers' market on Saturday for 75c each, and others brought from $1.00 to $1.25 each. Fowl sold at practically the same prices. Small ducks could be purchased for $1.00 each and larger ones from $1.25 to $1.50. Geese and turkeys are only offered occasionally.

There is some cordwood being brought in and good body wood is worth $12.00 a cord. A dealer on Saturday sold a load of fat pine, worked up quite small, for $10.00 for the cord.

The first of the imported vegetables are being offered in the stores in the form of new cauliflower, lettuce, green onions and small bunches of rhubarb.

COTTON IS BIG CALIFORNIA CROP

San Joaquin Valley Has Half Million Acres of Suitable Land.

By NEA Service.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif., Feb. 4.—California is beginning to boast about another product of its soil—cotton.

The state never had been thought of much as a cotton producer, although experiments of all kinds had been going on in various counties for the last 25 years. But three years ago cotton growing entered the San Joaquin valley with a vim, and by this time this fertile district of southern California is included as one of the cotton growing centers of the United States.

At present, however, the production is less than half of 1 per cent of that of the entire country. But there is promise of this proportion growing to about 5 per cent of the world supply in a few years.

Growing District.

Cotton last year added $11,500,000 to the total valuation of crops in the San Joaquin valley.

Bakersfield seems to be the center of the California cotton industry. Yet Corcoran, to the north, is the actual center of the cotton growing district at present.

That little city of 1500 is the point about which cotton acreage is expanding swiftly. There are said to be 100,000 acres adaptable to cotton in this district.

Nearing the Record.

The entire San Joaquin valley has probably 500,000 acres available for cotton growing, and as much more land will be suitable with proper irrigation provided.

In one section, near Tulare, growers expect to produce the plant at an average of two bales to the acre.

Tests show cotton in the San Joaquin valley can be grown at an average cost of from 11 to 15 cents a pound. With the market averaging about 24 cents a pound for the year, the greater advantage is seen to be held by California.

THE SUGAR JACK PROCESS.

There is being installed throughout the country by dairymen and others a process for preparing feed for the stock known as the Sugar Jack process, where by all the roughage around the farm can be used to an advantage. This process consists of a tank being installed in the feed department in which the roughage is cut and packed. Water is supplied through a small pipe from a tank installed for that purpose, at the same time supplying a protein formula which makes the feed palatable and digestible. The profit in stock raising is only in getting the best results from the feed that is at hand. In order to get full value of feed there must be enough protein to balance the carbydrates, even if it has to be divided.

ADVERTISING PAYS.

Through advertising in The Examiner, E. L. Bell, of Otonabee, has sold a young show bull, "Sensation of Bellthorpe," 28280, to Mr. J. M. Nattress of Millbrook. His sire, Fern's Oxford Gold Noble, 16336, also a prize winner and from May of Bellthorpe, 17812, a wonderful milk and butter producer.

Ohio farmers are using more high-grade fertilizers than ever before. This past year, farmers in Ohio bought 164,545 tons of commercial mixed fertilizer.

CALLS THEM "LIZZIE"

Henry Ford is enjoying an outdoor life this winter. He is shown standing by "Tim" and "Terry," prize oxen. Ford keeps the oxen on his Wayside Inn estate at Sudbury, Mass. Friends often call the oxen "the Lizzies."

SMALL EGGS FROM CONSTANT LAYERS

Problem Becomes More Pronounced as Production Breeding is Kept Up.

The small egg problem is becoming more and more pronounced the longer the breeding for high egg production is continued. Such is the testimony of the Dominion poultry husbandman in his report for 1924. A bird that does not lay eggs that average 24 ounces to the dozen cannot be registered, no matter how many eggs she lays. Official records do not show that because a hen lays a large number of eggs she must necessarily lay a small egg, but they do show that unless careful selection is followed there is a decided tendency for the size of eggs to decrease as production increases. Where breeding for increased production, even from birds that show a number of generations of large-egg birds back of them, there is, says the report, a constant cropping out of individuals that lay small eggs. These birds shotild be discarded, as liable to produce their like. The importance of using the greatest care in selecting a male to head a flock is that he is from large egg stock, cannot be well overestimated soncludes the poultry husbandman.

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS ATTENDED A CLASS

Held at Farm Owned By P. B. Nelson, Near Burnbrae.

BURNBRAE, Feb. 4.—A number of Holstein breeders from Burnbrae district attended the judging class held at Mr. P. B. Nelson's "Morningoode Farm," on Friday afternoon. In spite of threatening weather, some thirty-five breeders and friends assembled and spent a profitable, instructive afternoon in the study of the Holstein cow.

Mr. R. Holtby, Port Perry, fieldman of the Association, was present and conducted the class. Mr. Holtby is a past master in the art of judging and describing Holstein cattle having for years been a farmer breeder of the black and white cow, before taking over his present job. His remarks, during the placing of the three groups presented, were of undoubted value in fixing the ideal of dairy and particularly Holstein breeding, in the minds of those present. The Campbellford Holstein Club was fortunate in securing Mr. Holtby's services for the occasion, and Mr. Nelson's high-class herd for demonstration purposes.

Hog prices are looking up and heavy shipments were made last week at $13.25 per cwt. Feed prices advance accordingly with bran and shorts quoted at $35 and $37 per ton delivered.

OKANAGAN APPLE CROP.

VERNON.—A total of 2,300,000 boxes is the estimated crop of apples in the Okanagan Valley this year. On a price basis of a dollar and a half a box, the return to growers in this district from their apple crop alone, will be in the neighborhood of four million dollars. There will also be a fairly large income from small fruits and vegetables, which should net around another two million dollars.

ALBERTA'S BUTTER EXPORTS.

CALGARY.—Last year Alberta exported to Britain and other countries over 4,000,000 pounds of butter, which was a little less than one-fifth of the total production of the province's creamery butter. The anticipation is that the total production of creamery butter will, for 1925, reach 25,000,000 pounds.

The high price of potatoes this year brings to our mind the question: Who discovered the potato? Most people think it came from Ireland. Well, it did, after Sir John Hawkins, in 1565, brought it first to Ireland from South America, where the spud is native to the manner born. Twenty years later Sir Francis Drake brought the curiosity to England, but not until the end of the eighteenth century did it come into general use. And now look at it! The only food crops on earth that exceed it are wheat and rye.

CATTLE EAT WOOD; CAUSE HEAVY LOSS

Destroy Young Trees and Lower Quality of Older Ones.

Do cattle eat wood?

Farmers throughout the country will say so with emphasis and sorrow.

The Forests Products Laboratory is trying to find out to what extent wood is beneficial to cattle, if at all, especi lly once the animals seem to like it so much.

At the same time serious charges are being laid against not only cattle, but all sorts of graying livestock. They're made by Dr. G. A. Pearson of the southwestern forest experiment station, who finds the young trees of the national forests of Arizona practically destroyed by the hungry animals.

Many Homes Lost!

This is especially true in the Coconino and Tuscayan national forests, where, Dr. Pearson estimates 200,000-000 board feet of timber have been eaten up by livestock in the last 20 years. Livestock graze under permit in these forests. There, Dr. Pearson says, they have caused 200,000 acres of cut-over land to fail in natural reproduction of trees.

Sheep, he finds are the gross offenders, eating the pine seedlings and thus keeping these young trees from growing into worth while timber. Where cattle are too thick for grazing, these also take wood as their supplementary diet.

Nothing seems to have happened to the livestock. But regeneration of trees in these forests has been set back 20 years, Dr. Pearson figures.

Big Losses Coming.

A favorable crop seeded in 1919 has been one-fourth eaten up by the grazing livestock, and another 50 per cent is expected to be eaten up or destroyed in the next two or three years.

Dr. Pearson would rather see these seedlings grow into worth while timber than be converted into meat. For he estimates trees are worth 15 times as much an acre for timber than for cattle feed.

Grazing in the forests also causes poorer quality of timber. Dr. Pearson finds, besides reducing the reproduction of timber.

Perhaps, if tests show sawdust really worth while for grazing cattle, the sawmills in the timber lands may be called upon to furnish the wooden food that other wise is being taken direct from the trees.

As yet, however, this hasn't shown any promise over the greens of the fields.

CLOVER LED IN FEEDING TESTS

Experiments at Kentville Showed it Better For Laying Hens.

MORE EGGS PER HEN.

In an experiment to determine the comparative value of mangels, clover and sprouted oats as green feeds given in addition to the regular ration of poultry, conducted at the Kentville, N.S., experimental farm, clover gave the best results. In one pen a pound of mangels a day was hung on the wall so that the hens could peck at them as they wished. A second pen was fed second growth clover and alfalfa hay, well-cured, with the leaves on. The other pen got a pound per day of sprouted oats. The hens in the pen receiving clover as a green food laid an average of 229 eggs per month against 214 by those getting mangels and 177 by those fed on sprouted oats. The regular ration received by all the hens consisted of scratch grain, mash, beef scrap, fish scrap and oyster shell.

Rusts, smuts, blights and other plant diseases are now estimated to be reducing average crop yields in the United States by 10 per cent., and without doubt the selection and breeding of disease resistant crop plants will be used more and more in the future in an effort to check these diseases.

Promise is most given when the least is said.—Chapman.

Make Hay While Sun Shines Is More Truth Than Poetry

By NEA Service.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 4.—"Make hay while the sun shines is more than an epigram, for hay made in the dark has no properties for preventing rickets," says Professor Harry Steenbock, agricultural chemist.

"Since 1907," says Professor Steenbock, "there have been experiments with various animals to establish the inadequacy of the accepted feeding standards. During the last two years we have found that the vitiating factor has been sunlight—sunlight acting either upon the animal or upon the animal's food."

CHASING DIRT FROM HEN HOUSE

Sanitation is One of Most Necessary Items of Business.

SOIL CONTAMINATED.

One of the greatest assets in the poultry business is the ability to persistently chase dirt in a vigorous manner. Colony houses rapidly accumulate dirty litter, feathers and mites. The litter in the laying houses needs changing when it breaks up. Dust gathers over everything. Mites soon breed on unprotected roosts. The more hens you have the more houses you need and the greater the necessity of sanitation.

Soil soon becomes contaminated when hundreds of chicks are growing on a limited area. Regardless of the size of the range both the chicks and the hens are apt to spend most of their time near the feed hoppers and the houses. Plowing and cropping the soil is the safest way to continue in the poultry business. Turn under the fertilizer and turn up clean soil in which the hens can scratch.

A stiff barn brush, scraper and spray outfit are useful equipment in keeping houses clean. I find I have the best luck in chasing dirt regularly when the cleaning tools, spray dope and sprayer are hanging on nails inside one of the henhouses. The sprayer can be quickly filled any time by pouring a little coal tar disinfectant into the sprayer and diluting it with water from the drinking pails. Then you are ready to give the red mites a bath without hunting the equipment.

a proper balance between the bird life and the green crop on the range.

FORMS OF COLIC NOT ALL ALIKE

d Different Remedies For Different Varieties—Error in Feeding.

SOME REMEDIES.

There are different forms of colic, each requiring entirely different remedies. But most colics are due to some error in feeding and watering, therefore it follows that if proper care is used in feeding and caring for horses, colic would be much less frequent. The feeding of new hay or oats, a sudden change of diet, imperfect teeth or lack of sufficient drinking water at regular intervals all cause colics. A drink of water when an animal is warm, or standing in a cold draught will also cause the periodical attacks.

The manner in which some horses are fed also influences their health. When water is given immediately after feeding it washes the food out of the stomach before it has been properly prepared for digestion, and assimilation, which takes place in the intestines, and this is a frequent cause of indigestion. The usual order should be water, then hay, then grain. Hay passes out of the stomach more quickly than grain. Horses should not be given a full meal of grain when warm or fatigued. A full hour should elapse before grain is fed, during which time they may be permitted an allowance of hay. Do not feed them barley, but substitute bran in its place. Do not overfeed, as more trouble arises from overfeeding than underfeeding. When horses are to stand idle for several days, it is a good practice to give each animal a heaping tablespoon of Glauber salts in the feed. When a horse is suffering from an attack, relief is often obtained by giving a pint of raw linseed oil, to which add two ounces each of laudanum and nitre.

DRY MASH FEEDER BEST.

From the standpoint of its influence on egg production, the dry mash feeder is entitled to first place in a list of poultry house equipment, according to specialists. The trough type of feeder is considered the best as it is easier for the flock owner to watch the ratio between the consumption of mash and scratch feed.

CARE OF ROOSTER.

"Next spring's hatch of chicks may be a success or failure, depending on the care that the male bird gets during the winter," says D. C. Henderson. "If the rooster is to sire vigorous chicks he must be kept in the best physical condition from now until the hatching season is over."

The destruction of about 3,000,000 prairie dogs and other rodents in northern Arizona in the course of a recent poisoning campaign has, it is estimated, increased the forage production of the area by more than 76,000 tons.

According to reliable estimate there are at least 35,000 bowling alleys in the United States.

ADVANTAGES OF IMPROVING HERDS WERE FIRST NOTED AND ACTED ON BY BREEDERS SOME 75 YEARS AGO

Pure Bred Durhams and Shorthorns Were Then at Forefront.

RECEIVED PRIZES.

Farmers of United Counties Drew Large Proportion of Prize Money.

COBOURG, Feb. 4.—Seventy-five years ago the farmers and breeders of Ontario were fast becoming awakened to the great advantage that lay before them in improving their herds. There were several breeders at that time who prided themselves in their good stock.

W. S. Masson, of Seymour, bred Durhams, and at the Provincial Agricultural Association fair at Kingston in September, 1849, received the second award of £4 on a Durham bull. Probably he introduced the Durham breed into Seymour township, which is now noted for its fine herds of cattle.

In referring to the introduction of the Shorthorn breed into Canada, the Canadian Agriculturist for August, 1849, says:

"Among the improved breeds introduced into Canada, the Shorthorns or Durhams are perhaps the greatest favorites, and are most extensively known. They are also probably the most profitable for general purposes. In color, they are generally light, sometimes quite white. The horns of the pure-bred animal are quite short; sometimes, in the finest bulls, a mere tip on each side of the forehead. In the carcass, they combine every point which has been mentioned as essential to perfection. They are perfectly hardy, bearing all the variations of this climate, quite as well as the native breeds, and returning, with fair help, as great a weight for the butcher at three years old, as the common cattle do at six.

"A prejudice has sometimes existed against the Durhams, on the supposition that they were indifferent milkers, but the contrary is in reality the fact; the purest Durham cows having proved to yield a large quantity of milk, or speaking technically to be very deep milkers."

It was that same year that the committee on cattle to award premiums at the cattle show of the New York Agricultural Society, stated in their report: "We believe that if all the cattle sold for beef in the state of New York were full-blood Durhams, the farmers of the state of New York would pocket every year some quarter to a half million of dollars more than they do for the same number of cattle."

These extracts show the trend of thought toward the improvement of herds and the getting away from what were then generally termed native cattle. It is pleasing to note that the breeders of the Cobourg locality, Seymour township, and of other places in this district, were of the progressive type and were instrumental in introducing better stock.

Of the 32 awards for cattle made at the Provincial Exhibition (now the Canadian National) at Kingston in 1849, 16 were given to Durham cattle, and of these sixteen eleven were carried off by the breeders of Northumberland and Durham counties. It is no wonder that breeding cattle is a basic industry in this locality; it was begun by the sons of the pioneer settlers more than three-quarters of a century ago.

Eight awards out of the thirty-two made for other classes of cattle, can el to these United counties also, loca breeders winning with Devon, Ayrshire and grade cattle and on fat an working oxen.

Blossom's Fate.

Hon. Adam Ferguson owned a splendid Shorthorn heifer, Blossom. To show that there was pedigreed stock seventy-five years ago, we copy the following from the Canadian Agriculturist:

"Blossom.—White, bred by and the property of Hon. Adam Ferguson, Woodhill near Watertown, Canada West, ca ved 16th August, 1843, got by Strathmore out of Beauty by Snowball (2647) by Lawnsleeves (365) by Mr. Mason's Charles (127)."

It was intended by Blossom's owner to exhibit this cow at the Provincial Exhibition at Cobourg, but in consequence of injuries which she received, when being shipped by boat, from the Hamilton Exhibition, owing to the roughness of the weather, it was not thought best to take her farther than Toronto. She was purchased by Mr. Philip Armstrong of Toronto and furnished that gentleman "1,249 pounds of marketable beef, 215 pounds of tallow."

"The meat," the Agriculturist states, "was pronounced by Mr. Armstrong's customers to be of the finest description."

THRESHER LEAVES.

Leo Conway Takes Machine Home After Good Season in Emily.

SOUTH EMILY, Feb. 4.—The people have their clover nearly all threshed now. The roads were very bad, but Mr. Leo Conway moved his machine home safely on January 25, after a very successful season in Emily. Mr. Conway has done some excellent work at threshing, both clover and grain.

Mr. Walter Moncrief has sold his sawing outfit to Mr. Leo Conway, but it is expected Mr. Conway will still saw in Emily township.

SOME EVIDENCE ON INBREEDING

If Followed By Line Breeding Plan Works Well.

MATE THE BEST.

The superintendent of the Cap Rouge, Que., Dominion experimental station, who is also in charge of the horse farm at St. Joachim, Montmorency county, where French Canadian horses are bred and developed, is a firm advocate of inbreeding followed by line-breeding, rather than by outcrossing. He says better headway is made by that method and quotes an instance of the product of three mares bred back to their own sons that have won first prizes and diplomas as best of the breed at Three Rivers and the Quebec provincial exhibition in face of strong competition. The rule, the superintendent, G. A. Langelier, D.Sc.A., says in his report, should be to mate the best individuals irrespective of relationship, if both dam and sire have very strong constitutions and possess no defects in common. Davenport's remark that close breeding is the only way to pass from possibility to probability and from probability to certainty, is approvingly quoted with this addenda that the man who uses this method must be particularly careful not to bring together animals capable of transmitting common defects along with their apparent good qualities. Of 30 different mares of French Canadian breeding originally brought to the farm only 14 are left, the others having been discarded because the mares could not produce offsprings as good or better than themselves.

Canada's meat exports have an approximate increase of $12,000,000 in the past twelve months. Notable gains have been made in the exportation of fresh beef, mutton and lamb. Duing the twelve months ended November, the total value of the export meat trade was $36,536,310, while in the twelve months ended November, 1924, the value of meat exported was $24,325,025.

Elimination of the fuel problem of modern life by development of a fuel, the power of which would be many thousand times that of anything at present known to science, is predicted by Prof. S. J. McLennan, head of the department of physics of the University of Toronto and eminent authority on helium and the atomic theory. Working from the fact that it was now possible to manufacture helium from hydrogen and at the same time produce enormous amounts of energy, researches now being carried on, Prof. McLennan believed, would ultimately enable scientists to produce the super-fuel which would be the cure for all transportation and fuel problems. He pointed out that it should be theoretically possible to begin with hydrogen and instead of destroying only part of the matter and producing helium, to destroy the whole and so produce only mechanical power. The professor stated that by so doing heat sufficient to bring four cubic miles of water to the boiling point could be generated from a small quantity of hydrogen, the cubic size of which would be no larger than that of the human body.

A report of the Department of Trade and Commerce draws attention to the rapidly increasing consumption of Canadian wheat and flour which has been a feature of the trade with China during recent months. YOUNG LADIES WERE GUESTS AT SOCIAL

Mrs. C. Sloggett Entertained Mission Circle of United Church.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 5.—Mrs. Carl Sloggett entertained the Young Ladies' Mission Circle of St. John's at her home in Seymour on Tuesday evening. There were over forty who drove out in sleighs. After the regular business was done and future work of the Society discussed, there were several contests. Mrs. Sloggett served a dainty lunch and Miss Keir, the president, on behalf of the Circle, tendered the hostess a vote of thanks.

SHE WAS WEAK, THIN AND NERVOUS

One of the greatest strength givers and producers of good healthy flesh in the world is Cod Liver Extract—it's full of vitamines.

Thank goodness! that now, when a woman is weak and haggard and don't weigh what she ought to, she knows where to go for help as all druggists are now selling McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets, sugar coated, and as easy to take as candy.

And it's a mighty good thing for skinny, rundown men and women to know that they can get the real Cod Liver vitamines in condensed form, that they can easily carry with them wherever they travel.

Men and women, weak, thin and nervous, are urged to put on weight and get back their health and strength with these wonderful tablets.

One woman gained 15 pounds in five weeks and that's going fast enough for anyone.

Only 60 cents for 60 tablets, and if they don't put five pounds of flesh on any thin person in 30 days—why, money back and no quibbling about it, either.

But be sure and get McCoy's, the original and genuine. McDermid & Jury, James Lynch and Ponds Drug Store and druggists everywhere, are selling lots of them.

ANNUAL REPORT CHIEF CONSTABLE

Chief Newhall made the following report to the Police Commission on Monday:

I consider it a matter of great importance and satisfaction to be able to report that "murder" is not included in our statistics for the said year.

The Police Force.

The Force numbers 13, including all ranks.

The total area of the city is 2,825 3-4 acres; within this area there are 160 streets and alleys, the total length of these being approximately 55 miles.

The maximum number of officers to carry out the various duties are as follows:

Day relief, 7; night relief, 6, including superior officers.

Traffic Signal System.

I again ask the Police Commissioners to bring to the city council's notice the number of accidents which have occurred at the various traffic corners owing to the lack of proper traffic control signals, etc., whereby personal injury has been sustained and much property damage.

If proper signals had been there, these accidents could not have happened without the guilt being placed where it rightly belonged.

Through streets should be named and a few signals installed which will be a great protection to life, limb and property and greatly aid in the regulation of traffic.

Motor traffic continues to increase and traffic over the busiest crossings has to be regulated, which still calls for extra men on day duty; where are the night duty men to come from? Besides, more responsibility is being placed on the police to enforce the Highway Traffic Act. It is obvious then that the hazard of the pedestrian is very great and, too, that precautions for their safety must be proportionate to the risk.

Over 350 drivers were cautioned for minor breaches of traffic regulations, without getting a police record, all being first offenders.

Patrols.

The excellent system of auto and motor cycle patrol by night of previous years had to be abandoned, owing to shortage of officers and funds, which is to be deplored.

Crime.

During 1925 there were 285 cases of theft, house and shop-breaking and other serious offences reported to the police, 75 per cent being where there is little or no police supervision, which speaks for itself.

There were also 7,957 phone calls to which the police responded.

Carrying of Concealed Weapons.

The above law has been strictly enforced.

Disorderly Houses.

The city is practically free from such houses, only one or two suspected houses exist at the present time.

Pool Rooms.

Special attention has been given to the conduct of pool-rooms and other licensed premises as it is in these places that many a young man receives his first tuition in crime.

The Ontario Temperance Act.

This act has been fairly and honestly enforced.

Narcotic Drugs.

There were many breaches of the above act, and any offenders who were arrested were severely punished.

Discipline.

The personal conduct of the members of the police force has been exemplary. I have only found it necessary to verbally caution one member of the force, for insolence.

They have assumed a clear-cut understanding of their duty and responsibility to the public. I do not know of one instance where an officer has neglected to act promptly and to the best of his ability in answering calls of any nature.

The Police Matron.

I regret very much that our matron has had to resign, owing to her removal to Toronto.

Both she and her husband, Commandant Smith, will be a decided loss to the police force, as through their tireless efforts in connection with young people who were led astray and fell into the hands of the police, besides numerous other cases which the law could not successfully reach, and but for their services would have become a direct charge on the community.

Their vacancy will be hard to fill.

In conclusion, I wish to thank the Board of Police Commissioners, on behalf of the members of the department and myself, for their assistance and co-operation during the past year in all things pertaining to the well-being and good government of the force.

Members of The Peterborough Police Force.

FISH HATCHERY IN THIS DISTRICT

Local Fish and Game Association Will Ask Government to Start One.

FISH NOT PLENTIFUL.

The Peterboro Fish and Game Protective Association held its annual meeting in the Empress Hotel last night. It was decided that the efforts of the Association would be directed towards obtaining a hatchery for this district from the government. It was pointed out by several speakers that the fish back north were not as plentiful as they should be and it was felt that if this condition was allowed to continue, that before many seasons had passed the average tourist in quest of good fishing would pass up the Kawartha Lakes for some other place.

The Association will again apply for a number of settings of pheasant eggs for the district.

After considerable discussion it was decided that men would be hired this year as protectors during the spawning season.

It was resolved to bring Jack Miner to the city under the auspices of the Association in order that the public might be made better acquainted with the protective work that is being done throughout the province in this regard.

C. G. Graham, president of the Peterboro Association, was appointed delegate from this section to attend the annual meeting of the Ontario Hunters' Fish and Game Protective Association, which will be held in Toronto, on Feb. 10th.

CUSTOMS IRREGULARITIES WERE SUBJECT OF HOUSE DISCUSSION

Conservative Speakers Charge Government With Trying to Shield Someone.

PROGRESS MADE.

Hon. J. A. Robb Says Committee on Stevens Charges is Being Formed.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—A statement in regard to the proposed committee which will investigate the charges of irregularities in the Customs Department will probably be made in the House of Commons today by Hon. George H. Boivin, Minister of Customs. Just before adjournment last night, Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, said that he understood progress had been made in negotiations for the appointment of the committee. He renewed assurances that the Government was anxious for the appointment of a committee to make the fullest possible investigations.

Mr. Robb's statement followed a motion for adjournment of the debate, which had been made by Sir George Perley (Conservative, Argenteuil. Sir George said that apparently some difficulty had arisen in the negotiations which were proceeding between the Minister of Customs and the leader of the Opposition over the committee. In view of this, the Conservatives were not prepared to make any alteration in the Stevens amendment before the House. He moved the adjournment in order to give the Government an opportunity to introduce its motion for the appointment of the committee. Adjournment of the debate was agreed to.

References to the alleged irregularities in the customs service recurred throughout the debate yesterday. Again the Conservative speakers followed each other in an attack on the Government's proposal, with but few government supporters intervening in the debate.

There were suggestions that the Government was seeking adjournment in order to avoid having the charges investigated, and that some one behind the scenes was being protected. E. B. Ryckman (Conservative member for East Toronto), criticized the Minister of Customs for not having taken action against the offenders earlier. The country would hold the Minister responsible for having allowed the criminal to go untried, if action was not taken, he said.

GIBSON GIRL IS STILL REIGNING

Occupies First Place in Heart of Man Who Made Her Famous.

IS HIS WIFE

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The Gibson Girl still reigns in the heart of her creator.

Bustle, pompadour, leg-o'-mutton sleeves and all—Charles Dana Gibson still holds her first among beauties. She has not bobbed her hair, or followed the steps of the short-skirt generation. And she still keeps a hint of the gentle, violet-scented feminity of nineties.

For the original Gibson girl was Irene Langhorne of Virginia, later the wife of the artist himself. She is one of the five famous Langhorne beauties of Richmond, and a sister of Lady Astor.

Most of the sketches that set the styles in women three decades ago were drawn by Gibson with his wife as model.

But to say that he created the type from her would be to put the cart before the horse, he says. For years he had been drawing her before he ever saw her.

And thereby hangs the story.

In the winter of 1894, Charles Dana Gibson, having saved about $30,000 from the sale of his magazine pictures, entered New York society for the first time. He was often seen at the restaurants and theatres with a crowd of friends recruited from the arts and professions.

Sees His Ideal.

One November night during horse show week he was seated at a supper table at Delmonico's with some of the gayest blades about town.

Suddenly he sprang to his feet. "There goes my typical American girl," he said under his breath. The men followed his eyes and saw a striking beauty crossing the floor, pulling her evening wrap about her white shoulders.

"Why, that's Irene Langhorne of Virginia, up for the horse show," said one of his friends. "She is a belle. Don't hitch your wagon to a star."

This advice, needless to say, was wasted. Gibson manoeuvred for an introduction at a tea the very next day, and began a wooing along heavy artillery lines, sweeping rivals out of the way, besieging Miss Langhorne with flowers and sweets and admiration, until she left New York for Richmond.

She invited him casually that spring to "come to Richmond some time," and he took the next train south. In Virginia he found still harder competition, for the Langhorne girls held court among the younger set of the south in undisputed supremacy.

Gibson's suit met with no success at first. He made several trips southward and was hospitably received, but not encouraged.

It was under an August moon, while he was a guest at the Langhorne country place in Albemarle County, Virginia, that he made his final plea and was accepted. Irene had held out just as long as she could stand it.

The wedding followed in November of that year, 1895, and the world noticed a new power and beauty in the Gibson drawings. The American girls from his pen took on distinct individuality and a new charm.

"I had been drawing the Langhorne type for years," says the artist, "because I though it the most beautiful type in America. But I had never seen so perfect an example of it as Irene Langhorne."

The honeymoon was spent in London, where Gibson worked feverishly at his easel and the bride posed for long hours day after day.

Children Stop Posing.

When they returned to America, Mrs. Gibson continued to pose for him until the children, Langhorne and Irene, were born and demanded most of her time.

The Gibsons have lived in New York for many years, but spend their summers at Seven-Hundred-Acre Island, Maine, where they have a country home.

Mrs. Gibson's chief interest is children's phinanthropies. She is known as a particularly gracious hostess and a loyal friend.

And, as one of the employes in Mr. Gibson's office puts it, "Mrs. Gibson has only to enter a room and within five minutes everybody present is grouped around her. It is partly her beauty, but mostly the Langhorne charm. Nobody understands it but everybody yields to it."

Charles Dana Gibson does not disapprove of bobbed hair in general. "But," he says, "can you imagine my Gibson girl without her soft swirl of long hair? I don't want her changed in any way from the girl she was when I saw her first. She was, and still is, in my sight at least, the perfect American type of beauty."

ROBBERS BEAT TORONTO MAN

Morris Climans Clubbed on Head With Revolver Butt.

THIEVES TAKE $300.

TORONTO, Feb. 5. Canadian Press. — Three men entered the home of Morris Climans, aged 32, yesterday afternoon, and after clubbing Climans with the butt of a revolver, cooly ransacked the premises and got away with $300 from a drawer. Climans was found later by his brother James ,who had him removed to the General Hospital. Several stitches were required to close the wound.

Climans told the police that the men drove up in a motor car bearing a Michigan license. They desired to purchase some bottles, they said, and tendered a bill of large denomination as payment. Climans turned to get change for the bill and as he did so one of the men struck him on the back of the head.

FORCE CONTROL OF CORN BORERS

Government To Introduce Legislation For Compulsory Measures.

SITUATION SERIOUS.

TORONTO, February 5. — Canadian Press. — Legislation, which is aimed to render compulsory the practicing by Ontario farmers of government corn borer control measures will be introduced at the coming session of the Legislature, according to the announcement made yesterday by Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture. Some idea of the alarm with which the department is inclined to view the borer menace is readily conveyed in Mr. Martin's announcement. On the other hand, many farming communities have failed to date, it is said to appreciate the seriousness of the inroads made by the grubs since 1923.

English farmers propose to tattoo their initials on their pets after this instead of notching their ears.

FRENCH FEAR TAX PUBLICITY

Many Err in Stating Incomes and May Be Exposed.

STRIKE IN PARIS.

PARIS, Feb. 5. — Canadian Press. —French taxpayers probably will suffer from a nightmare, for yesterday afternoon the Chamber of Deputies adopted an amendment to the finance bill ordering publicity for income tax declarations. Most Frenchmen have erred on the side of caution in stating their incomes, and have every reason to fear the revelations of candid friends. The penalty for improper declarations is a 25 per cent. increase in tax.

The shopkeepers of the Rue St. Honore, in which are located some of the most fashionable shops of Paris, went on an hour's strike yesterday afternoon in protest against "new taxes and fiscal inequality," referring to proposals before the Chamber of Deputies.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

RUST STAINS.

Rust stains caused by leaking faucets may be removed by rubbing with a piece of lemon, if they are not of too long standing.

KITCHEN DIARY.

A kitchen diary with pages for order lists and a pencil attached should be hung on the wall where one can reach it easily. It will save many steps and ensure the housekeeper against forgetfulness.

GREASE SPOTS.

Grease spots may sometimes be removed from wall paper with a blotter and a warm iron.

SINK SCRAPERS.

Sink scrapers of rubber, with wooden handles, eliminate much unpleasant work in cleaning the sink.

SILK PETTICOAT.

An old silk petticoat makes the best possible dust cloth for the piano.

PAPER SACKS.

Use paper sacks to line the garbage can, so that they can be removed, leaving a clean surface in the can. Scald can with sal soda twice a week.

TO DRY HAIR.

An electric fan placed in the door of a heated oven makes a good hair dryer. Care must be taken not to get close enough to tangle the hair in the fan.

CHEAP LINOLEUM.

Cheap printed linoleum will last longer if treated with a coat of varnish twice a year.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Orange juice, cereal, thin cream, Spanish omelet, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Noodle soup, asparagus salad, rye bread, apple pancakes, milk, tea.

Dinner—Boiled mutton, curried rice, creamed turnips, head lettuce with Russian dressing, graham bread, plain cake, canned pears, milk, coffee.

Mutton is so often boiled because by cooking it in water the strong flavor is greatly lessened. An onion, peeled but unsliced, and 2 teaspoons lemon juice added to the water improves the flavor of the meat.

These apple pancakes are rather out of the ordinary but very good for a cold weather dessert.

Apple Pancakes.

Two and one-half cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 eggs, 1 3-4 cups sour milk, 1 cup grated tart apple.

Mix and sift flour, salt, sugar and soda. Stir in milk and melted butter. Beat until smooth and add eggs well beaten and grated apple. Mix thoroughly and bake large cakes on a lightly greased griddle. A soap-stone or aluminum griddle needs no greasing. The cakes should be the size of a layer cake. Spread each cake generously with butter and sprinkle with maple sugar, stacking cakes as they are baked. Cut "pie fashion" and serve very hot.

Whatever is, is in its causes just.—Dryden.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

FADS

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (United Press).—Flappers in a Mississippi town are taking up the sock-wearing fad which was set by skaters at Lake Placid this Winter. Over their flesh-colored stockings of sheer silk they are wearing brilliant plaid socks which extend eight inches above the ankle. The effect is quite startling with skirts of knee-length since most of the girls look like six-year-olds in half-socks. The more colorful the sock the better they like 'em. So far, we have seen no evidence of this style on the streets of New York but occasionally we see them at the skating rinks.

If we must ... the Charleston, we must indulge in Charleston bloomers which are the newest things out. These are similar to step-in bloomers except that they are scantier and are trimmed almost to the waist with rows of tiny petal-shaped ruffles with picoted edges. They must match the popular pastel-hued frock perfectly and can't be a hair's breadth off shade with the frock. Thus, when one dances, one can shift as many gears as one wishes. And, by the way, round garters are not popular with Charlestoners. Stockings must be held up by bandeaux which extend about the hips and bloomers must overlap the tops of the stockings so that no garter whatever is discernable.

Wristwatch ribbons are undergoing a style change. The formerly popular silver and gold ribbons are now replaced with colorful ribbons or by black enlivened with colorful embroidery. A black moire ribbon, for instance, has the initials of the wearer embroidered in white with a green floral design surrounding it. This is placed at one side of the watch only, the remaining side being plain black. For evening occasions either silver ribbon or ribbon exactly matching the frock can be worn. Emerald green for day wear is also considered smart as a setting for the wristwatch.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of nineteen years and have been corresponding with a young man for more than a year. He says he loves me and has written quite steadily. Recently some mutual friends returned to his home town. Since then he has not written. I value his friendship very much. Do you think it proper for me to write again, for an explanation, at least? BILLIE.

BILLIE: Possibly your friend has not received your letter to him, Billie, and is waiting for a reply. Why not write him once more, asking him if he received your last letter? Then, if he cares to continue the correspondence, he will answer you. So often friendships are broken because of letters going astray.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young man twenty years of age. I have gone with a few girls but have never been in love with anyone till now. I am in love with a first cousin of sixteen, and I know she loves me. She is going to visit us this Summer. I want you to advise me what to do. ANXIOUS.

ANXIOUS: Your cousin no doubt likes you very much in a sisterly way and you may have mistaken this for love. I would continue to treat her as a cousin and enjoy each other's companionship, for she is entirely too young to consider anything more serious.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of nineteen, I have gone out with a young man for some time whom I love very dearly. We were engaged but the engagement was broken. He still seems to care for me when in my presence.

Should I go with him or slight him? BOB.

BOB: Even though you are not engaged you may accept attentions from him as you would any other young man, but do not expect him to devote his entire time to you. If you wish to remain friends it is perfectly suitable for you to go about with him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am thirty-five years old and have been going with a young lady for eight years, but I can't understand her. I know she cares for me, but she has some ways I don't like. Should I tell her about it? I am afraid she will be angered, and I love her too much to hurt her feelings.

Please advise me what to do? BACHELOR.

BACHELOR: As long as you are not engaged to the young lady she might resent your criticism unless you were quite tactful about it. But if you feel that some particular habit or idea of hers is standing in the way of your happiness together I think you would be justified in speaking of it.

BANK CLERKS FORCED TO WEAR FROCK COATS.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A tailor here was astonished the other day to receive an order for a frock coat.

"I have forgotten how to make frock coats," he said. "It is many years since I received such an order, and then it was from a negro in West Africa."

The man who wanted the coat (with satin lapels) is a member of a bank's staff.

"Not only are we obliged to wear frock coats," said an official of the bank, "but we are also obliged to be clean shaven. Before the war we had to wear top hats."

SIMPLE BLOUSES FOR SPORT OR DAY WEAR

Tailored Types Are Popular Models For Spring and Summer.

By Annette Bradshaw.

Englishwomen are well known for the attractive sports clothes which they wear, hence any gathering of fashionable women in England is sure to bring forth interesting sports types.

The overblouse costumes sketched here illustrate the simplicity and tailored aspect which is at the height of the present mode.

Materials vary, and often the two-piece sports outfit combines two materials, taking care that they match in color exactly. This is sometimes rather difficult, as shades vary in different mediums, and the smart dressmaker has to have the two dyed to match.

Wool crepe and crepe de chine, both in beige, are combined in the outfit sketched here at the left. The overblouse is of the wool crepe, and the finely box-pleated skirt is of crepe de chine. Notice the one-sided neck treatment, with its small buttons of brown pearl. These tiny buttons furnish the only color contrast on the entire garment.

The second overblouse costume was designed for Southern wear, and chooses heavy pink crepe for its medium. The very slender neckline is decidedly lengthening to the figure, and for this reason is a happy choice for the woman who is not slim. This deep V neck, however, is smart for young and old alike.

OLD-FASHIONED DESSERTS.

Old-fashioned desserts still hold their charm for many people. They are wholesome, delicious and inexpensive, which should recommend their revival to many of us in these days of high food costs.

Stuffed Baked Apples.

Wash, wipe and core apples of uniform size. Chop fine a half cupful of seeded raisins, a tablespoonful of washed currants, a tablespoonful of nuts, a half cupful of seeded dates, a teaspoonful of mixed spice, a tablespoonful of brown sugar, a teaspoonful of mixed spice, a tablespoonful of brown sugar, a teaspoonful of soft butter, and enough honey to moisten the mass. Stuff the apples lightly, brush them over with butter, dust with fine sugar and bake as usual. Serve hot or cold with cream.

Apple Fritters.

Make a fritter batter of a level cupful of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a saltspoonful of salt, 2 tablespoonful of sugar mixed. Add a beaten egg, a small half cupful of milk and a cupful or the apples stewed as for the tarts. Drop the mixture into hot fat by the tablespoonful and fry a delicate brown. Drain and roll in powdered sugar and serve in a napkin. This will make twelve fritters.

Pork Fruit Cake.

Wash and put a pound of fat pork through the meat grinder. Cover the pork with a pint of boiling water and let stand until cool. Add a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little of the water, a cupful of dark molasses, two cupfuls of brown sugar, a saltspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of baking powder mixed with five cupfuls of flour, sifted and beaten in slowly. Add a whole grated nutmeg, a tablespoonful each of cloves and cinnamon, a teaspoonful of allspice, a teaspoonful of ginger and two teaspoonfuls of vanilla flavoring, two cupfuls of seeded raisins, two cupfuls of washed currants, a cupful of chopped dates, a cupful each of chopped citron and nuts, one cupful of stewed apples and one cupful of seedless raisins. Mix thoroughly, then turn into a large buttered and papered cake tin and bake evenly for three hours. No eggs are used in this cake, yet it is very rich and hearty. It may be frosted if desired with a soft frosting.

Jelly Roll.

Grease a jelly roll pan and line it with a buttered paper, allowing the paper to come above the top just a trifle. Beat three eggs light, then add three-quarters of a cupful of sugar gradually, beat five minutes then add a tablespoonful of cream, and sift in a cupful of flour with a teaspoonful and a half of baking powder, then add a teaspoonful of vanilla and a tablespoonful of melted butter. Spread the mixture on the prepared tin and bake twelve to fifteen minutes, or until firm to the touch. Turn the cake out onto a paper sprinkled with powdered sugar, pull off the greased paper and spread quickly with jelly and roll with the palms of the hands. If it is inclined to unroll, place a pan over it.

TO STARCH SILKS.

To stiffen silks and crepes, mix one teaspoonful of gum arabic to a quart of water and strain before using.

CORRECT MEASUREMENT.

To measure flour correctly, do not pack in cup, but lift in with a spoon.

Earthworms have no eyes. They "feel" light through their skin.

Ontario Moving Pictures Are In Great Demand

The films deal with innumerable Provincial activities, development and resources.

ANNIVERSARY OF LOCAL CHURCH

All Saints' Is To Observe the Occasion on Sunday.

24 YEARS OLD.

The twenty-fourth anniversary of All Saints' parish is being observed on Sunday. The proper date for the observance is January 1st, but coming immediately at the end of the Christmas festivities it is hardly possible to observe the day as it should be. Since the setting apart of All Saints' as a separate parish wonderful development has been made and the present handsome stone building as well as the parish hall give evidence of the vision and enthusiasm of the members. It is hoped to observe the semi-jubilee next January by making considerable improvements and at the same time reducing if possible the mortgages on the church property. To this end various organizations in the church are already working and everything points to a banner year for the church and parish.

For the anniversary services Major, the Rev. R. MacNamara, rector of St. John's church, Toronto, will be the preacher. He has had a distinguished career both in the church and in the army during the war. Before assuming his present charge he was rector of Collingwood. His church in Toronto is itself an evidence of the personality of its rector. Built since the war, it has one of the finest peals of bells in Canada, installed only two years ago. He is an able and delightful preacher and will be welcomed in All Saints on Sunday by many friends who already know him personally and many who know his reputation.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

A. M. B.—You have an interesting personality, but one that needs a strong, forceful control—from within. You have a great deal of social and personal attractiveness, are frank and energetic, honest and conscientious, but your constant quality of business and hurry may spoil many things for you, both in social and personal relations. You are strongly individualistic and have your own way of doing things—resenting other's advice as to your conduct of your own affairs. But these others are often right. You do not know everything, even with your strong mentality. Little surface indications of changing conditions have a habit of slipping by you, unnoticed, and then you do not blame the right person, yourself, when life changes its face before your eyes and you find yourself outside a closed door—possibly a door of friendship or love, alienated from you by an uncomprehending, changeful quality in your own nature that you will be slow to recognize. Once you do recognize it, and set to work to conquer it, things will go more smoothly. You cannot buck the universe. Why try? Bow gracefully to the inevitable and cultivate above everything a sense of humour. Succeuss will come only to you through hard work—at least at this stage of the game. Keep at it—plug away—"to the worker who can dream and the dreamer who can work, life surrenders all things." Life adjustment is necessary for you. Do not put it off. Start in now. Open your eyes wide—look at yourself firmly in the eye—realize that you are not perfect by any means, but that you have great possibilities for good—and go ahead and cultivate them. It will be a hard job—the worst enemy you will have in life will be yourself—but it will pay. You have no idea how interesting you can be if you practise self-control—and never let out of your grasp that priceless thing—a sense of humour—for your own shortcomings as well as for those of others. When the world hurts you—smile at it. When you feel jealous and angry, smile at yourself. When little things annoy you—smile at them—even if it is a wry smile.

You were born on Saturday.
Your color is pink.

Black Eyes.—You are naturally strongly feminine, very fond of the beautiful and artistic in life. But circumstances have combined to force you into a somewhat different sphere and you should be successful in following out a business career. The only way to reconcile these apparently conflicting elements is to decide absolutely just which life you would prefer—the retirement of the home or the life of the active, busy world—and then follow it out. Your motto should be always: "Know thyself, see thyself, assert thyself." You are strong in your likes and dislikes and are born to fear poverty, burglars and robbery. You must guard against jealousy in friends and companions. You should seek pleasant people and pleasant things, realizing that the world is what you make it. You are apt to suffer from trouble with the throat, lungs and kidneys, but have strong healing powers within yourself. Do not give way to a tendency to cruelty and vindictiveness and guard against a changeable quality. Learn to control your likes and dislikes and strive to cultivate poise.

You were born on Saturday. The day you ask about is past. Your color is gold.

Terr.—You have a strong, active nature, logical and daring, but you are apt to wish to domineer and to disregard the rights of others. You will not agree with this, because you always think you are right, anyway, and that when anyone disagrees with you, he or she is sure to be wrong. With your fine characteristics, you must try to see the other fellow's viewpoint. He really has one, even though, astonishingly enough, it may not coincide always with yours. You will gain most by using your natural cleverness rather than by trying to impose your will on others. Be diplomatic. It pays—especially with you. It is astonishing what a strong character, well controlled, can do in the way of influencing others—if it takes the right way. You are kind-hearted and rather restless. Activity is the thing for you at most times. You are careful and methodical in your habits and fond of responsibility. Learn the value of silence and do not ask too many questions. Self-reliance will come to you truly when you learn to respect the rights of others and to realize your own strong powers. Spend some time of every day in silence and meditation, and begin important undertakings in May or June, preferably on Saturday.

Yes, you were born on Sunday. The day of which you ask is past. Your colors are the lovely variations of flame, from yellow and gold to misty blue.

L.H.D.—You are naturally fitted for a career that requires a strong, active, creative force behind it, but circumstances, perhaps environment, tend to weaken your strong personality. Change and uncertainty and the hard knocks of life are your portion. Much of your unhappiness is your own doing, but you do not realize it, and life bewilders you at times. You have a fine artistic feeling and quick memory, along any line that interests you mentally. You are inclined to be restles, to talk too much, without any great depth to what you say, and to be too modest of yur wn worth. You should first of all learn the value of silence. Try to curb that restlessness and anxiety that causes you so much trouble and spend a few moments each day in quiet reflection. Learn self-reliance and self-esteem. Invest in growing things, such as real estate or growing crops or stock and never speculate in stocks. Cultivate the society of men. You should make a good wife. Marry someone born in September, October or July. Dress in pale, delicate shades and give more attention to your toilet than you are now inclined to do. Begin important undertakings in May or June, and preferably n aSturday. You were born on Friday. Your color is flame.

F. G.—You have a kind, affectionate disposition and should have an even-tempered life. You are apt to lack initiative and efficiency and should associate yourself at all times with others in any undertaking that you wish to bring to success. Do not attempt to play the lone wolf and do not try to control the affairs of others. You have abiliy along mechanical or theatrical lines and will do good work in religious or educational work. You are inclined to be restless and skeptical, although possessing large and strong vitality. You are magnetic, and in your desire to help others frequently overdo yourself. You like responsibility but are apt to depreciate your own worth and should cultivate self-esteem. You will succeed better when associated with some self-assertive character. Guard against companionship, however, with those of vulgar or uncouth habits. A certain amount of travel is necessary to your well-being and health. Before your thirty-fifth year, you may have a serious illness, but after that will settle down to steadier conditions and succeed in amassing a fair share of earthly goods.

You were born on Monday. The day you ask about, a Wednesday, is one on which to avoid arguments and to undertake no new enterprise. Your colors are gold and white.

RUSSIA TO EXPLOIT POULTRY PRODUCTS

Announces Preparations To Ship Out Many Million Dollars' Worth.

MOSCOW, Feb. 5. Canadian Press—The officials of the Commissariat of Agriculture announce that Russia is preparing to export to the United States during the next six months six billion eggs, 80,000,000 pounds of butter and 40,000,000 chickens, ducks, turkeys and wild fowl.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

WHAT ONE GIRL FOUND OUT

"I found out that night that man never looks upon woman impersonally. She is never just a human being like himself. She is either his mother, his wife, his sister, a prospective romance or flirtation or the woman who does not count."

That is what Julia Dean learned when she first set out to make her own way in the world. Hers is the story of the newly emancipated woman—the girl who chooses to tread her own path unaided. It is the story of thousands of others in that ever-increasing army of girls who earn their own bread and butter.

"Her Own Way" is written by a woman who was fortunate enough to hear the frank confessions of a large number of girls in the way they handled their love affairs. For that reason the author prefers to hide her identity under the signature "A Girl of Today."

Most girl readers will say, "That girl who is writing this story knows our crowd. It is so sincere and honest in its truth and type."

The Examiner confidently expects "Her Own Way" will cause an immense amount of interest and will be the subject of endless controversy before it clears up the story of the Girl of Today.

It starts Monday in The Examiner. Don't miss it.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 4—THE FRIENDLY ALLIGATORS.

Jupe, the kangaroo, blew his whistle and twelve large alligators appeared.

"Don't be afraid," he said to the Twins. "These alligators won't hurt you. They are different from other alligators. If we treat them kindly they will make a bridge for us with their backs and then we can get across to Blue Whiskers' castle."

Nancy and Nick tried to ask what he meant, but it was of no use. The right words simply would not come. Their tongues were as twisted as Mister Finkelschneider's pretzels.

By this time the alligators had lined up in a row, watching them sorrowfully.

"We haven't heard a story today," said the first alligator taking a handkerchief out of his vest pocket and blowing his nose loudly.

"Do you know?" asked the next alligator straightening his necktie and settling his tail in a becoming position.

"We'd like to hear one about an elephant," said the third alligator, biting the end off a large cigar and patting himself all over for a match.

The other alligators came crowding up, each one anxious to hear a story.

"Certainly, I'll tell you a story," promised Jupe. "But first let me introduce my friends here. They are Nancy and Nick, the Twins. If you can keep a secret, they came in search of the Blue Cherry. And I'm going to try to help them to find it."

"How do you do?" said all the alligators bowing gravely. "We are sorry we can't tip our hats, but we left them at home."

"What are twins exactly?" asked one alligator.

"Twins are a pair," said Jupe.

Suddenly the alligators began to shiver. "Not alligator pears, we hope," they said in frightened voices. "We hear that people eat alligator pears, and the very thought makes us nervous."

"No, indeed," said Jupe kindly. "Just a plain pair. That means two. But now for the elephant story. Please, be seated."

All the alligators spread their coat-tails carefully, and flopped their own tails out of the way and sat down. And Jupe began:

"Once upon a time there was an elephant named 'Baggage.' He got that name because a monkey said one day that if his trunk was a trunk, his tail must be a suitcase and it was such a good joke, they always called him 'Baggage' after that."

"Ha, ha, ha, ha! That sounds like a good story," said the alligators, laughing until all their teeth showed.

"There is only one objection," said the first alligator. "I don't like to hear about suitcases. They make suitcases out of alligator hides."

"I'll not speak of them again," said Jupe hastily.

Then he went on. "Baggage liked ostrich eggs and every time he found a nest he ate the eggs all up. One day he was eating ostrich eggs and Mrs. Ostrich came along and caught him and pulled his tail with her beak. But his tail came off and she rolled over six times and landed in a tub of butter."

"Then what happened?" asked the alligators.

"It made the butterfly," said Jupe. "Then she bounced out and hit a horse, and that made the horse fly, and then she hit a bottle and that made the bluebottle fly, and then she fell into the lake and that made—"

"If you don't mind," said the alligators together solemnly, "we think that we'll take off our coats and make a bridge for you now."

So Jupe and the Twins were soon safe on the other side.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DORIS DISCOVERS A QUEER LITTLE PANTRY.

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" wailed a tiny voice at Doris's feet.

Doris looked first one way then the other. She couldn't see anyone in sight.

"Now, who in the world can that be?" Doris wondered.

"Why, me, of course," cried the tiny voice again. "You're standing on my pantry! Please lift your feet."

"My feet!" cried Doris, stepping over on the sand. "Well of all things! Was that you crying, Little Yellow Cactus? Was I standing on your leaves?"

"You had your feet right in my pantry," replied the Yellow Cactus.

"In your pantry!" exclaimed Doris. "Wasn't I standing on your leaves?"

"Surely you were," laughed Little Yellow Cactus. "My leaves are my pantries."

"You mean that you store away things in your leaves?" questioned Doris. "Isn't that just too funny! I never heard of a plant storing food before."

"Well, here's one plant that has to," said Yellow Cactus. "If I didn't, I would soon shrivel up and die. You see, I live in such a sandy soil it holds very little moisture, so I have to have some place to store away that moisture. My thick stem-like leaves, as you called them, are the only places I can find. I use them as my pantries. My roots are not able to get much nourishment out of the dry sand, so I must depend on my pantries to keep me supplied. See that one thick stem you crushed with your foot?"

Doris looked down. There, where the green stem lay crushed in the sand was a damp place.

"Oh, little Yellow Cactus," she cried. "I'm so sorry. I'll be more careful next time. I love your yellow blossoms and would love to gather them, if it wasn't for the terrible prickles on them. Tell me, Yellow Cactus, why do you have those wicked stickers on your stems?"

"For protection, my dear," replied Yellow Cactus. "If I didn't have my stems and leaves covered with those prickles, the birds and animals would come along and eat my leaves. Then where would I be without my pantries?"

"I guess you'd soon die," replied Doris. "I'm dreadfully sorry I stepped on your leaves—pantries, I mean."

Yellow Cactus and Doris both laughed. It sounded so funny to call a leaf a pantry.

"I know what I'll do!" and Doris, gathering up a big shell, ran down to the well and filled it full of water. She came back and poured it on the little Yellow Cactus.

"That's fine," laughed the little yellow flower. "I'm hoping it will rain today so I'll get my pantries filled with good fresh water. The clouds are coming up. Maybe it will rain."

Doris looked up into the sky. Sure enough it was all cloudy, so, bidding Yellow Cactus goodbye, she hurried on home.

Advice For Young Mothers

Hamilton, Ont.—"Before the arrival of my little boy my health was very poor, my back hurt and my nerves were so upset I could not sleep. I grew very weak and miserable and suffered from morning sickness. Finally I saw Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in the drug store where I trade, so I decided to try it, and it did me a world of good. It relieved me of all distress in my back, built me up in strength and my nerves did not give me any more trouble. I got along fine the remainder of the time and I had a very strong, healthy baby. In addition to keeping a woman healthy and strong it relieves her of a certain mental strain, from which most women suffer during motherhood."—Mrs. Joseph Curto, 147 Bay St., North. (Picture above.)

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

GEORGE FISHER BAKER—THE "SPHINX" OF WALL STREET.

Among the five richest men in the world, including John D. Rockefeller, Andrew W. Mellon, George F. Baker, T. Coleman du Pont and Henry Ford, some well-informed financiers say that Baker is second on the list. Though Baker "say little but listens a lot," we know for certain that he is the most powerful banker in Wall Street, whose personal fortune is estimated at $200,000,000; that another great banker said of him: "The profits of Mr. Baker's bank make the rest of us look like rank novices at banking."

He Began Life as a Grocer's Helper.

The First National Bank's total original capital was $200,000. In 1901 it was raised to $10,000,000 and it waxes more profitable with age. Of its 100,000 shares, George F. Baker owns 20,000 and his son 5,500. Some of the securities which Baker put into the "pot" of the First Security Co., a holding company, turns the searchlight on the power Baker wields in financial circles: The Chase National Bank, National Bank of Commerce, Bankers' Trust Co., Liberty National Bank, First National Bank of Minneapolis, New York Trust Co., Atlas Trust Co., and Brooklyn Trust Co. Besides he owns stock in the Guarantee Trust Co., Mutual Life Insurance Co. and many railroads and industrial corporations. It is a common saying that Baker has a mile-long list of directorships and voting trusteeships.

About all that the public can glean of the early career of George F. Baker is that he was born in Troy, N.Y., in 1840; and according to popular legend he began life as a grocer's helper at $2 a week, later advancing to $5 weekly as a night watchman. Aspiring to be a bank clerk, he studied hard, mastering the intricacies of banking and became a bank examiner.

In 1863, when only twenty-three years of age, he joined John Thompson and sons in forming, under the National Bank Act, the first bank in New York City. Instead of a clerkship, Baker started in as cashier and within four years annexed the presidency.

From grocer's clerk to bank president in four years! Today the First National Bank is said to have about as large deposits as the total held by the balance of the banks in New York City.

Some say that it is Baker's brain that has made the First National better than a gold mine, which is probably true.

George F. Baker's benefactions have run into millions, yet the rankest socialist could not quarrel with his simple, unostentatious mode of living. He despises anything that smacks of display and publicity. He never flaunts his wealth in the faces of the poor.

Meanwhile, though eighty-three years old, he is still swinging a golf stick with his friend, "John D.," and directing as many corporations as his health will allow.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Someone has said, "An inquiring mind is a safer mind to follow than a mind that accepts everything, with a gulp and a smile."

I believe this is true in health matters. It is a great mistake to accept ill health "with a gulp and a smile." It is possible often, by inquiring into the causes of chronic disability, to discover the reasons for it and then by the application of appropriate measures to overcome it. Proper application of available health knowledge will permit many people to live to be a hundred years old.

That is why an "inquiring mind" in health measures is usually a safe mind to follow. Such a mind will not rest until it finds out all the facts and then, it is safe to assume, the proper course to take will be discovered.

One of the favorable signs of the times is the availability of health information. No longer are these secrets locked up in the brains of physicians and denied to the layman. More and more the medical profession is advising that the public be taught how to live so that disease will be avoided.

Since my contact with the medical profession is not quite so intimate as it used to be, I am sure it will not be considered immodest if I praise my professional brothers a little. Where is there another group of men and women who are working day and night to put themselves out of business? By teaching and preaching personal hygiene, by insisting on public sanitation, by providing courses in public health education, the doctors are spreading abroad a knowledge of living which is bound to lead to a material lessening in disease and to the prolongation of life. That is praiseworthy, is it not?

But you cannot get or make use of the health promoting information unless you will listen. It cannot be injected into your tissues with a hypodermic syringe. It can reach you only through a willing and inquiring mind.

I beg of you not to laugh aside all that is so freely offered. Do not accept unpleasant things as they come with a gulp and a smile, but determine to know how to live and what to do in order to live to an efficient and a useful old age.

It is in your power to add years to your life and to add useful years. Do not hesitate on the theory that you don't want to sit in a chair and knit for a few extra years. That is not what I propose. I know you can order your life even in old age, in such a way as to be brimming with health, good nature and service to others.

That is worth while, isn't it?

HUDDERSFIELD TOWN'S GAME AT MANCHESTER IS FEATURE

Yorkshire Team Trounced on Same Ground a Week Ago.

SATURDAY SOCCER.

LONDON, Feb. 5 — (Canadian Press Cable)—The special attention of football fans here will be focused at the week-end on the league game between Huddersfield Town, present holders of the first division championship and leaders of the league for the current season, and Manchester City. The game is slated for Manchester. Its importance is derived from the fact that last Saturday, on the same ground as that on which the game will be played tomorrow, Manchester City administered a thorough beating to Huddersfield in the cup tie. Manchester led all the way and served up a brand of football that had the Yorkshiremen guessing. Whether that will be any criterion of Saturday's play or not is a problem, for the fans here point to an almost similar instance last week when Sheffield United, after having avalanched Sunderland in a league game at Bramall Lane, were themselves decisively beaten in the cup tie on that terrain by Sunderland seven days later.

Huddersfield's grip on the league was strengthened when Arsenal, the runners-up, lost out to Burnley on Wednesday.

Arsenal and Leeds

On Saturday Arsenal are opposed to Leeds United, the game being scheduled for the latter's ground. In their last encounter early on in the season Arsenal secured an easy win by four goals to nil. Since then Arsenal have vastly improved, while Leeds have been sliding down hill. The Highbury Club, however, are at present in the middle of a slump. They have won only three games since the beginning of December and have lost four. Birmingham, Notts County, Liverpool and Burnley have taken Arsenal's scalps within the past two months, and consequently their chances now are none too rosy.

The tilt at Tottenham between the 'Spurs and Sunderland will provide one of the big excitements of the day. Sunderland have already beaten two of the metropolitan teams, and the 'Spurs were one of the two. They ran into a peck of trouble when Arsenal restored the prestige of the London Area some weeks ago. However, their victory over the Tottenham Club last September was clean-cut. It was registered when Sunderland were travelling at the top of their form. The situation is now different. Sunderland are not any too good at present, while the 'Spurs are holding their own. Their last three games have resulted in draws, Everton, Manchester City and Arsenal dividing the points with them.

Albion at Birmingham

West Bromwich will stage another Midlands fight this week-end when they play Birmingham. There is little to draw between the two; they are bracketted in aggregate points, but Birmingham have a game in hand. Should the Albion be able to field the eleven that gave Aston Villa such trouble in the cup tie a week ago they will be expected to give Birmingham a good run for their money.

Other scheduled encounters are: Leicester City (5) at Bolton (2); Manchester United (6) at Burnley (1); Blackburn Rovers (6) at Cardiff (3); Liverpool (5) at Everton (1); West Ham (1) at Newcastle (0); Aston Villa (2) at Notts County (1); Bury (7) at Sheffield (4).

The figure following the name of the team indicates the number of goals scored at the previous meeting of the clubs cncerned this season.

BOSTON WINS GAME IN OTTAWA

Defeats Senators 3-2 in a Hard Fought Struggle.

RESULT SURPRISE.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.— (Canadian Press.)— Standing off a hurricane Ottawa attack that lasted through the final period of last night's N. H. L. game and netted the home team two goals, Boston Bruins clung tenaciously to the one goal which was established through three tallies they secured in the middle session and skated off at the end of the full playing time with a 3 to 2 decision over the league leaders.

The result was one of the biggest surprises of the N. H. L. season.

RINK RATS WIN LEAGUE GAME

Beat Grove 9-7, Scoring Three in Last Two Minutes of Game.

CLOSE ENCOUNTER.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 5.—The Rink Rats defeated the Grove here last night in one of the closest games of the season, the score being 9-7. Loosemore for the Grove and Stabler for the Rink Rats were the stars.

The third period was the most exciting of the game. The Grove started out in this period one goal down, but two goals in the first five minutes put the schoolboys on top. For thirteen minutes they held this advantage and then the Rats shoved in three goals in quick succession to win out.

Goal-scorers were: For the Grove —Loosemore 5, Cockburn and Hudson; for the Rink Rats—Stabler 4, B. Wannamaker 3, Northey 2.

The teams:

Rink Rats—Goal Junkin; defence Sherin and Morin; centre B. Wannamaker; wings Northey and Stabler; subs., Hamblin and G. Wannamaker.

Grove—Goal Strickland; defence Loosemore and Pullen; centre Hudson; wings Griffiths and Cockburn; subs. Robertson and Earle.

FAMOUS GOLFERS MISS INCH PUTTS

One Lost Championship He Had Held for Four Years.

Did you ever hear of a person dubbing a putt of an inch or less? And would you believe it if you were told that two professionals, known throughout the land, missed just such a putt in tournament play?

Truly, it is hard to believe.

Yet it is a fact. And Joe Turnesa was one victim of the little miscue, which happened recently at Pinehurst, N. C.

The cause can legitimately be traced to sand greens instead of to any flaw that might have developed in Turnesa's handling of the putter.

Turnesa took his measurements with an authoritative eye. He timed his shot closely, knowing the dangers of holing out on a sand green.

He tapped his ball ever so gently. It rolled lightly to the cup. A bare edge of the cup was sticking up out of the sand—his ball struck the rim and bounded slightly back, requiring another stroke to negotiate the hole.

Recently E. Ray, one of England's best golfers, lost the Hertfordshire County championship, which he has held for four successive years as the result of a decidedly freak shot.

Near the end of the round his approach putt stopped one inch from the edge of the hole and, in an attempt to tap the ball into the hole with one hand, he jabbed his putter into the ground, missing the ball entirely.

While Turnesa's failure to sink lessness.

his putt has been charged to the sand greens, Ray's was pure carelessness.

Proving even the stars are not infallible at golf.

PETERBORO BOY STAR FOR GREYS

Owen Sound Sun-Times Praises Work of "Shrimp" McDougall.

PLAY WAS TREAT

The Owen Sound Sun-Times has the following to say about "Shrimp" McDougall, former Peterboro junior player, who starred in the game when the Owen Sound Greys defeated Toronto Canoe Club, 5-2, at Owen Sound:

"The Greys started out with their strongest team on the ice, and they set a dizzy pace right off the bat, and although it took them quite time to score the first goal, and they only obtained one in the first period, there were any number of dead-on shots. It would hardly be fair to give one player more credit than the other, but the most spectacular player on the ice was "Shrimp" McDougall. He was a regular wizard on skates, and his stick-handling was a treat. He was certainly the artful dodger and there were times when he made the whole visiting team look foolish. Time and again he went from one end of the rink to the other with the puck, only to be skated into a corner or be cheated out of a goal by Kerr, who was in good form in the nets of the visitors. McDougall scored one goal, this when he went through the whole T.C.C. team for the cleverest bit of work of the night. He drew Kerr out to the side of the net and then slipped it in at the other side."

RUGBY CONTEST AT EDINBURGH

Welsh and Scottish Internationals in Fourth Game of Series.

OPPOSING TEAMS.

EDINBURGH, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press Cable) — Two important changes are noted in the Scottish International Rugby fifteen that will take the field against Wales at Murrayfield Park here on Saturday in the fourth game of the current year's series. In the three-quarter line A. C. Wallace of Oxford University has been dropepd on the left wing and his place taken by W. M. Simmers of Glasgow Academicals. This change brings two team-mates together, Simmers playing alongside J. C. Dykes of the same club. No other alteration has been amde in the rear position, but in the forward line Berkeley has been "let out" and G. M. Murray, another Glasgow Academical player, introduced.

Outside of these newcomers, the team will be unchanged from that which defeated France by 20 points to 6 on January 2 at the Colombes Stadium in Paris.

Some difficulty has arisen in the Welsh team and the centre-three quarters have not yet been selected. Theer are three eligibles, A. Stock of Newport, R. A. Cornish of Cardiff and E. Finch of Llanelly. Both Stock and Cornish were in the team that drew with England on January 16 at Cardiff. At the same time, the personnel already chosen introduces two new "caps" in W. Everson of Newport, who displaces D. B. Evans of Swansea in the fullback position. Both Bryn Phillips of Aberavon and T. Lewis of Cardiff have been ejected from the Welshmen's pack and S. Lawrence of Bridgend and E. Watkins of Blaine brought in. Lawrence was to have played against England in the last International at Cardiff but was prevented from so doing.

The teams will line-up as follows:

Scotland—D. Drysdale (Heriotonians) fullback; I. S. Smith, (Oxford University), R. M. Kinnear (Heriotonians), J. C Dykes (Glasgow Academicals) and W. M. Simmers (Glasgow Academicals) three quarters; H. Waddell and J. B. Nelson (both Glasgow Academicals) halves; A. C. Gillies (Watsonians); J. M. Bannerman (Glasgow High School) A. H. Ireland (Glasgow High School), D. Davies (Hawick), D. J. McMyn (Cambridge University), J. R. Paterson (Birkenhead Park), J. W. Scott (Stewartonians) and G. M. Murray (Glasgow Acadameicals) forwards.

Wales—W. Everson (Newport) fullback; G. Andrews (Newport) and/or A. Stock (Newport) and/or R. A. Cornish (Cardiff) and/or E. Finch (Llanelly) and W. Rowe Harding (Swansea) threequarters; R. Jones (Northampton) and W. J. Delahay (Cardiff) halves; D. Jenkins (Treorchy, S. Herrera (Crosskeys), S. Hinam (Cardiff), J. H. John (Swansea), D. Jones (Newport), T. Hopkins (Swansea), S. Lawrence (Bridgend) and I. Watkins (Blaina), forwards.

Followers of football here who are continually hearing the charge that the rugby game is exclusive to the extent that the working classes have no part in it point to the composition of the Welsh team as a concrete answer to the charge. Lawrence, Hinam, Jenkins and John are policemen in their own home towns. Hopkins is a coal-miner; B. Jones a laborer; Herrers a motor-mechanic; Delahay a carpenter; Andrews a painter; Stock, an engineer. The only members of the "white-collared class" in the Welshmen's line-up are Rowe Harding, who is a law student, R. Jones, who is a clerk, and Cornish, who is a school-master.

The rugby men also dwell on the fact that the backbone of the team in Scotland is in the border counties where the clubs draw their personnel almost exclusively from the factories.

BILLY EVANS Says:

SAFETY FIRST CHAMPS TWO REAL FIGHTERS — STRIKING CONTRAST

In these days of non-fighting champions, the names of Harry Greb and Paul Berlenbach stand out in bold relief.

It takes mighty big purses to lure a majority of the champions into the ring. At all other times they have more stipulations in their contract than a Grand Opera prima donna.

No-decision bouts are most favored by the title-holders. If the bout is to be a decision affair, they insist the challenger comes in overweight so the championship will not be at stake.

Some of the safety first champions are even more careful, they reserve the right to name the referee.

Not so many years ago one of these hand-picked referees gave three different decisions in the same bout and after leaving town hurriedly wired in a fourth verdict, that retained the crown for the champion.

It is just such things as these that have kept any number of the modern champions from being idolized after the manner of the old-timers.

The champion in any sport event is supposed to be supreme. If so, he should have no timidity about defending his honors. That doesn't go for the fight game.

Harry Greb and Paul Berlenbach are in striking contrast to the run-of-the-mine champions in the other classes.

Greb is the marvel of the prize ring. He has been fighting for 13 years. Before he won any boxing titles he was known as the "Fighting Fool."

Never too busy to fight, he didn't fuss much about the weight of his opponents. He took them on from the middleweight through the light heavy division to the full grown heavies and in most cases gave away weight.

His biggest year was in 1919 when he almost averaged a bout a week, most of his opponents being fighters of class.

Winning a title didn't change his views on the fight game. He has kept right on meeting every one put up by the promoters.

Paul Berlenbach after scoring 23 knockouts was stopped by Jack Delaney in four rounds. Paul started right over again.

Fifteen months later he was the light heavyweight champion of the world as a result of his victory over Mike McTigue.

Did Berlenbach pass up Delaney because of the previous knockout? Not Paul. He risked his title within six months, after winning it against his most formidable challenger, getting the decision in 15 rounds.

Just run down the list of champions and see what they have done and then it is easy to understand the popularity of Greb and Berlenbach.

Mickey Walker has the welter title in the old moth balls most of the time. After much persuasion he gave Dave Shade his chance and had a narrow escape. It was probably made him more careful than ever.

There are some people who don't know that Kid Kaplan is the featherweight champion and Phil Rosenberg tops the bantams. They seldom break into print.

Both these fighters recently visited the coast and found the going mighty tough out there. Only the fact that they took every precaution made it possible for them to return with their titles.

Rocky Kansas, who won the lightweight title from Jimmy Goodrich, is waiting for the summer to roll around and with it a fancy purse. Perhaps Rocky is more than wise, it may be his only opportunity to cash in on his championship.

Jack Dempsey hasn't fought for nearly three years.

Fighting is no longer a sport, but a business proposition with the champions.

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

Harry Wills, the colored boy, seeking a crack at Dempsey's title, has like most of the other fellows in the fistic fraternity, been knocked out.

Wills received his one, and only, kayo, in 1916, when Sam Langford, the once-famed Boston "tar baby" sent him into the land of dreams. It took 19 sessions for "Tham" to turn the trick.

MELHORN ONE UP.

Won Open Golf Tourney at Hot Springs.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 5.—(Canadian Press).—William ("Wild Bill") Mehlhorn, of Chicago, defeated his fellow-townsman, Bobby Cruickshank, by one stroke for the south central open golf tournament here in the 18-hole play-off of the tie in the 72-hole match. Bill's card was 73, Bobby's 74.

Cruickshank made the last three holes in par fours, while Mehlhorn took fives, giving Mehlhorn the match with a one stroke advantage and first money of $1,500. Cruickshank's share of the prize was $1,200 for second place.

PETES' SECONDS GO TO LAKEFIELD

Fast Game in Intermediate O.H.A. Is Expected To-night.

PLAY HERE MONDAY.

To-night's game in Lakefield will be the first of the season for both Lakefield and Peterboro Intermediate teams, and both express confidence in their ability to win out.

The Petes' team will consist of Hall in goal, McMartin and Lackey on the defence, and Dundas, McDougall, King and Johnson, and the White Brothers on the forward line. Others have been called out to practice from the City League teams and the exact line-up is not yet known.

The Lakefield team has been built up from the Colts and the Alerts of the district league, and will present a strong line-up in front of the old stone-waller, Ab. Graham, who will occupy his usual position in the nets.

The return game will be played in Peterboro on Monday, and the winners of the round will play Havelock.

FINN TO FINISH.

Thunberg Decides To Go Through With Tour.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—Declaring he would go through with the rest of his North American tour in spite of some disagreement over his expense money, Clas Thunberg, Olympic skating king, left yesterday for Detroit to compete in the international championships, starting to-day.

Rather than cancel his tour, as he threatened to do because of dissatisfaction with his own showing in competition so far as well as with financial matters, the Finnish star decided to compete in Detroit and also at Lake Placid, N.Y., Feb. 13 and 14, as proof of his own "good faith."

CONFER WITH DEMPSEY.

Promoters of Philadelphia Offer Purse.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—Herman Taylor and Robert Gunnis, local boxing promoters, left last night for Memphis, Tenn., to confer with Jack Dempsey there on Saturday regarding their offer to have the world's champion box either Harry Wills or Gene Tunney in the new municipal stadium here in the first week in September. Recently the promoters wired Dempsey offering him $500,000 to meet Wills, or $700,000 for a bout with Tunney. Taylor said before leaving that the proposed bout had been sanctioned by Governor Pinchot.

MRS. MALLORY DEFEATED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N.J., seventh national ranking tennis star, sprang an astonishing upset yesterday when she conquered Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, seven times former United States champion, 6-2, 3-6, 8-6, in the semi-finals of the Heights Casino tournament here.

MENIE DEFEATED IN CAMPBELLFORD

Lacked Speed of Clerks — Hydro Won From Colts.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 5.—There were two surprises in the Town Hockey League at Covert's Arena Wednesday night. The junior Colts were favoured to trim the Hydro outfit but the Electric boys showed improved form all down the line, and with Johnston, Cowell and Cecil Watt playing great hockey all the way, the Hydro were returned winners by a five to two score. The Colts were conceded an advantage in speed, but it wasn't in evidence and the Hydro clearly earned their verdict. Line-up:

CLERKS 8, MENIE 2.

The Clerks and Menie were expected to be battling for the winning gaol right up to the end, but after spotting the Menie boys two goals in the first five minutes of play, the Clerks settled down and held Menie scoreless for the rest of the game, while they grabbed off three tallies in the first period, added three more in the second and two in the last to make the final score 8 to 2.

The Clerks had much more speed and were successful in a number of combination plays that carried them right in on top of Daniels in the Menie nets. While the Menie boys invariably resorted to individual rushes that terminated before they got close enough to Fox to cause any trouble.

The arena was well filled and the double referee system proved popular, all the boys paying strict attention to the puck. Line-up:

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals without fear of indigestion.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 21—GUARD TO FORWARD TO FORWARD

Deception plays an important part in basketball as it does in all other sports and delayed action is one of the easiest ways to deceive. Deception by delayed action is the fundamental upon which many formation plays are laid and the main requisite in working the guard to forward to forward plays successfully.

With the proper deception this formation is one that baffles and is almost certain to succeed. Without deception the play will prove practically valueless as delayed action and ability to deceive the opposition are essential.

The left guard takes the tap directly back of the center. The right guard stays between center and his opponent, so that the latter can't get to either the ball on the tap-off or the left guard once the play is started.

The left guard having secured possession of the ball, pivots to the right, and passes to the left forward. The latter starting the instant the referee has made the toss-up, is in the left guard's vacated place and ready to take the pass. From there he heaves the ball up floor to the basket.

The right forward, having started towards center as the first move to elude his opponent, goes half way in, halts quickly to step behind him and then cuts for the basket. There he takes the left forward's pass and shoots for goal.

The left guard, having started the play, reverses again and goes up the floor to serve as the main follow shooter. The center cuts around the right side of the opposing jumper and likewise goes to the basket. It remains for the left forward and the right guard to act in a defensive role if needed as they are in the backfield and advance only if needed. This is hardly likely if the right forward's delayed start is timed properly to permit his eluding his opponent.

EXPERTS WATCH TENNIS RIVALS

Believe Mlle. Lenglen Has Nothing to Fear From Miss Wills.

STILL DODGING.

NICE, France, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press)—The first opportunity for a direct comparison of the tennis game Suzanne Lenglen is playing this winter with that of Helen Wills came Thursday when the French champion met Mrs. C. F. Aeschlimann in the Nice tournament, and the comparison was impressively favorable to Mlle Lenglen.

Suzanne, attacking vigorously, downed Mrs. Aeschlimann, formerly Leslie Bancroft, of Boston, in two love sets. On January 22 the United States woman champion was pitted against the same opponent in the Metropolis tournament and won, 6-2, 6-2. Experts agreed, however, that the comparative scores hardly represent Mlle. Langlen's superiority, for Mrs. Aeschlimann yesterday was able to bring only two of the twelve games to deuce and scored only nine points in the first set and eleven in the second.

It is recalled that Mrs. Aeschlimann frequently defeated Miss Wills during the season of 1922.

Miss Wills Wins Two

Miss Wills scored two more victories in the Nice tournament Thursday. In the mixed doubles she and C. F. Aeschlimann came through to the semi-finals by defeating Peggy Saunders and Mr. Scovel, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3. Playing the first round of the women's doubles, Miss Wills and Emily Bennett, of England, trounced Mlle. Ilvaisky and Mrs. Emmett, 6-1, 6-0.

After watching the French girl's play thirteen experts, matching impressions, agreed in failing to see why she should fear to meet her rival since on the basis of their respective forms in the Riviera season Mlle. Lenglen should be able to defeat Miss Wills rather easily.

Both Miss Wills and Mlle. Lenglen maintain their refusal to commit themselves in regard to playing in the women's singles of the Carlethe tournament at Cannes next week and it is possible that the long awaited meeting of the two champions will be still further postponed to the week of February 15.

Mrs. Satterthwaite, Mlle. Lenglen's partner in the women's doubles in the present tournament was slightly injured yesterday in an automobile accident. However, it is believed she will be able to appear as Suzanne's team mate by Saturday, although her doctor has ordered her to scratch her entries in the women's singles and mixed doubles.

TEN DON'TS.

1. Don't try to learn the bowling game in one trial. It can't be done.
2. Don't use chalk on the hands It cracks the fingers and makes them sore.
3. —Don't carry or take ball off rack with right hand. Use the left. Save right for actu. l work.
4. Don't deliberate too long after taking aim. It may throw you off.
5. Don't let errors bother you. Everyone makes 'em. Set about to eliminate them.
6. Don't try to murder the pins. A half speed ball give them a better chance to work as ball cuts through.
7. Don't try for difficult splits unless you are pretty certain you can make them. One pin is better than none.
8. Don't overdo. When you feel tired call it a day.
9. Don't lose your temper. It only hurts your game.
10. Lastly, don't get discouraged. Keep practicing, for practice makes perfect.

With Peterboro transferring their remaining home games to the Toronto Arena, it means that the Petes will meet Osgoode Hall here Friday night in a Senior fixture. The last time out Peterboro were downed by the budding Lawyers. But the Petes now realize that one more defeat may put them out of the contention for the group title. They figure that they play much better hockey in Toronto than in Peterboro, but say also that the night they played here against Osgoode they were off color.

NEW YORK TEAM SUSPENDS TWO

Simpson and Campbell Out Indefinitely For Breaking Training.

HIT BRIGHT LIGHTS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.— (Canadian Press.)—"Bullet Joe" Simpson and "Spiff" Campbell, of New York team of the National Hockey League, were indefinitely suspended yesterday afternoon by Manager Tommy Gorman for refractory conduct and repeated violation of the training rules. They may be on the bench for the rest of the season without pay, as the management appears in no forgiving mood.

Once he hit the "bright light belt" for the first time, Simpson it is said, became enthralled by its night life. Within the last two weeks he is said to have refused to adhere to the strict rigors of training. Simpson was brought here from Edmonton.

Manicurists Attend Artificial Silk Workers

LONDON, Feb. 5 (United Press) — Lancashire artificial silk makers are planning to employ manicurists for their girl workers, holding that a "silky" hand is necessary for proper handling of the loom products.

German artificial silk makers are said already to have manicure staffs.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

GEORGE DUNCAN — PLAYING THE PUSH SHOT.

To practice the "push" shot, put a few balls down about 80 yards from the hole and take your mashie. Get your usual stance, open for choice, for this assists in the obtaining of the upright swing which is required. Make the left arm part of the club, that is, keep it straight on the upswing and make it control the club.

Meanwhile, both wrists should be fairly firm, which prevents over-swinging. The body during the upswing should be gradually moving forward, against the club, so that at the top of the swing the ball of the left great toe is bearing most of the weight of the body. You then hit the ball a firm punch, taking care that the right leg is not allowed to take any more weight than it now has.

You must not "come back" to hit the ball, but keep in front of the club. The club should be stopped as near as possible to where the ball lay.

When you find yourself taking a piece of turf in front of the ball you know that you can play the push shot.

WOMAN HANGED IN JAIL CELL

Serving Term For Death of Husband—Clemency Was Refused.

LEAVES MESSAGE.

KINGSTON, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Kossa Kaminiski, who was sentenced to ten years in Portsmouth Penitentiary by the Supreme Court in Edmonton on November 6, 1924, on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of her husband, was found dead when her cell was unlocked this morning. She had hanged herself with a rope made from strips of her galatea dress, a towel and a small wire ring.

Mrs. Kaminiski left a statement written in Polish on a slate in the cell which was interpreted for the coroner by another inmate as follows: "You have robbed me out of my future and my life with your refustal. Sodam and Gommorrah on you, so it may destroy you with me over you. Send my body to my sister," giving the sister's name and address in Western Canada. She had appealed for clemency, but had been refused.

Elliott (West Middlesex), B. L. Hatfield (Yarmouth), Paul Mercier (St. Henri), and P. Bonehey (North Vancouver).

MILLIONS STOLEN FROM PROVINCE

By Dishonest Officials of Various Departments, Says Toronto Report.

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—(Canadian Press.)— A Toronto report says: "In the course of time, according to Premier G. H. Ferguson, the Government will have compiled a statement by accountants giving an approximate total of the amounts of money and goods which, during the past five years, have been stolen from various departments of the government by officials and their accomplices.

"So far the investigation has been held only into the condition of the books of the department of the provincial secretary.

"From information which has come from various sources it would appear that the total of thefts, misappropriations and embezzlements during the past twelve years reaches a total somewhere in the millions."

APPEAL DISMISSED.

Sir Basil Thomson's Protest Against Fine Was Disallowed.

LONDON, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—The appeal of Sir Basil Thomson against his conviction in Marlborough Police Court on January 5 for an act "in violation of public decency" committed with a woman in Hyde Park on December 12, was dismissed by the higher court today.

Sir Basil, a former assistant commissioner of police and the son of a former Archbishop of York, took the stand and denied all the charges. The police court, in convicting him, fined him £5, and assessed all the costs against him.

Mine Leaders Advanced With Light Trading for the Balance

TORONTO, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—The active leaders were strong on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, as a rule, but some weakness was shown in the balance of the list. Teck Hughes was outstanding with a four point advance at 366, Tough Oakes 4½ higher at 54½, and Vipond one up at 195. Barry-Hollinger, in which the greatest turnover was recorded, eased 1¼ at 44 3-4, and Chaput Hughes was 1½ lower at 15½. Mining Corporation sold down six at 391. Amulet, selling up 4 points at 147, was a strong spot among the silvers.

Foreign Quotations Cause Fresh Decline In Wheat

CHICAGO, Feb. 5. Canadian Press —Fresh set backs in the price of wheat were witnessed to-day during the early dealings here. The continued decline in quotations at Liverpool and Buenos Aires was largely responsible.

For the most part the selling appeared to be of a scattering kind, but no indications of a better export or domestic demand were in evidence.

The opening which ranged from 7-8 to 1 3-4c lower, May 174 to 174 5-8, and July 152½ to 152 3-4, was followed by moderate further sagging with signs lacking of any special power to rally.

Predictions of liberal receipts of corn ttnded to weaken both corn and oats. After opening ¼ to ½c off, May 85 5-8 the corn market underwent an additional drop. Oats started 1-8 to ¼ lower, May 43 5-8, and later continued to recede.

n the provision market the effect of grain weakness served as more than a counter balance for the higher prices on hogs.

Advances Prevail In Great Portion of Toronto Stock List

TORONTO, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press.—Advances were in the majority on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, when the market firmed slightly after an easy opening. Consolidated Smelters closed the morning at 222 1-2, three points higher, after touching 220, but Brazilian ,the outstanding leader was 3-8 lower at 92 1-4. Abitibi eased 1 1-4 at 81 1-2. Alcohol, fairly active, was a strong feature, advancing 1 3-8 at 19 3-8. Brompton and Canada Steamships Preferred were slightly higher and Dominion Bank gained 1 at 217. Dome featured the active and strong mining section with a 60 cent advance at 18.00.

KEMAL CIVILIZING ANATOLIANS BY METHOD THEY UNDERSTAND

One Thousand Executions Since October Testify To Brutality.

RESISTING PROGRESS.

Politicians, Editors and Priests Form Majority of Victims.

By John O'Brien
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

ANGORA, Feb. 5. — Mustapha Kemal is civilizing Anatolia and modernizing the wild Kurds by the only method he thinks they understand stark brutality. One thousand executions since October testify to this.

During my week's sojourn here I have witnessed seven public hangings, and fourteen more are scheduled to follow at once. Several of the victims are ordinary criminals, but the majority are politicians, editors and Islamic priests, condemned without appeal rights by judges without legal training.

"Resistance to the progressive regime" is the crime of these men. This resistance may be persistence in wearing the Fez, ridicule of the Republic, denunciation of European customs, or adherence to the strictest Mohammedanism.

Sentence is followed immediately by execution, and what is proceeding here under the sway of El Ghazi (the All Conqueror), as Mustapha is known, may be witnessed daily in Broussa, Konia, Eskichehir and Adana.

The thousand executions since October have been for the most part marked by the indifference of the people.

The bodies of the executed men are left hanging until noon, and in the meantime the public goes its way.

This public is more interested in speculating in building lots than in watching executions. Dealers are taking advantage of the popular delusion that this wilderness town of adobe huts one day will be a Bagdad or Stamboul.

The Germans have brought a portable palace here for their embassy and this has given the real estate speculators more food for their dreams.

YORK LIKES MOVIES.

LONDON, Feb. 5. — (United Press.)—The Duke of York has become an enthusiastic moving picture operator.

With the Duchess as his leading lady, supported often by a cast of neighboring children, the Duke delights in filming garden scenes and then projecting them at home in a specially fitted "movie theatre."

SUZANNE MEETS HELEN.

Stars Will Clash at End of Carlton Tournament Next Week.

NICE, France, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press)—The long awaited match between Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen now appears to be definitely assured in the Carlton tournament next week. The French lawn tennis star announced today that she would play in the singles, in which the United tSates champion is also entered.

They are expected to meet in the finals on February 14 or 15.

MODIFIED POLICY EXCITES COMMENT

Assertion of Society Secretary to Effect That Volstead Act Failed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—The newly announced policy of the Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal Church, favoring a modification of the Volstead Act and the legalization of light wines and beer has brought a violent storm of opposition and defence throughout the United States.

Prohibition leaders, Episcopalian leaders and individual ministers have challenged the statement of Rev. Dr. James Empringham, the national secretary of the society, who asserted that the Volstead Act had failed, in announcing the new stand of his organization.

The Society, they maintain, has no authority to speak for the Episcopalian Church, is nominally unimportant, and is in error in its reversal of policy.

POWER FACTOR IS EXPLAINED

B. L. Barns Talks To Engineers on Subject of Great Interest.

ITS CORRECTION.

Power Factor, a subject of interest to manufacturers of Peterboro, was the subject discussed at the regular meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada. B. L. Barns, alternating current engineer of the Canadian General Electric Co., was the speaker.

Power factor refers to the working component of the power used. All induction motors, transformers and other electrical apparatus require a certain amount of magnetizing current, which does no work. The problem that faces power companies is that even when running idle or on low load the magnetizing current is the same as when full load is carried, and this has its effect on the size of the wires needed, and other parts of the transmission systems, as well as on the power bills.

Means of correction were explained by Mr. Barns. Motors, he said, should not be bought to allow for possible overload. Condensers and synchronous motors counteract the lagging feature of the magnetizing current, making possible, in the case of the synchronous motor, the use of more mechanical power from the same load.

R. L. Dobbin, engineer of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, was chairman, and the matter was thoroughly discussed after Mr. Barns had finished his address, which was well illustrated by means of charts and diagrams.

KIWANIS CLUB TALK BUSINESS

Hilarious Session Leads Up To Discussion of Projects For Year.

WADING POOL.

Kinwanis luncheon today was a hilarious affair until the members got down to business, when plans were discussed for the year's activities. Art Moffat was the booster of the day and the prize winners were Walter Kidd, Harry Huffman and Frank Stinson.

Fines were epidemic, even the sergeant at arms succumbing to the attack, and on at least one case legal advice was sought. President John Craig reached his full stride in this respect today and out Charlied Charlie Cooke.

Coming

Announcement was made by Rev. J. D. Paterson, chairman of the Programme Committee, of a special programme for Ladies' night next Friday. It will be, he promised, different from anything ever before attempted.

Projects for 1926 include a concrete wading pool in the south end of the city, and a committee was named to investigate. The members of the committee are John J. Turner, Art Blade and Harry Huffman.

The Sunshine Committee reported through the chairman (Herb. McCannon) that cases of distress had been relieved.

CHINESE THREATEN BRITISH MISSIONS

PEKING, Feb 5 (Canadian Press) —The excesses against the British missionaries are reported in Eastern Kwantung Province. Chinese troops are said to have seized property belonging to the English Presbyterian Mission at Chaochow and to have damaged some of the missionaries' houses. At Swatow, on the coast, Chinese Communist students drove the authorities out of an Anglo-Chinese College, which belong to the English Presbyterian Mission.

Theatre

AT THE GRAND

The Drew family is undoubtedly the most famous theatrical in America, and they have been eminent as players almost since there was an American theatre. However it remained for Verne Drew to add a new sort of impersonation to the list already credited to the workers of that name. He is playing the gorilla in "The Gorilla" which Donald Gallaher and James W. Elliott will present at the Grand Opera House tomorrow. Mr. Drew is a second cousin of John Drew and when he sheds the skin, in which he is shrouded while in view of the audience, bears a striking resemblance to that distinguished actor. Mr. Verne Drew has acted in vaudeville for several years and was with touring companies in England, also playing for a time in "The Miracle" in London. He does not intend always to impersonate animals but is enjoying his present job none the less.

AT THE CAPITOL

O'BRIEN WITHIN FIVE MINUTES OF BEING SOUTH SEA ISLANDER INSTEAD OF STAR IN PICTURES.

There is a soft spoken young man out in Hollywood named George O'Brien. When he can spare the time from baseball, boxing, wrestling and swimming, he makes motion pictures for William Fox, such as "The Iron Horse," "The Man Who Came Back," "The Painted Lady," "The Dancers" and "The Fighting Heart," now at the Regent Theatre.

But the fact is that George O'Brien came within five minutes of being a habitue of the South Seas instead of a cinema celebrity.

Picture an American youth, adventure, daring and with the physique of Adonis, seated meditatively on a packing box on the San Francisco wharf alongside of which The Raven, a weather beaten schooner, rose and sank slowly with the rolling waters. Put into his mediations the unhappy memory of failure after failure in his efforts to break through the barriers that surround the magical city down the coast—Hollywood. Ambition thwarted, hopes shattered, desolation, desperation and out of it all springing a dogged determination to get away to the South Seas!

There you have O'Brien in a few short months before he was introduced to Broadway and America as the leading actor in what was to be declared one of the greatest motion pictures ever made — "The Iron Horse."

HARRY CAREY IN "THE TEXAS TRAIL."

Harry Langdon in "Plain Clothes" is the comedian at the Capitol Theatre for the last three days of this week and he is the type of comedian who appears to progress in his work. In "Plain Clothes," he does some exceptionally fine acting. The majority of comedians depend on slapstick effects to gain the laughter of the audience, but Harry Langdon conveys impressions by his acting that keep the watchers in fits of laughter. "Plain Clothes" is a delineation of the trials of an amateur detective. The office scene, where the wealthy lady interviews Harry with regard to the recovery of her pearl necklace, and the fake furniture, are ludicrous in the extreme.

Another interesting short reel, quite out of the ordinary, is "The Song of the Nightingale," in a colored effect, with a floral background to the love story of the pretty bird and his mate. This is a fantastic, fairly-like picture that is very attractive.

There are two cartoon comedy reels, with Krazy Kat in "Bokays and Brickbatz" and Ignatz Mouse in "Bubbles."

The militant heroine is the outstanding figure in "The Texas Trail," featuring Harry Carey. The young lady, Betty Foster, arrives from the East to visit her uncle, a ranch owner of the Middle West, and proceeds immediately to involve herself in a search for some stolen money. Harry Carey is the mild foreman of her uncle's ranch and lacks his usual pep and punch in his presentation of the hero. After numerous adventures and a trial by the young lady of bandit life, in which she fails lamentably, the stolen money is recovered and all ends happily.—Jeanette.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.
The estimated population of the world to-day is one billion four hundred and twenty-four million. The generations that have died during the past six thousand years, we think would be underestimated at four billion. The total of living and dead would make a vast multitude of human beings, that are doomed to everlasting torment (with the exception of a few) according to the teaching of churchianity. This picture presented to our minds is appalling. More minds are beclouded so, that they accept the unreasonable dogma. It will be a glad day when the veil that is over the minds of man is lifted. M. COUNTRY FARE FOR PRINCE OF WALES

Bevy of Rosy Cheeked Maids Attended Convalescent Youth.

MELTON MOWBRAY, Leicestershire, Eng., Feb. 5. — (Canadian Press).—With one arm in a sling and strapped closely to his body, and waited upon by a bevy of rosy-cheeked, bright eyed farmers' daughters, the Prince of Wales had a feast here last evening with a crowd of local farmers.

His hosts were men over whose farms in Leicestershire the Prince often has galloped and sometimes rolled—when he came a cropper—while following the hounds.

The arm in a sling is in consequence of one of these tumbles.

The Duke of York and Prince Henry, brothers of Wales, also were guests of the farmers. It was a free-and-easy dinner. Jollity was the feature. Homely fare was placed on the table, roast and boiled joints, boiled vegetables and simple puddings.

THOMAS NOT GUILTY.

Toronto Jury Acquits Truck Driver of Manslaughter Charge.

TORONTO, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—After a deliberation of one hour and a half, Mr. Justice Rose's jury early last evening returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of Sydney Thomas, charged with manslaughter, following the death of Willie Merchant, who was instantly killed on January 7th, when struck by a motor truck driven by the accused.

GYM CAMPAIGN BANQUET AT 'Y'

One of Most Successful Ever Held By Young Women.

ATTENDANCE LARGE.

The Young Women's Christian Association last night and to-day is receiving compliments on the membership and Gym. Campaign Banquet held last evening, several of the members saying it was one of the best in every way ever held in the Association.

The banquet was given in honor of those who had brought in a-new gymnasium member during the January campaign, and also took the place of the monthly membership suppers for those who had joined the Association during November, December and January.

Tables in the form of a large triangle were set in the gymnasium and prettily decorated with blue and yellow tissue paper. Large silver baskets of yellow daffodils and silver candle sticks with blue lighted candles added to the beauty. Little clock place cards carrying out the campaign plan were at each place. These were made by the girls of the Social and Membership committees. One hundred and forty members ranging from three years to some who have been members since the "Y" first started 37 years ago, were guests at the banquet. The Social committee, assisted by members of the Physical committee and Membership committee, excelled their former record in providing a most enjoyable repast.

Members of these committees are: Mrs. R. Cormack, Mrs. E. E. Harvey and Miss A. Wood, convenors, and Mrs. Carmichael, Mrs. Buchanan, Miss M. Elliott, Miss G. Glover, Mrs. Barrie, Mrs. Foote, Mrs. Middleton, Mrs. Cruikshank, Physical committee—Miss A. Wood, Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs R. Turner, Mrs. H. Beal, Miss Hamilton, Mrs. Oke, Mrs. Waddell, Mrs. Wightman. Membership committee—Miss G. Evans, Mrs. C. Brown, Mrs. F. Skinner, Miss T. Paxman, Mrs. W. Warne and Miss E. Outram.

Special Y.W.C.A. song sheets, including new and original songs especialy adapted for the Peterboro Y had been prepared for the banquet. Mrs. J. E. Middleton led the singing and Mrs. W. R. Widdess assisted at the piano. Following the sing song was a piano solo beautifully rendered by Miss Madeline Willis, the gymnasium pianist. Mrs. G. McClelland, who is always a welcome visitor at the "Y," delighted the group with three very amusing readings.

Next on the programme was a clever little comedy stunt in which the following girls took part: Myrtle Bradley, representing darkness; Lily Slaughter, the sun; Violet Peryer and Lily Gregory, Hours Ethel Bossence, the horison; Irene Chambers and Midge Lawrence, the Curtains, Sybil Ecobichon, as Maggie the heroine, Grace Evan as Zingarella, the maid, Mrs. J. R. Heron, Patrick, the hero; Whipple McIlmoyle, Manual Del Papolo, the villain.

Miss M. Dickson then presented the Royal Life Saving Society certifiming pool. Miss Dickson complicates which were won in the swimmented the girls on the way they had appreciated the advantages the pool offered, and was glad that they were not satisfied with just learning to swim, but were striving to become better swimmers. The elementary certificate was presented to Sadie Levine, the Proficiency certificate to Jean Harvey, Rhoda Cullen, Margaret Patoine, Hazel Bradley, Sadie Levine, Doris K. Rogers, Margaret L. Rogers, Mollie Wood. The Bronze Medallions to Mary Menzies, Mable Nixon, Jean White, Ina Terrace, Jean Robinson, Audrey Evans, Viola Harvey, and the Silver medal, which is the most difficult test by the society to na Terrace and Jean White.

A presentation of a season swimming ticket was also made to little Betty Howood, who brought in seven new gymnasium members during the campaign.

Mrs. T. Cruikshanks, president of the Association, acted as chairman, and explained the high ideals and purposes of the Young Women's Christian Association, and its world-wide scope and influence. The three sides of the triangle stood for Physical, Intellectual and Spiritual development, and all these unite to help each member serve others better.

The initiation of new members, which is a special feature of each membership supper was then held—the new members forming a triangle in a large triangle formed by the former members. Mrs. H. Wightman led the ceremony and the candles of the new members were lighted from the lighted candles of the others. All then marched around the gymnasium singing "Follow the Gleam."

Taxicab Petting Parties Latest Under Italian Ban

ROME, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press)—Taxicab "petting parties" have been banished in the Eternal City by the latest edict in the nation wide campaign against the growing influence of the "jazz age."

All taxicabs equipped with shades which may be drawn across the window have had these shades fastened shut by means of tiny locks. A chauffeur who permits a client to break the seal to shut himself off from public view is subject to a fine. For several weeks the authorities of all the cities of the kingdom have been raiding and closing dance halls of every description. This campaign is vigorously sponsored by the Holy See.

VOL. LVII., No. 31 PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1926 PRICE THREE CENTS

Government's Motion to Adjourn Carried By 120 to 112

PROGRESSIVES AND LABOR VOTED WITH LIBERALS FOR LONG RECESS AFTER DEBATE ON ADDRESS ENDS

Conservative Amendment For Continuation Defeated By 119 to 112.

PARTY DIVISION.

Debate on the Address Will Be Resumed on Monday.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 6 (By Canadian Press)—The House of Commons will adjourn until March 15th as soon as the debate on the address is concluded. By a majority of eight votes the government motion calling for an adjournment was approved shortly after six o'clock last evening. Immediately before this the House had defeated by seven votes the motion of Hon. H. H. Stevens, as amended, declaring that parliament should proceed with business without any adjournment. The vote on the main motion was 120 to 112; on the amendment it was 119 to 112.

The vote followed party lines, with the Progressives, Labor members and Independents supporting the government on both divisions. The difference of one vote in the two divisions was due to the fact that W. T. Lucas, Progressive, Camrose, was absent from the chamber when the vote on the amendment was taken, but returned in time for the vote on the main motion. He supported the government. Four Liberals and four Conservatives had arranged pairs and were not in for the vote. The Conservatives were J. F. White (London); C. F. MacNutt (Colchester); R. B. Hanson (York-Sudbury); Hon. S. C. Newburn (East Hamilton). The Liberals were: W. D. Euler (North Waterloo); C. W. Cross (Aathabaska); E. Lacroix, (Beauce); C. G. Power (Quebec South).

Three Liberal members were absent without pairs. They were J. J. Denis (Joliette); G. Evanturel (Prescott) and Rock Lanctot (La-Prairie-Napierville).

Customs Committee

Defeat of the amendment did not involve negation of the proposal for the appointment of a special committe to probe charges of irregularities in the customs' service. At the opening of yesterday's sitting, Hon. George Boivin, Miniser of Customs, moved, seconded by Hon. P. J. Cardin, Minister of Marine, for the appointment of a special committee of nine members to investigate the administration of the department The motion was approved without debate, and the committee appointed immediately.

Later, Hon. George Perley (Conservative-Argenteuil) moved an amendment of Hon. H. H. Stevens. It deleted all reference to the charges of irregularities in the customs service leaving the amendment simply a declaration that there should be no adjournment but that parliament should proceed with the business of the session. This amendment was moved by arrangement with the government, Sir George explained, and followed negotiations in regard to the establishment of a committee which had been proceeding between the leader of the opposition and the Minister of Customs.

Debate throughout the afternoon sitting followed lines already laid down by previous speakers. The first division took place about half past five in the afternoon, and the second about six o'clock. At a quarter after six, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting Government leader, said it had been suggested that on account of the strenuous week the House might adjourn until Monday. This was agreed to. The debate on the address will continue Monday.

NOW, HONESTLY—

Of course you think you know what a good time is.

Some folks will pick going to a theater; others dancing; other just loafing. There are a million and one things that come under the head of good time.

But I've often wondered if the average man has stopped to consider an evening at home now and then—with the wife and kiddies.

My own opinion is that if you haven't helped with the dishes, read to the little tots, helped tuck them into bed, and spent an evening in front of the fireside, chatting with the good wife—

Well, you haven't found out, yet, what a GOOD time really is.

MAN DROVE CAR THROUGH HOLE INTO ICY WATER

Driver of Liquor Car Lost Pilot Car in Lake Erie Mist.

BODY RECOVERED.

Diver Went Down and Found Man Stitll Seated at Wheel.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—Driving across the ice on Lake Erie in the dark of early yesterday morning, a man believed to be Norman Willetts, 24, of Monroe, lost his bearings when the pilot car ahead of him was swallowed up in the mist and after vainly trying to locate the lost trail drove squarely into a great ice hole. The car, loaded with liqour, and its lone occupant, plunged 30 feet down to the bottom of the lake.

The body was recovered by William Atkinson, of Amherstburg, a diver, and brought to Amherstburg last evening.

The diver who risked his life to bring up the body told Coroner Parke the man had evidently died quickly. The door of the sedan was partly open, but the body remained on the seat, the hands still grasping the driving wheel.

RESCUED BY BOY.

WINNIPEG. Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—H. E. Turner, a local resident, issued a strong warning yesterday against crossing the ice on the Assiniboine River. Turner fell in the river yesterday morning. He was rescued by a 16-year-old boy, John Wilson.

BOSTON EMERGES FROM UNDER SMOTHERING BLANKET OF SNOW

Transportation Close to Regular Schedules Again Last Night.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—Boston and surrounding communities had almost fully recovered last night from the storm which on Thursday took a toll of six lives, demoralized transportation, imperilled shipping and crippled telephone, telegraph, electric light and power service.

Railroad and trolley lines were operating on close to normal schedules, although an army of shovelers was still laboring to remove the drifts that had blocked tracks and clogged switches in the wake of the 13.2 inch snowfall, the heaviest here since 1921.

With clear weather, a fleet of snow-bound vessels in Boston harbor got under way Friday. Officers of incoming steamers, including the Rexmore from Liverpool, Speed from St. John, N.B., and the Argentine transport Chaco from Liverpool, reported the storm one of the worst ever encountered.

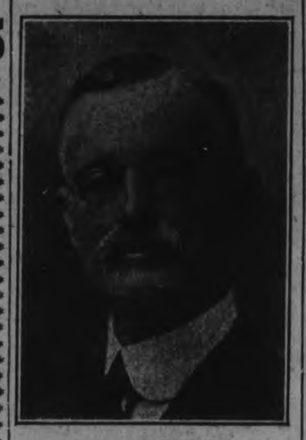
The British steamer City of Edinburgh, from Calcutta and Colombo, by way of Halifax, ran into the storm while nearing Boston Thursday, and headed out to the open sea to ride out the gale, coming into port Friday.

Rubber Stamp Term Against Parliamentary Propriety

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 6. Canadian Press. — Speaker Lemieux had occasion to ask the members of the House of Commons "to be as gentle as possible during debate," when the afternoon sitting of the House commenced Friday.

Mr. Speaker had ruled Thursday that the description of a party in the House as a "rubber stamp" was no unparliamentary. On referring to authorities on parliamentary usage, he had concluded that much depended on the tone and manner in which the person was speakin. When Mr. J. A. Clark, Conservative-Burrard, had used the expression on Thursday, it was not an attack on character but merely the characterization of the attitude of a party.

ONE MAN'S OPINION



S. R. ARMSTRONG

S. R. Armstrong, City Clerk, when interviewed by the Examiner, had the following to say regarding the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition:

"The presence of such an annual display as is afforded by the exhibition stimulates the interest and healthy growth of a community in a number of ways. Peterborough is fortunate in being surrounded by a rich farming district which is represented each year in exhibition park. The competition which results from the display of stock and other farm products promotes a greater degree of enthusiasm among the producers and creates interest for the consumer in the city.

"There is certain to result, a definite benefit which is manifested by improvements in the quality of the produce.

"The value of the exhibition, however, is not for the farming community alone. Manufacturers are given an opportunity to display their wares. New types of machinery and new developments in the marketing of world supplies are brought before the eyes of the people in such a manner as to create a definite impression. Visitors at the fair, understanding the reason for its existence attend with an open mind and are quite receptive of the wealth of information which is available.

"The feature of amusement which is possibly more of a side issue, still has a distinctive part in the well conducted exhibition. Peterborough by increasmg the facilities for entertainment at its annual fair is making no error."

DRY LAW FAILS IN NOVA SCOTIA

New Enforcement Effort With Minister Appointed Leader.

ACT VIOLATED.

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 6. Canadian Press. — A determination to make every effort to enforce the prohibition law in Nova Scotia, and the intention to introduce "further or other measures to deal with the liquor traffic" should enforcement be found impossible, were indicated in a statement issued by the Provincial government Friday in connection with the appointment of Rev. D. K. Grant of Middleton, N.S., as head of the enforcement service under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act.

The statement which was issued from the Premier's office yesterday was as follows:

"Among the complex problems which confront the government and which call for attention is that of the sale of alcoholic liquors in the province of Nova Scotia. We have on our statute books a law which was enacted for the prohibiting of the sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes, but a review of the operation of that statute during the years in which it has been in force points to the fact that there has been wide-spread violation of the act.

"The fact that a very high duty is imposed by the Federal government on the importation of liquors has proved an irresistible allurement to a body of men with a capital organization whose energies have been bent on thwarting the efforts of customs authorities."

RUSH FOR MUZZLES.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Following the order of the local police that dogs are either to be kept on the owner's premises or securely muzzled, local canine owners are in a dilemma. They acknowledge the difficulty of keeping their pets chained up on the premises, and the local supply of muzzles is entirely inadequate to meet the demand. A few muzzles are on hand in stores, but they are mostly for very large dogs, or a certain small, snappy variety, and owners of the intermediate variety of dog are puzzled as to just what course to follow.

PROVINCE LOST THREE MILLIONS BY DEFALCATION

Huge Sum Stolen During Twenty Year Period in Ontario.

MANY ARE DEAD.

Pilfering From Public Departments Reported By Hon. Mr. Goldie.

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—Investigations which have been conducted by the Ontario Government into shortages and pilfering from public departments have reached a stage where it is now estimated that defalcations extending over the past 20 years would reach the sum of $3,500,000.

This estimate is reached by Hon. Lincoln Goldie, who uses the basis employed by police officers, namely, that only about one per cent. of money or goods stolen is ever recovered. The Government has received restitution to the extent of $35,000 and this leads to the estimate now given.

Liquor Smuggling.

Among the various schemes employed to use the public service for personal gain was a liquor smuggling crew that operated at the Mimico brick and tile plant of the Department. In the dead of night, friendly guards and officials would be posted around the property when a carload of liquor would be shunted into the siding. Waiting trucks would quickly unload the contraband and carry it off to its destination. The next day the cars would be loaded with brick or tile and shipped out. How long this went on, it is not stated, but the fact is admitted that smuggling of that sort was carried on.

Culprits Dead.

The difficulty of instituting prosecutions in respect to many of the defalcations is stated to be that some of those involved have since died, others are out of the service and cannot be reached. A report on the whole matter is to be made public shortly.

WESTERN DAIRY INTERESTS WILL OPPOSE TREATY

Trade Agreement With Australia Described as Peril to Industry.

PROFIT LAST YEAR.

First Since 1920 By Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries.

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—J. A. Gregory, president of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries, Ltd., reported to the annual meeting of shareholders yesterday that a profit of $17,337.80 had been made during the year ending December 31, 1925. This, compared with a net loss of $68,000 odd in the previous year, shows a total betterment in respect to operations of approximately $85,000. The profit is the first shown since 1920.

Economies in management, greater efficiency and a marked increase in butter production all contributed to the improvement.

The directors, stated the president, took full advantage of favorable conditions in the Old Country, American and Canadian markets, and in Germany for marketing production. They intend to utilize a growing market developing from Los Angeles and San Francisco and to enlarge operations in British Columbia with respect to the Oriental trade.

They call attention in the report to "the impending peril to the dairy interests of Western Canada created by the Australian trade treaty," and declare that the company will be represented in a delegation of the Western Dairy Association shortly to wait upon the Federal Government in this connection.

DOLE POLICY ENDORSED

LONDON, Feb. 6—By a vote of 299, to 211, the house of commons yesterday voted confidence in the government's unemployment dole policy, defeating a labor amendment to the reply to the King's speech.

You Made It 36,000 Attendance! Now Make It 1,500 New Members!

Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has a place in the hearts of the people of Peterborough County, and a place in the life of the district that could not be filled by any other agency. And its influence extends even into Hastings, Northumberland, Durham, and Victoria Counties.

Here in Peterborough City and County the people have a real proprietory interest in the Big Fair, for it is of the making. Their fathers saw its birth as a struggling country fair, and they themselves have driven to it behind the spanking team to enjoy a day of wonder and delight. Now, grown-up, they see year by year a growth in the Fair that seems stupendous, and is marvellous. No taxes are collected in Country or City to keep it up. No money is forced from anyone for improvements. And yet the Peterborough Exhibition has grown faster in its own sphere than have paved streets, for instance. In fact, the only comparison in growth with other municipal activities must be made with the schools—and they demand $223,600 this year for their upkeep, compared with—what was it when you were a boy? Everyone must contribute his share of the increasing demand for schools, but the Fair, with no compulsion behind its support, has advanced with equal leaps and bounds.

Interest—that's the secret. Every year the Fair gives something new—there are more prizes—better shows—improved stock—bigger exhibits. And these show the aliveness of the community, the progressive spirit of Peterborough County farmers, and the appreciation of the folk who patronize the Fair year by year.

And now the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition offers everyone in Peterborough County an opportunity to become one of the organization that puts over the show. The "Ex." isn't on the rocks, sending up distress signals, or anythingn like that. Last year it concluded the biggest year in its history, with 36,000 people paying to pass the gates. It is expanding—it wants new blood—it wants members with an active interest in its welfare.

And you are invited to join.

It is not necessary to recount the benefits and concessions you obtain by virtue of being a member. You will want to join, not for what you get out of it, but for the privilege of being associated in a great community enterprise—the distinction of seeing YOUR show going over to more and still more triumphs.

Sign the attached coupon, and return it, with $2. to "Exhibition Editor, The Examiner Office, Peterborough" or take it into Roland Denne's Store. Your membership card will be sent you immediately.

Designers Cheer Widows With Jazzy Mourning Dress

LONDON, Feb. 6 (United Press).—English dress designers are seeking to make the merry widow merrier.

To this end they are cutting mourning dresses with short skirts and trimming the sombre gowns with touches of white.

Fur coats, too, are considered quite proper with mourning and the whole tendency is to "jazz." Some of the merrier widows are even affecting flesh-tinted stockings.

BETTER BUSES ARE PROMISED

Larger Gas Capacity and Improved Gear to Help Service.

FEWER COMPLAINTS.

Patrons of the street railway and bus system, who have been decrying the twenty minute service, will rejoice to know that relief is in sight. Within a very few weeks it is expected that the snow will disappear from the streets, and, in addition to that, the new rear axles by which the gear ration will be changed to permit of a higher speed, are expected to arrive on Monday. They will be installed at such times as will be convenient without interrupting the present service.

Another improvement pending is the installation of new gas tansk of a much increased capacity. Those which are at present in the buses can hold only seventeen gallons; the new ones will have a capacity of thirty gallons, so that frequent stops for filling will be obviated.

J. O. Clifford said this morning that complaints were coming in less frequently. "Whereas," he said jocularly, "we were getting a complaint every minute we are now getting one every ten minutes, although," he added, "it may be that the people are getting tired telling us. We hope, however, that it is because there is an actual improvement in the service."

In order to convey some idea of what it meant to operate a street service, Mr. Clifford said that a total of 1203 represented the mileage covered daily by both buses and street cars, the buses covering 470 miles, while the street cars pile up a total of 733. For one trip the route mileage is 9.24, the vehicle mileage being 15.48. Of this total the bus mileage per trip is 7.23.

The operating cost per bus per mile is twenty-five cents, while that of a street car is twenty-two cents.

HUGE WAVE DID GREAT DAMAGE TO BIG STEAMER

Empress of France Was Battered By 100 Foot Wave.

LOSS ABOUT $80,000.

Booms and Winches on Deck Torn Away—Water Damaged Baggage.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press). The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France which arrived here yesterday two days late from Cherbourg and Southampton, suffered damage estimated at 80,000 early Sunday morning, when a gigantic wave estimated at 100 feet in height smashed the liner head on during an Atlantic storm.

Baggage aboard was damaged to the extent of $20,000, it was stated, but nobody was injured by the terrific impact, which threw persons from their berths or chairs.

The wave ripped loose heavy winches. It demolished booms and stays. It bent in like pieces of tin the pressed steel bulwarks on the promenade deck. It smashed to tiny bits port windows that were an inch thick. Reaching up higher and higher, it crashed through the windows of the chart room on the bridge, 80 feet above the water, flooded the captain's sanctuary and ripped away the port pilot house.

Crashing booms ripped open the No. 3 hatch, fifty tons of water dropped below decks, and trunks were tossed around on a miniature sea.

MERCIER'S ESTATE.

Cardinal Consecrated Income To Good Works.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 6. — The will of Cardinal Mercier, executed in 1908 and made public on Thursday, says he was without personal fortune, having consecrated to good works his income from publications and other sources.

Moneys on hand at the time of his death, the will stipulates, will be spent in paying for his funeral and for the arrears in his household expenses. Any surplus is to go to charity.

The Cardinal leaves to his nephews his equity in a cottage in the country and advises them to make their living by their own work.

The document dedicates the life of the Cardinal and his flock to God. It asks the pardon of all those he may have wronged, and forgives those who may have wronged him.

NOTORIOUS STILLMAN DIVORCE ACTIONS FORGOTTEN AS PAIR SAIL ON A TRIAL HONEYMOON

Sensational Period to Story Copyrighted By American Newspaper.

BOY ACKNOWLEDGED.

Banker Says Guy is His Child and Not Son of Canadian.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press)—The New York American in a copyrighted story today says that Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stillman sailed for Europe aboard the Olympic at midnight, happy in a trial reconciliation after the sensational five year divorce litigations.

The banker and his wife, it is stated, are planning a new start in life on a "trial honeymoon" after clearing the slate of their marital difficulties.

Mr. Stillman recognizes baby Guy Stillman, now seven years old, as his son, and withdraws his allegations in his unsuccesful divorce suit that the boy is the son of Fred Beauvais, Canadian Indian guide.

The divorce suit recently started by Mrs. tSillman is to be dropped and lawyers of both have been notified that their services are no longre required. Last night as they sat at dinner before they sailed Mrs. Stillman, wearing a brilliant yellow bandana kerchief on her head that she has taken a fancy to since her life in the Canadian woods, said: "We are doing this because Alex and his brothers, Guy and Bud, and his sister Anne, are such fine scouts. We owe our children so much, Jimmy and I."

Mrs. Stillman, says The American, has proposed to do everything in her power to aid her husband to rehabitate himself in the world of finance and society.

"Jimmy is growing old," The American quotes Mrs. Stillman as saying recently to a friend. "He is no longer James A. Stillman, great banker. He has become human. I like him as I haven't liked him for years. I've an idea he really wants to rebuild his life. Perhaps I ought to put on harness again and travel double."

"From now on we march forward, we hope," The American quotes them as saying.

"We don't know what fate holds for us in future. We leave for a new honeymoon; a sort of 'trial honeymoon.'

"We are through with lawyers, through with outside advisers.

"For the sake of their children," The American continues, "the Stillmans are seeking to forget the many sensational charges they hurled at each other during their divorce trial."

BE SURE AND SEE "THE DEACON'S HONEYMOON" AT MARK STREET CHURCH, FRIDAY EVENING, FEB. 12TH, AT 8.15 P.M. ADMISSION 25c.

BUTTER AND EGGS SOLD AT 45 CENTS

Potatoes on Peterborough Market Were $3 a Bag To-day.

There was plenty of wood on the farmers' market this morning, and of excellent quality. It ranged in price from $8 for mixed stuff to $11 for a load of fine-looking body maple, cut in cordwood lengths.

Potatoes were 60 cents a peck and $3 a bag and were very scarce. Carrots were $1.25 a bag. Spies were 40 cents a peck. Tomlin [illegible] and Russets were $1 a bag.

Upstairs, fowl was very plentiful. Chickens sold at 28 and 25 cents a pound; turkeys, at 40 cents, and ducks at 28 and 30 cents. Butter was priced from 45 to 48 cents a pound and eggs at 45 cents a dozen.

Honey on the open market was 50 and 70 cents for five-pound pails of mixed and amber quality.

A litter of bronze and white collie pups excited a great deal of interest. The mother of the five lively fat little things stood by and watched them sold for $3 a piece, but there was a trio left to go home with her.

Peterborough Exhibition wants you as a member! You made it 36,000— Now make the 1,500!

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS CHRIST, THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

JESUS CHRIST, THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for February 7: Jesus Christ, the Light of the World: Jesus Heals and Saves a Blind Man.—John 9 :1-9, 24, 25, 35-38.

By WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

The beautiful story of our lesson follows very fittingly the announcement of Jesus recorded in the preceding chapter of John's Gospel which is the Golden Text of this lesson: "I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Jesus apparently was referring here to spiritual darkness and spiritual light, but our lesson tells how a man was brought from both spiritual and physical darkness into the light of life, to see the world round about him, and to see the beauties of that other spiritual world not always perceived even by those whose physical vision an oculist might pronounce perfectly sound.

Blindness is a strange and pathetic tragedy of life.

For a man born blind to receive his sight must be essentially like a new birth; only a birth in which one has come suddenly and without a long process of development into the experiences of adult life.

Asking Why.

It is natural that blindness should become an occasion of questioning the meaning of life's providences. Why is one smitten with this affliction while others have unusual keenness of vision? Why should one be born with such serious limitation? The disciples were concerned about these things, and they asked what seemed to be rather a foolish question, "Master, who did sin, this man or his parents, that he should be born blind?"

How could the man himself have sinned before his birth? The question seems to suggest that they had a notion of pre-existence, and that man's situation in this life was determined in some measure by what he had done in a previous existence. There is, of course, no need for us to turn aside to such enlightening speculations.

The late John G. Woolley, in a great temperance address which he delivered in various parts of the country, used to lay great stress on the opening sentence in this story.

He emphasized the fact that Jesus saw the blind man, and pointed out that the failure of many people to give adequate service to their fellowmen arises from the fact that they never see the need.

In fact, he suggested that too often we deliberately close our eyes to the unpleasant facts of life. We try to forget that there are blind, or poor, or suffering, and needy, people. And the philosophy of our shallow contentment is too often, "out of sight out of mind."

But Jesus saw the blind man. He saw him likewise exactly as he was, and with all the passion to help him of which the Son of God was capable. The miracle and the method of the miracle need not be discussed. We cannot understand the power that Jesus exercised in healing or in giving sight to the blind. There would be no such thing as a miracle if we could explain it or understand it.

Men's Speculations.

The interest of the story goes beyond the restoration of sight to the blind man to the man's clear experience and to the ridiculous discussions of men who wanted to speculate rather than to see the facts. So concerned were some of these people for bending the facts to their theories that they endeavored to persuade the blind man that his sight had been restored to him by a man who was a sinner.

They could not deny the blind man's identity; they could not deny that the man who formerly had been blind now clearly had his sight so they said, "Give glory to God; we know that this man is a sinner." The blind man's testimony, however, rings clear and true, and it ought to have vital suggestion for our testimony to-day, "Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: one thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see."

It is not in speculation but in the clear witness of experience that religion attains its power and its triumph. We should very soon have a different world if every man could have so clear an experience of vision through Christ and could go out bearing his testimony.

"A man that is called Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, Go to the pool of Siloam and wash: and I went and washed, and I received sight."

A man that is called Jesus! The methods of his healing and enlightenment may vary, but the fact is always the same. Would God that we might find him and that our whole world might be changed through him who is the light of the world!

TEXT: John 9:1-, 24, 25, 35-38.

And as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth.

And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?

Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents but that the works of God should be made manifest in him.

I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.

As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.

When he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay.

And said unto him, Go, wash in the pool of Siloam (which is by interpretation, Sent). He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing.

The neighbors therefore, and they which before had seen him that he was blind, said, Is not this he that sat and begged?

Some said, This is he, others said, He is like him, but he said, I am he.

Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give God the praise: we know that this man is a sinner.

He answered and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not, one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see.

Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and when he had found him he said unto him, Dost thou believe on the Son of God?

He answered and said, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?

And Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee.

And he said, Lord, I believe. And he worshiped him.

Most of Us Still Worship Idols

By GLENN FRANK.

(Copyright, 1926, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

CIVILIZATION is a pretty thin veneer after all. At heart most of us are still heathen idol worshippers. The only difference is that we keep our idols in our brains, while our primitive ancestors kept their idols in their temples.

Idol worship would not be so bad if idols were always and only symbols of something real. The trouble is that men begin by using idols as aids to worship and end by making them objects of worship.

This is the history of the ancient heathens in a sentence. And it is the history of us civilized moderns as well.

We are always taking something that is only a means to an end and making it an end in itself. In our personal careers, we form habits that help us meet the challenge of our jobs and our lives. In religion, we formulate dogmas that help us realize how far we have seen into spiritual realities. In politics we organize political parties with which to run governments. But we forget the one thing we should remember about these habits, dogmas, and parties.

They are instruments to use they are not idols to worship.

Life does not stand still. When the problems of our careers change, we may have to change our habits in order to meet them. As the race gains a deeper insight into spiritual realities, we should see to it that our dogmas report that deep insight. When new days bring new duties in politics, we must adjust and readjust our political machinery until it really does the thing needed at the moment. When we don't, when we simply mutter the catch-word of yesterday instead of thinking through the problems of to-day we are worshipping idols.

Years ago I read somewhere a parable that says what I have just said and says it better.

In an olden time a father built a home for his family. It was finished and furnished except for one thing. A little altar around which they gathered to pray had not been set in place.

A family council was called to decide where it should be placed. The mother wanted it in the kitchen, for it was in the kitchen that she was most perplexed by cares. The father wanted it in the library for he felt nearest to spiritual realities when he was among his books. The son, who was socially inclined, thought it should be in the room where guests were received, so that strangers might know that this family worshipped God.

The council turned into a quarrel about the location of the altar. Finally the mother said: "See here, we are allowing a quarrel about the location of the altar to destroy the very spirit the altar is supposed to symbolize. Let's give the altar to the baby and allow her to place it where she will."

The little girl was sitting on a rug before the open grate watching the figures in the fire, saying, "There goes a Queen to her wedding: there goes a King to battle." When they gave the altar to her she said, "See, the fire is going down, let's put it there," and she tossed it into the fire.

The little girl was sitting on a rug before the open grate watching the figures

The altar was a shaft of polished and perfumed wood, and as it burned the flames released its fragrance until its sweet odors filled the whole house—the kitchen, the library, the reception room. The elusive spirit of the altar surrounded all the members of the family as they went about, each in his favorite room.

But they had to destroy the altar to preserve its spirit. Even the altar had to be an instrument rather than an idol.

VICTORS ALL

The two greatest poisons in life are fear and worry. If these could be eradicated—and they can—then never once need we falter. These poisons affect our blood, dim our outlook, hasten death and disease.

For success we need to enter into relationship with all conquerors and conquering things. Things that promote uplifting thoughts and hopes—that are constructive—will bring us to the positive principles which defy everything that is destructive.

The challenge is always there, and we ought to accept it, and win through.

It is always true that love is stronger than hatred, and goodwill is always a stimulating factor, Malice will corrode and tear down, while love is always a savior to life. Meet hatred with hatred and you will degrade yourself; meet it with kindness and you become elevated, and also the one who bears you hatred. It is is a wonderful fact but it is real.

Men who have thought in all ages and climes have come to know this truth. There is a Persian sage who said: "Always meet petulance with gentleness, and perverseness with kindness. A gentle hand can lead even an elephant by a hair. Reply to thine enemy with gentleness. Opposition to peace is a sin." But he says: "If a man foolishly does me wrong I will return him the protection of my ungrudging love. The more evil comes from him, the more good shall come from me." The Chinese have this proverb: "The wise man averages injuries by benefits." While the Hindu believes: "Return good for evil overcome anger by love, hatred never ceases by hatred but by love."

Now the question is: "Can this be practiced in a world like ours? I can imagine someone saying: "Yes, this is all very well in theory but if you had ti live where do and among the people I have to meet you would say less about love and more about holding your own and getting your own back!"

The Old Book says: "All things are possible to him that believeth." Then whatever your task, whether it be learning a language or pursuing business or domestic worries, believe that you can and you will.—Selected.

The graduating diplomas were presented by Dr. Watson, the Board of Education scholarships by Trustee J. A. Irwin, the I.O.D.E. scholarships by Mrs. W. H. Ashton, Regent of the senior chapter of that organization, the Principal Haig medal by the donor, the Peake medal and the Miss Mabel Hay scholarship by Dr. Longmore, vice-chairman of the Board of Education and the field day cups by George O'Sullivan, the new chairman of the Board.

Mrs. Ashton said that one of the aims of the I.O.D.E. was to encourage the education of the young, but for some time the energies of the organization had been largely taken up with the raising of money for a war memorial. She thanked the councils of Seymour and Campbellford for their generosity in making donations to help pay for the monument, the erection of which is now assured.

In presenting the field day cups Chairman O'Sullivan called attention to the fact that the winners of the girls' trophies were both residents of Hastings.

Special Features.

Leonard's orchestra of six pieces furnished special music and also played for the dance that was enjoyed by the students and their friends after the regular programme. Six musical numbers were rendered by students who had been

EXPECT TOO MUCH.

Keep Abreast of Times and Be Ready For Opportunities.

Most of us make a mistake in expecting too much out of life, but this is a mistake of youth; many of us go on expecting too much all our lives, and that can only be called the stupidity which refuses to learn by experience.

The French have a saying: "When you have not what you want you must want what you have," and though hot youth spurns the idea of advocating a makeshift policy, there is a good deal of wisdom in it. Have we not all met at some time or other the ineffective man or woman who is never tired of saying, "If I only had what I ought to have had!" and have we not contrasted him or her with the braver spirits who have made the best of what fell to their lot?

There is no need to settle down in a narrow groove because we have not great advantages; let us do what we can to be happy, to learn, to keep abreast of what goes on, even if we are somewhat removed from the world.

Some day we may have wider opportunities, and our efforts of to-day will have kept us in practice for what would otherwise be entirely beyond our powers.

C.M. There was a dandelion dance by Emma Allen, Marjorie Farrell and Grace Irwin. Cherrie Turner, Helen McDonald and Isobel Bygott sang "The Shepherd's Song" and Tennyson's "Sweet and Low."

Mr. Pearson had a large class of students, boys and girls, who rendered four numbers, "Bells of St. Michael's Tower," "Ever Fair Kilarney," "Our English Home," and Sir Walter Scott's lullaby classic, "Hush Thee, My Baby."

Ten boys, R. Fry, Ross Dunk, A. Phillips, W. Brennan, E. Douglas, J. Bygott, G. Sloggett, G. Fairbairn, S. Malloy and I. Potts gave a fine exhibition of tumbling or what was really a good advertisement for the High school gymnasium in which the athletic development of the students is looked after. The boys were trained for this feature by E. Stephens, the mathematical teacher. Plenty of comedy was furnished by R. Fry in the regulation costume of a circus clown.

A Picture of the Past.

One of the most artistic numbers on the programme was a chorus, "In the Sweet Long Ago" by eight of the girls of the school, wearing the costumes that were fashionable in the days of their grandmothers when the art of holding up a trailing skirt was cultivated as one of the feminine graces. An exhibition was also given of the dances that were popular in those days when every dance was the poetry of tepishchorean motion.

"Forty Miles an Hour."

That was the name of a one-act play that was cleverly presented by seven of the students and which was the final number of the programme. The plot was interesting and up-to-date, dealing as it did with the case of a young lady autoist who fell into the hands of the police on a charge of exceeding the speed limit. The scene was laid in a modern home, the family consisting of an irascible father with a severe case of nerves and with a weakness for golf, a mother entirely wrapped up in her only daughter, Peggy, who drove a car not wisely but too swiftly on occasion, and a grandmother who knitted and who sought to improve the tempers of those around her by healthy philosophical discourses.

On the day the story opens, the family have as a guest a judge, who presides in a criminal court and who is frequently called upon to deal with offenders against the traffic by-laws. That very day he had imposed a fine upon a young lady who had been running her car at the rate of 40 miles an hour. No one in the party dreams that the young lady in question is no other than the daughter of the house, who is away in her car at the time. When she returns, accompanied by a young man who has come to her rescue, she and the judge of course recognize each other, but both are set on keeping the secret from the father, who had declared he would cast off a child of his who figured in a criminal court case.

It was a policeman who revealed everything. Peggy had lost her wrist watch in the court room and had asked the officer to find it. He did so and appeared at the home to return the property. The mother and daughter weep in each others' arms while the father gives an exhibition of tiger-like temper. The judge's judicial temperament is exerted to the limit to restore peace in the household.

All of the parts in this play were well taken by the different members of the cast. Marjorie Ackerman, who on previous occasions has shown that she possesses the dra-

PROVINCIAL PARKS.

The plan formulated by William Finlayson, M.P.P. for East Simcoe, of converting 26,000 acres along the Severn River into a Provincial park, to be retained as a game preserve, forest reserve and game sanctuary, will doubtless receive a sympathetic hearing from the Provincial Government.

The wisdom of preserving such forest playgrounds for the use of the people of Ontario is shown by the popularity of Algonquin Park, one of the most beautiful and interesting stretches of country in the Province.

Here a network of rivers and lakes, surrounded by forests in which all kinds of animal life is to be found, makes this park a veritable fairyland for all lovers of outdoor life.

There was wisdom and vision in the setting apart of such game preserves, and the Severn River tract, following a similar policy, might well be added to the list before it is too late for such action to have any worth-while results.

Ontario must plan for the future, and a wise policy of Provincial parks will be of the greatest benefit to the generations coming after us.

PROTECTING THE FARMERS.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture is undertaking the task, it is announced, of endeavouring to educate the farmers of the Province up to the point of adopting more advanced methods of financing in the hope that they will be able to discriminate between the valuable stocks and the worthless ones.

The Minister of Agriculture, Hon. J. S. Martin, is authority for the statement that millions of dollars were lost by Ontario farmers last year through investments in stocks that were valueless.

The glib-tongued, high-pressure peddler of spurious stocks has found a ready field among the farmers of this Province, and the Government's effort to offset this condition by a campaign of education, it is hoped will do much to protect the farmers.

The failure of the Legislature to provide a blue sky law that would hamper the operations of these stock-selling sharks has made this Province a profitable field for many operators who have found their efforts cramped by rigid laws in force in many of the States across the border and have carried their campaign here.

The farmer who is approached by such representatives should never commit himself until he has had a chance of consulting his banker or some other authority able to give him honest and competent advice.

BETTER QUALITY PRODUCTS.

When Hon. J. S. Martin, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, was in Peterboro a short time ago addressing the Rotary Club, he stated that the policy of his department was being directed toward encouraging a better quality of Ontario products, thus assuring a good market at profitable prices.

This statement is being followed up in the announcement that a cream grading bill is to be introduced at the coming session of the Legislature.

For the past year the farmers and dairy interests have been educated as to the value of such legislation, and now the grading of cream is to be made compulsory, with three or four grades contemplated, and distinguished upon a butter fat basis as well as upon a basis of freshness and quality.

The grading of cream, it is stated, will lead up to the establishment of a Government-approved brand of Ontario butter, for which a reputation will be made in the export markets.

This is in line with Mr. Martin's statement to the local Rotary Club, when he pointed out that Government-approved Ontario apples brought the highest prices in the British markets.

He now contemplates a similar policy in regard to Ontario butter, and eventually to other Ontario farm products.

In short, he aims at raising the quality of the products of this Province to such a level as to justify the approval of a Government brand, and then to make that brand famous for quality in the world markets.

DEVELOPMENT IN OTTAWA VALLEY.

One of Canada's industrial areas that is heavily endowed with natural resources, and one that is destined to become more important in the near future, is the Ottawa Valley. The Ottawa River provides a number of excellent water-power sites, some of which have already been developed, while others are contemplated in the near future. This available power has been the means of attracting many outstanding industries, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior.

The forest industries are probably the most important feature of the Ottawa Valley, and the cheap abundant power available is attracting many large plants. The International Paper Company is engaged in the construction of a large pulp and paper mill at East Templeton, on the Ottawa River; also a hydro-electric plant at Chelsea, on the Gatineau River. At Ottawa are located the saw mills and the pulp and paper mills of the J. R. Booth Company and the pulp mill of the Bronson Company. Directly opposite in Hull are the large pulp and paper and other mills of the E. B. Eddy Company, while at Hawkesbury the International Paper Company have extensive pulp mills. Large lumber mills are located at several points along the river, particularly at Pembroke, Ottawa, Rockland and Hawkesbury. The Singer Sewing Machine Company is undertaking a hardwood development north of Thurso and is erecting a factory at the latter place to prepare all the woodwork for its several plants.

In what may be termed the industrial area of the Ottawa River, power has been developed at Hawkesbury, Ottawa and Bryson, while there are many other sites available. It is reported that the water-power at the Chats Falls, on the Ottawa River, and the Paugan Falls, on the Gatineau River, will shortly be developed, while the Garillon Rapids power site is also being considered. At Chelsea, on the Gatineau River, the International Paper Company is constructing a large power plant. The Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission is obtaining data preliminary to development of Ottawa River power sites with the object of providing additional power to Eastern Ontario.

The Ottawa Valley contains a large variety of minerals, and, while a number of excellent producing mines are in operation, some of which are reported to be the largest in America, there would appear to be splendid opportunities for greater development. On Chats Island, near Galetta, is located the lead mine of the Kingdon Mining and Smelting Company, the largest lead producer in Eastern Canada. A few miles north of Quyon is the Moss molybdenum mine, which during the war became the world's leading individual producer.

The Black Donald graphite mine, said to be the largest and richest deposit of flake graphite known in America, is located at Calabogie, in Renfrew County.

The feldspar deposits of the Buckingham district are among the most important in Canada, and the quality is said to be of the best.

The Ottawa Valley is the centre of the mica mining industry in Canada. The chief producing areas are in the territory within easy reach of the city; although the largest mica mine in Canada and probably in the world is located in Frontenac County, Ontario.

The largest deposit of magnesite yet discovered on the North American Continent is in the Grenville district, between Ottawa and Montreal. During the war the magnesite from this area met with a good market, due to the fact that Austrian magnesite was not available. The large users of this mineral in the United States, however, are reported to be financially interested in the Austrian deposits, and, though the latter is said to be inferior to the Canadian magnesite, Canada has not been successful to any great extent in meeting Austrian competition.

At Deschenes is situated the refining plant of the late British American Nickel Company, where the concentrates from the mines and smelters of the company at Sudbury, Ontario, were refined.

As an industrial area, the Ottawa Valley is rapidly making progress. Many and varied industries are taking advantage of its natural resources, and with ample railway facilities and the further development of the water-powers of the Ottawa River and its tributaries, some of which may be expected at an early date, it would seem that a bright future awaits the district.

ALCOHOL FOR BOOTLEGGERS.

Gen. Andrews, chief of the prohibition enforcement staff in the United States, said the other day that the law was not being enforced, and could not be enforced with the meagre assistance given by the Federal Government. He added that he saw no sign to indicate that there would be a change in Government policy. In short, the outlook for enforcement is about as gloomy as can be imagined. The enforcement officers have had only local and temporary victories. With the co-operation of the British Government, which extended the three-mile limit to twelve, and as a result of a persistent scrutiny the Government for a time isolated the rum fleet. But even if not a drop of the forbidden juice came from those ships or leaked over the Canadian or Mexican border, or was smuggled in from Cuba or the West Indies, the supply of liquor in the United States would not be appreciably less than at present. It would only be worse. It is now officially admitted that the chief source of supply for the bootleggers is the vast stock of denatured alcohol in the United States. This alcohol can only be withdrawn from the warehouses in which it is stored by Government permit, and there is presented the unedifying spectacle of the Government spending some tens of millions of dollars upon prohibition enforcement and at the same time releasing tens of millions of gallons of alcohol which finds its way speedily to the bootlegger, and is by him turned into the various branches of whiskey and gin which have become popular under prohibition.

Denatured alcohol is of two kinds. One is made by mixing wood alcohol with grain alcohol. The product is used in the manufacture of varnishes and anti-freeze mixtures for motor cars. It is poisonous and unfit for either internal or external use. The other kind is used in the manufacture of perfumes, soaps and toilet articles. This alcohol is also poisoned by the injection of chemicals under Government direction, and while it is unfit for internal use it is not so deadly as the stuff that is half grain alcohol and half wood alcohol. Denatured alcohol gets into the hands of the bootleggers by various means and by them it is "cleaned" by precipitants or redistilling. This process make sthe product more or less fit for consumption, although Government analysis in the past two years show that 99 per cent. of it contains some of the poison injected by the Government. In New York City alone there are 1,000 persons who have the right to withdraw this alcohol, ostensibly for the manufacture of perfumes, anti-freeze and other compounds. If the Government desired to keep watch upon all these manufacturers to see that the alcohol was legally used it would be necessary for it to maintain a staff of at least 3,000 inspectors, each working eight hours a day. As it is there are only 120 prohibition agents for all purposes in the city. To indicate the leak into the bootleggers' hands, it is only necessary to say that in 1921, 23,000,000 gallons of denatured alcohol were secured under Government permit, while in the year ending June 30, 1925, 86,000,000 gallons of the stuff was used. Before prohibition the consumption of denatured alcohol showed a normal increase of about a million gallons a year. At this rate the 1925 consumption would have been less than 30,000,000. The difference between 30,000,000 and 87,000,000 represents the bootleggers' demands created by the prohibition law.—The Mail and Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

One hundred and sixty chimney fires in a year is conclusive evidence that Peterboro needs some protection against this form of carelessness.

Paris shopkeepers have struck against the new taxes. The average Frenchman is willing to die for his country—but, like every one else, he hates to pay taxes.

Cheer up—spring can't be far off. The Toronto Parks Department is already deluged with applications for summer picnics.

The Toronto Star refers to Peterboro's street car system as hopeless. But the Star hasn't seen the buses in operation.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

IMPROVING THE FAIR

Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir.—I notice in today's paper where you say, Why not 2,000 members for Peterborough's Agricultural Fair. Yes, why not 5,000 memebrs, and why not the Fair Board throw down the bars to get them in? Why not make the membership $1.00 instead of $2.00. There are thousands right in and around the city that could be got to join, if they were not taxed too high on membership and entry fees. It is the young men and women all fairs have to depend on, and the fair boards should do all they can to encourage them to join and bring their exhibits. Two dollars is a lot of money to some people, who have never had any experience in the show ring, and then to have to put up large entry fees on stock and go to the expense of losing a week's time, with expenses at the fair, and perhaps not getting in the money, or high enough up to make expenses, is not very encouraging to a beginner, and it will very often be his last effort to win out at a fair. Why not put the membership at $1.00 and lower the entire fees on live stock? Why ask $5.00 entry fee on stallions for a $25.00 prize when you can show at the Royal for $2.00 for a $50.00 prize, and up to ten prizes in a class. There are not many in Peterborough County who care to risk $2.00 then $5.00 and also a week on the grounds with a stallion for a chance at $25.00, and these entries should be brought out in full classes at Peterborough County Fair, as it is one of the main branches of agriculture and gives the public a chance to see where the good sires are.

There should also be a class for the best three get of one sire; also classes for standard bred registered; also hackneys, registered. Then I think entry fees on all harness classes should not run over 10 per cent. of first prize money offered. That is about the average of the large shows, and it would go a mighty long way to encourage more entries in each class, and make larger classes, and thereby be a far more pleasing feature to the public who come daily to see the horses and cattle and all stock shows. I have often made two and three entries in each class, knowing I would not win on all, but a great many almost want to see the ribbon on their stock before they will make an extra entry. I have won as high as $165 on stock in one afternoon at Peterborough, besides cups and other prizes in the other days. I would like to see Peterborough become a second Toronto, but I think they should cut their entry fees; also lower the price at the gate to 25 cents, and they would be hundreds of dollars ahead. It would bring thousands back each day and night that the extra 10 cents keeps away, especially where large families and working people are concerned.

I see by the statement of the board, they paid out last year for attractions $6,240.85, and paid out for prizes only $6,170.10, or $70.75 less for prizes than for attractions at an agricultural exhibition. Surely there is proof there is something wrong. Would it not be far better for your county for those thousands that were paid out to those actors and others to have been spent on prizes that would make it a paying trip for some of those good breeders of pure-bred stock up West and also East of us to bring their stock to Peterborough Fair and show the farmers in this county that they had to improve on their breeding of live stock to be able to win out in either the show ring or the market. The show ring with a proper judge in it, is the high school for the breeder of commercial, farm, or market stock.

An agricultural fair backed up by the Government, with Government grants, should be run strictly as an agricultural exhibition and keep out that useless riff-raff, that make a living following up the fairs, taking thousands of dollars of easy money that would be far better spent in the homes before spring. I saw a young man lose $5 in five minutes at a fair last fall, that he had worked hard for, and walk away in tears. He had been beaten by a trick it is high time those scoundrels were kicked off our fair grounds. Any fair board that can't make it pay without taking their few dirty dollars, and allowing them to take the boys' and girls' and others' dollars, should shut its gates, for they are no use to the fair, and young people are standing around their tents when they might be learning something along agricultural lines, that the fair is backed up by the Government for.

Now, I am not trying to knock the fair in any way, but would like to see it a great success, and I think if the fees were lowered and prizes raised, a lot more, there is no reason why Peterborough Fair should not stand second to Toronto. Why should that $6,240.85 be paid out for that kind of attraction at an agricultural fair? Why join a fair up with the tail end of a circus, and also have a midway built up with nothing but a bunch of people who make a little fortune going around to the fairs. One young man at Peterborough Fair was seen to lose $14.00 in a few minutes. There were hundreds like him. Would that money not have been better spent in the city stores? It is high time for all fair boards to join hands and keep this class off the fair grounds.

Now, why not take those $6,240.85 paid out for attractions, and make your attractions purely agricultural, and have a real agricultural fair? Why not put on a real horse show at night under the electric light, with real horse show jumping and saddle classes, also harness classes of all kinds also judging of cattle classes, all this showing to take place in front if the grand stand, with the grounds well lit up. Look at the Royal and other large shows, where thousands upon thousands go each night to see nothing but classes of this kind and there is nothing in the world that gives a better thrill than the sight of good horses well handled. It brings the city and country together in the best possible way, and the money goes back to the farm to encourage the breeding of more and better live stock. The amount paid out in prizes would also increase the grant from the Government, thereby helping out all around, and keeping our good money at home on the farms either in Peterboroug County or some part of Ontario. Let Peterborough Fair oard be the first to run a real straight Agricultural Fair and set the example for all other smaller fairs. It can be done. Look at Cobourg Horse Show not a single thing on the grounds but a real horse show. No money-grabbing midway there; and look at their success. Let 1926 be a real agricultural fair.

Wishing you one and all a great success for 1926.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

YOU SHOULD.

Conservative bankers today investigate the question of business insurance. Granting credit to an uninsured business man is generous, but not good banking, and I have noticed that the modern banker needs no training in the idea of being cautious or conservative.

To know how the banker feels about business insurance or life insurance is information from the inside and worth having.

The business that does not carry protection on the lives of those largely responsible for its success is much more short-sighted than the business that carries no insurance on plant or production.

Machinery and merchandise can be replaced, but when a man of ability dies, credit has cramps and stockholders often hold the bag.

The bank knows this and you should

PRESENTATION TO WARSAW PEOPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bolton Are Moving to Burleigh.

WARSAW, Feb. 6.—Before Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bolton left their home in Dummer for their new one at Burleigh, a number of their friends and neighbors gathered at "Cedardale" Farm and had a pleasant good-bye evening. They presented Mr. and Mrs. Bolton with a parlor table and the following address:

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Bolton,—We, a number of your friends and neighbors, have gathered here this evening to pay you our hopeful farewells, on the eve of your departure from our midst. During your few short years, and indeed they have been short, among us, we have esteemed your presence highly. You have been a good neighbor and a kind friend, ever ready to offer help and consolation to those in need, and an ever bright star in our community. Your ready hand, kind smile, and kindly wit, have won for you a host of friends in this community.

"It is with regret that we see you leave our midst; but we believe that it is for the best, as you place your implicit trust in that Hand which never faileth. Cast all your cares in God, that anchor holds.

"And now that you are about to take up your habitation elsewhere, new neighbors will see the soft white wreaths of smoke rise from your chimneys; other eyes will see that bright evening lamp-light, across the way; other hands will grip yours as you are greeted that happy 'Good-day.'

"Now, as a happy token of our friendship, and as a symbol of our esteem, we would ask you to accept this parlor table, and as you use it, may it remind you of the good old friends of Dummer.

"Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors,

"Mrs. Harold Darling.
"Mr. Mark Freeburn.
"Mr. K. Walls."

Mr. Bolton made a suitable reply.

SWISS PREFER LOSS OF LEAGUE HEADQUARTERS TO THE DISHONOR OF APOLOGIZING TO BOLSHEVIKI

Fascist Vigilance Committee Breaks Up Pro-Soviet Meeting.

APPEAL TO LEAGUE.

Demand Maintenance of Nation's Honor in Negotiations.

GENEVA, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press)—Geneva's Fascist vigilance committee went into swift action last night when a group of persons supporting the stand of the Russian Soviet in the Russo-Swiss controversy tried to break up a mass meeting held to protest against any humiliating attitude by the Swiss Government in a possible settlement of the difference between the two countries.

(The controversy between Switzerland and Russia developed after the Swiss courts had acquitted Maurice Conradi, a Swiss citizen, who admitted responsibility for the assassination of the oSviet emisary Vorovsky. Russia has made it known that she would not participate in the proposed disarmament conference at Geneva unless a settlement was effected, and negotiations to this end have been in progress for several weeks.)

Brandishing their walking sticks, the vigilance committee rushed the gallery where the pro-Soviet manifestants were seated. They were hustled through the doors and turned over to the police for examination.

No Sacrifice of Honor

After a disturbance lasting 15 minutes the audience settled himself to listen to the orators who demanded that there should be no surrender of national honor to secure restoration of relations with Russia. The tenor of all the addresses was that the people of Geneva preferred to lose the League of Nations rather than suffer national dishonor.

Theodore Aubert, who defended Conradi, was the pdincipal speaker. He declared the League could not abandon Geneva just to please the Russians without repudiating the basic principles of the organization.

Amid much enthusiasm, a resolution was adopted informing the Feeral Government that Swiss honor, dignity and moral independence should be scrupulusly safeguarded in the pending negotiations. It declared that the League can only appreciate the attitude of a little country like Swizerland when it realizes that the Soviets never expressed the slightest regret for the ravages and murder of Swiss residents of Russia.

Criticise France

According to advices from Berne last night the negotiations witn Moscow are virtually broken off owing to the Soviet insistence upon a formal apology for the Vorovsky assassination. There is considerable criticism of France by the Swiss, it being alleged that she has urged the Berne Government to accept all of Moscow's demands.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT CAMPBELLFORD WELL ATTENDED

Programme Was Novel and Interesting and Drew Great Praise.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN.

Medals and Other Awards For Those Who Did Good Work.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 6—The entertainments that are given in the High School from time to time by the students are steadily increasing in popularity and last night the spacious auditorium was too small to accommodate all those who wished to attend the annual Commencement exercises. Those who were unable to obtain tickets of admission certainly missed an evening of high class entertainment as the programme was unanimously voted the best ever put on at a function of the kind. There were novel features every one of which was calculated to please the most fastidious tastes and it was demonstrated during he evening that the students who are fortuhate enough to attend the Campbellford High School are receiving an all round training that will give them a start in life over those who are denied the same scholastic privileges.

Dr. O. C. Watson, who is one of the veteran members of the Board of Education, injects a vein of pleasantry into all his public addresses and like every born humorist manages to preserve the utmost gravity when he is really speaking in jest. He was chosen to present the diplomas to the graduating class and remarked that it was evident that more High School space is required as there is not room enough for the students or for the people who wish to attend the entertainments.

"When the Board built the school," said he doctor, "we arranged it so that we can put up addition at any time and this is one of the things we propose to do this year."

The doctor took a leading part in the move to put up the present handsome building and if a similar civic controversy ever arose again would be found fighting in the front rank to keep his adopted town up to the mark.

COMMITTEE FOR CUSTOMS PROBE NAMED IN HOUSE

Will Investigate Charge Laid By Hon. H. H. Stevens This Week.

MEIGHEN AGREES.

Equal Number of Liberals and Conservatives—One Progressive.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—A Government resolution appointing a committee of nine members of the House of Commons to investigate the administration of the Department of Customs and Excise was adopted in that Chamber yesterday practically without debate.

The committee which will inquire into the matter ,with particular reference to the charges laid by the Hon. H. H. Stevens (Conservative, Vancouver Centre) will consist of Mr. Stevens, Hon. R. B. Bennett (Conservative, West Calgary); C. W. Bell (Conservative, Hamilton); H. A. Doucet (Conservative, Kent); J. C. Elliott Liberal, West Middlesex); Paul Mercier (Liberal, St. Henri); G. B. St. Pere (Liberal, Hochelaga); Dougald Donaghy (Liberal, North Vancouver), and T. L. Kennedy (Progressive, Peace River).

The announcement was made by Hon. G. H. Boivin at the opening of the House Friday at the end of a series of conferences between himself, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, and H. E. Spencer, chief Progressive whip.

The investigation is to extend back over such time as the committee may decide upon.

Party Representation.

Before the motion carried, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen made a brief announcement. He had agreed, he said, to the terms of the motion as read by the Minister. He would like to remark in passing that the proportion of Conservatives to Liberals on the committee was equal, whereas the Conserative party had the largest number in the House. The Government had insisted upon this equality. True, it was usual that the Government have a majority on a parliamentary committee, but then he added, amid laughter, "It is also usual for a government to have a majority in this House."

The disproportion was merely one of the anomalous features in the situation which had been created by the Government's tenacity in office.

It had not been thought wise to restrict the period over which the committee would extend its investigation. He felt sure that everybody would agree that it was better that this should be left to the commitee, but also that everybody would want the committee to give particular attention to the matters more immediaely connected with the present investigation, and not to permit its energies to be diffused over too wide a period.

The motion then carried after Mr. Boivin had promised Mr. Stevens that papers asked for in some resolutions standing on the order paper in Mr. Steven's name would be made available to the committee in ample time for its ample consideration.

Forty-two organizations with an aggregate membership of about 800,000 from sixteen countries were represented at the second Congress of the International Federation of Commercial, Clerical and Technical Employees, which held its sessions recently in the City of Cophenhagen.

FUNERAL FOLLOWS HOLLYWOOD DANCE

Film Stars at Bier of Barbara LaMarr.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6—All night long Hollywood's film colony danced and made merry at the annual ball of the "wampas"—the press agents who make stars by their tricks of their artistry.

Then, with hardly more than time to exchange the tinsel for the black of mourning, filmdom made a final pilgrimage to the bier of Barbara LaMarr, and saw the beautiful film star buried in the shadow of the little chapel.

Few such evenings of gaiety have been seen as was that at the "wampas ball." And few such solemn tributes have been paid here, as was that given at the funeral of Miss LaMarr, who died last Saturday when her career was still at its height.

Miss LaMarr rested on a golden velvet bier, while flowers were banked high. In her hand was a single red rose, from a little girl admirer, and with it a note which read:

"To my beautiful lady, Barbara, whom I longed to meet. May my life be as lovely and unselfish as yours."

On her breast were orchids from Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks.

The funeral services were brief and simple, as had been planned by Miss LaMarr before she died. A prayer was said and the Christian Scientist burial service read. A girl, who asked that she be known "just as a girl friend of Barbara's," sang "Eternity."

Bert Lytell, Alfred Green, Tom Gallery, Henry Hathaway and Victor R. D. Knickerbocker, all of Hollywood's film colony, acted as the pallbearers.

With them were Paul Ahern, John McCormick, Coleen Moore, Zazu Pitts, Bessie Love, Gladys Brockwell, Marshall Neilan, Blanche Sweet, Milton Cohen, Gloria Swanson and Claire Windsor, as honorary pallbearers.

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 6—(Canadian Press.)—A writ for the by-election in Ile a La Crosse, Saskatchewan's largest and most northerly constituency has been issued, it was announced yesterday in the Provincial Government.

PERMANENT SURVEY MARKERS REQUIRED

In Survey of Prairie Provinces—Convention Ends.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 6—(Canadian Press.)— With the election of officers and reading of reports, the 18th annual meeting of the Association of Dominion Land Surveyors came to a close Thursday. Telegraphed invitation from the Mayor of Winnipeg to hold the 1927 convention of the Association at Winnipeg was received. The matter was referred to the incoming executive. The first meeting of the Association was held in Winnipeg in 1882 due to the large number of surveyors being in the west in connection with laying the Canadian Pacific railway line across the continent. Since that time, the Association temporarily disbanded and later re-organized in its present form. The invitation from Winnipeg therefore met with considerable approval.

A copy of the report on monumental restoration survey in the prairie provinces, given by T. S. Nash of the Dominion Topographical Surveys Department, Thursday, advocating the use of permanent land survey markers, will be furnished to the Federal and Provincial Governments for their consideration. In his report, Mr. Nash pointed out that of the million survey markers used in marking off two hundred million acre tracts, only sixteen thousand are of the permanent type. Others are of wood and already a number have already been destroyed.

The work of charting the sea level and the river bottoms of Canada's coast and navigable rivers, was explained by R. J. Fraser, Dominion hydrographer. During the past year approximately 10,000 copies of charts designed by his staff were circulated throughout the world, Mr. Fraser said.

DEATH PENALTY TO SON OF MURDERER

Electrocuted at Sing Sing Prison, New York.

OSSINING, N.Y., Feb. 6.—Just before Matthew Wasser, of Buffalo, was electrocuted at Sing Sing Prison, Thursday night, he declared himself opposed to efforts which would abolish capital punishment.

Wasser, 37, was convicted of having taken part in a fatal holdup at Niagara Falls. Five minutes before he entered the death chair, the condemned man said he was "a legally innocent man," but hoped that the electric chair would never be abolished. He explained that capital punishment was better than enduring life imprisonment.

Wasser was the son of Louis Peter Otto, who was the last man to die on the gallows in the Erie County jail yard in Buffalo. Otto was executed in 1885 for the murder of his wife.

Justice Hinkley, who denied Wasser a retrial in Buffalo, was told by two Grand Army men that Matthew Wasser, Sr., who served with them in a civil war regiment, adopted the man executed as his son after Otto's execution. They pleaded in vain that Wasser be sent to the electric chair under the name of Otto in order to remove the stain from the name of Wasser.

Ernest T. Mimms, a negro, who killed a detective in the Bronx, was executed after Wasser.

"The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted"

BY S. GERTRUDE DE WENTWORTH-JAMES

SYNOPSIS.

It is in the morning of Bob Mannering's twenty-first birthday and he and Marjorie Patterson have greeted each other by climbing to the tops of ladders on either side of the wall separating the two estates. Marjorie gives Bob a golf bag she has crocheted for him. He is just starting to kiss herwhen her ladder falls. Mr. Blesdoe, whose son is to be tried that morning, calls to see John Mannering, District Attorney, who is Bob's father, and John, urged by Eileen, his wife, meets him.

CHAPTER II.—

"I'll see the gentleman in a moment, Mary," he told the maid and delayed to favor his wife with a look of comic-dismay.

"It's just as well for the laws of this land, Eileen, that it's not your business to see that they are enforced. That kind heart of yours would be the joy of the criminal classes."

E. J. Bledsoe was a self made man. Obsessed from early youth with a desire for power, he had devoted himself to the accumulation of money, which to his mind was the same thing. A man of untiring energy, resource and vision, success had crowned his efforts in a remarkable degree. Now, a millionaire, vast industrial establishments were not only a monument to his ability but a blessing to the community. Yet, the very trait of acquisitiveness which had led to this happy goal was not an unmixed virtue. It had bred, as the years sped by, a growing indifference and callousness to the rights of others, a ruthlessness towards those who opposed him and finally a conviction that money would buy anything. True, much it had brought him, but certainly it had failed to save him from marked uneasiness, as he waited in the big living room that morning, and studied with the keen eye of a judge of men, the portrait in oils of John in his judicial robes which Eileen had proudly insisted should be hung in the place of honor above the mantle.

Little satisfaction did he seem to get from what he saw, yet, as he turned about with a smiling face to greet John an onlooker would have been persuaded that this cheerful man had not a care in the whole would.

"Happened to be out this way, Mannering—hadn't seen you for a long time. Thought I'd drop in for a chat—get the latest news on the election and get a peak at your place. By Jove, it's nice—my wife says it causes her to sin—she says she covets it, every time she goes by," he rattled on with the friendliness of an old acquaintance. "Don't want to sell—eh?"

John shook his head and smiled, but it was a watchful smile.

"No?—well, I don't blame you. If I had it, you couldn't get it away from me with dynamite." Now a casual thought seemed to strike him. "Er—by the way, Mannering, this is the morning the trial of my son comes off, isn't it?"

John bowed gravely and the sharp glance which shot out from under Bledsoe's shaggy brows got nothing for its pains.

"Too bad about that accident—a sad affair which has caused me much unhappiness. It was a pity—a very great pity the man was hurt."

Bledsoe hesitated, but as John displayed no disposition to speak, went on.

"I tell my wife and I tell you, too, Mannering, we can't have automobiles without accidents. And don't forget it—the automobile has come to stay—we can't get along without it." With a gesture of hopelessness Bledsoe indicated the price his fellow citizens were doomed to pay for the blessing of the motor car.

John might have been the Sphinx for any expression of opinion he gave on this sage deduction.

"Take my son," Bledsoe continued with spirit. "As fine a boy as ever lived—they don't come better, Mannering. Well, there he was, tending to his own business—driving along—a little fast, perhaps. He had a date with a girl and you know how those things go—he had to get there. Well, he turned a corner and there—right in his path, Mannering, was that man—an inactive old man toddling along—can you beat it? What could Harry do? What could you or I have done under the same circumstances. Harry felt bad, of course—I never saw him any more broken up over anything. But that wouldn't help matters. I tell you, Mannering the real crime—the only crime in that matter—was in letting the old man out alone."

There came an ominous change in John's manner, but evidently the glance from beneath those shaggy brows failed to catch its meaning.

"Of course, the trial this morning will be no more than a matter of form—eh Mannering?"

"No trial in which I appear is ever a matter of form," said John, quietly.

"What?" cried Bledsoe as if he could not believe his own ears. "Do you mean to say that you are going to hold my son guilty of crime?"

"That is for the jury to decide, Mr. Bledsoe. I shall simply lay all the evidence in my possession before them."

"But Mannering," Bledsoe's face twitched with feeling. "I can't bear to have Harry humiliated like that. He is proud; it will be a terrible ordeal for him to undergo. Great God," he burst forth. "You wouldn't put him in jail, would you?"

"That is for the judge to say, I can only recommend."

"Heavens, man, where is your heart? You have a son of your own! Think how you would feel if he were in my son's place."

For an instant John hesitated, but only for an instant. Then his jaw set firmly.

"I am sorry for you, Bledsoe,—very sorry. But had I the same evidence against my son, that I have against yours, I should insist that he be sentenced."

"Mannering!" Bledsoe burst forth incredulously.

"I was elected by the people to uphold their laws. I have taken my oath to do it without fear or favor. I will not falter in the duty imposed upon me."

Fear gripped Bledsoe's heart as his better judgment warned him that here was a man who meant exactly what he said. Before the peril which threatened his son, he resorted to his all powerful weapon, but with craft and circumspection.

"Of course, I understand your position, Mannering,—most commendable I'm sure, but in public office there are other considerations—political considerations—which must not be overlooked. In a very few days now you've got to go back to the people for their indorsement. You'll need the aid and influence of all your friends. I've always been your friend, but——".

"Stop," rapped John, his eyes like steel and his tones as cold as ice. "That sounds suspiciously like a form of bribery to me, Mr. Bledsoe. If I were you I wouldn't pursue that line of argument any further. As for me, I am very pressed for time. I must bid you good morning."

Bledsoe was not slow to take the hint, but at the door he turned. Heart sick and defeated, passion and vindictiveness had claimed him. In silence he glared back. Then went his way.

As for John, he joined his wife in the breakfast room under no misapprehensions. He was certain that he had made an enemy, a powerful and ruthless one, too.

"You heard?" he said as he sank into his chair.

She nodded. The connecting door had been ajar and already she blamed herself for having insisted that he receive Bledsoe.

"I'm sorry, dear——,"

"Don't let it trouble you in the slightest," he said with an air of indifference. "It had to come sooner or later and I'm glad it's over."

Yet, she was not deceived. She knew that he was troubled. And Bob was still absent. She did not want him to displease his father on this, of all days.

When she finally followed her husband out upon the terrace to see him off to town, she once again protested her regret.

"It was all in the day's work, dear," he said gently. "My course was plain with Bledsoe. But it is not always easy to know what to do, yes, to have the courage to do it."

She watched him thoughtfully as he seated himself in the car. Then suddenly, she reached up and kissed him.

"May God always give you the courage to do the right thing, dear," she whispered.

She watched the car roll away. But hardly had it started when a figure shot out from the side of the house and overtook it. It was Bob and he was chewing as he went. There flashed into her mind a shocking picture of him gulping his coffee and bolting his food, of indigestion and kindred ills. But he had not failed his father. Gayly she answered their waved farewells only to grow very serious as they disappeared around a bend in the road.

"May God always give you the courage to do the right thing, dear," she repeated to herself, and now it was a prayer.

CHAPTER III.

Eileen entered the breakfast room and gazed with interest at the big box which the maid had at that moment rested upon the table. "What is that, Mary?"

The maid solemnly stared at it, as if thus she might gain some idea of its contents and then shook her head.

"I don't know, M'am."

"But where did it come from?"

Again the maid solemnly considered it, as if in search of an answer to the question propounded to her.

Eileen drew nearer and examined the box with care. "It's from Kempers'—flowers, of course. But, who can have sent them? I certainly haven't ordered any."

Suddenly Mary's face lighted as if she had found an answer to the riddle.

"Maybe," she giggled, "Miss Marjorie sent them to Mr. Bob."

"It would be like her," conceded Eileen. "But she would hardly address them to me, his mother."

"No M'am, she wouldn't." agreed the maid promptly.

Having by this time thoroughly aroused her curiosity, Eileen broke the string and lifting the cover of the box, exposed the mass of soft colored blooms within.

"Lilacs, how lovely," and suddenly a great tenderness seized her. "They must be from John, or from Bob as a remembrance of his birthday, but either of those foolish boys ought to have known that our bushes are in bloom, that we have bushels of lilacs right here at home. Isn't that just like men, Mary?

The maid gazed gravely at a window as if in her experience she had found the stronger sex capable of untold nonsense.

"Yes, M'am," she agreed with feeling.

Eileen leaned forward to breathe deeply of the sweet perfume which ascended from the box and caught sight of a bit of pasteboard.

"Ah, here's a card. That will explain this mystery." Eagerly she raised it and read the words written on it.

You see I have not forgetton that your favorite flowers were lilacs. Not bad considering that twenty years have passed.

JERRY.

"The idea,—the very idea!" exploded Eileen.

"Yes m'am," agreed the maid dutifully, but with a curious glance at the card, which made her mistress retain a tight grip upon it.

That Eileen was annoyed was plain. She bit her lips and regarded the flowers with anything but friendly eyes.

"Take them away—I don't want them—I don't want them about," she told the maid as she hastily thrust the box into her hands.

Mary, whose bright eyes had been diverted by a glimpse of the grocer's boy making for the kitchen, regarded her mistress with wonder, surprised at the change in her.

"Where to, M'am?"

"I don't care, anywhere, only I won't have them around." Then, growing calmer before the undisguised interest in Mary's eyes, she went on. "Send them to the hospital. I am sure that they will find use for them there."

When the maid had departed with the flowers, Eileen tore the card into bits with a vigor most uncomplimentary to its donor, and stood there thinking. And her thoughts were not pleasant. Again the happiness of this day which had promised so much had been marred by a disagreeable incident.

Even as she waited there, Mary returned.

"A Mr. Wallace—on the telephone for you, M'am."

"What?" Eileen was startled. Then, this gave way to indignation. If she was annoyed before, she was really angry, now. But under the inquisitive eyes of the maid, she grew wary and calmed herself with an effort.

"You may tell Mr. Wallace I am not at home, Mary," she said with a wry little look, which the maid received with a giggle and an aspect of profound wisdom in such matters.

Alone, Eileen was in no mood for mirth. She was stirred deeply by what had occurred. As she passed through the living room a little later an object on the floor caught her eye. Stooping, she picked it up. It was a spray of lilacs.

As she gazed at the purple loveliness of the frail petals, there was dread and detestation in her eyes, as if masked within their gentle beauty lay concealed the venom of a serpent. Moving to the fire place, she hastily cast it from her and when she had done so, she paused to gaze up at the painting of her husband which hung above the mantel.

It was as if she had found an altar which brought peace to her soul. Her anger and annoyance faded swiftly before the wealth of tenderness which welled up in her heart. Love, devotion, yes, worship, for the man portrayed there claimed every fiber of her being. He was her John, the father of her son, the mate by whose side she had climbed the rough path which leads from obscurity to honor. In the bliss of nuptial joys, in the cares and responsibilities of parenthood, in the common struggle for mere existence, their union had been made perfect, their love cemented until they were, in truth, one. Against such a joinder what could prevail, what shake its hallowed ties?

Yet, it must be confessed, the repulse given to his persistent overtures had not appeared to greatly disturb Jerome Wallace. When he received her curt message from Mary's lips, he had displayed no intense disappointment. Not that he could have misconstrued the meaning conveyed. Wallace was too much a man of the world, too well versed in the subtleties of social life to make any such mistake. And moreover he was not given to carrying his feelings on his coat sleeve.

A rather mysterious man was Wallace, anyway. A lawyer by profession, he had lived in the community all his life. His circle of acquaintances was wide, but his friends were few. He had a limited practice and had accumulated considerable money from it. Some said, far more than any reasonable fees could account for. That was the point. There were many rumors about Wallace. Vague hints, indefinite and intangible. There were hints of sharp practice towards his own clients, of investments suggested by him which turned out singularly unfortunate, of rich estates which shrunk materially under his management. On the other hand, the accounts of all his stewardships were models of accuracy and no man had ever presumed to suggest his indictment for embezzlement. Moreover, in certain legal controversies with dissatisfied clients, he had come off with flying colors. True, these misguided individuals had appeared much bewildered and amazed, and had steadfastly thereafter maintained that the law, as well as Mr. Wallace, were snares and delusions, pitfalls set to entrap honest men.

For the most part, the world accepted Wallace at his own value. A dark, handsome man whom women were drawn to and men feared, he frequented the best houses. But, it was not alone in society that Wallace was interested. Having evinced an interest in politics, he had finally been chosen as the candidate of the opposition party for District Attorney. Not that there seemed much ground for the belief that he could prevail against such a man as John Mannering in a race based upon ability and achievement.

But Wallace, too had a reputation. A reputation of usually getting what he went after. Some added, regardless of the methods he had to use to gain his point. There it goes again, hints and innuendos. But, nevertheless, Wallace was the formally endorsed candidate of a great party for the office of District Attorney and a man of substance and position, who, perhaps could regard the world from a very comfortable point of view.

At any rate, when he had been told over the telephone that Eileen was not at home, he calmly hung up the receiver and sat back in his chair. Evincing no disappointment, he smiled—a mocking smile—and having given several amused thumps upon the table, he grew thoughtful.

Wallace was given to thinking. He was forever pausing to delve retrospectively into the recesses of his mind. A well ordered mind his, apparently card indexed and with a mass of valuable data available for use upon a moment's notice. Wallace never forgot. A fine trait, most mortals would say. But concerning that there were hints. Former clients of his, hot headed individuals doubtless, had been known to refer to confidential communications and blackmail in the same breath with his name. Careless tongued souls these, plainly, and fortuate not to have found themselves indicted for slander. For what reasonable man could think of blackmail in connection with Jerome Wallace as he sat in his beautifully furnished apartment in the easy comfort of his lounging robe? Let us be under no misapprehensions but judge him as he appears, a man of discriminating taste who has reached a time in life where he may enjoy the fruits of his craft. Yet, hardly craft, which savors too much of graft, but rather regard him as a man of culture and refinement enjoying the rewards of his professional skill.

After a time, Wallace came out of his reverie, opened a drawer in the table and drew forth a photograph of a woman. Ah, there have been strange rumors afloat regarding his relations with women. But, rumors, merely rumors, and Wallace is invited to the best houses.

And this is a picture of a girl. A young girl on the threshold of womanhood, simply dressed in white and standing at a garden gate. There is a school girl freshness about the slender figure, the indelible stamp of innocence in those eyes and something strangely familiar in that countenance.

Stay, allowing for the passage of years it is no other than the face of Eileen which looks forth from that picture.

And, what is more, to give strength to that conclusion, plainly written upon the white mat which backed the picture are the words,

To Jerry, dearest—success and all my love, Eileen.

And Jerry is used as diminutive for Jerome. Here indeed was food for thought. What held Wallace's thoughts as he sat there staring at that old picture? Were there gentle memories of a boy and girl infatuation, a flitting fancy of budding hearts, its ties of gossamer so fragile that they fell away under the first stress? Or was it of an old passion, balked, but smouldering on through the years, unquenched, unquenchable? Or again was it of a rivalry, a stern, masculine rivalry begun for the hand of a maid and festering through the years ready to burst forth at every new contact?

Fate had made John Mannering and Jerome Wallace rivals for the hand of Eileen in their youth as it had now pitted them against each other in the race for District Attorney. But now as Wallace sat there with the picture in his hands, he might have been thinking of all of these things, or any of them, and no man the wiser, so inscrutable was his countenance.

There came a soft movement at his side and a Japanese boy appeared, bearing coffee. Wallace, recalled from his thoughts, glanced up and having returned the picture to its place, was closing the drawer when the bell of the telephone sounded.

He indicated the telephone to the boy with a nod of his head.

"Mr. Jennings wishes to speak to you, sir," said the boy softly, a moment later.

Jennings, "Slick" Jennings, a notorious ward heeler in the Gas House District. There was something strangely incongruous in the fact that he should have business with Jerome Wallace. The two men appeared to be antipodes of each other in tastes and attributes. Yet, as was long ago said, politics makes strange bed fellows. And to carry the simile further Wallace seemingly not only had taken Slick Jennings to bed with him in his race for District Attorney, but had clutched him to his very bosom by placing him in charge of one of his headquarters. It was pure politics, or better, purely politics, which had led to this move on Wallace's part.

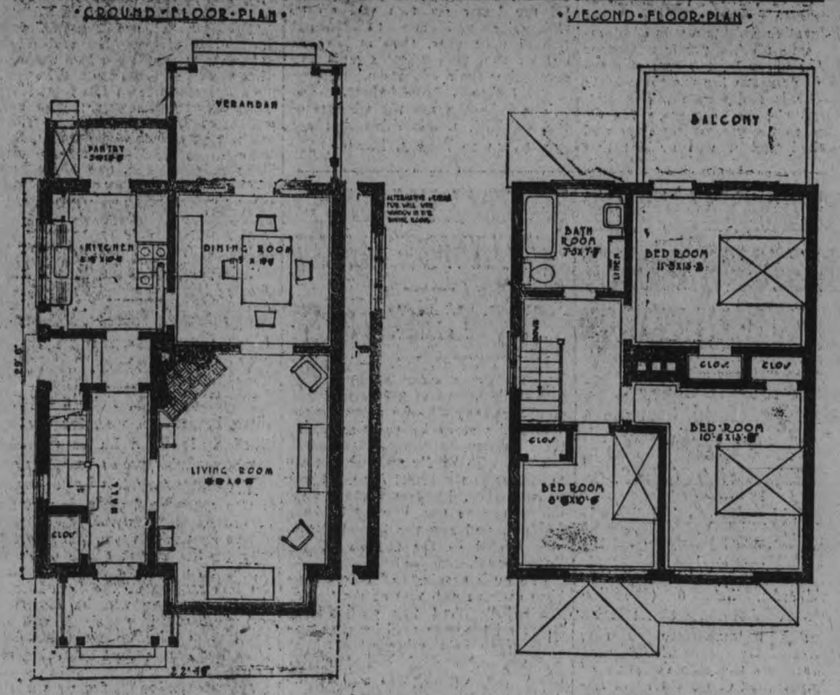
A Very Popular Plan In House Costing $5,500



By F. H. Marani, Architect.

It is not often that the name of a prominent architect is found associated with a home costing as little as fifty-five hundred dollars. One of the larger lumber companies featuring this design in a plan book state that the plan has been a tremendous success, many homes having been built from it. But the reputation of the architect and the cost are not the only reasons for such popularity. There are many others.

Few homes possessing individuality of design are to be found on lots under forty or fifty feet wide, however here is a decided artistic exception. The outside width is 22 ft. 6 in. which makes it suitable for a thirty-five foot lot or even two or three feet less. A minimum allowance of eight feet should be made for the driveway at the left and two, preferably three feet, for overhang of eaves and clearance at the other side.

While the original ground floor plan does not show any window openings on this side, an alternative plan provides a group of three side windows in the dining room. The most suitable plan to use depends upon the Width of your own lot and the proximity of the building on the next location. If none is there yet, it is safer to use the original plan unless you can keep at least four to six feet away from the line.

A lot facing the south or west is most desirable, but by reversing the plan and having the hall, side entrance and kitchen at the right side instead of the left, a northern exposure could be used. The side entrance would then be exposed to the west which is better than to the east; where it would be if this change were not made.

Looking at the floor plans and beginning with the ground floor, it will be noticed that the verandah is not in its customary place, but is at the back overlooking the garden. The small porch in front affords ample protection from the weather and has the advantage of performing this function without obstructing the living room light.

Entering the hall, it is quite a treat to find the coat closet conveniently located right at hand. The staircase landing, with small latticed window above co-operates with the living room in a pleasing interchange of views.

The fireplace in the corner of the living room is another departure from custom which works in very well with the size of the room (13 feet. 3 in. x 16 ft. 3 in.) and permits the same chimney to also serve the kitchen and furnace. One would have to be quite unobservant to miss the large bay window and equally lacking in imgination to fail to appreciate its value from three viewpoints—exterior appearance of the home, interior appearance of the living room, and as a means for flooding the room with health-giving sunlight.

The dining room is 11 ft. 5 in. x 12 ft. and gets its natural illumination from a combination of windows and a large French door which leads to the verandah.

The kitchen, 8 ft. 10 in. x 10 ft. 6 in. is well planned, the feature being the group of three windows just above the large combination sink with its convenient drain boards. At one side is a milk cupboard with outside access and at the other a china closet. The range has been alotted a convenient position opposite the sink. The pantry 3 ft. 9 in. x 8 ft. 6 in. has a built-in refrigerator with outside icing door.

Just outside the kitchen door and down three steps is the side, grade entrance and from the same landing one may proceed to the cellar and the furnace room, laundry, fruit and vegetable rooms.

On the second floor are three bedrooms with clothes closets and a bathroom with linen cupboard at the right. This plan also shows the architect's conception of the best positions for the beds.

Many a wonderful summer evening could be spent on the balcony of this floor or verandah below if their possibilities are not overlooked when selecting the site. Gorgeous sunsets; a well planned, well cared for garden — why not!

Why not a home like this for you and your's?

Books That Have Interested Me

J. H. BURNHAM
Ex-M.P. for Peterborough West

This is the Tenth of a Series by Peterborough People

It is to be supposed, doubtless, that these articles are founded upon the fact that books that interest the interested are such as should interest people of fair intelligence who are old enough to look at the world with sober judgment and not with the buoyancy and immaturity of youth. Such being assumed to be the case we may begin by dividing knowledge into two parts that which deals with the actual or material which we call science and that which deals with conscience and the immaterial world which we call the spiritual. We will, therefore, find people interested in the one or the other as they lean to the natural or to the mystic. The actual or natural which, as in the case of mathematics, demands the very highest mental calibre, is capable of versification and is therefore practical and demonstrable. The spiritual in its widest sense comprises the world of this imagination and depends for its inspiration on the ideal whilst science is wholly real. The two sorts of knowledge, therefore, are really the real and the ideal. The real or scientific is capable of only one solution. There is no doubt about science. Any matter is demonstrably a fact or the reverse.

In this ideal world we give reins to our imaginations and emotions and beyond a certain standard of artistic expression of them they are "tot hommes quot sententiae." You pays your money and you takes your choice. But freedom of choice, liberty of thought is the very essence of the one while freedom of choice is inadmissible in the other by the very nature of the matters involved. There is, however, a certain basis of human conduct called reasonableness which is the basis, so to speak, of all knowledge and opinion and when this is destroyed the ipsi disc ient,the haughty impertinences, of a portion of mankind substituted, all freedom of thought disappears and with it the whole end and aim of both education and religion. I must, come, however, I suppose, to the point of my discourse.

Mathematics is the most wonderful, and with it chemical physics, of all works upon science while in the realm of the imagination and of religion we love the penetration and the artistry displayed by humans in the one and stand in awe of the revelation of the other. The moment we have a new cult, such as that of social science and compulsory reform that moment we have the mass substituted for the individual and we become a herd and no longer a humanity.

Books, however, and I think in this the various writers of your articles will agree, are only the second stage in our mental and moral development. The knowledge of General Principles is the final stage in our development. For example, it is elementary to tell children that they must not do this or that. The next stage includes a wider scope. The final stage is the cultivation of a knowledge of the general principle of goodness which applies on all occasions. So long as people have to be told when to be good they are a poorly-developed people. They are incapable of acting the true man or woman and leading them by the nose becomes an easy task for paid uplifters who fatten on their lack of penetration and sense.

So that I hope I have passed the book stage but if I must refer to it I will say that the novels of gossip and sex do not interest me and never did. Real life is more interesting. But the mighty sweep of Shakespeare, the romance of Scott or the deadly analysis of Dante would be found next to works of science, the most fascinating to me of all human productions.

Lesson 4.
THE SOIL.

There are two crusts on the earth, and like many pie crusts the upper crust is pleasantly situated on top and is much liked while the under crust is soggy and dull and useless except to support the top crust.

When as happened in Russia lately the "social" pie is turned over, the under crust becomes the top crust and the top crust has a horrible time.

HINTS TO THE TEACHER:

For this lesson the teacher should distribute pies among the pupils to illustrate the difference between the upper and lower crusts.

ALL DETECTION THRILLS ARE NOT CONFINED TO PAGES OF FICTION
CHIEF NEWHALL TELLS ONE FROM REAL POLICE LIFE
AND A THEATRE TICKET STUB WAS THE CLUE THAT CONVICTED THE SLAYER

Samuel Newhall, Chief of the Peterboro Police department, recalled a story a few days ago which is almost a parallel to the "Yellow Stub" which is now appearing in each issue of the Examiner. The clues by which the murderer was caught were almost identical to those in the serial story.

The scene of the crime was a semi deserted street in New York and the murder was thought to have occurred after the hour of midnight. The only means of identification were the stub end of a theatre ticket and a ring of peculiar design which the man wore on the fourth digit of his right hand.

According to the story told by Chief Newhall the criminal was brought to book within a few hours by the clever work of detectives who had only those two slender threads which might guide them through the maze and supply the essential motive.

The Story

This is the reconstructed story: Two youths loved the same girl; she was a bit of a flirt and enjoyed the thrill of competition for her charms. One young man had purchased tickets for a certain well known play and naturally telephoned the young lady asking her to go with him. She couldn't go she declared and gave an excuse which satisfied her lover. It was a good play and he decided to go alone. Judge his amazement when, just before the curtain rose on the first act, the object of his adoration, accompanied by another man, sat down immediately in front of him.

Stung to the quick with jealous rage he seized his rival by the throat, hauled him ignominously over the back of the seat and proceeded to batter him with his fists.

Theatre attendants rushed hastily on the scene and bundled the ladies' escort out of doors. The attacker then took his place by the side of his loved one, stooping to pick up the discarded check which his rival had dropped on the floor. The pair sat through the entire performance and at its conclusion he escorted her home. Later on the way to his own residence he was shot and killed by a bullet from the gun of the man he had humiliated.

The theatre clerk told who had obtained the reservation for the seats indicated by the stub and the girl who was discovered subsequently identified victim by his peculiar ring. The arrest and conviction of the murderer followed in due course.

Chief Newhall told the above story to prove that all detective work was not done in the pages of dime thrillers and that the fevered inventions of novelists could be sternly duplicated in real life.

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION IS DOING A WONDERFUL WORK

Peterborough Children Well Looked After By Attentive Women.

WORK OF ONE BRANCH.

Central School Has Live Organization and is Typical of All Others.

Peterborough children do not need to stay away from school if they have no shoes! There may have been a time within the memories of the oldest inhabitants when parents would not allow the little tots to walk through the snow with semi-naked feet, and bodies shivering with cold because of inadequate clothing, but things are different now. In Peterborough at least this is the day of the Home and School Association, the school nurse and doctor and the school attendance officer. This is the day when the child of parents in unfortunate circumstances is given a chance to compete on an equal basis with the son or daughter of the wealthiest personage in the city. Unceasing vigilance on the part of teachers and others concerned as to the welfare of the pupils has resulted in the establishment of a remarkable system which is bringing the parents, children and teachers into a closer and more effective relationship with one another.

The Central school branch is a splendid example of the character of work which is being undertaken in this field and under the capable direction of the president, Mrs. E. H. Howson, the programme of relief for this year was more extensive than ever before. Whether there has been more destitution prevalent or the endeavours of the officials are resulting in a greater response could not be stated with accuracy but the fact remains that this year the value of clothing and other supplies was considerably increased. An innovation which was introduced a few years ago by the Central School Association and since adopted by some of the other branches, was that of having the children bring the waste copies of newspapers from their homes to the school where the teachers took charge of them, wrapping the paper in bundles of a convenient size. They are then weighed on the city scales and sold as junk. A considerable revenue is raised by this means much of the actual cost of administration is taken care of.

Care is taken to supply an incentive to the children who assist in this work and accordingly prizes are given each month to the room which sends in the greatest weight of paper. Pictures were presented one year and last year a plant was awarded to the winning room.

That the association is desirous of providing toward the athletic tendencies of the children is proven by the fact that this year a rink was prepared in the school grounds so that the children could play hockey, skate or slide to their hearts' content. When occasion demands prizes are donated to the teams of the school which are successful in winning the championships of the schools group. Banquets have also been provided to members of winning teams. In June a picnic is organized for which parents, pupils and teachers are brought together for an afternoon of amusement in Victoria Park. The parents bring cake and sandwiches, while the Home and School Association supplies liberal quantities of ice-cream and lemonade at no cost to the children.

In the autumn the work assumes a more serious trend. Children who appear undernourished are fed milk, a liberal quantity of which is procured from a local creamery, and is delivered to the school in pint bottles. The school doctor, Angus W. MacPherson, the nurse, Miss Mary Jory, and the attendance officer, James Abraham, report the cases which are brought to their notice and steps are immediately taken to give relief. As an instance of this it was learned that a little girl who had been living with her grandmother suddenly dropped out of school life. Investigation followed and it was learned that the child had no shoes. This fact was transferred to the proper authorities who found out the size of shoe required and had a pair despatched to the home of the needy one. Clothing is collected and supplied to those who through force of circumstances have not garments of sufficient warmth to insure the proper protection from diseases which arise out of cold, damp weather.

Grants are also made for the purchase of articles which will facilitate school work. Some time ago a duplicating machine was secured and it has since been learned that the work done in making copies of examination papers and other papers has justified the society in making the expenditure. A sum of money was also allotted for the purchase of a length of hose by which the school rink might be flooded. Pictures and lantern slides have also been supplied.

Every year a concert is given by the pupils under the supervision of the teachers, the object being as usual to create a better co-operative spirit between the teacher, the parent, and the pupil. At some of the regular monthly meetings the teachers provide the programme. City officials lend their services on some occasions for the purpose of giving informative addresses and every possible expedient for securing interest in the meetings is given consideration. In order to secure a maximum attendance a banner is given each month to the room which is most represented by parents at each meeting.

Mrs. Howson declared that the parents were exceedingly grateful for the help which the Association was giving while the inspector had assured her that a greater degree of efficiency had been obtained. The school attendance officer was greatly in favor of the work as he claimed that the Home and School plan was resulting in a more consistent attendance. The president was of the opinion that there were many women who, if they knew of the opportunity for service which the society provided, would gladly join and participate in its activities. On the whole, she concluded, there was a very, commendable spirit of co-operation and zeal in evidence and that the association would continue to fill the gap between the children and the parents. The work being done at the Central branch is only typical of the activities being carried out in connection with every school.

FINGER PRINTS INFALLIBLE IN DETECTION OF CRIMINALS

Local Police Have Equipment For Taking Records of Crime.

CENTRAL OFFICE.

Request Brings Data on Any Man Who Has Been Recorded.

One of the greatest aids in crime detection, said Chief of Police Newhall, in an interview to-day, was the system by which finger prints are obtained of all suspected people who pass through the hands of the police.

When a stranger comes to the city and commits some infraction of the law, his finger prints are obtained and sent to the central office. From the records there, it is possible to discover whether or not the detained suspect is an old offender. Should other offences be registered agains thim a list of the convictions is mailed back to the inquiring police chief.

Taking the Prints.

In order to obtain finger print impressions the subject is taken to the detective's office, a special black preparation is placed upon a piece of plate glass. Guided by the firm hand of a detective the fingers of the person are forced into the paste and transferred to their allotted places on a specially ruled paper.

Impressions of the five digits of each hand are made separately, then in another section the entire groups of fingers are placed on the paper. On the back of the sheet, near a line for the person's signature is another ruled square in which the subject places the inked forefinger of his right hand.

In a case where a crime is committed and certain prints are found on pieces of glass or wood, a very fine black powder is sprinkled over the marks. This, when blown off again shows the finger prints distinctly with each tiny "whirl" or "arch" clearly defined. Photographs are taken with the aid of a special lens, they are sent to the central office from which place copies may be mailed to all police headquarters in the vicinity of the town or city where the crime is committed.

No two finger prints of different individuals have ever been found to be alike in every particular. There is a difference even in the marks left by the individual fingers of one hand, so it is would appear that the finger print method is infallible.

Serious Aspects Of Modern Conditions Are Discuss ed By Noted Russian Visitor

By LEON M. SILER
(For N.E.A. and The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Feby. 6.—There's weight, one easily observes, to the opinions of Mr. Ivan Poddubny.

Mr. Poddubny bulks massive and potent among current visitors to American shores.

He hails from somewhere in Russia and way points.

Nor is his avoirdupois the only Poddubny index of intellectuality. For the Russian winters through which he has passed have left their streaks of snow in his hair.

Mr. Poddubny combed his hair with perspicacity and finesse as I sought him out combed it into a model of parted-in-the-middle symmetry, tweaked his abundant mustachios, and posed nonchalantly for the camera man.

And then began Mr. Poddubny's detoured verbal wrestling with such of the major problems of the day as I submitted to him.

Detoured, because Mr. Poddubny, while exerting himself athletically in American as well as in Russian or Graeco-Roman, wrestles verbally only in his native tongue.

The detour was an English-speaking fellow countryman of my ponderous interviewee—his 110-pound manager, to be exact.

"In the field of art and estheticism," I began, "there is the question of jazz and its past, present and future phenomena.

"Ask him, please, about jazz."

Mr. Poddubny's scrap iron countenance relaxed almost into a smile. He greeted the inquiry with an affectionate half Nelson, as it were.

"He says," reported the third man in the ring, after moments of Russian confab, "that jazz is good, and he likes art too, but the other he doesn't know about."

"All right—the League of Nations," I sallied.

And thereupon the League was tripped for a hard fall.

"He says," responded the detour, "that the League of Nations is like a lot of babies playing it is like a comedy in your movies it is like a lot of old maids drinking tea.

"Talk, talk, talk—pouf! That's all."

Mr. Poddubny wrenched his jaws into a more comfortable position and tweaked his abundant mustachios again.

"And now the Einstein theory of relativity," I questioned. "Does he believe it, or does he not?"

But I had gone into what a referee, had one been present, would have classified as a strangle hold.

There was no wrestler's Russian, apparently, in which the catechising of Mr. Poddubny regarding theories of relativity might successfully be carried on.

Undiscouraged, I turned to the subject of Henry Ford.

"Ah! For'!" burst out Mr. Poddubny, understandingly.

We had found the universal language at last.

"He says," picked up the heavyweight visitor's lightweight manager, "that Henry Ford is a splendid automobile that he sees them all over the world."

The floors of the gymnasium creaked as Mr. Poddubny shifted his poundage to his left leg.

Mr. Poddubny obviously was tiring under my cross-examination. He looked longingly at the mat and the training partner waiting for him nearby.

"Ask him," I demanded relentlessly, "whether he is a modernist or a fundamentalist."

Whereat Mr. Poddubny, his manager, and the Russian language went into a free-for-all clinch again.

"He says," reported the detour, finally, "that politics and wrestling don't mix."

And Mr. Poddubny, tweaking his copious mustachios, bowed me a gracious adieu.

Are Your Finger Prints Like These. Prize Competition

HERE'S a chance for some of you readers of "The Yellow Stub," the great mystery and love serial now running in The Examiner, to cash in.

Printed herewith are six thumb-prints. Four of them are those of a man, and one of those four is that of the villain in "The Yellow Stub." The other two are women's and one of them belongs to the heroine.

Now then, you "Yellow Stub" fans—both feminine and masculine—how about taking an impression of your own right thumb print and sending them in to the Finger-Print Editor of The Examiner? To the girl whose finger-print most closely resembles that of the heroine, The Examiner will give a prize. And the man whose print is closest to that of the villain will get a prize. There will 20 prizes altogether.

Taking finger-prints is simple. An ordinary stamp pad, such as is found in most business offices, will do. Just press your finger on it (either the thumb or first two fingers will do and then press it down on a piece of glazed white paper or cardboard.

If you haven't such a pad, ordinary black shoe paste will do. Be sure it is soft, and be sure not to get too much of it on your finger before transferring it to paper.

White cardboard, such as the ordinary calling card, is best. So hop to it and send them before Thursday, February 11, when the contest closes. The result will be announced on Saturday if possible.

The Villain's is here

The Heroine's is here

The adjudication will be made by Chief Constable Samuel Newhall, Sergt. Wm. Meagher, and Detective William Carey, finger print experts of the Peterborough police department, who have kindly consented to act.

If you have no stamp pad you may call at The Examiner office, where one will be provided.

Write your name and address on the paper bearing your finger print.

The competition is open to all readers—rural and city alike.

THE PRIZES

Everyone has a friend somewhere who would appreciate receiving The Evening Examiner.

To the lady whose finger-print comes closest to that of the heroine will be given the privilege of naming a friend, not now receiving The Examiner, to whom the paper will be sent free for two months.

The same prize will be given the gentleman whose finger-print most nearly resembles that of the villain.

And the ten ladies and ten gentlemen whose finger-prints are next nearest the heroine's and the villain's respectively will be asked to name friends, not now subscribers, to whom The Examiner will be sent free for one month.

Read the accompanying article on the business of taking finger-prints, and you will notice that no two prints are alike. So don't be discouraged if your prints seem different from those printed—you may be NEAREST

If you have read "The Yellow Stub" you have formed an idea as to who is the heroine and who is the villain. See whether you are correct!

Mutual Life's Unbroken Progress

$3,796,982 Surplus Earnings in 1925 Shows Exceptional Strength of the Mutual Life of Canada

Pioneer Mutual Company Has Record Sum for Distribution to its Policyholders

THE 56th year in the history of the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada was marked by solid and substantial progress. It is gratifying to note from the reports made to the policyholders at the annual meeting on February 4th that the 1925 operations of Canada's pioneer Mutual Life Company compare very favorably with the record results achieved in 1924. The 56th milestone in Mutuality marks 56 years of unbroken prosperity.

Our Policyholders—who alone constitute the Company—rightly judge the strength and progress of the Mutual Life of Canada by its surplus earnings from year to year. The surplus earned by this Company during 1925 totalled $3,796,982.41—an increase of $296,724.41 over the surplus earned in 1924, in which year all previous high-water marks were far surpassed. These remarkably favorable earnings will enable the Company to continue to pay dividends to Policyholders on the same liberal scale in 1926 as heretofore, and, in addition, the free surplus available for contingencies has been increased by $607,981.91. The amount paid to Policyholders in 1925 was $7,201,403, an increase of $969,252 over the 1924 total.

Steady, Safe Growth in Business

Healthy expansion of the Company's business is again recorded for 1925, by the end of which year the total in force amounted to $322,529,285. At the end of 1924 the assurances in force totalled $295,729,866, so that 1926 showed a net increase of $26,799,419. The total new issue for last year was $45,573,577—an increase of $2,249,280 over the 1924 volume of new business.

Notwithstanding this very considerable increase the expense ratio—already notably low—was again reduced on 1925 business. The percentage of income required to cover general expenses was cut from 15.50% in 1924 to 15.23% in 1925.

This economy in administration was one factor contributing to the exceptionally high surplus earned for Mutual Policyholders. Very favorable mortality and an equally favorable interest rate on invested assets were other factors.

Low Mortality and Higher Interest

An extraordinarily low rate of mortality was experienced in 1924, the actual death strain being only 36.01% of the expected, so that although the death claims paid in 1925 exceeded those of 1924, the mortality ratio—37.95%—was still very favorable.

Although throughout last year the trend in bond prices was toward higher figures (with consequently lower yields), coupled with a tendency toward lower rates of interest on mortgage loans, the Company was able not only to maintain the average rate of interest earned on its invested funds, but to make a slight increase to 6.42%.

Assets Steadily Increase

Indicative of the impregnable financial situation of the Company is the $6,556,800 increase in accumulated assets, which now total $72,517,566, as against $65,960,767 at the end of 1924.

By every test, the principle of Mutuality—whereby the profit-participating Policyholders receive back the entire net profits—justifies confidence in the continuance of benefits to Mutualists in the coming years.

Benefits to Policyholders Strikingly Shown in 56 Years' Record

YOUR attention is directed to the following statement of the total benefits paid to policyholders and beneficiaries since the Company was established fifty-six years ago. These figures show how well the aims of the founders of the Company have been realized.

(2) Matured Endowments and Annuities	11,052,358.47
(3) Surplus	19,005,064.08
(4) Surrender Values	9,626,852.15
(5) Other Payments	78,965.74
	$60,517,426.34

And it holds at this date for the security of its Policyholders:

Reserves on 3½% and 3% standard	$58,713,297.23
Provision for unadjusted claims and prepaid premiums	351,231.37
Dividends due, deferred and accumulative	10,006,817.43
Additional Reserves and Surplus Funds	2,976,316.16
Total	$72,047,662.19

Total paid to and held for policyholders $132,565,088.53.

THE ASSESSOR AND HIS METHOD OF ASSESSMENT

By City Assessor W. J. Henry

City Assessor, W. J. Henry, at Monday's meeting of the Rotary Club, gave the following most interesting paper.

From the Assessor's Point of View.

It seems to me that there is no department of municipal government that is so little understood and so much criticized as the assessment department. Taxes are increasing from year to year and the assessor is to blame for it all.

The aim of all our municipal organizations is the equalization of expense within corporation boundaries.

The assessment Act, which contains the regulations to be followed, provides: That all municipal, local or direct taxes or rates, shall (when no other provision is made) be levied upon the whole of the Assessment for real property, income and business, or other assessment, made under this act, according to the amounts assessed in respect thereof, and not upon any one or more kinds of property or assessment or in different proportions.

For the purpose of determining assessed values, municipal councils are required to appoint officials called assessors.

When the Council have appointed an assessor, their duties in connection with the Assessment have been completed.

An Important Department.

The work of the Assessor is the basis of 95% of the whole revenue of the municipality and from this standpoint, if for no other reason, it ranks first in importance among the various departments of municipal Government. From the nature of the work, the assessor must assume great responsibility, in addition to his responsibility to the civic council, he is also responsible to every ratepayer, because ratepayers are stockholders in the municipal corporation.

The trend of the present day thought has turned strongly towards accuracy and equality in valuing property for assessment purposes. More and more city and town authorities realize that the municipal growth, and financial standing of a community, as well as its bonding capacity, is based on its Assessment and Tax rate. To this end the law required all property to be assessed at its actual value. This is not only just and equitable but entirely practical. An excessive high tax-rate coupled with a low unequalized assessment tends not only to produce a disgruntled taxpayer but also to discourage a prospective purchaser from acquiring a home or possible factory or mercantile site.

The cost of municipal Government is continually increasing and in many municipalities the various departments are being forced to postpone necessary and vital improvements owing to a lack of revenue.

It is evident that such a state of affairs, if continued for a protracted period would soon place a municipality in the rear of more progressive cities, and result in the decline of real-estate values which would make the regeneration of such city very difficult.

Only One Safe Course.

There is but one safe course for any municipality to pursue at the present time and that is to so arrange that the burden of the cost of Civic Government and local improvements may be distributed equitably. This can only be done by thorough, energetic and scientific study of the local conditions and an equitable assessment of all property based on the present day market value.

Government bodies can no longer function with old budgets. Policemen, firemen, mechanics, clerks, teachers, doctors, lawyers and judges all demand increased compensation. The cost of all material has increased all the way from 50% to 200%, with a corresponding increase in the construction and maintenance of public buildings and local improvements. These extra costs can be met only by increased assessments.

The Tax-payer Himself is Largely Responsible for His Tax Problem.

The history of the daily transactions in every community show a constant stream of petitions from ratepayers asking the municipal council for all manner of local improvements without any regard to cost, and you all know how bond issues involving hundreds of thousands of dollars are put over with a few hundred votes and how few of these are turned down.

I am not critizing the desirability of local improvements but I do criticize the lack of intelligent thought which places the whole blame on the Assessor for high taxation.

Retrenchment is the only way to reduce high taxation, a reduction of assessed values will not do it, but a general reduction in assessment, will without doubt, produce a higher tax-rate unless the municipal expenditures are also cut down and this may not always be a wise course to take. Every thoughtful person must realize that a stationary expenditure is impossible in a growing community, without detriment to its progress and growth. There is a happy medium between the way of the spendthrift and the road of the miser, and the wise person will endeavour to get on the middle road, so will a wise community. I have digressed somewhat from the main subject in order to show the foolishness of blaming the Assessor for high taxation.

Realty Assessment.

Reality assessment embraces land and improvements.

Sec. 40 of the Act provides methods of assessing.

40—(1) Subject to provisions of this Section. Land shall be assessed at its actual value.

(2) In assessing land having any buildings thereon, the value of the land and buildings shall be ascertained separately and shall be set down separately in columns 13 and 14 of the Assessment Roll and the assessment shall be the sum of such value. The value of the building shall be the amount by which the value of the land is thereby increased.

(3) To remove doubts it is hereby declared that the cost of a building is only one of the matters which should be considered in ascertaining the amount for which a building should be assessed. And if it is found that a building, either because of its condition as to repair or its inappropriateness to the location in which it is found or because of any other circumstance affecting its value, increases the value of land by less than the cost of the building or the cost of replacing it, such less sum shall be the amount for which the building shall be assessed under subsection. (2) The meaning of the sub-section being that the building shall be assessed for the amount of the difference between the selling value of the whole property and the selling value of the land if there were no building on it.

An important question confronting every assessor is whether to value on a uniform or an individual basis. He may adopt some safe intermediate value, or he may, as is sometimes the case, value each site or building on the sale price, irrespective of general values. This latter plan involves friction, complaint and dissatisfaction.

On the other hand he may value the land at its present selling value, and the building on the reproduction cost, less depreciation. He must compromise boom values with normal values. He should not take the peak value nor go to the other extreme and accept the low value of pre-war days. The former will do an injustice to the owner who was compelled to build at peak prices, while to take the pre-war costs, would work an injustice to the municipality in loss of taxes.

Actual Value.

What is meant by actual value as applied to real property? I take it to mean the fair and reasonable cash price which can be obtained in the open market, not at a forced sale under peculiar circumstances but a voluntary sale as between a person who wants to seell, but is not obliged to sell, and a person who desires to purchase but is not obliged to buy. The market price of real estate is determined as the result of the number of sales which have taken place at nearly the same time and place, at approximately a uniform figure. Occasional sales do not represent a stable market price as a rule. A purchaser may pay more than the property is worth because of some reason which makes the parcel of particular interest or value to him. No rule can be laid down for the appraisal of land which will dispense with the sound judgement of an experienced valuation. Rules and methods can only be guides. Sales can never be more than sign posts to mark the way toward correct conclusions. Asking price is rarely a criterion of value, because the owner may place a sentimental value on his property. Sales made on the installment plan should not be considered as actual value.

Land Assessment.

It is the aim of the Assessment Department to obtain all the information possible, relative to values of real estate in order to make fair and just assessments. We are furnished regularly the sales from the Registry and Land Titles Office. These are entered on a card system for reference, together with any other information which comes to our hand. After determining the assessed value of land it is assessed on a unit foot basis. A unit foot being a piece of land one foot wide by 100 feet deep. For lots of a greater or less depth, the value of the first fifty feet of this depth is considered as two-thirds of the value of the whole. From this as a starting point calculations are made to show the proportions of the value of each foot in depth to the value of the whole.

Buildings.

In assessing buildings, some of the factors to be taken into consideration in arriving at a value are:—

1st—The replacement value.

2nd—The Construction of building.

3rd—Are the buildings in proper repair.

4th—Whether or not the possible use of the buildings are suited to the neighborhood in which they are located.

5th—Whether or not the property is so situated and constructed to be of material value to some company or individual, other than the owner, for a contemplated improvement.

6.—The value of properties of practically the same character, situated in the same sort of neighborhood elsewhere in the city.

7th.—The value of adjacent property.

8th.—Personal inspection by the Assessor.

9th.—Testimony given before the Court of Revision on appeal.

As I stated before, the trend of present day thought has turned strongly toward accuracy and equality in valuing property. Assessors are gradually abandoning the old hap-hazard method of just looking at a building and making a guess as to its value. To-day the assessor endeavors to have a complete record of every building in the city, it's size, type of construction, what improvements it contains, such as plumbing, heating, lighting, hardwood floors, etc., together with the probable cost of replacement. With such information it is much easier to get a uniform value, as each building is more readily compared with all other buildings of the same class, allowing for any factors which may add to or detract from its value, such as locality, state of repair, depreciation for age, etc.

A few of the larger cities have made grants for the purpose of assisting their assessment departments in having this work done, but the local department have been endeavoring to do it themselves without any extra help. Wards 1, 3 and 4 are already done and we expect to have number 5 finished this year. You will therefore understand that when the assessor asks what plumbing, heating etc., you have in the house it is not necessarily for the purpose of raising your assessment but to equalize yours with all other assessments.

Assessing Improvements.

The statement is often made that people are fined for improving their property, and that a citizen is afraid to drive a nail or use a whitewash brush, and that large houses are not assessed on the same basis as the smaller ones. It has been my experience that almost invariably when the large houses have changed owners, that we have to reduce the assessment because the sale price is often less than the assessment figure.

A. Ordinary Repairs.—No citizen need be afraid of his assessment being raised because of ordinary repairs to his property.

Permanent Improvements.

The Assessor does not feel that he is fining anyone when he increases the assessment when some permanent improvements have been added to the property. Suppose Mr. A. and Mr. B. both build houses of similar design and the same size, but Mr. A. puts in a furnace or the plumbing when the house is built, but Mr. B. for some reason decides to do without them for the present. If the assessor assessed those two houses at the same figure, Mr. B. would promptly register a complaint that as his house did not have the furnace or plumbing it was not worth as much as Mr. A's and should not be assessed for as much, and the assessor would agree that he was right. The next year he adds the furnace or the plumbing which makes his house of an equal value to Mr. A's house. If we are going to have an equalized assessment both these houses should be assessed for the same amount.

Business Assessment Section 10 of the Act.

Irrespective of any assessment of land under this Act every person occupying or using land for the purpose of any business mentioned or described in this section shall be assessed for a sum to be called business assessment, to be computed by reference to the assessed value of the land so occupied or used by him.

Briefly speaking, every person carrying on a business of—

Wholesaler, Banks, etc.	75%
Manufacturers	60%
Professional Class and Departmental Stores	50%
Retail Stores	30%

This section means if a bank is doing business in premises where the land and buildings are assessed for $10,000 it would automatically follow that the business assessment of the bank would be 75% of $10,000 or $7,500. Every person assessed for a business assessment shall be liable for the payment of a tax thereon and the same shall not constitute a charge upon the land so occupied or used.

Income Assessment.

This class of assessment has been subject to many changes through amendments to the Assessment Act. The Act, up till 1919 exempted on annual income derived from personal earnings (salary or wages) to a householder, $1,500 and to a non-householder, $600. In 1919, the exemptions to a householder was increased to $1,700, and in 1920 to $2,000, and a further exemption of $200 for each dependent child under 18 years of age. In 1925, the exemption for dependents was increased to $400. Non-householder's exemptions is now $1,000. There will likely be a further change during the present session of the House, as the commission appointed to revise the Assessment Act are expected to make a report this year. There has been more complaints on the part of the public in regard to the income assessment than to any other, owing to the fact that both the Dominion Government and the Municipal Corporations are taxing incomes thereby creating a double taxation. I noticed an article in our local newspaper some time ago advocating the abolishment of municipal taxation on incomes, giving as the reason, of double taxation. That the salaried man are always caught while the rich man escapes, and that ther[illegible] is not enforced in some of the smaller [illegible]orities,—would be a mistake. [illegible]ssment rolls for 1925-6 show a total assessment on income of $923,000, which is made up as follows:—

From companies and individuals, income of over $10,000 a year, $302,275; $5,000, $266,770; $3,000, $163,735; $2,000, $45,460; non-householders, $145,755.

Now if the municipal income tax was abolished that would mean that this $923,000 so lost, would have to be made up by an increased assessment on all realty and business, in which case the small tax-payer would be called on to pay more, so that his wealthy neighbor might escape more lightly. What should be done is to bring pressure on the Dominion Government, to have the Dominion income tax removed. It was only put on during the war as a temporary measure, and it should be done away with now.

Exemptions.

There seems to be quite a difference of opinion regarding the wisdom of municipalities granting exemptions of bonuses to proposed manufacturing concerns. There is no doubt that in a great many instances this privilege has been abused, and I think that the provincial Government did a wise thing in curtailing the power of municipalities in granting these exemptions. I believe that we all agree that the principal of granting exemptions is wrong, though there may be some cases in which it is good business to grant a fixed assessment for a number of years in order to secure the location of some large concern in our city. I noticed in a newspaper report of an address which was delivered before you some weeks ago, that when a manufacturing concern had secured a fixed assessment, that they might go ahead and add further additions, without any increase in their assessment. This is hardly correct. Suppose a manufacturer comes to the city with a proposal that in return for a fixed assessment of say $50,000 for ten years he will put up buildings costing $100,000. If the city agrees to his terms they surely cannot have anything to complain of if he spends more on buildings than he originally agreed to spend.

I would like to point out to you that this $50,000 does not affect the assessment on the plant for school and local improvement taxes, which, according to the law have to be assessed at actual value the same as any other property.

A glance at the assessment rolls will show that the total assessment of factories, including business and sites, was in 1915-16, $2,116,850; 1925-26, $5,585,065; gain in 10 years of $3,468,215.

In conclusion gentlemen, as we are all stockholders in the Corporation, it is to our interest to see that all assessments are made fairly and equitably, for this reason, when you hear of inequalities in the assessment, call at the assessment office and compare assessments for yourselves. The books are always open for inspection. Get the Assessor's point of view, he is not always right, but he is always glad to be shown where he has made a mistake that he may rectify it.

Headache and Tired Feeling Disappeared

So Says Ontario Lady After Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. M. E. Hall Gives Her Experience With Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Huntsville, Ont., Feb. 5.—(Special).—"Dodd's Kidney Pills relieved my kidney trouble in very short time and I didn't take as many as was marked for a dose on the box. They made me feel better all over. I could eat better, sleep well, didn't have headache or that tired, dull feeling. I highly prize them."

This statement comes from Mrs. M. E. Hall, a well known and highly respected resident of this place.

Dodd's Kidney Pills strengthen the kidneys and put them in good order to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. With pure blood there is good health all over the body.

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from druggists everywhere, or The Dodds Medicine Co., Ltd., Toronto.

ROBBERS STEAL MUCH ALCOHOL

Gang of Twenty Holds Up Freight Train Near Peoria.

LOOT WORTH $10,000.

PEORIA, Feb. 6. — (Canadian Press).—A band of twenty robbers early yesterday sacked a small town railroad office near here, seizing equipment which they later used to hold up and rob a Rock Island freight train from which they took about $10,000 worth of alcohol.

Cutting the air hose on seventy cars, the freight train robbers held the crew prisoners while their mates carted the barrels of alcohol away to trucks.

TRADE REPRESENTATIVES

Australian Government is Considering Sending Man to Canada.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—Premier Stanley M. Bruce announced in the House of Representatives yesterday that efforts were being made by the Government to arrange with the dried fruits industry and other business interests for the appointment of a trade representative in Canada.

The Government, he added, was also considering making similar appointments in South Africa and elsewhere.

Drawing instruments for use on blackboards have been invented that are held in place by suction cups that allow them to be moved as needed.

EXAMINER EXTRA ISSUED 1871 CHALLENGES 'SMALLEST PAPER'

Fall of Paris Told in Eleven Words on January 30

ONLY 6 BY 3

Cobourg's Smallest Was 7 Inches by 5, Issued Twenty Years Later.

"Smallest newspaper found in Cobourg," says a heading in the Port Hope Times, and the story goes on to elaborate the publication in 1890 of "The Nut Shell."

This "smallest newspaper," however, was a monster compared with the one put out by the Examiner twenty years earlier. And the Examiner's issue was no freak produced for private circulation, but a regular "extra," announcing the fall of Paris in the Franco-Prussian war. The Cobourg "smallest paper" measured seven inches by five; the Examiner extra measures six inches by three.

Here is a facsimile:

"EXAMINER" EXTRA

Paris Surrendered

Examiner Office,

Peterboro, Jan. 30, 1871.

By Special Telegram this morning we learn that Paris has surrendered.

There was not another word printed on the sheet.

Other "Extras."

Other extras were issued by the Examiner throughout the campaign, but they measured between seven and nine inches in depth by five inches wide. The message announcing the fall of Paris—a story that would today be blazoned in the largest type across page one—was compressed into eleven words. And it told the news of the fall of an empire and of the birth of a hatred that blazed again in 1914 and is today—fifty-five years later—hardly quenched.

Eleven words—eighteen square inches of paper—the smallest paper.

SAILS BLOWN OUT.

British Schooner Towed To Boston.

CHATHAM, Mass., Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—The British three-masted schooner Alfred Ock Hedley, Wilmington, N.C., for Halifax, was picked up by the coastguard cutter Red Wing off this port late Friday and taken in tow for Boston. The schooner was anchored when found, but had blown out her sails and was helpless. The Red Wing had been despatched from her base at Provincetown to aid the drifting Pollock Rip Lightship.

The contest will close June 30, 1926, after which the judges will award the prizes. Entries should be forwarded promptly.

One night Willie Pinkerton and his family were enjoying a wonderful concert over the radio from station K.A.L.E. when all of a sudden the concert stopped and a mysterious code message came out of the loud speaker. Nobody knew what it meant. But Willie was quick enough to jot it down, and as he had been studying secret codes as used by International Secret Service Agents he soon knew what the mysterious message meant. Willie Pinkerton managed to decipher it. Can you?

HOW HE DECIPHERED IT

His Pa and Ma wanted to know what the message meant but Willie wouldn't tell them. He told them how he worked it out to see if they could do it too. He told them the message contained 11 words, each little group of letters representing a word. Start by writing the alphabet down from A to Z and number each letter beginning at Z first as number 1, Y2, X3, W4, and so on. Then change the letters of the mysterious message into numbers by finding which number each letter represents. Then you must write down another alphabet numbering it the right way A number 1, B2, C3, D4, and so on. Change the numbers back into letters by finding the letter corresponding to that number. In order to help them he told them the first word was "It". Decipher the complete message if you can and send your answer right away to compete for the big prizes.

200 POINTS WINS FIRST PRIZE

The magnificent and valuable prizes in this contest will be awarded according to the number of points gained by each entry. The entry gaining 200 points wins first prize. (See rules). Be neat and careful. Comply with the rules and be sure of a prize.

This is a simple and easily fulfilled favor, involving little time, and need not cost you a cent of money, and will qualify your entry to stand for the highest prizes. SPLENDID DEBATE AT CENTREVILLE

U.F.Y.P.O. Club Put On Fine Entertainment at Meeting.

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 6.— On Wednesday evening the South Monaghan Young Peoples' Club held its fortnightly meeting in the form of a special open meeting.

The club hall at Centreville was almost filled with an audience composed of both old and young, but all were young again in spirit.

The chief feature of the program was a debate, "Resolved that invention has done more for the development of the world than has legislation. The affirmative was upheld by William Belch and Ernest Anderson, while the negative was taken by George Morrison and Harry Campbell.

The Young Peoples' Club challenges the senior U.F.O. club to a debate, and the affirmative was taken by the senior club, while the junior club debated the negative.

It was quite decided by those who listened to the debate, that it was one of the best, and most thoroughly discussed subjects that had been held in the local church clubs for some time.

The judges who were Miss Weir, acting as judge for the affirmative, Mr. McClain, acting as judge for the negative, and Mr. Harper as neutral judge, gave the decision in favor of the negative. The neutral judge sttaed, that although both sides of the story had been ably and keenly contested, still the decision was in the favor of legislation.

The remainder of the programme which was also immensely enjoyed by all present, consisted of choruses by the choral society, readings by Miss Helen Staples, violin solos by Wilfred Johnston, and piano duets by Misses Evelyn and Grace Johnston.

During the programme the results of the membership campaign were given out by the leaders of the boys and girls groups. Miss Margaret Greer, leader of the girls group read the names of the members that the girls had succeeded in obtaining, and when the number was summed up it was found that the girls' list contained forty-four names and when the leader of the boys' group who was the president, Roy Rutherford, read the boys list it proved to contain forty-five names. The boys won in the campaign by one member, but even that one member was sufficient to relieve the boys of the burden of having to prepare and put on a banquet for the entire club. Had the boys lost, however, they were prepared to put on an up-to-date banquet without any assistance from the ladies, but now that the ladies are putting on the feast on Monday, Feb. 15th, the boys are preparing the entertainment part of the programme.

After the singing of several familar songs community singing, the critics report from Mr. Dodds brought the interesting programme to a finish.

The Womens Missionary Society of the Centreville Presbyterian church, drove in three sleigh-loads to the home of Mrs. Way Byers on Wednesday afternoon, and held a very interesting meeting. About forty of the ladies of the church were present, and during the afternoon a splendid luncheon was served.

Those who took sleigh-loads were Messrs. J. Hutchison, H. Tate and D. Dodds.

WARSAW LADIES STUDY MILLINERY

Large Attendance at Classes Held By Women's Institute.

WARSAW, Feb. 6.—The millinery class has twnety-four pupils. The girls and women are much interested in their work. Mrs. Hawkey seems to understand how to get a number of girls working. She shows them carefully how to do their work and has each do her own work. No two hats are alike. The type of face and figure is studied.

There are so many boys attending regularly. Mr. Salger hopes for more. A good number of farmers, as well as farmers' wives turned out Wednesday to hear Mr. Sherrit of Brighton, who is a commercial gardener, give his talks on orcharding, small fruit growing, and vegetable growing. Among other things he advised starting onions in the house and transplanting when about two inches high. Also advised starting melons, and such fruit, and transplantings, but they must be handled very carefully. It is best to plant in a strawberry box and when planting out cut down sides of box and slide off. Tomatoes should not have too ruch ground.

Some day the girls are supposed to attend the lectures in the hall. And their ten lessons of two and one half hours are worked in other days.

Cancer Threatens Women's Tongues—Smoking Is Cause

LEEDS, England, Feb. 6. (Canadian Press).—Sir Birkely Moynihan, a well-known surgeon of Leeds, addressing the Leeds Luncheon Club, referred to the increase of cancer on the tongue. This, he said, was caused chiefly by smoking, and added: "At the present time women are almost exempt from cancer of the tongue, but I think they have a future in that direction, in view of the rapid spread of the smoking habit among girls, their mothers and aunts."

Y.P.L. MEETING.

Good Programme Was Enjoyed By Marmora League.

MARMORA, Feb. 6.—Another splendid programme was enjoyed at the Young Peoples' League on Wednesday evening. The Christian Fellowship Department was in charge. The young ladies of the department rendered very capably the hymn "I Gave Myself For Thee." Miss Ila Bonter gave as a reading "When the storm breaks."

The address by the Rev. F. J. Horwood on "The ideal young man and young woman" was followed very closely by those present. The president announced a skating party next Wednesday following which members will adjourn to the home of Mrs. O. R. Jones for a social hour.

Mr. F. Johnston spent Tuesday in Toronto.

The local ice harvest is now on. Everitt McGraw is drawing loads daily to Deloro.

BABY'S WELFARE DURING FEBRUARY

Should Be Most Carefully Guarded By All Mothers.

February is one of the hardest months of the year on little ones. It is a month of cold, blustery days that prevent the mother taking her baby out for the fresh air so necessary to its welfare. Baby is consequently confined to the home. More often than not the rooms are overheated and badly ventilated and the little one catches cold or grippe. What is needed to keep the baby well is a gentle laxative that will regulate the stomach and bowels; banish constipation and indigestion and in this way will either prevent or break up colds and grippe. Such a laxative is found in Baby's Own Tablets. They are mild but thorough in action; are absolutely safe and they are guaranteed to contain neither opiates or other harmful drugs. They never fail to be of benefit to little ones and may be given to either the newborn babe or the growing child.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all dealers in medicine or may be had by mail, post paid, at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

KINGSTON PEOPLE MUST CLEAN WALKS

Police Had Merchant in Court For Failure To Obey Law.

KINGSTON, Feb. 6 (Special).—The police have started a crusade here against people who neglect to clear the snow off their sidewalks. In the police court on Thursday, a local merchant was fined $2 and costs for not clearing off his walk. There have been a great many complaints received about the condition of walks all over the city, and the police have decided to get after the offenders with a big stick.

MUTUAL LIFE HAD OGOD YEAR

Surplus Earnings Reached Large Sum—Much New Business.

FEW LAPSES

Solid and very substantial progress during 1925 is revealed in the 56th annual statement of the Mutual Life of Canada. The unbroken and ever-increasing prosperity of this Company is naturally gratifying to its policyholders who, under the principle of mutuality, receive back the entire net profits.

The previous high record for surplus earnings—achieved on the 1924 operations—was surpassed in 1925, with a total of $3,796,082.41, an increase of $296,724.41 over the previous year's surplus. The company is thus in a position to pay the policy-holders who constitute it the same liberal scale of dividends in 1026 as heretofore, while increasing the free surplus available for contingencies by $607,081 91.

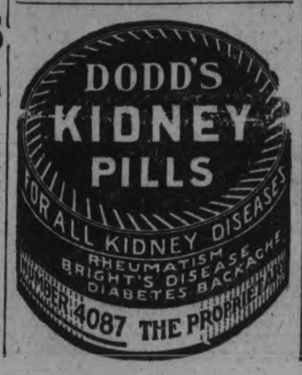
Business has more than doubled during the last seven years of the Mutual Life's history. The net increase in 1925 was a healthy one, $26,799,419. The total new issue last year was $45,573,577, an increase of $2,249,280 over the 1924 volume of new assurances. The total business now in force is $322,520,285.

The substantial increase in 1025 was achieved very economically, the expense ratio being reduced from 15.50% to 15.23%. The mortality rate was again very favorable, 37.05%. Another effective factor in rolling up an increased surplus of earnings for distribution to the policyholders was the slightly increased average interest rate on the Company's invested funds. Although the trend in bond prices was toward higher figures (and lower yields), and the rates of interest on mortgage loans had a lower tendency, the Mutual Life more than maintained its 1924 rate, the 1925 average being 6.42 per cent.

A still further reduction in the lapse ratio is shown in the 1025 statement. Of the business written in 1923, the lapse in 1924 was 10.13%, whereas of 1924 business only 8.64% lapsed in 1025 — an exceedingly favorable result.

Danced Charleston 22 Hours To Get Money For Family

NEW YORK, Feb. 6. (United Press)—John Gioia, out of work for three months, hoped to make enough to take his baby out of a foundling institution in a Charleston contest. For 22 hours Giooia danced and danced withut stopping until he was white faced and trembling. He won. The prize came to just $9 and a silver loving cup. Today Gioia is still tramping the streets looking for work and his baby is still in the charity hospital. His wife and other child, two years old, got enough fuel with the $9 to keep them warm for a day or two.



The YELLOW STUB by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, middle-aged business man, expected home by his family to celebrate his son, JIMMY'S 27th birthday, is found dead by police in a cheap hotel. The room is filled with gas. There is a welt on the back of his head.

The only clews are a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket from the Paragon Theater in Chicago.

Jimmy's sister, JANET, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN after the murder and Jimmy goes to Chicago with DETECTIVE MOONEY, where they trace the ticket stub to a THOMAS FOGARTY.

Jimmy saves MARY LOWELL, a Chicago girl, from the attentions of two mashers. The next night he and Mooney lay a trap for FOGARTY. They follow him to his hotel room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

"Come," a deep bass voice spoke from the room.

Mooney turned the knob and slipped quietly into the room with Rand at his heels. They closed the door behind them and stood facing Fogarty.

He was sitting on the bed, tearing a letter from its envelope, and did not look up at once, obviously thinking a bell boy had come.

The utter silence in the room made him turn his head. He saw Mooney and Jimmy. The letter dropped from his grasp. He jumped to his feet "Who the hell are you?" he demanded.

"Sit down Fogarty." Mooney strode into the middle of the room and displayed his badge. "Nobody's going to start any rough stuff as long as you behave yourself. We want to ask you a few questions."

"You fresh dick, I'll have you busted for this!" The veins in Fogarty's fat neck swelled. His face turned several shades redder.

"All right," answered Mooney, "but wait till I get through. In the first place, Mr. Fogarty, did you ever hear of Henry Rand?" The little detective was watching Fogarty closely.

"Never heard of him."

"Henry Rand of Grafton?" pursued Mooney, his eyes still on the other's face.

"No." Fogarty shook his head. "What's the game?" he asked angrily.

"Just this, Mr. Fogarty. A man by the name of Henry Rand—this man's father here," indicating Jimmy—"was killed in a hotel in Grafton last Wednesday. The room was engaged Tuesday night by a man who gave the name of H. A. Jones of New York. That man, by the way, had red hair," he said.

"What's this, a frame up?" Fogarty gave a contemptuous laugh. "You'll have to come closer than that."

"I'm not through yet," continued Mooney. "In the room where the murder was committed they found a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a theater ticket. Here's the ticket, Fogarty." He extracted the stub from his wallet and tossed it on the chair in front of Fogarty. "See if you recognize it."

Jimmy watched the big man intently as he picked up the yellow ticket stub and examined it. "By God!" Fogarty exclaimed, "it's my ticket, all right."

In just that fleeting instant Jimmy told himself that his search was to go beyond Fogarty. This man, he decided, was not the murderer of his father. But undoubtedly he held the key . . . .

Mooney smiled as he held out his hand for the stub. "Sure it's your ticket, Fogarty. And here's something else. That ticket was used last Monday night and the man who held it was in the Canfield Hotel in Grafton Tuesday night. Fogarty, you weren't in your room here Tuesday night. Where were you?"

Fogarty was sweating. He mopped his forehead with a huge handkerchief. "Tuesday night," he repeated. "I know," he exclaimed, his eyes lighting, "Tuesday night I was out playing poker with some of the boys, in the Horseshoe Club. This game didn't break up until nine in the morning. I stopped to get something to eat and then came back here and went to bed."

"We'll check that story right now," said Mooney. "Rand, look in the phone book for the Horseshoe Club and give them a ring. Who was with you?" he asked Fogarty.

"Tell him to ask for Alec Blaine. He lives at the club. If he isn't there one of the porters can tell you."

"Try to get hold of Blaine." Mooney nodded to Jimmy, who was at the phone.

Jimmy had got his number. "I'd like to speak to Mr. Alec Blaine, please, if he's there." He turned to Mooney. "Here's there. They're ringing his room."

"Here, let me talk to him." Mooney picked up the receiver. "Hello. Hello—Mr. Blaine? This is Phil Mooney talking—a friend of Tom Fogarty's. Tom's in a little trouble. I want to know from you when was the last time you saw him. You did, eh? What night? . . . Oh yeah. When did the game break up? . . . What am I drivin' at? Ask Tom, he'll tell you."

He hung up the receiver. "Your story's good as far as it goes, Fogarty, although it'll take a lot more checking than that. Now suppose you explain how that ticket got in that room."

There was a knock at the door. "Come," called Fogarty. A bell boy deposited a tray bearing ginger ale and cracked ice and departed.

Fogarty opened a bureau drawer and pulled out a bottle. "Have a drink, Mr.—say what's your name, anyway?"

"Mooney," answered the detective. "No, I don't drink."

"Mr. Rand?" Fogarty turned to Jimmy, with a gesture of the hands toward the bottle.

"No thanks, not just now."

Fogarty poured himself a stiff drink, mixing it with ginger ale and ice.

"Mooney," he said, "I can't tell you how that ticket got in the room, because I didn't go to the theater that night. It might sound like a funny alibi to you, but I swear I gave that ticket away Monday afternoon."

He paused. "All right," snapped Mooney, "who did you give it to?"

"Mooney, I gave that ticket to a woman."

To Jimmy, who was listening intently, Fogarty's words were like a blow in the face.

"No, Fogarty," he cried. "It couldn't have been a woman that did this!"

"Wait a minute, Rand," Mooney ordered. "Lets hear this thing through." He opened the wallet. "This handkerchief," he said, "fits in some place. . . . Go ahead, Fogarty."

Fogarty emptied his glass, his hand a trifle unsteady. "Here's all I know about it, Mooney," he continued. "Monday afternoon I happened to be passing the Paragon Theater and I went in and got my ticket for the show that night. Ordinarily I call for it in the evening just before the show starts, unless I'm ordering an extra seat.

"But I went in and got the ticket and looked around at the billboards in the lobby. It was a pretty good show, so they said—a musical comedy. It was a sellout.

"Well, I came back to the hotel and something turned up—I'll tell you about it later—that made it impossible for me to go to the show. I was thinking of turning in the ticket to the hotel porter when I met this woman. Olga Maynard's her name. I got to know her when she was singing in a cabaret in town here. I knew she was down on her luck—she'd lost a couple of cabaret jobs for some reason or other—and I asked her if she could use the ticket.

"She's a good singer herself, and nuts about the stage. . . . Got ambitions, I guess. Anyway, she took the ticket. That's the last I saw of her—and of the ticket, too, until you just showed it to me."

"How well do you know this Maynard woman?" asked Mooney.

"I've been out with her on a couple of parties. Not very well, I guess. I met her in a cabaret."

"Where is she working now?"

"She isn't working. At least she wasn't when I talked with her Monday."

"What's the matter with her that she can't hold a job? You say she's a good singer."

"I don't know, Mooney. Maybe they got something on her. Maybe it's just tough breaks, I don't know."

"Is she crooked?" asked Mooney. 'You know what I mean, Fogarty. Is she a gold digger?"

I can't tell you that, either. Personally, I'd always thought she was a pretty square shooter. But she might have got mixed up in some kind of scrape or other. I'd be willing to bank on her myself."

Fogarty pulled a little black leather book from his pocket. He thumbed its pages and then held it open to the detective.

Here's her phone number and her address," he said. He shifted uncomfortably on the bed.

Mooney turned to Jimmy. We'll get a cab and go up there, Rand. We won't call her up." He picked up the handkerchief, which lay on the chair with the stub. To Fogarty he said, Can you tell me whether this is the Maynard woman's handkerchief?"

Fogarty shook his head.

Did she use this kind of perfume?" Mooney persisted.

Couldn't tell you, Mooney." Fogarty barely glanced at the handkerchief . . . He stared out of the window.

Fogarty," Mooney's voice was sharp, like the crack of a whip, you're holding back something! Out with it!"

Wait a minute, Mooney." It was Jimmy. Fogarty, did she say anything to you about going out of town?"

Fogarty did not answer. He was staring out of the window, his brows knit in a frown.

Come on, out with it, Fogarty!" snapped Mooney. You're not out of the woods yet yourself."

Fogarty turned to face him. Yes, she did," he said. She said she was going to Grafton the next day to look for a job."

HER OWN WAY

Whenever a man and a maid are thrown together, natural selection will have its way.

How to make natural selection something more than chance choice is something the younger generation seems to be asking. In other words, the girl of today does not want a blind god to regulate her life. She insists that she shall make "Her Own Way" and carve out her own destiny.

Julia Dean did that. She renounced home and friends in favor of emancipation from hide-bound traditions. Her problems are the same problems of that vast army of girls who work.

"Her Own Way" starts in Monday's Examiner on the Women's Page. Read how Julia Dear made out in the great game of life—a game that never ends, but goes on from day to day with a constant change of rules.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

BLUE WOOL CREPE FROCK.

"I've never seen anything to equal the flair for bright colors in the middle of Winter," Pam remarked today.

She was being fitted in a lovely bright colored frock by Madame, and I was seated nearby looking on.

"That's because the Southern season started so early this year," Madame informed her.

"You mean people saw the lovely bright colors and simply couldn't withstand them?" I queried.

"That's just it," Madame replied. "All those lovely brilliant colors for the South were shown alongside of dark Winter things, and people simply couldn't resist the gay colors, even though they were staying in climes far removed from the Southern resorts."

"That explains this robin's egg blue for wear in New York," Pam said, looking down at the vividly colored frock she had on.

The dress was the kind I like so much for the average young girl. It had fulness achieved by pleats at the sides and there was a smart jabot at the front, to add the feminine touch.

"Don't you think these flat nickel buttons were an inspiration on this particular frock?" Madame asked.

I agreed with her enthusiastically, while I watched her fit the tiny fold of white crepe that turned down about the narrow upstanding collar of the simple frock.

Just then the milliner arrived with a ducky little felt hat, just the shade of the frock.

She pulled it down close above Pam's eyes, and her eyes immediately took on the color of the two blues. Sometimes Pam's eyes look gray and sometimes they look blue, it all depends on what she is wearing. I believe she looks prettiest when she wears blue.

"That's lovely," I commented. "I've counted so many light blue and rose and yellow felt hats, worn on the Avenue with dark fur coats."

This Afternoon Frock Is of Bright Blue Crepe with Nickel Buttons.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Apples, cereal cooked with dates, thin cream, raised buckwheat pancakes, maple syrup, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Scalloped codfish, corn bread, carrot salad, canned peaches, cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Broiled halibut steak, baked macaroni and tomatoes, beet salad, raisin cream pudding, bran bread, milk, coffee.

No potatoes are suggested in this dinner menu, macaroni supplying the necessary starch and tomatoes the vitamins and mineral salts. Too often we think of a potato substitute as being a food merely rich in starch and forget to take care of the mineral salts and other properties when planning the dish to be used in place of the valuable tuber.

Scalloped Codfish.

One pound salt codfish, 4 good-sized potatoes, 2 tablespoons olive or cooking oil, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 2 cups canned tomatoes, paprika.

Cover fish with cold water and let stand one hour. Drain and rinse well in fresh water. Cover with cold water and let stand over night. Drain and divide into four parts. Heat oil in casserole, add minced onion and cook five minutes without letting onion brown. Remove casserole from fire and add one-fourth of the fish. Cover with a potato pared and cut in very thin slices. Add 1-4 the tomatoes. Continue layer for layer until all is used. The last layer will be of tomatoes. If the tomatoes are not very juicy add 1-4 cup of water. Sprinkle with paprika and cover casserole. Bake one and one-half hours in a moderate oven.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

Style Tendencies

(Written for the United Press).

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (United Press).—Circular hemlines have been so popular this year that it is presumed they will carry over through the summer. But instead of the long-waisted bodice with the set-on flaring flounce, designers are of the opinion that more Princess lines with semi-fitted waist effects and with the flare beginning in circular movement from the hips, will be the vogue. In this case the flare is in one with the bodice portion and not a set-on piece of material.

Green and bois de rose shades will retain their popularity throughout the spring season. Black, however, and some navy blues will predominate for the early spring frocks which will precede colors. Chartreuse for dressy and evening wear is predicted.

The latest position for the artificial spray of flowers is on the coat-cuff. A brown crepe frock also uses it's cuff to carry a huge orange chrysanthemum. Bunches of violets are fastened to gray squirrel cuffs and other novel cuff corsages are making their appearance.

For the young Miss, plaid coats with cape attachments are offered as a spring suggestion. The cape portion may be lined in vivid red or green to correspond with the main tone in the plaid mixture. Most capes extend to the wrist and dip slightly at the rear.

There is no reason to believe that skirts will grow longer as spring advances since most of the recent spring offerings in coats, suits and frocks have very short skirts.

Handkerchief, hosiery, hat and frock usually match in color if the frock is paste-edged. Contrasts are not as popular as they formerly were unless one wishes to enliven a dark color by using accessories of high shades.

WOMEN HAVE NOT SUFFICIENT BRAINS TO COMPETE WITH MEN SAYS MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK

"Men Should Have Absolute Authority in the Home."

CHILDREN—CAREER.

Famous Contralto Says She Sang Better With Every Child.

(By NEA Service.)

"Women should stop trying to compete with men in public life," declares Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, celebrated contralto. "They have not the brains for it."

Madame's creed includes several other points equally reactionary:

First.—The man should have absolute authority in the home.

Second.—Wives should not work outside the home if their husbands can support them.

Third.—The mother should function as teacher of the children and intermediary between the father and the child.

Fourth.—Home-making should be the final goal of every woman, whether she is talented in other directions or not.

Madame Schumann-Heink, who is herself the mother of seven children, is just beginning the fiftieth year of a highly successful career on the concert and opera stages.

Children Her Career.

"My career?" she says. "My children are my career. I could not sing until I had known maternity. With each child, my voice improved, and I learned better how to sing to the hearts of my audiences, as my own emotional life expanded.

"A woman without children is only half a woman. And a woman who lets her children be reared by servants is not only shirking her most sacred duty, but missing her greatest happiness."

Madame Schumann-Heink believes that, even setting aside the question of children, women have no place in public affairs.

"The feminine mind is unsuited for judicial posts, for jury service, for office holding of any kind. Women cannot judge by sheer intellect. They are always emotionally biased.

"For example, a woman defendant, if she is pretty or young, has not a chance of justice if the jury includes an old maid. Old maids are often full of poison for every luckier member of their sex.

"In the same way, a woman juror is biased in favor of a man defendant if he is attractive. Women cannot get away from emotion long enough to function on the bench or in the jury box."

Children With Her.

For the first time in many years, all of Madame Schumann-Heink's five living children are in America. Her daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Greif, wfie of a Leipsic physician, arrived a few days ago from Germany to visit her mother before going on to California to meet her son.

"Women on this continent live too soft lives," declared the singer. "When a baby comes, in this country, hospital bills and nurses' salaries make the event a catastrophe.

"In the old country, maternity is regarded as a natural phenomenon and not a cataclysm. The cost of babies is not prohibitive there."

The American woman, when she does forego a career, is the best mother in the world, Madame believes. But she has not so much to say of the American wife.

"When the authority of the father declines, family life degenerates and soon the welfare of the nation is affected."

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

J. A. M.—You will attain your highest happiness in married life, that is if you choose wisely, preferably someone born in June, July, December or January, and learn to control certain faults that will mar your life. Do not be so sensitive to imagined slights, do not criticize others, but rather yourself, be more careful of the feelings of those about you and less tender of your own, forget jealous suspicions and do not be so blunt in your speech at times. You have remarkable will power, and should exert it to your own betterment. You are skilful in the use of your hands, are tactful, when it pleases you to be so, but should not put things off and should not give so much attention to praise and flattery. Scolding and nagging will not help you much either. You will be more successful when connected with big schemes and will do better in a position where you are not subordinate to others. If you will learn to control your quick temper, scolding propensity and tendency to sarcasm, you will have a very successful life. Change and uncertainty also tend at times to mar your days. Cultivate a permanent and decisive outlook.

You were born on Monday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are orange and scarlet.

M. D. Se.—You have a strong personality, ably fitted to cope with all the circumstances of daily life. Integrity and virtue are among your qualities, and you have a love of others, both universal and personal. You should not, however, try to stand alone, but seek companionship in endeavor of any sort. You are fearless and kind, when not irritated, and often permit your kindness of heart to assume the burdens of others. Do not pay too much attention to showy people and things, and learn to look for real worth above all else. You will be happiest and most successful when your spiritual nature is developed to its capacity, and when you have tried to curb a capricious element in your nature which will prove a barrier to a happy marriage. Avoid flirtations. And tell the man you marry that you do not like housework, as the mate would make a servant of you will not be happy—neither will you. May and July are your most favorable months in which to begin important undertakings and Friday is your lucky day.

You were born on Monday. The day you ask about its past. Your colors are red and brown.

K. E. A.—You will find your highest happiness in life in taking care of others; marry while you are quite young, preferably with someone born in April, August or November, and strive to make a good home for your husband. You will not reach success by standing alone, as association with others in any enterprise is the thing for you. Develop your talent along one line, for it is the specialist who succeeds. Your specialty is taking care of others. Do not try to shirk your destiny. You are quite individualiastic and are inclined always to like your own way of doing things. Do not lose your temper when those around you appear to be confused at your quick methods. The fault is partly your own. Cultivate patience and relax a certain amount at frequent intervals. Do not always rush things through to a conclusion Have a few friends, and do not offend that few. Overlook their minor faults. You were not born to set the world aright. You have a very high regard for truth, but must remember that others are not always actuated by the same ideas along this line as you. Do not worry—do not give way to jealousy or anger—maintain at all times your own individuality, but see that it is worthy of your own respect and that of others.

Yes, you were born on Wednesday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are scarlet and heliotrope.

ROSE FAY—Yours is a mild, attractive personality. You life should flow along quite evenly, if you take care in your choice of a husband. You were born to make an ideal wife and a real home-maker, in every sense of the word, and you will find happiness in bringing service to others about you—the best type of service, inspired by love. Care of others and the resonsibilities that come with this service, will always be your destiny. You have a certain changeable quality at times that will not make for happiness, unless you try to over come it and you are apt too to be jealous and to work too hard to the detriment of your health. Cultivate patience and spend some portion of every day in quiet meditation. You like harmony and are well fitted to impart it to you surroundings and companions, but firmness is necessary to curb that fickle temperament that disturbs you at times. Marry a man who was born in December.

Your colors are orange and gray. You were born on Friday.

E. G. H.—You have a certain amount of personal attraction that makes friends for you, but you do do not possess much depth of character. Your vacillating habits cause you to lose many opportunities through this changefulness. You will do best when you associate yourself with others and do not attempt to stand alone. "In union there is strength." You have the type of nature which is said to be the strongest and also the weakest in the world, endowed with great possibilities, but not always capable of using them properly. You like happiness and pleasure, but are too often sensitive for your own good. You like to have your own way and are often impressed by appearances and high-sounding titles. You will find that perfect honesty and truthfulness are necessary to the formation of a strong character. Learn self-reliance and study how to concentrate. Grasp opportunity by the forelock and strive for independence of all outside influences.

You were born on Saturday. The day you ask is past. Your color is pink.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 5—A QUEER TOLL GATE.

"Where does Blue Whiskers live?" Nancy went to ask, but all her poor twisted tongue could say was, "Eeny, meeny, miny, mo!"

Jupe, however, did not laugh. "I understand you," said the kangaroo kindly. "You wish to ask about Blue Whiskers' castle. It's too bad you children cannot talk, but if we go about it right, your troubles will soon be over. Blue Whiskers himself is a wizard who can do anythin. If you had only come in by the wicket gate, everything would have been different."

Nick tried to say, "But we didn't know anything about the wicket gate. Our magic green shoes just brought us here—pop!"

But all he could say was, "All around the market place the monkey chased the weasel—that's the way the money goes—pop! goes the weasel."

But again Jupe understood. However, this time he didn't reply, but led the way through a woods toward a high hill, the Twins following on their skates.

"The next place we have to pass on the way to Blue Whiskers' castle," said he, "is the toll-gate. It's a queer toll-gate, but don't be astonished. Nothing will hurt you."

Suddenly the Twins saw a large blue bat sitting on a stone in the middle of the road. It was quite a large bat, about the size of a churn, and his ears looked like the ears of a very large and curious rabbit. His wings were folded and he sat very still, not moving a muscle except that his eyes blinked like Fourth-of-July sparklers. By that you know that he was not only awake, but thinking rapidly.

"Toll, please!" he said with two snaps of his jaws.

"How much is it today?" asked Jupe.

"As no travelers have passed since two days before yesterday, I am very hungry," said the bat. "The toll today is one pint of flies, one pint of lady-bugs and six ounces of buzzers!"

The Twins wondered what buzzers were but they were soon to know.

"Dear, dear!" muttered the kangaroo. "Things are getting more expensive every day. Even toll-gates! Couldn't you reduce it a little? I've got the mosquitoes all right, and the flies, but lady-bugs are scarce this year."

"I've taken quite a liking to lady-bugs," said the long-eared bat, "and if I can't have them you can't pass."

So saying he spread out his large wings on either side of him until the road was completely covered.

Suddenly Jupe had an idea. "I know of a new kind of bug," he said. "I know where there's a whole bag full. It's hanging on a tree and I can lift it down with my tail."

Away he bounded and came back soon with a round thing that looked like a gray paper bag turned upside down.

"Here you are," said he laying the bag down in front of the bat's nose.

"Curious! Curious!" said the bat. "I never had bugs served up to me in a bag before."

At that a big wasp crawled slowly out of the hole in the gray paper bag.

And before you could say "boo" he had jumped unto the bat's nose and stung him.

"Ouch!" shrieked the bat, flapping his wings and flying away.

"Come along," said Jupe. "The toll-gate's gone. That's what happens to people who get too greedy."

RICHES.

I once knew a man who had plenty of dough. In fact, he was rich as they make 'em. Whatever he wanted, wherever he'd go, of costliest things, he would take 'em.

Why, money, to him, was a plaything at best. He virtually threw it away. His purchases always were made from the best, and he ever was ready to pay.

The price of a thing didn't mean much to him, whenever 'twas something he wanted. He'd rush in a store full of vigor and vim an' he'd purchase haphazard, undaunted.

A lot of folks envy this type of a man, but I can't say that I do, so much. Because of his riches, he never will know that he's missing one wonderful touch.

To have and to hold of the beautiful things is nice, but when all's said and done, it's wishing and wanting—then getting, that bring a fellow a whole lot of fun.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DAVID CHATS WITH MR. WOLVERINE..

David stepped up closer to the iron bars and looked in at the animal curled up in the corner.

"Looks like a bear!" he exclaimed out loud. "They must have put him in the wrong cage. Wolverine don't spell bear!"

"Right that time," laughed a merry voice, and Happy Giggles, the wee elfin from Makebelieve Land, hopped up beside David. "Well, you do look like a bear cub, all right, Mr. Wolverine. Come over and meet little David Dorn."

The clumsy animal slowly got up and ambled to the side of the fence nearest David and Happy Giggles. His fur coat was a handsome one, of a rich dark-brown color, with two broad bands of a lighter yellowish brown along the sides. He walked with his head and great bushy tail down. It made him look so funny, David laughed.

"That's all right, David; laugh if you want to," chuckled Mr. Wolverine. "I know I'm not good looking; but I'm just about as strong as any of my neighbors. Well, Happy Giggles, how's the world?"

"Fine and dandy," replied Happy Giggles. "Are you any happier than you were? You see, Mr. Wolverine has just joined the Zoo."

"I hope you'll like it and stay with us," said David. "I'm quite sure there are a good many boys and girls that have never seen an animal like you. Where did you come from Mr. Wolverine?"

"From the Far North," replied the animal. "The land of ice and snow. At first when they put me in here I resented my confinement.

"You Look Like a Bear Cub."

ow I love it. I'm only sorry all he Wolverines in the world aren't in here. would you believe me, David, when I tell you, my relatives are all robbers? We destroy for the love of killing, not always because we're hungry. That desire has left me since I came here, glad to say."

"Not only that," said Happy Giggles, turning to David, "but they steal anything they see that pleases them."

"Happy Giggles is right," chuckled Mr. Wolverine. "Many a time I've followed a hunter and eaten the animal caught in his trap. Then if the hunter shoots an animal and leaves it, I get it and hide it from him. That is, I used to do that back home."

"One reason you're worth more in the Zoo than running around loose," laughed Happy Giggles. "Mr. Wolverine could destroy more animals than any of his friends. I'm glad you are happy in here."

"So am I," chuckled Mr. Wolverine. "Glad to have met you, David, come and see me again," and Mr. Wolverine trotted away to his home under the rocks.

David and Happy Giggles waited until he had disappeared, then they ran down the path in the Zoo hunting new animals.

Why the Sphinx Asks No Questions Today

By Edwin Robert Petre.

From October till May, any year since the Pyramids were built, and the Sphinx took up its residence in Egypt, the land of the Pharaohs has been an ideal tourist resort. At this season of the year, the climate is so mild that the sunshine is never oppressive. The hotels' registers have been lost, which recorded the ancient world's globe-trotters who wintered in the region of the Nile, but among the travelers who called, and afterwards wrote their reminiscences of the trip, which were usually captioned, "So this is Egypt," and "What I saw in Pharaoh's Land for $2.00 a day," may be mentioned the famous Greek historian Herodotus (B.C. 484-424), Cambyses, King of Persia (B.C. 523), Alexander the Great, his great general Ptolemy, and Mark Antony, whom Cleopatra made immortal. When I looked at the registers the other day at Shepherd's, the Continental, Semiramis and the Mena House, most of the names and addresses of the guests had "U.S.A.", after them, a country that Tut-ank-hamen never heard of. There were St. Louis, Mo., Rochester, N.Y., Madison, Wis., several from New York City, and even a few from far-away Portland, Oregon and Los Angeles, Cal. Wouldn't Herodotus have rubbed his eyes at those names! The extent of his world was but 75 hours away, at the Pillars of Hercules, and everyone knew that the traffic officer at that corner could only utter the three words, "Ne plus ultra." What would most astonish a Rip Van Winkled traveler however, would be the luxurious dining saloons, the dances, the opera, the golf, the tennis, even if he recognized something familiar in the horse and camel races. He would remember the joys of "A Thousand and One Nights," but not even the Sphinx would be able to explain to him, how they now were all packed into one glorious night.

The last time I was in Egypt, Ziwar Pasha, the Prime minister was paying his first visit to the tomb of Tut-ank-hamen, and seeing a few of us outside as he left the tomb, who were looking disconsolate over lack of permits, he invited us all to enter. Later, he said, "When I saw all those people who had spent so much money, and traveled so far to visit this ancient land, I felt that it would be nothing less than a crime to allow them to be turned away. I consider that 200 tourists should be able to visit the tomb within the space of three hours. I should like to feel that every tourist who wants to see the tomb can see it." That is the spirit of modern Egypt and it explains why the hotel registers include names from every land under the sun. Even the permanent inhabitants seem to be the children of all nations, for on every hand one sees Arabs, Albanians, Greeks, Shereffs, Soudanese, Syrians, Jews, and Turks, some of them itinerant musicians, others fortune-tellers, white-turbaned clerics, cheek by jowl with water-carriers and vendors of fruit and sweetmeats, beggars jostling harmlessly the lazy merchants of the crowded bazaars. The thing to "do" in Egypt, is a trip up the Nile by dahabeah or by train, at least as far as Luxor or Assouan. On the old river today there are luxurious steamers speedier than the dahabeah, able to give one all the comforts of floating hotels. It is a restful way of journeying back over the ages, past pyramids, temples, tombs, the illimitable desert, mud villages and palm bordered streams. The experience compels one here, as in so many other places, to call on Byron, Europe's first great internationally-minded tourist—

"Egypt! from whose all dateless tombs arose
Forgotten Pharaohs from their long repose,
And shook within their pyrmaids to hear
A new Cambyses thundering in their ear;
While the dark shades of forty ages stood
Like startled giants by Nile's famous flood."

The Nile journey does more to repopulate the past than almost any other experience in Egypt, unless it be the journeys over the desert. In the cities the life is the life of Paris, London and New York. Street cars lurch their way along Cairo's streets, purring limousines make the unhasting camel look silly, but the Nile is still the same old magic waterway that Moses saw, the same deified flood that annually overflowed its banks to provide harvests for the world's first civilization.

In the neighborhood of ancient Thebes I was met by the daughter of Chimaera, a monstrous daughter usually nicknamed, the "Sphinx." Seated on a rock, she used to put a riddle to every Theban that passed by, and whoever was unable to answer her, was killed on the spot. How ancient and how terrible the questions of women are! The "poser" grew so difficult and the slaughter so terrible, that the Thebans were induced to proclaim that whoever should deliver the country from the young lady, should obtain the kingdom, and Jocasta for a wife. The riddle ran as follows:—"What is that which has one voice, and at least four feet, then two feet, and at last three feet and when it has most is weakest?" Oedipus explained the enigma by saying that it was a man, who, when an infant, creeps on all fours, when a man goes on two feet, and when old, uses a staff, a third foot. The monster immediately threw herself into the sea and perished. Egypt and Greece both remember her however, and she continued to mystify passers-by as she hid behind the desert-scarred face, that spoke to me but yesterday.

Of course, one should never reveal the confidences of a woman, but when she has a man's face and the body of a crouching lion, perhaps the breach of manners will be allowed. What did she say to me? It was hard to hear her sandy whispers, but her secret is out. What sages would have given their lives to know, and archeologists have searched in vain to learn is now in my possession. It was one of those beautiful Nile nights when all Egypt seems to awake. I had left behind me the babbling hum of the dusky crowds, and my camel driver and I were almost alone under the ocean of stars. Without waiting for the Sphinx to interrogate me, on the principle, that "he who gets a word in first need not care who says the last," I questioned the Sphinx. She who had riddled the centuries with questions, was so "taken aback" at the reversal of the process, that she was caught mumbling answers before she knew what she was doing. YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

There are times when breast feeding is impossible, but every baby should be given this advantage, unless the health of the mother prevents.

The Director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene, New York City Department of Health, has just made his annual report. In this he urges physicians to do all they can to promote breast feeding. His appeal is: "Give the baby a chance even though the mother may be somewhat inconvenienced for the time being."

What Dr. Blumenthal says about the discouragement of breast feeding is very important. This is his statement:

"This practice is to be deplored and should be discountenanced by obstetricians and physicians in general statistics from all over the world show that more bottle-fed babies die during the first month of life, and, in fact, during the first year of life, than do breast-fed. The proportion ranges all the way from three to one, to ten to one."

I am sure mothers would not deprive their babies of the blessings of breast feeding if they understood its importance. The milk of the mother is the natural food of the infant and is exactly suited to its needs.

In order to make cow's milk at all suitable for the baby it has to be "modified." It is not chemically or physically the same as human milk and, consequently, it must be carefully prepared to make it digestible. It is a delicate piece of work to do this correctly and each batch of feedings must be separately and accurately made or indigestion is sure to result.

The mother's milk is just as it should be. It is Nature's perfect product and upon it the child thrives and waxes strong. The prospect of normal growth and vigor is promoted by the normal manner of feeding.

No one can doubt that it requires great self-sacrifice to submit to the routine of breast feeding. The mother has to be at home at regular intervals. She must guard her own eating and choice of foods.

To me motherhood is the most wonderful thing in the world. The sacrifice of time, the physical suffering, the patient submission to the never-ending demands of the child, added to the ordinary happenings of life, make this period a sort of slavery, even though it is a voluntary and cheerful slavery.

Everybody in the household should have a part in lessening the burdens and adding to the comforts of the mother. No matter how much the others do, the great burden is hers. To give the baby the tremendous advantage of breast feeding, every other member of the family must help.

But it is worth while to take all this trouble, because the growth of the child will be increased and the chance of long life will be multiplied.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

N. R. Q.—What causes my little child two years old to sweat around his neck while sleeping.

A.—This may be due to the fact that you have too many blankets over him. Be sure to have plenty of air and ventilation while the child is sleeping.

Mrs. P. B. Q.—What causes glaucoma and what can I do for it?

A.—This requires the attention of a competent physician. Eye-drops prove beneficial in some instances but must be given by the doctor.

E. B. Q.—I am a boy of 16 and suffer from intense headaches over my right eye. They are so intense I cannot study. What would you advise?

A.—Headache may be caused by any of the following: Eye-strain, infected teeth, tonsils or sinuses, constipation, indigestion, auto-intoxication, high blood pressure, a kidney condition or catarrh. A thorough physical examination and a complete eye test will usually locate the source of the trouble.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, FEBRUARY 7 AND 8.

Sunday's horoscope emphasizes the social, literary as well as the ecclesiastical activities of the day, all of which are under propitious sway.

Those whose birthday it is are under excellent promise for the new year especially in professional affiliations and through important friendships. The financial prospects are reassuring and the personal affairs felicitous. A child born on this day may have excellent literary and artistic attainments, and these and the friendship of important persons should make for gratifying success.

Monday's astrological forecast is a contradictory one. While ultimately affairs thrive, probably through the offices of good friends, yet the start may be one of anxiety and complexities. A change of hazard may be contemplated; postpone this, but new undertakings may be taken under advisement.

Those whose birthday it is should make changes slowly but may consider new ventures, under the advisement of assured friends, when they should prosper. A child born on this day should prosper in life after setbacks and complications.

"I found a letter in a woman's handwriting in your pocket this morning," she began angrily.

"But what — where — why — I didn't know—did you open it?" he asked in confusion.

WHERE MEN WEAR STILTS AT WORK.

Gascony, a little province in the southwest of France, is a strange region full of the quaintest old customs known to man. The Gascon has always been a popular figure in French literature, but little has been said of one of his oddest customs.

The custom of wearing stilts at work is probably due to the fact that Gascony is a low-lying country, full of marsh lands. And so it is no unusual sight to find the shepherds, farmers going about their work from a height of ten feet in the air. From their high point of vantage they look down upon the prosaic world of seeming pigmies that goes on at their feet.

The stilts are strapped to their legs below the knee and the stirrup in which their feet rest is five feet above the ground. Should they grow weary of guiding their long legs about the marshy land, they may prop themselves up with a long pole which they carry about with them as a man on the ground might carry a cane. The pole has a flattened top and they sit on it as on a giant tripod.

Ordinary mortals might find it difficult to manage these elongated legs but the Gascon is accustomed to it from the days of childhood, and he does not often become tired. There is a record of a man who walked from Paris to Moscow in fifty-eight days on stilts.

Racing on stilts and performing stunts on them are among the chief sports of any holiday in Gascony. The children and their elders join in the fun. Those who do not participate in the actual performance, enjoy being spectators at the events.

The scene at one of these festivals looks like nothing so much as an old fairy tale come to life. For we have read of the magical seven league boots since we were children, but never before did they seem actually real. But here is something which bears a most startling resemblance to them. Mere men who walk about with their heads almost in the clouds as it seems to the puny beings on the ground, and can take strides of several yards, hardly seem human. They almost seem to be endowed with superhuman power.

And that is the way the famous Gascon goes about his business of tending the sheep, and cows and watching over his stall in the market place.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'E CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Easy Lessons in AUCTION BRIDGE

New Series by WYNNE FERGUSON

Author of "Ferguson on Auction Bridge"

ARTICLE No. 32

In a recent article an analysis was made of the take-out of partner's no-trump when second hand had passed. One of the points emphasized was that if the original no-trump bidder didn't like the take-out, he should bid two no-trump. Since that time the writer has received several inquiries as to the type of hand that would justify a two no-trump bid over a take-out of one no-trump by partner with a bid of two hearts or two spades. The easiest way to answer that question is by asking one. Suppose your partner bid one spade and second hand passed, with what kind of hand would you bid one no-trump? Answer that question correctly and you will know when to bid two no-trump over partner's take-out of two hearts or two spades. The object of all correct bidding is to arrive at the best bid of the combined hands; that is, the best bid of twenty-six cards, not of thirteen. For example, suppose your partner bid one spade, second hand passed and you held the following cards:

Hearts — A, Q, 4
Clubs — K, J, 10, 7
Spades — 6, 3

The correct bid is undoubtedly one no-trump. Why? Because experience has shown that when your partner bids a suit and you have less than three cards of that suit, you will have a better chance for game at some other suit or no-trump. This is one of the steps in the process of finding out the best bid of the combined hands. If you don't deny help for partner's suit bid, how can you tell him the kind of hand that you have. Learn to "mirror" your hand to your partner, that is, tell him plainly and clearly by your bidding just what kind of hand you have. For that reason, suppose you bid one no-trump with the following hand:

Hearts — A, Q, 4
Clubs — K, J, 10, 7
Spades — 6, 3

Second hand passes, your partner bids two spades and fourth hand passes. Don't you think you ought to bid two no-trump for exactly the same reason that you would bid one no-trump with that hand over a one spade bid by partner? The principles are exactly the same in each instance.

In the following hands, there is no score, you are the dealer and have bid one no-trump. Second hand has passed, your partner has bid two spades and fourth hand has passed. What would you now bid?

Hand No. 1
Hearts — Q, 7, 2
Clubs — A, K, 7, 3
Diamonds — K, 6
Spades — 10, 9, 4, 2

Hand No. 2
Hearts — Q, 10, 6, 3
Clubs — A, J, 5, 2
Diamonds — K, Q, 7
Spades — Q, 4

Hand No. 3
Hearts — J, 10, 4, 2
Clubs — K, J, 7
Diamonds — A, K, Q, 6
Spades — 7, 6

The following hand is an excellent example of good play, so study it carefully. Note how the declarer figured out the only possible chance for game.

Hearts — 10, 4
Clubs — K, Q, 10, 9, 7, 5
Diamonds — Q, 6, 4
Spades — 7, 3

: Y :
: A B :
: Z :

Hearts — Q, 9, 8, 6, 3
Clubs — 6, 2
Diamonds — K, 8, 7
Spades — A, K, 10

No score, first game. Z dealt, bid one no-trump and all passed. A opened the four of spades. Y played a low spade, B the jack and Z won the trick with the ace. How should he plan the play of the combined hand? Z must lead the deuce of clubs from his hand and play the queen from dummy. If this card forced the ace, he can finesse against the jack on the next round. A good player, however, would not play his ace on the first round, so, in that case, Z is up against a difficult problem. He must set his club suit at once before the queen of diamonds, his only possible reentry card, is taken out of dummy. For that reason, Z must make one of two plays: (a) he can lead a low club, hoping that the ace is now single or (b) he can lead the king of clubs, hoping that the jack is single. Either play is a guess but one or the other must be made for the only hope for game is to set up the clubs. As a matter of fact, the king of clubs would have been the correct play at trick three for B originally held the jack and four of clubs.

The following hand was played recently in Detroit and forwarded to the writer as an excellent example of the "squeeze," that is, the forcing of one hand to discard winning cards.

Problem No. 17

Hearts — K, 7
Clubs — 6, 5, 4
Diamonds — 9, 8, 6, 2
Spades — A, K, Q, 4

Hearts — 10, 6, 5
Clubs — 9, 2
Diamonds — Q, 10, 7
Spades — 10, 9, 8, 5, 2

: Y :
: A B :
: Z :

Hearts — J, 8, 3
Clubs — A, K, Q, 10, 8, 3.
Diamonds — 5, 3
Spades — J, 6

Hearts — A, Q, 9, 4, 2
Clubs — J, 7
Diamonds — A, K, J, 4
Spades — 7, 3

There is no score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one heart. A and Y passed and B bid two clubs. Z bid two hearts and all passed. A opened the nine of clubs and B won the first two tricks with the king and queen. He then led the ace of clubs which Z trumped with the nine of hearts and A over trumped with the ten. A now led the six of hearts. How can Z so play the hand that he will make the balance of the tricks against any defense? Watch out for the solution in the next article.

THE PRISONER'S SONG !!!!

A TROUBLE SAVER.

A greasy wrench will often slip out of a greasy hand into the dust pan under the engine, into the clutch housing, or into some part of the car where it is very inconvenient to recover it. This may be avoided by tying a string about 15 inches long around end of wrench, then a loop around the wrist, or to an adjacent part of the car. This takes about one minute, while recovering a wrench that has slipped to some inaccessible part of the car has often caused an hour's delay.

WHAT IS GRAVITY?

Teacher—Bobby, can you explain to me the law of gravity?

Bobby—Yes'm. Gravity is twenty-five miles an hour. Above that there ain't none.

MAGIC !

It was very dark and still outside. The stars were distant, twinkling pinholes in a monster black velvet curtain that covered the sky. Beneath them the countryside lay silent and white, and the wind that had disturbed the afternoon had gone lurching over the horizon to rest.

But although the air seemed so still it was in reality full of activity. Impalpable waves and currents, not to be detected by any of man's senses, coursed back and forth in the darkness. They swept over field and river and forest and city alike, undisturbed save only when they struck fine coils and loops of thin wire, cunningly arranged.

These wires translated them, gave them body. Instead of being invisible, mysterious currents, they became music, laughter, words of greeting and strains of distant trumpets—and the man in the Peterborough farmhouse or the city apartment entered into communication with brothers on the other side of the world.

Old stuff, already. We have come face to face with too many miracles to be amazed. We can perhaps find it in our hearts to doubt that Lazarus, being dead, lived again but that the song of a violin played in Edinburgh is heard in all its sweetness in Canada seems only a commonplace.

And yet the miracle of radio is a useful one to us. Useful aside from the fact that it makes the poorest drudge on earth master of the world's greatest music by virtue of his possession of a combination of fine wires and copper plates useful because it prepares the way, in our minds, for a much greater miracle that is to come.

This new miracle that is to come is like radio in that it operates in ways that we seldom recognize and never understand. Mysterious waves transmit it from nation to nation, in spite of high-peaked mountains and frost bound seas but customs officials never see it.

What is it? Nothing—and verything, the steadily growing, ever-rising sense of the brotherhood of man and the unity of human peoples.

It has been centuries on the way. Sometimes the going has been hard, and for generations the invisible waves of sympathy between man and man have seemed dead. but at other times they flow in mighty floods, that send a bastille toppling or drag the czar of all the Russias down to ever-lasting oblivion. The crackle of muskets at Mons sent them throbbing across the Atlantic, Garibaldi put new vigor into them, the rope that hanged old John Brown gave them an extra pulse of life.

And always, bit by bit, the force of these waves increases. Dimly, and little by little, we come to realize that kindness and neighborliness and tolerance will yet lap the whole earth and give us peace, harmony and happiness without limit. It may be still a dream, but it is a dream that will come true.

This is our new miracle—the slowly, steady spread of those waves of human understanding and brotherhood. Before it the radio pales to a thing fit for children. The other marvels of our inventive skill—the great machines, the cunningly devised instruments, the shining towers and the soaring airplanes—they also are insignificant.

For if we hope greatly, and endure greatly, and love greatly—we know that some day this weary old earth will become, in very truth, the heaven that we have visioned it, and will go spinning down the corridors of limitless space with a chorus of laughter and song as answer for the distant twinkling of a million kindly stars.

Tire Tips

Learn the correct air pressure for your tires and check it every few days. Four pounds loss of pressure in a balloon tire of a certain size is just as serious as the loss of two or three times that much in a high-pressure tire of a corresponding size.

Avoid over-loading your tires—and when it is absolutely unavoidable help the tire to handle the extra load by putting in more air.

Anything which causes a tire to drag with more or less side motion, instead of running true, will grind the rubber tread away faster than is normal. A brake which drags will cause rapid tread wear also.

See that your skid-chains are not so tight that they gouge into the tread and fabric carcass of your tire.

Scraping a tire against curbs when turning a corner, or when parking, or careless driving over frozen rutty roads, sometimes will wear the rubber off the sidewall and expose the fabric carcass. Water and dirt then enter and rapid destruction of the tire results.

Take a careful look to see that your rims may not be causing you the loss of some service from your tires. Make sure that they are true so the tire runs without a wobble.

Probably no one thing causes tires to be scrapped before they have given full service more than a break or crack in the fabric body of the tire, commonly called a "stone-bruise." Usually the tire can be saved if such injuries are promptly repaired by a good vulcanizer.

SILENT SHIFTING.

If a driver will depress the clutch, shift from low to neutral, then from neutral to second and release clutch, this double manoeuvre almost invariably assures silent shifting.

TO CLEAN THE GLASS.

Try dipping a clean cloth in gasoline and rubbing lightly over the windshield and windows, then polishing with a dry cloth.

TO LOOSEN A TIHT NUT OR BOLT.

Next time an unusually tight nut or bolt is encountered, try placing two wrenches on it instead of one, the handles in a V position. Then pull jointly on both wrenches. This distributes the pressure over several faces of the nut or bolt and the jaws of the wrenches.

Short Cuts

Things to Know in Building and Operating a Receiver.

When you cannot place a screw into a hole, due to the awkward position of the hole, procure a horseshoe magnet of fairly large size. Run the wedge of the screwdriver against the ends of the magnet a few times until it becomes a temporary magnet. The screw will be attracted to the screwdriver and you will be able to insert the screw into the hole.

Only one hole need be bored in the back of your cabinet if you use one of the patented battery cables.

You can make your own chemical rectifier with a quart mason jar filled with a solution of borax (saturated), in which have been inserted two -inch rods of aluminum and lead, aach spaced inch from the walls of the jar.

Test a crystal by hooking it in series with a 22 -volt B-battery and a milliammeter. The reading should be 1 or 2 milliamperes or better.

FLOODS IN RUMANIA.

Many Lives Reported Lost in Distress Along Danube.

CONSTANZA, Rumania, Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press.)— Many lives are reported to have been lost in floods along the lower Danube. Great expanses of local territory are inundated. The Jalomitza, Cernovda and Austritza districts are disastrously affected.

Enjoin Stock Exchange To Prevent Bucketing

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press)—The Consolidated Stock Exchange is under a temporary injunction prohibiting the alleged bucketing manipulation of "wash sales" in which no securities change hands, and other illegal acts, which Attorney-General Ottinger alleges have taken place on the Exchange. On Feb. 11, Supreme Court Justice Ford will decide whether the injunction will be made permanent and a receiver appointed for the Consolidated. This is the outcome of a series of investigations by the Attorney-General's office into the methods of the former members of the exchange who failed, and the exchange itself.

MANY FOOLISH FANCIES RIDE ON THE RADIO MYSTERY WAVE

Superhuman and Celestial Powers Credited To New Science.

PLENTY OF FREAKS.

Hypnotism, Mental Telepathy and Various Experiments Fail on Wireless.

The mystery of radio and the layman's ignorance of radio waves have caused this new science to be credited with super-human and celestrial power.

In the old days, when Vesuvius bubbled over and gave the natives a lava bath, the ancients feared the wrath of the gods. But now when a narrow peninsula does a forlorn shimmy and sinks beneath the shore line, there are persons who claim that the peninsula's last dance was done to the tune of "Asleep in the Deep" as broadcast by a nearby radio station.

If the country is deluged with rain and floods are prevalent, there will always be someone to put forward his theory that radio waves in some peculiar and unaccountable manner form clouds and cause heavy rainfall.

When crops fail for lack of rain, the first station that broacasts "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No More" gets virulent and lenghty letter cursing radio in general and studio programme directors in particular for selecting songs which might have a suggestive and detrimental influence on the atmosphere.

Freaks

Not only has radio's power over natural phenomena been widely discussed, but many freak and unusual experiments have been attempted by means of radio waves.

A Chicago station recently attached a great amount of importance to a test it would conduct to attempt hypnotism by radio. After the test was completed and no reports were made of radio fans being found in a state of coma or hypnotic trance all reference to the affair was dropped.

English scientists next made elaborate and exhaustive tests to carry on mental telepathy by radio, and the experiment resulted in one of the most complete failures of the age.

Occasionally unusual or freak circumstances arise which are blamed on radio.

One radio fan claims that vibrations caused by a soprano solo coming from a loud speaker shattered a glass in the same room with the radio receiving set.

Other theories are that radio waves lengthen or shorten (depending, of course, on personal opinion) the average life of a human being.

But the ways of radio are mysterious!

A report was recently featured in the newspapers that a fireman was able to eliminate static by placing a cat on top of the receiving set. The next day a radio fan announced, "Say, tell that fireman he's all wet. I put a cat on my radio receiver and it didn't help a bit!"

An Indian chief, broadcasting a series of animal cries over the radio, is said to have caused felines and canines all over the country to leave their happy hearthstones and seek solace and protection in the wide, wide open spaces.

No Cheer

A liner rocked dangerously on the storm-swept ocean waters and the captain turned the radio on full power in hopes of quieting the nervous and excited passengers. The solemn and mournful notes of "Davy Jones' Locker" were heard to come from the loud speaker and a few minutes later fishes got their first introduction to radio reception. The set is probably now an instrument of much entertainment in Neptune's concert chamber.

There have been cases made public where persons claim that they have regained their hearing by listtening to radio concerts. Although tests show that the partially deaf can hear radio concerts and the totally deaf often "feel musical syncopation as broadcast by radio," radio waves have not yet been pronounced the panacea for deafness.

Radio's chief advantages are the education and entertaining opportunities it offers the average person, although in a few cases radio fills a necessary and unusual position in the life of an individual.

Probably the chief disadvantage of radio and radio waves is the keeping of the family and irritable neighbors awake during the wee hours of the morning while the head of the house vainly twists the dials of his radio set in hopes of hearing distant stations and brings in nothing more than squeaks and howls.

AVOID CLUTCH TROUBLE.

Clutch trouble may be avoided if oil is administered to the throw-out collar on the clutch at least once a week.

DON'T FLIRT!

Traffic Officer, to pretty girl motorist: Hey! What's the idear? Didn't you see me wave to you?

P. G. M.: Certainly I did, and if you try it again I'll report you.

Sixty-seven per cent. of automobile passenger cars are in communities of less than 25,000 population.

ABOUT YOUR CAR

By W. Z.

USE OF CLUTCH IN GEAR SHIFTING.

The clutch of your car is the device by means of which the power of the engine and driving mechanism may be connected or discontinued as the driver wishes, and is generally used more than any other part of the car. On first acquaintance, it seems to be a simple-looking part; later on, by much study of its use, you discover that it's quite an asset.

To be an adept in changing or shofting gears quickly and noiselessly is the desire of most drivers. You often hear that grating and clashing of gears, and very often made by a man who has been operating a car for some time.

This expensive habit may be caused by not accelerating the speed of the car just before changing from one gear to another, and is important to remember, as the two sets of gears to be meshed must necessarily be running approximately the same speed to prevent clashing. A noise will also be caused when shifting gears if the clutch is not "thrown out" sufficiently, which neglect allows the engine to continue driving the main transmission shaft instead of a disconnection of these parts.

If you press firmly on the foot clutch first, then quickly shift the gears, it should not cause any perceptible noise, at the same time not forgetting td accelerate your car a little just before making the change. The pedal should not be released until the shift is completed. Mechanical wear in the clutch or bearings on the transmission main shaft, of course, are troubles which will prevent a quiet shift.

Considerable practice is necessary to make your motor pick up its load quickly, done by the handling of the clutch pedal and accelerator, and to prevent "racing" upon the release of the clutch. To let the clutch pedal come back gently when starting forward is a sense of etiquette you owe to the clutch, and to your passengers as well. A suddenly let-in clutch will violently jerk the car forward.

If you still do not find it possible to change gears quietly, try changing from "first" to "second" gear when the car is moving from four to six miles per hour, and from "second" to "high" at a speed from eight to ten miles an hour.

When letting the clutch "in," or engaged, do this smoothly and gradually so that the power from the engine shaft to the drive shaft may be done without stalling your engine or jarring the mechanism of the car. Throttling the engine instead of throwing out the clutch is a practice many drivers may find less expensive.

A stray ignition spark and a leaky carburetor may cause a fire.

Rusted rims, scraped and rubbed with emery cloth, and coated with shellac or lead paint will prevent them from rusting again.

If you allow your engine to run for any length of time with the spark retarded, great quantities of carbon will be deposited on the walls of cylinders, combustion chambers, piston heads, &c.

Another "If."

If you can keep your temper when a tire blows out,
And it is raining hard, and you are far
From telephones, uopn an unknown route,
And wifes a fussin' from the stranded car;
If you can whistle while you rummage after
Wrenches, finding only they are gone.
If you can think of auto thieves with laughter,
And hurt your thumb, and then break forth in song;
If you can answer questions fools about you
Ask who stand and gape upon you while you work;
If you can grin when all is mud about you—
Lie down in slush and don't rage like a Turk;
If you can toil and toil and get things ready,
Then find you have put a bum tube in your tire;
If you can start again—keep sweet and steady,
And work on nerve, and don't get mad as fire;
If you can go through this and crawl from "under"
And drive on home without a trace of grouc
This world ain't fit for you—you're just a wonder.
You've either got religion or you're dumb, I'll vouch.

Honest Truth Loving

BY W. M. BRAUCHER.

A new race stalks up and down over the land, a race of strange men. It is a race of liars. This modern pack of prevaricators lies, and lies wildly, not like the old-fashioned liar who only lied by the clock, but they lie in an up-to-date way, by the dial.

They can spin you a bedtime story from OGOG, at Timbuctoo and never blush. They can get Jugoslavia as easy as pie on a one-tube set. They will tell you that the announcer at a well known Berlin station had a bad cold last week. Oh, yes, they have a three-tube set this time!

Do not question these people. There is no way to get under their hide. For they lie from pride. They will have a come-back for every question; they cannot be cross-examined, and you cannot defeat them. They will stick it out to the very last.

And, alas, the International Radio Tests will do nothing but add numbers to this tribe of DX fishers. Instead of calling a station located 100 miles away by the name of one which is separated from them by 1000 miles of groggy atmosphere, they will claim that the 100-mile station is located on foreign soil!

A certain man who never told a lie in his life is Exhibit No. 1. He joined a club, this man did, and paid his dues most of the time, and he was honest and God-fearing He made a few speeches here and there

Then one day he stepped out to a store and bought a radio. It was just a plain little parlor set. There was nothing fancy or "super" about it. A couple of tubes, yes.

That man one evening was sitting at the club with a few cronies about. He was talking and they were listening. There always were those who would be willing to sit and listen to Herbert C—. Herbert uttered words of wisdom and truth. Always the truth, perhaps that was the secret.

Somehow the subject drifted to radio. All were interested in finding out how Herbert's radio worked. And he told them. No use beating around the bush, he told them directly, straightforwardly. He told them that the night before, while tinkering casually with his set, he had picked up Havana, Cuba.

One by one those men, those bosom friends of his, departed. One by one they filed away and left him cold, with the lie on his lips. His name was no longer the name of an honest man. Now he was "that big liar, Herbert C—." He had lied away his birthright. Radio had been his undoing.

But one man remained, one who was trustful even in the face of this crushing untruth. He was the curious man who always was opping questions at the club's forums. He has just one thing to ask this man Herbert. It is this:

"How do you know you had Havana?"

The answer is plain truth. The words Herbert speaks now would clear him forever with his fellows. He says:

"Because they were talking Cuban."

And even that last man stole silently away.

ON THE AIR

The Verde Trio, one of Chicago's most versatile trios, which has returned from a record-making tour of the United States, is to be a regular Friday night feature of Station WBBM, Chicago.

Radio Station WIOD, Nautilus Island, Miami Beach, Florida, is one of the new radio stations to go on the air. The regular broadcasting schedule is 8.30 to 9.30 and 10.30 to midnight on a 248-meter wavelength.

Station KGW, Portland, Ore., will install within the next few months a superpower broadcasting station to replace the 500-watt equipment now in use.

Plans for a first anniversary programme are being made at Station WTIC, Hartford, Conn., for Feb. 10. The Yale band will be one of the features for that night.

A George Washington University programme will be featured by Station WRC, Washington, Feb. 27. Prominent members of the faculty of the institution, together with the musical clubs and debating society will be presented to the radio audience.

Station WJAZ, Chicago, will broadcast each Wednesday and Saturday night dance programmes from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. There will be no intermission as two orchestras provide continuous music.

DON'T KNOCK.

A knocking engine makes us stop at once,
Our engine must be free of any flaws.
But when we turn and knock our fellow man,
We never stop to analyze the cause.

If he does not appear just what you like,
If you don't quite agree with what he said,
Don't knock, but turn within yourself,
And start to clean the carbon from your head.

SIMPLE THEFT LOCK.

Drill a hole in the clutch pedal lever close to the floor board, and insert a padlock in the hole. Of course, the car could be towed, but it could not be driven under its own power, as done in the majority of thefts.

PITILESS PUBLICITY.

Only a short time ago, according to the Fountain Inn (S.C.) Tribune, the editor of a paper in Indiana grew tired of being called a liar and announced that he would tell the truth in the future, and his next issue contained the following items:

"John Benin, the laziest merchant in town, made a trip to Beeville Monday.

"John Coyle, our groceryman, is doing poor business. His store is dirty and musty. How can he expect to do much?

"Dave Conkey died at his home here Tuesday. The doctor gave it out as heart failure. Whisky killed him."

"Married — Miss Silvia Rhoades and James Collins, last Saturday at the Baptist parsonage, by the Rev. Gordon. The bride is a very ordinary girl who doesn't know any more about cooking than a jack rabbit and never helped her mother three days in her life. She is not a beauty by any means, and has a gait like a duck. The groom is an up-to-date loafer. He has been living off the old folks at home all his life and not worth shucks. It will be a hard life."

20 STROKES WITH "CAT."

SUSSEX ASSIZES, Feb. 6.—Edward Dixon, 22, recently was sentenced by Justice Avory to five years' penal servitude and 20 strokes with the "cat." He was charged with stealing a plate and other articles and with threatening two women.

MONKEY GETS PUDDING.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Even David, the zoo's most popular monkey, was not forgotten on Christmas. He was given a fine big plum pudding by an admirer.

Co-operative Wheat Export Has Confused Operators

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—A good deal of notice has been taken on the Board of Trade recently of assertions that Europe is rapidly absorbing the North American wheat surplus and that Canadian farm holdings have been reduced to below 10 per cent. of the amount harvested in Canada this season. The entry of farm co-operative organizations into the export field is given in some quarters as the cause of misunderstandings of the real magnitude of Canadian wheat business with Europe. One month's total of this business has been shown to total nearly twice the corresponding aggregate a year back, it is asserted.

Counter Forces Were Cause Of Irregular Market Trend

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press) — The renewal of selling pressure on the New York stock exchange today were influenced by a difference of opinion among the brokers over the brokers' loan, made public after the close, was counteracted by a resumption of bullish operations in a number of oils and specialties making the general course of prices decidedly irregular.

Several of the high priced industrials sold off rather sharply, Dupont and General Electric dropped 3 points and several others 1 to 2 points. Associated and Pacific Oils reached a new high territory but the other petroleum issues lagged behind.

Liverpool Wheat Gains Cause Chicago Response

CHICAGO, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press)—New upturns in wheat at Liverpool led to early fresh gains today in the wheat market hereft The smallness of supplies afloat for Europe and dwindling off-arm marketings in Canada tended further to strengthen the values.

Trade in Chicago, however was light, and the early advance was not well maintained. Opening figures: 1-4 to 7-8c up, May (new) $1.75 to $1.76 1-2, and July $1.55 1-4, were followed by a slight additional rise and then by something of a sag.

Corn and oats were responsible to wheat strength. After opening 1-8 to 1-2c higher, May 83 1-8 to 83 1-4 the corn market held to near the initial range.

Oats started unchanged to 1-4c up, May 43 3-8 to 43 1-2c and then continued firm. Higher quotations on hogs helped to steady the provision market.

Brazilian Retains Poise In Fluctuating Market

TORONTO, Feb. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—Some substantial changes were recorded on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, but there was no definite trend to the market. Brazilian, the leader, held remarkably steady, fluctuating only a quarter of a point and closing unchanged at 92 1-4. Smelters, also prominent, closed one higher at 221. Crow's Nest suddenly lost five of its recent gain, closing at 77. International Nickel closed one lower at 43 3-4, and Twin City lost a point at 77. Brompton and Steamships preferred were slightly weaker. C.P.R. improved one at 158 and Vipond at 196 was one higher. Mines showed some reaction from the recent advance and Noranda closed 38 lower at 17.68.

MANY BREEDERS OF HOLSTEINS AT ANNUAL MEETING

Breeders From All Parts of Canada Met in Toronto.

FEES REDUCED.

Two Directors Elected This Year From Eastern Ontario.

TORONTO, Feb. 6. (Special).—The annual meeting of the Holstein-Freisan Association of Canada was held at the Prince George Hotel here on Thursday, February 4, with a large attendance of breeders from all parts of the Dominion and more than usual from Eastern Ontario.

The secretary, W. A. Clemons, Brantford, presented a splendid financial statement. Balance on hand was nearly $8,000, while $15,000 worth of bonds had been purchased during the year, and since the beginning of the present year the final payment had been made on the mortgage on the office building, so that the association was now free of encumbrances, with a total of $64,600 of assets over liabilities.

Mr. B. Mallory, who has audited the books for over twenty years, and has not missed an annual meeting in a much longer period, was confined to his home through illness. A special message of sympathy was extended to him by members of the association, and also to the widow and family of the late Alf Hulet, a very prominent Western Ontario breeder, who died last June.

Perhaps the main item of business was the proposed change in registration fees. Mr. G. V. Arbogast had given notice of a motion to reduce fees on females under one year to $1.50. Mr. F. R. Mallory had a motion to reduce fees in the same class to $1.00, stating that his father, Mr. B. Mallory, believed this was sufficient to carry on the work. Mr. Chris. Houck was in favor of leaving the fees at the $2.00 rate. Mr. Richard Honey, Dartford, spoke in support of Mr. Mallory's motion, stating that he knew a large number of registrations were being held back because the people thought rates were too high. Mr. C. W. Thurston, Regina, and other breeders from a distance spoke in favor of the higher rates. When the vote was taken, Mr. Arbogast's motion for the $1.50 fee carried by a large majority, this fee to become effective March 1st, 1926.

Mr. F. Lee objected to the use of labels on milk bottles used by the C. N. Railways which promoted the interests of another breed, and a motion was made covering this. Mr. G. Brethen also entered a protest against the proposed legislation requiring double fences, five feet apart, around pasture fields where accredited herds were kept.

The election of officers was an interesting part of the proceedings. An unfortunate incident occurred last year, when all of the eight directors in Ontario were chosen from York and West, the Eastern Ontario breeders feeling that they were out in the cold. Mr. R. W. E. Burnaby brought in an amendment to the constitution, calling for two members in Ontario east of a line drawn parallel with the east side of York County. Messrs. D. A. McPhee and W. J. Bell were elected for the Eastern division. Among those nominated were Messrs. B. Leavens, G. Brethen, R. Honey, Prof. Sissons and J. R. Henderson.

The officers for the year 1926 are as follows:

President—C. T. Houck.

Vice-President—1st N. H. Cherry; 2nd, G. V. Arbogast; 3rd, J. H. Laycock; 4th, W. J. Elgie.

Directors—E. Plant, F. Lee, D. A. McPhee, N. J. Bell.

Directors from other provinces are:

Maritimes, Hon. Walter Lea; Quebec, P. J. Salley and Neil Sangster; Manitoba, George Rice; Saskatchewan, C. W. Thurston; Alberta, J. H. Laycock; British Columbia, J. P. Moore.

Auditors—E. N. Sager and Geo. Currie.

Hon. Sec.-Treas. — Lottie Brown Hicks.

Sec.-Treas.—W. A. Clemons.

LONGEST WILL EVER PROBATED

Contained 1,066 Pages in Several Large Books of Foolscap.

WORD FOR DOLLAR

The longest will on record, containing 1,066 pages and 95,940 words, was recently admitted to probate in London.

The testator was Mrs. Frederica Cook, the widow of the chairman of a famous drapery concern in England. Four fairly large books and some additional pages of foolscap were used on which to write the voluminous instructions of the lady as to the disposal of her property, valued at $100,000. Two of the books contain 700 pages, the others containing 400 pages— all nine inches square.

The official copy of the will, which is required by law, will cost nearly $400.

Some of the clauses of the will are, to say the least, somewhat peculiar. Unlike some more famous people, Mrs. Cook had no desire that future generations could regale themselves on her memoirs, as she directed that her diaries be burned. She also ordered her wedding ring to be buried with her and that no record of her age at death be placed on the tombstone.

Before Mrs. Cook placed this lengthy document on record, the longest will known to British law was one of 400 pages—which cuts little ice as compared with the London widow's will and testament.

At the other end of the scale is the will of a British sailor who was drowned during the war. This sailor disposed of all his property in the words, "All to mother," written on his identity disk, in letters so minute that a microscope had to be requistioned in order to render them intelligible.

Another man of few words was a British soldier, who wrote on the back of a photograph of his sweetheart, these words: "I leave all to her."

MORE PRAISE FOR FIREMEN'S BOOKS

Pyrene Manufacturing Company Adds Note of Approval.

That the book issued by the Peterborough Fire Department relating the history of that body is meeting with the commendation and approval of those who have received copies is evinced by the following letter which was received from the Pyrene Manufacturing Company, Toronto. The letter reads as follows: "I have received our copy of the Peterborough Fire Brigade History and I want to compliment you on its splendid appearance as well as the thorough manner in which the details have been handled.

"I would also pay my respects to your historian, F. H. Dobbin, who has, as I know from personal experience, labored arduously to collect and correlate historical data.

The whole thing is a piece of work deserving commendation."

The book is being sold for the purpose of creating a benefit fund for firemen who are disabled in the course of duty, and judging from the reception it is getting from the citizens and firms, the objective of the Department will soon be reached.

Intermediates Win in Lakefield 11-4

INTERMEDIATES OPEN SEASON WITH VICTORY IN LAKEFIELD BY DECISIVE SCORE OF 11 TO 4

Seven Goal Lead to Hold in Second Game Here on Monday.

PLAY GOOD HOCKEY.

Graham Had Busy Time in Lakefield Nets, Handling Many Shots.

Peterborough's Intermediate O.H.A. team made its debut last night, and succeeded in trimming the pick of the Lakefield District Hockey League with little trouble, by 11 goals to 4. The two teams were given a bye in this O.H.A. group until Havelock was declared winner in the Trent Valley League, and last night's was the first of home and home games to decide who should meet Havelock for the group title.

The game was fast and clean, but at only one stage of the game was the issue at all in doubt. The Petes took advantage of the first period to pile up four goals, and then let the homesters get them back to sew up the game. Starting out afresh, the visitors counted seven in the last two periods, and kept the Lakefield team off the score sheet altogether.

Both teams showed to some extent the effects of their play up to the present, as both are all-star teams picked from their respective leagues, and the players took a little time to settle down together. The Peterborough forward line, consisting of the three speedy youngsters, McDougall, Williams and Dundas, of the DeLavals, reinforced by Pete King, scoring ace of the league leading Brintons, and Johnson of Raybestos, was too much for Lakefield. McDougall especially having great success in outwitting the defence to go right in on top of Graham. On the defence, McMartin and Lackey both played a heady game, forcing the Lakefield forwards to shoot from well out, while each succeeded in beating Graham for a pair of goals. In goal, McClory performed brilliantly, stopping all kinds of shots and clearing well.

Rebounds Costly

Rebounds were Ab Graham's weakness last night, although at first he let a couple of easy ones get in. The Lakefield goal keeper was kept busy, and turned aside a great many shots, coming out a couple of times to break up attempts. Bob Hill and Blewett were good, while the rest of the team showed nothing much but speed. Ridpath and Sebatino both skated miles without effect. Kerr, a former Campbellford boy, made some good rushes but was easily turned aside by the defence.

Referee Hudson incurred the wrath of everybody at the game. He seemed unable to keep up with the play and let a great many flagrant offsides get away. Both side took full advantge of his lenience.

The game didn't get underway until twenty minutes after nine. The Petes decided that in view of the condition of the Lakefield road it would be better to take sleighs than cars. The first sleigh left shortly after six and arrived at Lakefield just before eight. The second sleigh was delayed in starting and then suffered a breakdown on the way, so that it was almost nine o'clock when rearguard of the team arrived.

Peterborough — Goal, McClory; defence, Lackey and Johnson; centre, King; wings, Dundas and McDougall; subs, McMartin and Williams.

Lakefield—Goal, Graham; defence, R. Hill and Kerr; centre, Sabatino; wings, Blewett and R. Hill; subs, Northey and Ridpath.

Referee—Hudson, of Toronto.

First Period

The fans hardly realized that the puck had been faced when Graham made his first stop on a shot from King, only to have McDougall drift in through the defence and slam home the rebound for the opening goal. Similar attacks followed, while when the Lakefield forwards carried down they seemed content to shoot from outside, and McClory handled the long shots with ease. Almost seven minutes had passed before another goal was scored, Lackey turning the trick on a lone rush. McDougal made the count 3-0 in another minute, and then Bob Hill gave the homesters their first counter. Dundas got that one back, but after King had served a sentence for accidentally tripping Kerr, Blewett scooped one in from the side, to be followed quickly by another goal for R. Hill. The period ended with the score 4-3 for the Petes.

Second Period

When R. Hill slipped through the whole Peterborough team to score the tying goal two minutes after the intermission the Lakefield fans settled down to see their boys strike their real stride and wallop the invaders, but it proved to be the last counter of the night for Lakefield. McMartin made the whole Lakefield team look foolish when he walked through the five players, toying with the puck as if he didn't know whether to score or not, and flipping a soft one past Graham from close in. The next goal was nearly as strange. Lackey shot from centre ice, a wicked low drive that went right through the Lakefield team and beat Graham. Johnson made it 7-4 on a hard shot from the red line just before [illegible] period ended.

Third Period

Johnson [illegible] another goal a few minutes after the third period opened, and then McMartin obtained his second counter. Shortly after this Jimmie started a rush, only to meet Sebatino as he crossed the red line. The Lakefield centre man must have thought it was his own defence line, as he bodied the Peterborough defence man, crashing him to the ice. Sebatino was invited to take a rest for his offence. Just after the teams were even again McDougall went in and scored, and then Williams drew a penalty for bodying in centre ice. Pete King, who had been unlucky before, although leading many attacks, scored his goal on a rebound from McDougall. He scored another almost immediately after but the rebound this time was off the end of the rink and he was offside. Blewett then crashed McMartin into the side of the rink and the veteran defence man was carried off, with a couple of cracked ribs.

STIRLNG LOSE GAME TO MADOC

Hastings County League Contest Was Ragged in Spots.

SCORE WAS 4-2.

MADOC, Feb. 6 — Madoc won their second game of the season on the home rink on Thursday evening, defeating Stirling handsomely to the tune of 4-2. The play at first was dull and uninteresting. It became more lively half way through the first period when Whitby broke through the home defence to score. Madoc then got going strong. Rupert found the net by a good shot from centre ice. Another goal came to this player two minutes later, and with good combination by Madoc ensuing, Watson added another beautiful goal for the homesters. The period closed with the score 3-1 in Madoc's favor.

Early in the second period Lenahan, who was playing a great game, was beaten by McGee. For while play became somewhat ragged, long rapid shots being taken by players of both teams without proving effective. Hulin saved what seemed a certain goal from Tufts. Rupert and Moon for Madoc and Whitby for Stirling were particularly aggressive in this period.

Jimmie Watson, in spite of his small stature, showed his Samson-like qualities when he broke two sticks at this time. The period ended 3-2.

The third period opened with rapid, strenuous play and much cheering from the by-standers. Both goalies were tested in turn. A shot from Ezra Smith was detected just in time by Hulin. The Madoc veteran was more fortunate with his next shot, scoring the best goal of the game. Though each side endeavoured to score again luck was denied them and the final result was 4-2 in favour of the home team.

The ice was in excellent condition, and the game was devoid of rough play with a few penalties meted out for minor offences.

BASKETBALL
By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 22—FORWARD TO GUARD

Use of the dribble is preached against by most coaches because of the demoralizing effect it is apt to have on teamwork. Many points and many games have been lost by players forgetting team-play for the moment and dribbling extensively. In the forward to guard formation from tap-off, however, dribbling by the latter adds effectiveness to an already effective play.

The beauty of the formation lies in the fact that the forward in his dash to take the tap-off makes a clear path for the guard to go through on his way to the basket. The other players act only as check-mates to offensive moves by the opposition until such time as it is certain the play cannot miscarry.

The left forward goes in fast behind the opposing center to take the tap. Naturally the opposition's guard will follow the left forward. That opens the way for the second step of the play.

The left guard merely goes into center with his opponent until he has made certain the left forward has possession of the ball. Then the guard sweeps around the left side, takes a pass and continues on to the goal with none to heed his progress.

The right guard and right forward hold their opponents out of the play. That permits them to act in defensive capacities if necessary, which is hardly likely. The center also stands ready to play offensive or defensive as the need may be.

Once the left guard has taken the pass and continued on his way to the basket, the formation can be straightened out. The right guard stays in the backfield, where he is joined by the center. The right forward follows the left guard's shot but the left forward plays center position to follow only if both his teammates fail.

DECISION FAVORS TWEED SEXTETTE

Slow Hockey and Injuries Feature Contest—Geraldis in Spot Light.

MANY PENALTIES.

TWEED, Feb. 6.—Keen ice and slow play featured the first game of the game here and very little combination was shown. Both goalies made many nice saves. V. Jack tripped Houston when he was right through for a goal and got a penalty. The period ended with no score.

The second period was listless. Bond was hurt and was replaced by Brady. A. Geraldi scored from 40 feet out after a lone rush. V. Jack made many nice rushes but was outlucked. Brown cut Jack down behind the net and got the second penalty of the game. The period ended with Bond back on the ice. Tweed 1, Marmora 0.

The game was faster in the last period. Bond was out with a cut foot and Brady replaced him. M. Geraldi boarded Williams and got a penalty. Later, M. Geraldi stick-handled through for a pretty goal. Willams received two penalties and Geraldi one in the dying moments of the game, which ended with Tweed 2, Marmora 0.

For the losers A. Berry and V. Jack were the best. All the Tweed players played good hockey. The line-up of the teams:

Marmora — Goal, C. Neal; defence, J. Bond and V. Jack; centre, M. Auger; wings, G. Williams and A. Berry. Subs, R. Neal and C. Brady.

Tweed — Goal, H. Wagar; defence, G. Geraldi and R. Quinn; centre, R. Houston; wings, M. Geraldi and F. Geraldi. Subs, C. Brown, G. Geraldi.

Goal umpires—H. Bordeau, W. Fisher.

WIN FOR DELANEY.

Stepped Into Heavyweight Class Again, Defeating Risk.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., outstanding challenger for the world's light-heavyweight championship, stepped into the heavyweight ranks for the second time within a month and decisively outpointed Johnny Risk of Cleveland in a 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden last night.

Strange as it may seem, Weissmuller and Borg are the greatest of friends. They are pals, in fact. Both are members of the Illinois A. C. This winter they have been touring the country giving exhibitions in many of the larger cities. They have hung up new marks on several of their appearances, too.

HAVELOCK TEAM TO PLAY HERE

Adopts Brock Street Rink as Home Ice—Seniors Favor Toronto.

GAME WEDNESDAY.

The Havelock hockey team, due to the fact that it has not a covered rink, and all O.H.A. games are required to be played in a covered rink, has selected Brock Street Rink as its home rink, for the playing of the balance of the O.H.A. games.

The Havelock home game will be played in Peterboro on Wednesday next, February 10, against the Peterboro Intermediates, and Peterboro will play the return game on the Brock Street Rink with Havelock on Friday, February 12.

Havelock has a very fast team, and this series of games will no doubt be looked forward to with interest by the fans in Peterboro.

The Peterboro Senior team has declared Toronto is its home ice for the balance of the Senior games, and the Kitchener game scheduled for next Wednesday, February 10, will be played in Toronto.

TREMAINE WINS FROM BRITISHER

Johnnie Brown Greatly Outpointed in Bantam Contst at Toronto.

DOWN TWICE.

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Carl Tremaine, of Cleveland, wiped one of his rival contenders for the world's bantam championship from his path last night at the Coliseum when he greatly outpointed Johnnie Brown, of England, the European champion, in a ten round bout in which the former Listowel boy did everything but knock the Britisher out. In four rounds, the third, fourth, ninth and tenth, Tremaine punished his opponent unmercifully, flooring him repeatedly for counts from three to nine and forcing Brown to hang on to save himself from a possible knockout. In the fourth the bell found Brown taking the count and the final gong also saw Brown on his knees.

THREE SKATING RECORDS LOWER

Leila Brooks of Toronto Set Up Two New Marks at Detroit.

FINN THE THIRD.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—Three new world's records were placed on the books of the International Ice Skating Union in the opening day of the international championship meet on Lake St. Clair here yesterday. Two of the marks are credited to Leila Brooks of Toronto, and the other was made by Clas Thunberg of Finland, Olympic titleholder.

Skating against time in a three-quarter mile exhibition, the Finn found the lake ice to his liking, and although bothered by the turns, made up the time in the straightaways. He was clocked at 2.00 4-5, bettering the old mark of 2.02 1-5 held by Joe Moore.

Miss Brooks' first record was made in the half-mile senior event for women when she covered the distance in one minute and 3-5 seconds, bettering her own time made at Toronto last year by one and 2-5 seconds.

Reduce Robinson Mark.

In the next event, the Toronto skater covered the one-eighth mile in 44 3-5 seconds, which is two and 2-5 seconds under the record set by Gladys Robinson in 1921.

The two victories gave Miss Brooks a wide margin in points over her nearest rival for international honors.

Eddie Reed of Chicago and Paul O'Brien of New York City are tied for points in the international events with 30 each. Reed took the one mile senior event while O'Brien was victorious in the 220-yard sprint.

Drastic action was taken by officials of the International Skating Union against Joe Moore, of New York City, and Charles Gorman, of St. John, N.B. Both were indefinitely suspended for failing to honor their entries in the meet here. Gorman was entered to defend his international title won recently at St. John.

INTERNATIONAL RUGBY.

Scotland Defeats Wales in Annual Match—Nineteenth Win.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Feb. 6.—Scotland defeated Wales in their annual International rugby match here to-day by eight points to five. The score at half time was, Wales 5, Scotland 0.

These International series between Scotland and Wales began in 1883 and Scotland has won 19 and Wales 16 of the matches. Two were drawn.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

Abe Mitchell — Restricted Follow-Through.

Miss Cecil Leitch, the British woman champion, also has the art of hitting the ball without an extravagant follow-through. One sees this more perhaps in her shots with the irons, but her great length is obtained more by hitting at the ball with a controlled follow-through than by swinging through the ball.

Bear in mind that we cannot stop the club from going through, but we can so hit that the forward swing is well under our control. The ball with a hitting swing gets a sharper kick than the ball with a swinging hit, and I am sure that all my readers have noticed that the best drivers all appear to stop as the club meets the ball, but this is only an optical illusion, for the club head must come through, especially if the hit is there.

The old dictum, that the club-head must swing through, is not in the bag of the modern golfer. Such a swing gives a good ball, but not so far as the golfer wants.

FAST GAMES ON BILL NEXT WEEK

Lakefield and Havelock Intermediates Here For Games With Petes.

GROUP FINALS.

Peterboro's Intermediate hockey team made an impressive showing in the first game of the season last night, and put up a game that was well worth seeing. The opposition somewhat faded before the driving attack of the Peterboro forwards in the last half of the game, being somewhat discouraged by the fact that the veteran goalkeeper, Ab. Graham, was suffering one of his rare off nights.

Monday's another day, according to the Lakefield team and fans, and they feel sure that they can reduce the lead on the round, even if they fail to get the entire eight-goal margin needed to win out. They have a fast team, which suffered from lack of practice together, and should shake down after last night's game, into a real team. As the Petes are determined to show that last night's game was not just a flash in the pan, a battle royal should result.

The winners of the round meet Havelock here on Wednesday and again on Friday. The Havelock crew has elected to play all its home games on the local ice.

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

The old sport adage that "youth will be served" certainly held true in golf circles during the 1922 season. For in three of the major tournaments the championship winners were all under 21 years of age.

Jess Sweetser copped the national amateur; Gene Sarazen, the national open, and Glenna Collett, the national women's crown. Sweetser and Sarazen were 20 years old at the time of their triumphs and Miss Collett was 19.

It was the first time in history that so many titles were won by competitors of their years. But it further proved that the Scottish pastime, long considered an "old man's" game, is somewhat of a competition for the younger generation, too.

Hockey Players' Names On Backs of Their Sweaters

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—New York hockey players will have their names emblazoned on the backs of their sweaters next season, the Sun stated last evening, and Manager T. P. Gorman intends to take the matter up with the National Hockey League with the idea of having it adopted by all clubs.

"If the locals start the fad it is believed the rest of the teams will follow suit," the newspaper says.

Gorman got the idea from watching the speed skaters at Madison Square Garden recently, and believes that it might be applied to hockey with considerable success and help to acquaint the fans with the various players, especially those on the visiting clubs.

DICK IS SAILOR ON MODEL BATTLESHIP

Star Here Monday in "Shore Leave," Great Comedy Romance of Navy.

One of Uncle Sam's model battleships plays a leading role in "Shore Leave," Richard Barthelmess' newest First National production which comes to the Capitoal Theatre on Monday. The warship is the Arkansas, pride of the United States Navy.

"Shore Leave" is the comedy romance of a "gob," and the United States Government offered Barthelmess and his producers, Inspiration Pictures, Inc., full co-operation. Thus for the first time in the history of the navy scenes of a motion picture drama were filmed on board a battleship at sea. Many of the scenes were "shot" while the Adkansas was en route from New York to Newport News, Va.

Barthelmess plays a happy-go-lucky sailor, "Bilge" Smith, in "Shore Leave." He is surrounded by an excellent cast.

"Shore Leave" is directed by John S. Robertson, who made all of Barthelmess' recent productions.

AT THE GRAND

(From John L. Peltret)

For those who would laugh, for those who would be thrilled and mystified, there is great prmise of a treat in store when Donald Galler and James W. Elliott present "The Gorilla" at the Grand Opera House tonight.

"The Gorilla" does not come as an unknown quantity for already playgoers travelling abroad have found its qualities so excellent they have made Mr. Mulligan and Mr. Garrity famous.. "The Gorilla" has all the thrills and chills of the best of mystery plays, in fact of all of them, and then the thrills and chills are balanced by laughter so constant that it begins when the curtain first rises on Jefferson Lee, the old family survitor, and only ends when the curtain comes down on the surprising denouement. To be effective such a play as "The Gorilla" must be well acted and Messrs. Gallaher and Elliott assure this to local playgoers as they send here the same company which has already established a name for itself in Boston and Philadelphia.

AT THE REGENT

WHY "THREE FACES EAST" IS DIFFERENT

It's a Gripping Mystery Story of the Secret Service With a Background of War and Novel Climaxes That Thrill

There is a vast difference in motion pictures as every fan knows. Where the "Coming of Amos" was a melodramatic comedy, "Hell's Highroad" a sophisticated drama of New York society, "The Wedding Song" an amusing crook comedy, and "The Road to Yesterday" a strictly dramatic story covering a period of three centuries, "Three Faces East," which is on view Monday at Regent Theatre, steps off into the entirely different realm of the mystery story.

Jetta Goudal, Robert Ames, Clive Brooke, Henry Walthall and Edythe Chapman head a list of players of unusual strength.

Clive Brook, whose appearances in recent Ince and Warner Brothers picture have proven him a coming favorite, has the arduous part of Valdar the butler. Miss Goudal plays jointly Miss Hawtree of England and Fraulein Marks of Germany, and the mystery as to which side she really belongs to is maintained to the end of the story.

The picture stands out in a class by itself and it is being heartily received by each successive audience that views it.

KING RETURNS FROM THE WEST

Conservatives Believed To Be Planning Two Amendments To Address.

CABINET MEETING.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—After an absence of more than a week, Premier King returned to the Capital early this morning from Prince Albert, Saskatchewan. At 11 o'clock, Mr. King met the Cabinet. Most of the ministers were present and nearly the entire Cabinet will be in Ottawa over the week-end.

There has been no official intimation as to the Government's programme for next week, but it is generally assumed that everything will be done to facilitate an early termination of the debate on the address. The Conservatives, it is understood, will move two amendments—one declaring that the Australian Treaty is working an injury to the Canadian dairy industry, and another of pressing non-confidence in the Government.

If these amendments are presented, they will, of course, have to be disposed of before the adjournment can be reached. The first one may involve considerable discussion, from what can be learned at present, the Government will put up the very minimum of speakers in order to bring on a division as early as possible.

MANY TOURISTS ARE EXPECTED DURING SUMMER

Inquiries at New York Motor Boat Show Promised Banner Season.

TRENT EXHIBIT

Many Motor Boat Owners Promised Themselves Trip This Year.

The twenty-first annual motor boat show held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, commencing on Friday, January 22nd, closed on Saturday, Jan. 30th.

"The prettiest and the best show yet," was the opinion given by the majority who attended. The attendance was about 125,000, boat owners and prospective owners being in the majority.

Due to the congestion of the state roads during holidays and normal motoring hours, the people finding little safety and no comfort, are turning to the motor boat for relaxation and touring pleasure. The orders taken by the companies exhibiting boats and cruisers were encouraging to say the least. Boats suitable for traversing the Trent Waterway for instance could be purchased at figures from about two hundred dollars to several thousands of dollars so that those advertising water trips have a wide field.

The exhibit of the Trent Waterway Development Association was in place on time, centrally located on the mezzanine floor. Several thousand pamphlets and folders descriptive of the Trent Waterway were distributed. The secretary, Frank G. Stinson, took the names of about one hundred and twenty-five yacht owners who not only promised themselves the pleasure of a trip through the Trent this summer, but many thought they would arrange for parties of from two to five yachts to make the trip together, in order that they all might have shore picnics and parties with occasional dancing on board ship in the evening.

Numerous others are considering the trip and some will make it in 1927 when business pressure lessens, or they return from European trips planned for this year.

From the foregoing it will be seen that the yacht owner represents the highest type of tourist. An instance of a "tramp" water tourist has yet to be found, usually the boat owner is a man of substance and parts, representing the highest type of American and Canadian professional and business citizenship. They want what they want, when they want it, and are prepared to pay well for the service. Their requirements are many—groceries, vegetables, clothing, woollens, furs, gasoline, fishing tackle, etc., etc. One yachtsman bought approximately four hundred dollars worth of supplies in a lump from a Peterboro merchant last year.

The expense of the exhibit was borne entirely by the association this year as the Department of Railways and Canals found itself unable to assist monetarily or with a representative. At one time it was doubtful whether funds would be available for the entire expense, but the municipality members rallied and contributed, and the officers of the association put up the small additional amount required, with the result that Peterboro and the Trent Waterway remained on the map in boating circles and the citizens may look for a decided increase in tourist traffic and revenue over the Trent this coming summer, which by the way is not far off.

MAN KILLED IN CHUTE.

Had Apparently Gone Up Slide To Get Coal Out of Car.

FARNHAM, Que., Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press.)— The body of Joseph Hewart was found this morning at the bottom of a Canadian National Railway coal shute here. The man had apparently gone up the chute for some coal out of a car. His weight presumably started some of the cial, carrying him with it. Hewart was not an employee of the railroad.

LOCAL YOUNG MAN IN LINDSAY

Money Was Not Spent, But States It Was Taken By Someone.

The despatch from Lindsay in yesterday's Examiner, regarding the Peterboro young man creates a false impression, inasmuch as the item casts a reflection on the young man's account of the loss of $92.00, which he took with him to Lindsay.

His employer, in talking with The Examiner to-day, states he has absolute confidence in him, and that he has no bad habits, and that he believes his statement, which is to the effect that before retiring he desired to pay his hotel bill to facilitate catching the early train to Peterboro, but the clerk told him never to mind, that he would have time in the morning, and that he went to his room and locked it, and upon rising in the morning found $92.00 missing. Neither the proprietor nor the clerk would telephone the Chief of Police, and he had to do it himself. On his return he has placed the matter in the hands of a lawyer and reported the affair to Chief of Police Newhall.

OBITUARY.

FREDERICK ANDERSON.
The death occurred this morning of Frederick Anderson in his 60th year. He leaves to mourn his loss, his sorrowing wife, one son Garfield, of this city; his father, John Anderson, of Douro; one brother, Wallace, and one sister, Mrs. J. A. Crowe, of Douro.

The funeral will take place on Monday, February 8, at 2 o'clock, from the family residence, 499 Bethune Street, and proceed to Ray's Cemetery, Lakefield. The Rev. Dr. C. W. Rose will officiate.

JOSHUA SMITHSON
Death claimed an old and highly respected citizen of the Township of Otonabee yesterday in the person of Joshua Smithson. The late Mr. Smithson was in his 86th year, and had resided in the Township for the last 60 years.

Always of a quiet forceful disposition he never aspired to public office of any kind but rather remained in the background giving of his experience only when asked. In this manner he was associated with many public organizations, being a well known figure throughout the entire country side.

Only last fall he acted as judge in the International Plowing Match at Brockville and it is thought that his strenuous labors at that time hastened his demise.

His passing will be mourned by a large circle of friends, and will leave a place in the Township that will be hard to fill.

He leaves to mourn his loss five sons, Morley on the family homestead and Reeve of the Township; F.F.A., of Toronto; Sidney A., of Kitchener; Fred of South Monaghan and Howard of Otonabee; two daughter, Mrs. J. D. Weir of Kitchener and Miss Laura A. Smithson of Toronto; and one sister, Mrs. William Waterman of South Monaghan.

Deceased was a devout member of the Anglican Church.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough, preceded by a service at the family homestead at 1.30 p.m. The Rev. L. Hughes will officiate.

John Billings, D.C.M., and Joe Stringer at Whitney, John Parks, 24-year-old trapper, was released from custody yesterday afternoon at an inquest held in the schoolhouse there. While death, apparently by fire, of Sergt. Billings and Joe Stringer, is thought by all to have come through foul play, and although suspicion was first fastened on Parks, the trapper has, by evidence established that he was not near the vicinity of the fire at the time it happened.

Down where the pants should be a little longer,

Down where you wish you were a little slighter
Where the shirt that shows is a little whiter,
Where each day the buttons grow a little tighter,

Down where the pains are in the making
And each heavy meal will soon start aching,
That's where the vest begins.
Where each added pound is the cause of sighing,
When you know in your heart that the scales aren't lying,
And you have to guess when your shoes need tying,
That's where the vest begins.

Last night he came
I felt his hand upon my cool round shoulder
I quivered under his rough caress
I felt an ecstasy
Of savage mockery
He picked me up. . . .

I hear his footsteps on the concrete walk
With rhythmic stride he is coming
He will pick me up again. . . .

AGITATION FOR EXPORT TAX ON PULPWOOD LESS

Embargo Would Ruin Thousands of Owners of Pulpwood in Canada.

CONVENTION ENDS.

Membership of Association Has Mounted By Leaps Since 1923.

MONTREAL, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press). — Phenomenal strides in membership growth, which the Canadian Pulpwood Association considered as evidence to show that there is an extensive opinion in the ranks of pulpwood owners, producers and dealers in Canada against an embargo, export tax, or any restrictive legislation that would interfere with the members selling their product in the best markets of the world were reported Friday at the concluding session of the annual convention of that organization here.

Eighy-five active members and approximately 14,000 associate members were reported as the standing of the association. The 85 active members were executives of firms engaged in pulpwood operations; while the 14,000 associate members were individual owners of freehold lands in Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The association had grown to these proportions from an original meeting of five held in Montreal in 1923.

Angus McLean, Bathurst, N.B., gave a resume of the activities of the association during the year.

Public Enlightened.
Mr. McLean expressed his belief that the agitation for an embargo, or an export tax, was steadily losing ground, because the Canadian public largely through the efforts of the association, was now better informed on the subject and realized that there was a very simple and direct way of keeping wood in the country, namely, by purchase on the part of the Canadian mills.

He went on to say that in the Province of new Brunswick, an embargo would literally ruin thousands of individuals; there was no necessity for any such legislation, and large quantities of pulpwood were rotting today because there was not a sufficiently wide market for the product, even with free access to the United States mills.

Accidents Cost Million.
At a meeting of the Lumbermen's Safety Association of Ontario, which followed upon the annual convention of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association here, it was reported that accidents in the logging camps and saw mills of Ontario alone are costing the lumber industry nearly a million dollars annually.

A campaign of safety recenty launched includes in its programme the education of the operators, superintendents, foremen, head logmakers and all senior employees along safety-first lines.

No figures were available on the accident cost to the industry in Quebec.

THREAT OF WAR AGAINST GERMANY BROADLY SUGGESTED BY PREMIER MUSSOLINI IN FIGHTING ADDRESS

Italian "Duce" Goaded by German Agitation in the Tyrol Says "Italy Goes On, Never Back"—Ovation to Dictator.

WILL ASK TWO EYES FOR AN EYE"

Mussolini Says Germans Are Ignorant of the Moral Force And Spirit of the New Italy.

ROME, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—Premier Mussolini's speech in the Chamber of Deputies Saturday, in which he warned Germany against the anti-Italian campaign carried on in the Reich, was characterized frequently in political circles yesterday as almost equivalent to a declaration of war against Germany. All day long Mussolini's words of warning were discussed, and his speech was declared to be one of the best, certainly the most significant of his international statements since the Corfu incident.

"Let Germany remember," he cried, while the whole Chamber rose to its feet and cheered as if seized with a paroxysm of fury, "that Italy is ready if necessary to carry her banners beyond her present frontiers, but back, never!"

The Premier stigmatized the German anti-Italian agitation as "nefarious and ridiculous;" he termed the speech of the President of the Bavarian Landstag as "unheard of;" he scoffed at Germany's proposal to boycott Italy, threatening to take severe reprisals; he announced his intention of inaugurating a policy of "two eyes for an eye and a whole set of teeth for the loss of only one tooth."

"Italy desires to be a since friend of the German people, but a friend looking Germany in the eye with her hands up.

Mussolini then rapidly recapitulated some of the main falsehoods printed by the German press about the alleged facts of oppression in the Upper Adige. He caused loud laughter when he referred to the report printed in Germany that the Italian authorities ordered the removal of a statue of the German poet, Walter, which stands in Bolzano.

"We Italians," he said, "respect poetry even when, as in this case, it is of a very mediocre quality."

Laughs turned into cheers the next moment, however, when he said a popular subscription would be started to erect in Bolzano a huge monument to the Italian martyr, Cesare Battisti, who was hanged by the Austrians. This will rest on the foundations of what the Germans imagined should have been the monument for their victory in the last war.

Referring to the movement started in Germany to prevent tourists coming to Italy, he said:

"We are an eminently hospitable people. This is the result of our ancient, century-old civilization. We are hospitable and wish to remain hospitable, even when our hospitality is taken advantage of, but nobody must imagine they can blackmail Italy by stopping the influx of tourists. Italy has other and far greater resources and besides many German tourists come to Italy, not to please us, but merely because living is cheaper here."

Wants Two Eyes For An Eye.

"We are sufficiently insolent and explicit," he added, "—and in speaking with the greatest clearness we believe we are furthering the cause of truth and civilization and even of peace—to substitute a new formula for an old one, namely, this one:

"We exact the payment of two eyes for the loss of only one eye and of a whole set of teeth for the loss of only one tooth."

He invited Germany to reflect that Italy no counts 42,000,000 citizens ready to march at his word, and he referred to Italy's frontier on Brenner Pass as a "boundary traced by the infallible hand of God."

As is always the case when it is known that Mussolini is going to speak, the Chamber was filled to overcrowding many hours before the beginning of the sitting. The royal box, the diplomatic galleries and places reserved for newspaper men and the public were packed solid with anxious listeners when the sitting began.

Frantic Cheers Fill Chamber.

The Premier's speech was punctuated every few seconds by a frantic burst of cheering, in which the whole House participated. And the whole proceeding was interrupted at intervals while the Deputies sang in unison Fascist patriotic songs, followed by lond shouts of "Viva Italia!" "Viva Fascismo!" "Viva Mussolini!" Mussolini spoke with calmness, but with coo ldetermination and suppressed energy which thrilled all his hearers.

"I believe that at the bottom of this campaign there is a basis of ignorance. The Germans don't know us. They think Italy remained what she was thirty years ago. They do not know Italy has 42,000,000 inhabitants, which, added to the 10,000,000 inhabitants living abroad, brings our manpower to 52,000,000.

"They do not know our spirit, our sense of dignity, our moral force. Above all they do not know Fascist Italy. They will learn, I hope. In any case I take this opportunity of declaring Italian policy in the Upper Adige will not change by one iota."

"We will apply," he continued, "rigorously, methodically, obstinately, with a system of cool tenacity which is typical of Fascismo, all our laws to the inhabitants of the Upper Adige. I refer both to those this Chamber has voted and those it will vote in the future.

"We will render that region Italian because it is Italian, both historically and geographically. The boundary of the Brenner Pass is a frontier traced by the infallible hand of God."

Germans in the Upper Adige, he stated, are very few. They number only 180,000, while in Czechoslovakia, whose total Czech population numbers only 5,000,000, there are 3,500,000 Germans.

"Of these 180,000 Germans in the Upper Adige," he added, "80,000 are Italians who have become Germans and whom we will redeem by making them feel the pride of belonging to the great Italian nation. The remaining 100,000 are residues of barbaric invasions when Italy, not having the strength of an independent nation, was the favorite battleground of Western and Eastern nations."

Desires Friendship.

Premier Mussolini ended as follows: "To the German people we say Fascist Italy wishes to be even your friend. But your friends looking in the eye with your hands raised over your head. This speech must be considered as my pondered opinion and as tracing the line I shall follow in this matter.

"I hope this will be understood by German statesmen in order that the Italian Governrment may not see itself obliged to have recourse to concrete replies to the German provocations, as I am absolutely decided to do if the German Government should take upon itself the responsibility of what has happened, or of what may yet happen.

"A few days ago a Fascist paper wrote, 'We will never lower our flag from the Brenner Pass.' I wrote to the editor of that paper, suggesting he should write, 'Fascist Italy can take her flag even further, but lower it, never.'"

The end of Mussolini's speech was received with an undescribable ovation. The whole Chamber, including the spectators, jumped to its feet, cheering madly. Then the Fascist Deputies intoned the Fascist song, "Giovinezza," which was sung lustily by all present amid stirring scenes of enthusiasm.

All the world has a habit of being late for engagements. Even the person who gets there first is late—but not so much so as the other party.

If there were some way to set our watches so a six o'clock engagement would mean six thirty—or a ten o'clock one mean eleven, it wouldn't be so bad.

But, so long as there isn't—let's try being on time.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

W. H. BRADBURN, M.P.P.

"The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition is a great thing for the City of Peterborough and the surrounding district," said W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., when interviewed by The Examiner this morning. "The present board of directors deserve a great deal of credit for the work which has been accomplished in the past few years. I have noted recently a great improvement both in the quality of the exhibits and the numbers which come to view them. I have noted these facts the more keenly because at one time I used to sell tickets at the entrance gates."

Mr. Bradburn said that the Fair was wonderful and was quite deserving of the utmost support. "I would like to see a membership of 5,000 instead of the 1,500, which is the objective of the present drive. I know that every member obtained will be a booster when they catch the germ of progress which has been spreading within the past few years, resulting in greatly increased gates."

Mr. Bradburn was of the opinion that neighboring municipalities should co-operate to a greater extent, and thought that one big Fair on a profit-sharing basis would do better work than a number of small ones in the district. He declared that a Fair held in an urban district was most important in affording an interchange of views between the farmer and the city dweller.

Premier Ferguson Declines To Admit Plans For Government Sale, But Currie Says He Will Force Issue By Moving Control Bill.

SITUATION BEFOGGED BY MANY RUMORS.

Liberal and Farmers Leaders Will Criticize Enforcement of Anti-Liquor Law and May Precipitate Action — Toronto Member To Follow Quebec.

(By Canadian Press and Special Examiner Correspondent)

TORONTO, Feb. 8 — With the opening of the Ontario Legislature set for Wednesday, the question that is uppermost is as to whether or not the Ferguson government intends to introduce legislation providing for important changes in the Ontario Temperance Act. There have been frequently recurring rumors that a measure of government sale will be substituted for the present system of sale of intoxicating liquors—other than 4.4 per cent. beer—by doctors' prescriptions.

Premier Ferguson and his colleagues have declined to admit that the Cabinet has in mind any radical changes in the present O.T.A. This morning the Premier is reported by an interviewer from a local newspaper as stating that any rumors that the government had announced any policy in this respect were "absolutely without foundation." Private members of the Legislature who are already in the city for the opening of the session appear to have no information of the intentions of the government in the matter. At the same time it is known that leaders of the Liberal and United Farmer groups will criticize very strongly the present enforcemnt of the O.T.A. and also the "4.4 beer policy." It is agreed that this may precipitate into the debate some definite proposals for changes in the act.

Members to Act.

TORONTO, Feb. 8 (Special to The Examiner).—Colonel John A. Currie, member of the Legislature for South-East Toronto, and one of the leaders in the Conservative forces in favor of Government control of the liquor traffic in Ontario, stated to-day that if the Ferguson Government did not bring in a bill dealing with Government control, some members of the Conservative Government in the House would do so at this session and endeavor to force a division on the matter.

Col. Currie also states that the proposal that will be made in the event of the Cabinet not taking action in the matter at this session will be along the lines of the legislation now in existence in Manitoba and the Province of Quebec, where Government control is "working out very well."

This announcement by Col. Currie indicates that the liquor question and Government control of the traffic will be brought up at this session of the House.

Ferguson Reticent.

Premier Ferguson, when asked what the outcome would be if a private member submitted a Government control measure as suggested by Col. Currie to-day, said that "the Legislature was a free and open place where members could bring in any proposals they felt like." He declined to intimate

Obliging Wife Bridesmaid When Husband Weds Again

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (United Press).—A bigamous marriage in which the first wife acted as bridesmaid at the second wedding has been disclosed at Tottenville, Staten Island.

Mrs. Catherine O'Neill appears as the not-altogether willing complainant against Charles O'Neil Florence, his first wife, and his brother, Harold, all of whom have been remanded to the Richmond County Jail in default of bail.

"I became friendly with Florence, but did not know she was married to Charles," Catharine told detectives." One day she told me that since I was in love with him, we ought to get married.

"So we went to the same church where Florence and Charles had been married, and she was the bridesmaid.

"It was only about three months ago I learned that Florence and Charles were married, so I left him and went back to my parents."

Charles is charged with bigamy; Florence with perjury, and Harold with aiding and abetting.

BELFAST, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press). — The River Shannon is over its banks for a distance of 35 miles, and many families are homeless. The countryside presents a dreary vista, with thousands of acres inundated, and the outlook for farmers is gloomy.

Some of the country folk travelled to Athlone market on Saturday by boat.

Life Of Mystery Is Ended Criminal Princess Murdered

MOSCOW, Feb. 8. Canadian Press. — Much mystery still surrounds the life and family connections of Princess Obelensky, who was found murdered in a snow heap here yesterday, in one of Moscow's principal streets.

The Princess was 23 years of age, and the last few years of her life had been spent among criminals. Inquiries at a Moscow night home for beggars, where the ex-princess had taken refuge, elicited the information that she had lived there off and on for many months. The real facts of the case will probably be revealed to-morrow, when the authorities resume their examination of Janitor Aerokhin, 53 years of age, took care of the house near where the girl's body was found, and who is charged with her murder.

PAPERS DISCUSS SPEECH MADE BY MUSSOLINI

Not Call To War, But Language of Nation, Says One.

DESIRE PEACE.

Others Say They Represent Exactly Thought of Italians.

ROME, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press) —Premier Mussolini's speech in the Chamber on Saturday, warning Germany against an anti-Italian campaign, must not be interpreted as a bugle call to a new war, declares Il Messggero, but as the language of a race which will tolerate no offences.

"The new Italy desires peace in Europe, as was shown at Locarno, where she willingly guaranteeed the Rhine frontier," the paper continues, "But the situation of Locarno does not place her under the necessity of enduring provocations without protest or tolerating offences without action."

On the other hand Il Tevere, the extreme Fascist organ, under the heading, "A Word to the Wise is Sufficient," says that the Pan Germanists would do well to keep in mind that Mussolini's speech was followed by the singing in the Chamber of the Fascist song, the refrain of which is "To Arms!"

The Giornale d'Italia says the Premier's utterances represent exactly a thought of all Italians.

PUPILS RESCUE THEIR TEACHER

Pummel Farmer Who Dragged Her Around School Room.

MAN ARRESTED.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—Boys and girls, all of them "new Canadians," chivalrously went to the rescue of their school teacher when she was being beaten by a farmer at the district school near Ashern, Man., 125 miles north of Winnipeg. Clifford Harrtty, a farmer of the district, is alleged to have lost his temper, seized the teacher by the throat and dragged her about the room.

The older boys and girls quickly rallied to the defence of their teacher. Miss Lillian Testley, and drove the enraged man out of the room, after pummelling him severely. Harrtry was arrested.

There are many new homesteaders in the Ashern district.

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer went down to 5 below zero last night. This morning at break of day it was at 1 below. This is the first zero weather for February so far. The days are appreciably lengthening. The sun now rises 26 minutes earlier than it did on Jan. 1st, and sets 51 minutes later. This gives a little over an hour and a quarter more daylight. After St. Valentine's day, the difference is always more noticeable.—W. P.

KING GEORGE'S HONORS GIVEN TO ROOSEVELT'S OFFICERS AND MEN

Heroism of U. S. Liner's Crew Lauded in Ceremony Aboard Ship, While All Britain Listened In—Gold Plate and Medals.

TRIUMPH AT SOUTHAMPTON

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Feb. 8—"For gallantry and humanity" King George Saturday bestowed his accolade upon George Fried, captain of the American liner President Roosevelt; on three of his officers and seventeen of his men.

In a ceremony at Southampton to mark the achievement of the Roosevelt's men in rescuing twenty-five members of the British freighter Antinoe's crew after four days' struggle with a mid-Atlantic storm, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, President of the Board of Trade, on behalf of the King and the British nation presented pieces of gold plate and gold medals to Captain Fried, Chief Officer Robert B. Miller, Third Officer Thomas Sloan and Fourth Officer Frank M. Upton, and gold medals to the seventeen men who manned the lifeboat crews that rescued the Antinoe's men.

These honors were warded with unprecedented speed, all red tape having been cut. The Mint engravers were froced to work day and night to strike off the medals in time for Saturday's presentation.

A Triumphant Pilgrimage

Amid shrilling sirens, while flags fluttered from a thousand staffs, the Roosevelt came into Southampton at 11 o'clock Saturday, the fourth port on her triumphant odyssey from Cobh (Queenstown), Plymouth and Bremen. She already had been crowned with honors, which reached the climax in this ceremony. Southampton folk say that within living memory no other ship has arrived there more gloriously.

Among the liners that saluted the Roosevelt were the Acquitania and Majestic, whose crews gathered on the upper decks and cheered the hero ship as she steamed proudly into the harbor.

Captain Fried stood on his ship at the gangplank, and was visibly affected as Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister went aboard and shook hands with him. Captain Fried introduced the King's representative to his officers and the men who manned the lifeboats. Sir Philip shook hands with each, thanking him in behalf of the King.

Sir Philip's Speech

The party then went to the dining saloon, where arrangements had been made to broadcast the speeches There, in the presence of the Roosevelt's crew and her passengers, Sir Philip said:

"I am commanded by the King to express to you, Captain Fried, his Majesty's regret that the short stay you are making in Southampton has not admitted of his seeing you in London and thanking you and your crew for your gallant services.

"The rescue which we have met to commemorate stirs the imagination and earns the gratitude of the whole British race. It has already taken its place in the annals of the sea as an epic.

"It is the wish of the King that I should present to the officers and men who manned the boats the Foreign Service Gold Medal for Saving Life at Sea, and that I should place in your keeping for presentation to their relatives the medals that would have been awarded to the two gallant men who gave their lives.

"On behalf of his Majesty's Government I have to ask you, whom duty kept on the bridge, to accept a special token of their recognition of the fine seamanship, humanity and courageous sea service which throughout those nights characterized your every action. The service which you and your crew rendered has done more than we realize to cement the long friendship and lasting peace between our two countries.

"In two hundred previous awards of the same medals in the last six years the standard of gallantry was high, but even in such illustrious company the Roosevelt's achievement is conspicuous. Much of the rescue was due to Captain Fried himself — the immediate answer to the call, the daring and fine seamanship with which he manoeuvred the Roosevelt near the doomed ship, the determination with which he held on and found her again when she was lost, the untiring ingenuity he displayed, devising one attempt after another; and last, but not least —and of that he never spoke—the force of his own example.

Mr. Miller commanded each of the three boats. What a record! We like to think that his forebears probably saw service in British ships—captains courageous of earlier days.

"Mr. Upton was only restrained by Captain Fried from swimming to certain death.

Heitman and Witanen risked their lives to save a foreign crew and gave their lives to save their fellow-rescuers. What could be finer?

"These are deeds that live. As one reads the names there comes to us the link of a new understanding of what is meant by the 'brotherhood of the sea'."

Gold Plate Presented

Sir Philip then presented gold plate consisting of an engraved cigar box for Captain Fried, cigarette cases for the other officers and medals for all.

Lord Apsley, President of the Southampton Pilots' Association, gave to Captain Fried a gold-headed cane on behalf of his association.

When Chief Officer Miller rose to speak there was a loud demonstration. He was followed by Captain Tose of the Antinoe, who presented more than $1,600 to Captain Fried to be given to the heirs of Witanen and Heitman. This sum was sent to him from all parts of Britain by persons who had heard his address on the rescue broadcast over the radio.

Lloyds' medals will be presented on the Roosevelt's next trip here.

The presentations were made to Captain Fried and the members of the rescue crew under blazing-lights and with a score of motion picture cameras clicking so that all the world might have a chance to see what the ceremony was like. The speeches were broadcast from the dining saloon of the President Roosevelt to radio listeners throughout the British Isles.

The whole proceedings were marked by enthusiastic applause, which was especialy loud when Captain Fried, speaking with emotion, in outlining the rescue story said:

"Think of the thirteen last men who were rescued from the sinking Antinoe — with what courage that fateful number held on and assisted us in rescuing them."

Tribute from Ambassador

In his speech on behalf of Ambassador Houghton, Mr. Beal said:

"The Ambassador has asked me to try to express to you his regret at not being here. (Ambassador Houghton and his family are on a holiday in France.) No one followed the stories of heroism and danger of the last week with greater interest than Mr. Houghton. No one was prouder or more joyful when the good news of the rescue reached London. Unforutnately,

MUSICALE BY CHAS. PEAKER

Under Auspices of Women's Art Association at Conservatory.

TEA SERVED.

An interesting musicale arranged by Charles W. Peaker was presented at the studio of the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon by the Women's Art Association. A sketch was given by Mr. Peaker of the transition of the fugal to the sonata style, referring especially to the lives of the sons of Johann Sebastian Bach, introducing various anecdotes with regard to their personality, and illustrating the discourse with music. Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park assisted Mr. Peaker by giving three selections, "Oh, but it is Passing Sweet," a love song from Bach's Peasant Cantata, "Oh, had I Jubal's Lyre," from "Joshua," and 'My Mother bids me Bind my Hair," by Haydn.

Miss Olga Fowler and Mr. Peaker played a duett arrangement of a Carl Phillips Bach symphony, and Mr. Cecil Cragg played with Mr. Peaker the First Movement of the Jupiter Symphony by Mozart. Mr. Peaker played the Andante by Wilhelm Friedman.

Mrs. H. W. Morphet and Mrs. F. W. Borbridge were tea hostesses The table was charmingly arranged with a Cluny cloth, centred by a bowl of pink tulips and daffodils, flanked by yellow candles.

VALUABLE PAPERS READ AT MEETING

How to Dress Well on Small Means and How To Be Rid of Soot.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. 8.—The Mount Pleasant Women's Institute held the February meeting at the home of Mrs. Ira Lowes.

There were fifteen present, twelve members and three visitors.

The President, Mrs. D. Lowes, conducted the meeting which opened by singing "O Canada," Mrs. Joshua Eggleston presiding at the piano.

The minutes of the last three meetings were read, owing to the absence of the secretary at these meetings.

Correspondence from the Department was read regarding the annual summer meeting at which a lecturer will be sent by the Department if so desired; after some discussion as to whether an afternoon meeting would be held or a joint meeting in the evening, it was decided to have the meeting in the afternoon and notice to this effect will be sent by the secretary to the District Secretary.

After the usual routine of the meeting, the programme then followed: Mrs. Henry Lowes read a well-prepared paper entitled—"Dressing well on Small Means," which contained many good points on becoming dress.

Mrs. Garnet Shield and Mrs. Joshua Eggleston then rendered an instrumental duet on the piano, after which a favorite hymn was sung by all the members.

Mrs. B. Morden sang a solo which was very much appreciated by all present.

The roll call was responded to by several of the members. Mrs. W. H. Lowes recited a poem that she had memorized in her girlhood days—"Lochinvar" one of Scott's ballads.

Mrs. Joshua Eggleston also gave the poem "Lest We Forget" by memory.

A household hint was given by Mrs. Paragreen on "How to rid soot from the pipes and chimney."

At the conclusion of the meeting lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. B. Morden, Mrs. Henry Lowes, Mrs. Norman Fee and Mrs. Ira Lowes, and a social time was enjoyed by all.

The next meeting of the Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. John Handley on the third of March. The committee in charge of the programme for that meeting consists of Mrs. Austin Best and Mrs. Melville Jones.

MASTODON TOOTH IS LODGE GAVEL

Former Member, Now in British Columbia, Sends Unique Emblem.

MADOC, Feb. 8.—At a recent meeting of Madoc Lodge No. 48, A.F. and A.M., a presentation was made on behalf of Wor. Bro. Young, who is in Vancouver at present, by Wor. Bro. Hill. The gift to the Lodge was a unique gavel, made of a tooth of a mastodon ivory, dug up in the gravels of the Yukon. It is suitably inscribed with the emblem of the Order and underneath the words: "Presented to Madoc Lodge No. 48, A.F. and A. M., by W. Bro. C. J. Young, P.M., Christmas, 1925."

Wor. Bro. Young was for a number of years, rector of St. John's Anglican Church and endeared himself to Madoc people. He has always had a warm spot in his heart for the Madoc Lodge, and in the letter accompanying the gavel he writes: "As a token of my appreciation of Madoc Lodge No. 48, A.F. and A.M., since I affiliated in 1905; and the fraternal treatment that has always been accorded to me, I am pleased to forward a slight token in remembrance."

Much appreciation was manifested by the members of the Lodge and all unite in hoping that Wor. Bro. Young will once more be present with them when he returns to Ontario next summer, as he hopes to do.

The gavel is now on exhibition in Mr. G. F. Maybee's window, and is attracting much attention.

Officers Elected.

At the annual election of officers for Madoc Lodge No. 48, A.F. and A.M., the following were chosen for 1926: Wor. Bro. R. G. Warren, W.M.; Wor. Bro. Field W. Allen, I.P.M.; Bro. C. L. I. O. D. E. HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Officers Elected and Reports For Year Presented—Excellent Work.

The annual meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association on Saturday afternoon, when election of officers for the ensuing year took place and reports were read of the past year's activities. The election resulted as follows: Regent, Mrs. J. McNabb; 1st Vice-Regent, Mrs. F. Hooper; 2nd Vice-Regent, Miss G. Glover; Secretary, Miss Maida Conner; Treasurer, Mrs B. Moore; Educational Secretary, Mrs. L. Soden; Echoes Secretary, Mrs. F. C. Webber; Standard Bearer, Miss Mamie Drope; Councillors: Mrs. C. S. Browne, Mrs. W. Belleghem, Mrs. N. L. McNaught, Mrs. Joseph Wearing, the Misses Hazel Buller, M. Montgomery, E. Richardson, P. Dawson, R. Mulholland, and Marjorie Evans. Convenors of committees—Decorations: Miss Mayme Montgomery (convenor), Mrs. L. Soden, Mrs. B. Moore and Miss G. Glover; Refreshments: Mrs. W. Belleghem (convenor), Miss G. Paterson, Miss Phyllis Dawson and Mrs. C. Browne; Flowers: Mrs. J. McNabb; Ushering: Mrs. F. C. Webber (convenor); Cards: Miss Ethel Richardson; Press, Mrs. F. C. Webber.

Reports were read, showing a very successful year. Miss Conner gave the secretary's report, and Miss M. Evans the report of the treasurer. A balance of $266 is on hand in the treasury, and nearly $700 was expended during the year in charitable work. Mrs. F. C. Webber gave the report for the Educational Committee, showing a total of nearly fifty subscribers to the "Echoes." The convenor of the Hope Chest Committee, Mrs. J. K. Hughes, reported a satisfactory progress being made with this endeavor, the majority of the supplies, with the exception of a few of the larger articles having been already donated for the Chest.

Refreshments on Saturday were in charge of Miss Hazel Buller. The table was very attractively arranged with spring flowers, pussy wilows and mauve candles. Tea was poured by Mrs. F. Hooper, assisted by Mrs. W. Belleghem, Mrs. C. Browne, Miss Rose Mulholland and Miss Gladys Patterson.

MAY AMALGAMATE MANY SOCIETIES

Young People Must Attend —Too Many Meetings and Pay Too Much.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 8.—The Young People's League meeting last week was under the devotional committee, the convenor, Miss Jean Burnham, being in the chair.

The study of Luther Lovejoy's book, "Stewardship of the Whole of Life," was continued, the chapter on Mental Life being taken up. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind" gained a new meaning as a result of the material presented.

The number of organizations in the local United Church apparently lessens the attendance of one because of others dividing the interest, and it seems probable there will have to be an arrangement by which some amalgamation may be effected. Where the number of young people is limited it is not working out well to have too many week night meetings which the same members, largely, are expected to attend and to which they must give financial support.

Misses Jean Burnham and Mary Foley were guests of Miss Florence Clare at the parsonage, Welcome, this week, joining a party skating, which Miss Clare gave in the Port Hope rink earlier in the evening.

Mrs. (Canon) Allen entertained the teachers and officers of the Sunday School of St. Thomas' Church at tea, and a social evening, at the Rectory on Friday.

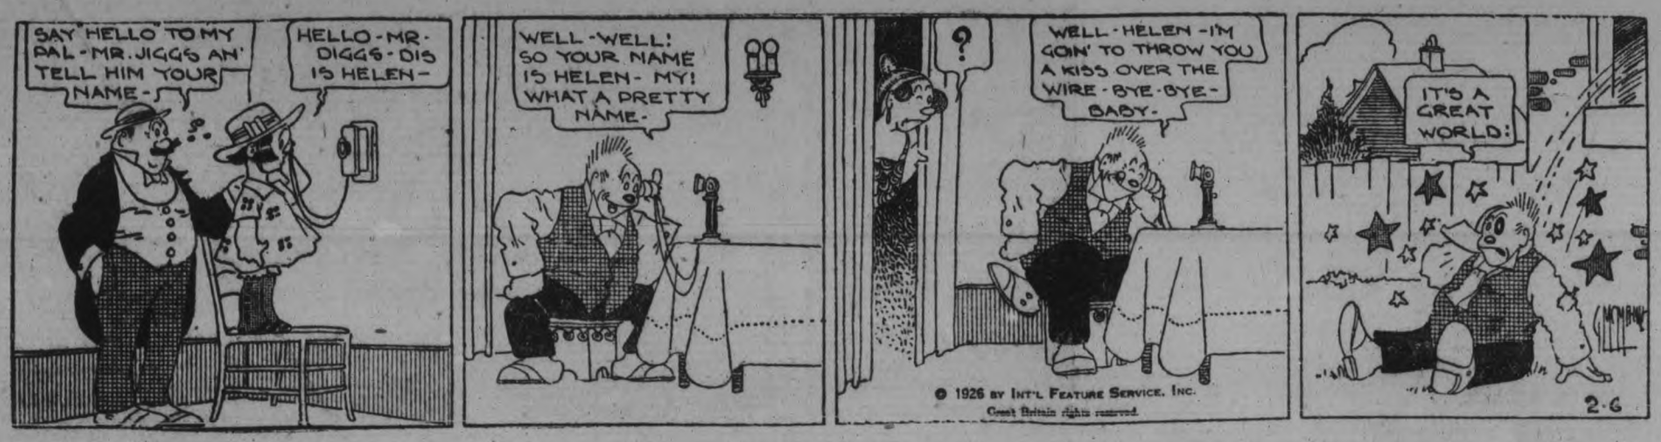
"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus



A Fallacy Exploded!

On Saturday The Examiner published a letter signed by "An Old Exhibitor," in which the conduct of the Peterborough Exhibition was censured, and the proposal made to take all the money expended on attractions and invest it in a purely Agricultural show.

It was a strange thing to do—that publishing of a condemnatory letter on the same day that a campaign was started to attract new members to the Exhibition. But The Examiner believes The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition is desirous of carrying on this campaign in the same open manner in which all its activities have been discharged. Read that again. This will be the 26th Annual Exhibition, and never a whisper of scandal has touched the directorate, men who work without pay or recompense except that which comes from the knowledge of a task well done. There is nothing to conceal, and if anyone has an idea he can help in the work, he is cordially invited to hop in and get busy.

"An Old Exhibitor," whose name is witheld at his own request, has agricultural fair?" The balance sheet printed in The Examiner of January cascara up to his mouth when he can get the same dose in a sugar-coated pill? Some people could not be dragged to a purely agricultural show, even if Old Exhibitor used his prize drawing team. But when these people go to the Exhibition Grounds to see the attractions, they look at the stock, grain, and poultry, too. The pill is sugar-coated, but it is still a pill. And it is from thousands of people in this class that the money comes to pay the prizes on the agricultural exhibits.

"Old Exhibitor" also bemoans the amount paid for attractions. He says: "Why not take the $6,240.85 paid out for attractions, and have a real agricultural fair?" The balance sheet printed in The Exminer of January 20 certainly shows $6,240.85 paid for attractions, but that does not mean the Exhibition Board is wasting its substance in riotous living. Concessions, which certainly are not agricultural exhibits and would have to be wiped up under "Old Exhibitor's" plan, bring an income of $3,294.37. Setting one against the other—an INCOME from frivolity against an EXPENSE for frivolity—the cost is reduced to roughly $3,000. And few will contend that the attractions are not responsible for attracting a great proportion of the $11,862 received for gate admission. As a matter of fact, it must be admitted that the difference in attendance between 1924 and 1925 was due principally to the superior quality and variety of the attractions provided, because the class and quality of the purely agricultural exhibits were not remarkably higher, nor were they unduly stressed in publicity.

There are doubtless a few others who think with "Old Exhibitor" that the old order should return. If the argument set out here is not conclusive, to their minds, they are invited to sit down with the last annual report and figure out the method of financing by their plan, remembering that all paying amusements as well as all amusements paid for must be excluded if they are to be consistent and honest in their advocacy of a "purely agricultural fair."

"Old Exhibitor" has many suggestions, also, regarding classes in live stock which should be added to the prize list. The naming of classes and the apportionment of prizes is discussed by the directors at their annual meeting and at other meetings during the year—there will be one on Wednesday. Suggestions made at these meetings will be considered carefully.

Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has buildings—which "Old Exhibitor" will admit are purely agricultural—worth $47,707. It paid out in prizes last year $6,170, and for judging competition $90. Its attractions, as shown above, cost only $3,000. It was attended by 36,000 paying visitors. That is a record of which to be proud. It should make every man, be he old exhibitor or new pleasure-seeker, eager to associate himself with the men who are putting it across.

INSTALLATION OF MACHINERY STARTED AT CAMPBELLFORD

Quinte and Trent Power Company Power House Progressing.

BUILDING READY.

Plant Expected To Deliver Power in About Two Months.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 8. — A gang of men have started work putting in the machinery in the new power house which has been built by the Quinte and Trent Power Company, which is practically the same corporation as owns the paper mill here. The contract for the electrical fixtures has been awarded to Percy C. Denyes of this town who was formerly an engineer in the employ of the Hydro. The William Hamilton Company of Peterborough is putting in the water wheel and Charles Macfarlane is here overseeing this part of the work. Another expert from Peterborough who has been brought here is William Pogue, who is in the employ of Mr. Denyes.

Work on this power house was started last summer when the contract for the erection of the building was let to John MacNabb of Trenton, the contractor who built the bridge at Lakefield. The building, a substantial stone structure, is completed with the exception of some details on the exterior, and these will be finished as soon as the weather moderates. The building is 26 x 36 with a ceiling 27 feet high.

It is expected that the new plant will be in operation in about two months' time. It will develop 1,000 horse-power and all of this extra supply will be utilized by the paper company, which plan additions to its present plant. The greater part of the new power will take the place of coal in generating steam in the paper mill. This mill gets its present supply of power from the town plant, being one of the municipality's biggest customers, but the building of the new structure will make no difference to the Water and Light Commissioners, as the members of that body have been assured by the company that the contract with the town for power will be continued.

The new plant is situated on the bank of the Trent River, almost directly in the rear of Power House No. 10, which is operated by the Hydro. One of the pecularities of the situation is that while the new institution is really a rival of the older plant, it will to a certain extent be run in conjunction with it, as the flow of water from the canal that passes through the Hydro building will be carried to the paper mill's electrical plant and serve the same purpose there. All that the company had to do to secure the necessary supply of water was to excavate a short raceway connecting its plant with that of the Hydro. The company's rights in this respect were guaranteed in an agreement made with the Dominion Government when the Trent Canal was built through here. When the work of building the new power house was started last summer, it was delayed for a short time when the Hydro disputed the company's right to proceed, but this difference of opinion was finally settled in the interests of the lattetr. The new raceway is not yet completed, but work on it will soon be resumed. The water will come down from the Hydro building through a steep decline with terrific force. All that is required for a tail race is an opening from the building into the river.

The substitution of electricity for coal as a generator of steam in the paper mill means that a huge electrical boiler will be installed in the latter building.

The paper mill people, who own a large plant in Frankford, are also putting up an electrical annex in that village and work there is well advanced.

KING GEORGE HONORS

some time ago he agreed to go to Paris at this time and made arrangements and appointments which could not be given up.

"To those who take interest in maintaining good relations between countries, what the men of he President Roosevelt did last week means more than it is easy to express. All of us realize that what America says and does is not is not always understood by England, and that what England says and does is not always understood by America.

"But there are certain deeds which cannot but be understood by the peoples of both lands, and they are of inestimable value in drawing together these two great countries and keeping their mutual understanding clear—an understanding upon which many of us feel the well-being of the present world depends.

"Deeds of valor, particularly valor at sea, always have been understood and appreciated at their values by these two great maritime countries. They speak louder than words, whether spoken or written, and I think I repeat without exaggeration that the bravery and gallantry of the men of the Presiden Roosevelt last week accomplished more for the good relations of these countries than can be easily estimated.

"May I not suggest to the families and friends of those brave men who lost their lives that it may be some source of comfort to feel that the deaths of Witanen and Heitman were no only a gallant sacrifice to humanity and duty, but also a true offering to civilization. No one would have had deeper appreciation of this than he after whom this ship was named, and means much to the English-speaking world that it is the officers and crew of the President Roosevelt to whom this great opportunity for service was given and so nobly met.

"You have been honored by the King, whose deep appreciation of your conduct Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister has testified to you. But this appreciation has spread throughout the whole country. The Embassy has received communications—resolutions from public bodies, letters from private citizens and subscriptions to a fund which is being raised. All these testify to the feeling of gratitude and admiration which has been stirred in he hearts of the people of England.

"There would not be time today to enumerate the tributes to you. The private letters and checks will be sent to Messrs. Runciman, who are in charge of the fund, and the public resolutions will be forwarded to the Department of State at Washington."

In the course of Mr. Miller's speech he related an incident, hitherto unpublished, to the effect that when the names of those rescued from the Antinoe were posted, it was discovered that one man was a relative of a woman passenger aboard the President Roosevelt.

Lord Apsley, President of the Southampton Pilots' Association, presented to Captain Fried an ebony walking stick in the name of the association.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting.

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his precription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside application. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McDermid & Jury to-day. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.

Resort To Ancient Laws For New Revenue Source

BERLIN, Feb. 8. — (United Press).—Half a million dollars in annuity claims under ancient laws have been lodged against the German Government by members of the old nobility. Among the strangest of these is one from Count Marushka Greifenklau for $25 annually for the loss of revenues through the abolition of serfdom and another from Dr. Stueklenberg for $5 annually for the loss of revenue under a mediaeval right to tax the Jews.

Present sufferings seem far greater to men than those they merely dread—Livy.

We look before and after,
And pine for what is not;
Our sincerest laughter
With some pain is fraught:

CLEVER STUNTS BY HIGH SCHOOL BOY

Staunton Archer Gave Magic Performance at Commencement.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 8. — A page from the story of the High School Commencement which appeared in The Examiner Saturday was accidentally omitted, and the number left out was one of the most popular on the programme. That was the clever sleight of hand work of Staunton Archer, who appears to have a real gift for legerdemain and who performed some amazing tricks in full sight of the audience and with a swiftness that it was impossible for the eye to follow. One of his feats was to cut open a lemon and take from it a handkerchief that he had borrowed from a lady in the audience and which was returned to her after being subjected to some wonderful changes by the clever young magician.

The performer was assisted in his stunt by L. Clegg, who, in Ethiopian disguise, furnished plenty of rich comedy, and by Bernard Blute, one of the junior students, who was perfectly at home in the glare of the footlights.

The seven students who presented the play, "Forty Miles an Hour," were trained in their difficult parts by Miss M. Smith, commercial teacher, and Miss K. Ferris, English teacher.

The entire entertainment, of which nothing but the most complimentary comments are heard, again demonstrates the thoroughness with which the work of the High School is carried on under the principalship of E. H. Greig, B.A.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into 'Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster; does the work without blister.

Rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

Every-day magic

Chairs that flop into beds . . . bags that suck up dirt . . . tiny ticking things that count all day long for you. Daylight any night just by pushing a button. A steam that never stops till you turn off a faucet. Any voice you want, talking to you from a cage on your desk or wall. Actions of yesterday, of people miles away, going on on a curtain before you. Stilled throats singing to you from discs; distant throats singing to you from nothing!

Uncanny, daily magic—this, due to national advertising. Advertisements have given you flashlights, telephones, typewriters, automobiles, cold creams, motion pictures. They have given you new eyes, new ears, new hands, new feet, new faces, new emotions. They have urged such wide use, so lowered prices, that almost wishes are autos, almost beggars can ride. Through advertisements you've laid down the shovel and the hoe. You can buy a whole harvest ready-to-eat in cans. You've hung up the fiddle and the bow, for a radio. There's little old-time work left in this age of amazing short-cuts.

A VETERAN PASSES.

The township of Otonabee has lost one of its outstanding residents and this district one of its best known farmers in the death of Joshua Smithson, who passed away on Friday.

For sixty years Mr. Smithson, coming into the township at the age of twenty-six years, was a resident of Otonabee, and he had long since been a well-known figure throughout the whole district, particularly in any movement or organization in which the welfare of the agricultural community was at stake.

Even the claims of advancing age did not wholly restrain his activities in this respect, for only last fall Mr. Smithson officiated as one of the judges at the International Ploughing Matches at Brockville, his appointment being a tribute to his splendid record of service.

Men of his calibre have played a great part in the development of Ontario.

Through lean years and fat years, through bad seasons and good, they have carried on, ever improving their farms, adding to the national wealth by their production.

The passing of such veterans in answer to the call that none can escape brings sorrow even to those who had no personal acquaintance with them.

BE ONE OF THE 1,500.

The chief reason why the Examiner feels confident that the citizens of Peterboro and the district will respond to the appeal of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition for a membership of 1,500 is the desire that the average individual has to feel that he has an active interest in and a real share of the glory of achievement in a successful institution.

The Peterboro Exhibition is essentially a community enterprise.

It has scored a success of large proportions because of the energy, vision and courage of its management, and because of the fine support of the people.

There is reason to feel now that throughout this district there must be many people who are proud of the Exhibition and anxious to associate themselves with it more actively than before.

Instead of doing their boosting from outside, they would like to feel that they are units in the machinery that has brought about such splendid results, as exemplified by last year's 36,000 attendance record and the broadening out of the Exhibition this year to the status of a week's Fair.

The present campaign offers an opportunity for all such people to achieve their desire.

They are cordially invited to become members of the big family of Exhibition workers and boosters, and to lend their enthusiasm to the efforts being made to make the 1926 Exhibition the greatest of all.

Use the Examiner's application form—now—and become one of the 1,500.

CITY AND COUNTRY.

Representative farmers of the district were guests of the Peterboro Rotary Club at luncheon today, the affair being arranged as Rotary's contribution toward a better understanding and feeling between farmer and city dweller.

Several weeks ago a similar luncheon was held by the Kiwanis Club, and there is no doubt that the coming together at such gatherings of representatives of the urban and rural population of the county will have a very beneficial effect.

One or two functions of this kind, however, while serving excellently to break the ice and bring the two close together, will not establish the complete entente that is desirable.

The start made at these gatherings should be followed up, the acquaintances formed developed, and an honest and sincere effort made on the part of the city man to understand the viewpoint of his neighbor in the country and of the farmer to appreciate the fact that the business man also has his troubles and problems.

There is no logical reason why there should be a chasm between these two classes of people, who are alike in nationality, language and education and in their common love for Canada.

The urban fallacy of thinking of all farmers as close-fisted and narrow-minded, and the rural mistake of regarding city people as lazy and pleasure-mad, can be made to disappear so far as this district is concerned if the opening provided by the Rotary and Kiwanis effort is used to advantage.

THE SMUGGLING EVIL.

Whether fully substantiated or not the damaging charge of gross maladministration of the Customs Department by the Federal Government brings before business in very definite form one of the factors responsible for bad business during recent years. It is common knowledge that smuggling is going on on an extensive scale on the Canadian-United States border at all times, but that this lawlessness was organized on so magnificent a scale, possibly few imagined. The charge is of such graveness that it must be either disproven or substantiated. It is the feeling of business that the elimination of this burden would be a long step towards industrial recovery.

That the public exchequer lost something like $30,000,000 through smuggling is a disastrous situation in itself, if true. It is not the worst side of the matter, however. Business is constantly subjected to the sapping effect of this well-organized, criminal competition. As stated by the Hon. Mr. Stevens, author of the charge, "truck loads of smuggled goods are crossing the line openly, brazenly, within the knowledge of everybody—liquor south, merchandise north . . . prison-made overalls and cotton goods from the United States coming in truck loads and car loads—car loads of liquor going out and merchandise coming in. This means that the measure of protection which the Canadian people are supporting for the sake of establishing new industries and placing the country upon a sound footing is being defeated for the benefit of a few criminals and their accomplices. A small margin of protection is sufficient to allow of certain industries operating at a profit, while the lack of it frequently drives a number of less profitable concerns out of business. Dumping smuggled goods into the Canadian market to sell at lower than market prices has the same effect upon business and industry as the withdrawal of tariff protection, but it benefits only a few lawbreakers. If the figures presented in Parliament this week are anywhere near correct, the volume of smuggling which goes on constantly is sufficient to keep the industries affected in constant depression. It was charged that $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 worth of smuggled silks alone cross the Quebec border every year.

A business expert in the United States said recently that theft and other forms of crime cost the Government something like five billion dollars every year. It would be impossible to arrive at the actual cost of this smuggling to Canada each year, but one can form an estimate, assuming the correctness of the figures given in the House. For the past calendar year the amount of duty collected on imports amounted to $137,858,088. This represented a percentage of 24.6 on the country's dutiable imports, which totalled $561,061,127, and a percentage of 15.5 on all imports. Since smuggling takes place only in the case of dutiable goods, and, presumably, such forbidden products as prison-made goods, one can see how large a proportion of our market is affected. The volume of goods, according to this analysis, is sufficient to account for the difference between business prosperity and depression in certain lines. The clearing up of the situation would remove a tremendous handicap from Canadian business.—Financial Post.

HOW THE "RADIO EYE" SAVED LIFE.

A most interesting feature of the thrilling rescue of the crew of the steamer "Antinoe" by the officers and men of the American Atlantic liner "President Roosevelt" was the part played by that wonderful development of science, the "radio compass." Of this one of the despatches said:

"Despite mistaken directions the radio compass enabled the 'President Roosevelt' to find the position of the British freighter 'Antinoe' and to save her 25 men. The compass indicated the exact direction from which the SOS from the 'Antinoe' came, although she had specified her position 100 miles wrong. Similarly the 'Alkaid' was located by the 'Westphalian' by the radio compass."

The Journal applied to Lieut.-Commander Edwards—known to all radio fans as the very efficient head of the radio telegraph branch of the Department of Marine whose headquarters is in Ottawa—for some more precise information about the radio compass. He has complied with the following memorandum:

"Navigation is by no means an exact science and so many are the small errors which may creep into the different observations, that it is a tribute to the ceaseless vigilance of navigators that casualties are so few.

"To ascertain his position the navigator is dependent on his chronometer on the sun and the stars, and when the sky is obscured for days by fog or clouds he must depend on dead reckoning.

"An ocean current may vary from five to forty miles a day, from time to time, due to causes at positions remote from the position of the ship, and of which the navigator cannot be informed.

"To assist the navigator, inventors have therefore turned to the radio waves which, like the rays of light, travel in a straight line, and they have developed the radio eye or direction finder, which will not only detect these waves, but also indicate the direction of the source from which they emanate.

"In its simplest form, the direction finder consists of a coil of wire wound around a frame, about six feet square, this frame being capable of rotation on a vertical axis. Secured to the bottom of the coil is a pointer and underneath this a scale of 360 degrees. Connected with the coil is a radio receiving set, tuned to the direction finding wave of 800 metres.

"When signals are being received from some point, the coil is rotated, and it will be found that the signals rise to the maximum at one point and completely disappear at another. Signals are a maximum when the coil is laid directly in the line of the incoming wave, and they register zero when the coil is laid at right angles to it.

"Starting with this simple instrument, radio engineers have developed the apparatus until it can pick up a wave from a station 200 miles away, and indicate the bearing within 1 degree.

"On the earlier instrument, it was only possible to determine the line of bearing—that is to say, the wave might be coming either directly from the north or the south—but with the modern instruments it is possible to also ascertain the sense and to find out whether the signal is coming from the north or from the south.

"For the location of a position—without actually following the line as aforesaid—it is necessary to use two stations. The Canadian Government have been operating seven stations on the East Coast for the last seven years, and these stations, working together, can locate a ship with a great degree of accuracy, and thus enable a navigator to make his landfall with assurance.

"The application of direction finders aboard ship is progressing, and while they have perhaps not attained quite the degree of accuracy which applies at the shore stations, they are rapidly approaching it, and in the meantime many of the passenger liners are being equipped."

In the case of the "Antinoe," the actual operation of the radio compass was, therefore, something like this. The distressed ship in her SOS gave her approximate location; the captain of the "President Roosevelt" steered his ship in that direction. But after proceeding some distance his radio operator reported that the sound waves from the "Antinoe" were coming in from a point so many degrees off the "Roosevelt's" course, which was accordingly changed to conform. It was then an easy thing for the "Roosevelt" to keep on that line, for directly she got off it or if the position of the "Antinoe" changed—so long as her radio kept working—the radio compass on the "Roosevelt" would have indicated it. The "Roosevelt" was drawn, as by a magnet so to speak, to the sinking vessel which was in a position 100 miles away from where her captain supposed he was.

One of the amazing wonders of the radio is its extraordinary simplicity.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It has been ruled by Speaker Lemieux that it is unparliamentary for a member of Parliament to refer to other members as rubber stamps. The public, however, is not restrained by the ruling.

Prince Albert will appreciate the novelty of being on the map in some other way than through the medium of the weather reports.

BRIDGING THE DESERT

The Arabian desert between Bagdad and Bayreuth, a stretch of country as trackless as the Sahara, has been bridged by the ubiquitous automobile. A regular weekly service is run between the two cities by the Navin Bros.' Overland Desert Transport. Largely owing to the efforts of two Canadians, Messrsfi Lumsden and Greene, the undertaking has been made a success. At top left are seen some of the Arabs near Bagdad, who still marvel at the intrepidity of the Britishers in crossing the waterless waste. At top right is seen a motor caravan ready to leave Bagdad for the six hundred mile journey to Bayreuth. Below are the offices of Messrs. Lumsden and Greene, the Bagdad agents for the service.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SECRET (?) OF SUCCESS.

Years of experience and much special study have taught me the fallacy, the foolishness of believing that any man can accomplish anything just because he thinks he can. "He can who thinks he can" is largely bunk.

Most any man can actually accomplish much more than he thinks he will, therefore, if is a wise plan to think "will" and not think "can't."

Almost any man can do more in almost any line than he is doing if he will put behind his faith more action, more pep, more perseverance. But to tell a Stevedore that he can become a statesman is trying to turn a good freight handler into a poor figurehead.

With Jefferson's statement that "all men are created equal," I beg to differ. Jefferson meant that all opportunities are equally offered.

Some men surpass other men in mental or physical fitness. Some men have opportunities thrust upon them while other men get a lemon. The time, the place, the thing, and the man have much to do with permanent success.

Think you will and probably you will do twice or three times as much as you are now doing.

Be hopefully reasonable and you will be helpfully resourceful. Be cheerfully sensible and you will be co-operatively successful.

Think you can, but what you think is but a dream until you awaken action. There can be only one proof of ability and that proof is—action.

Shakespeare said it all in ten words: "Be great in act, as you have been in thought."

It is well to think, but wiser to act, after you think. The terrible thing is to see ignorance in action, but the crime of a century is to see so many men of real ability not in action.

The Silent Partner.

LEAGUE DEBATE AT BAILIEBORO

Country Not Better Environment For Character the Decision.

DRAWING ICE.

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 8 — The regular weekly meeting of the Bailieboro Epworth League, was held as usual in the church on Tuesday evening, in the form of a social evening, under the auspices of the social and literary department. Miss Kathleen Barnard was leader for the meeting, and after the devotional exercises were concluded a splendid program was enjoyed.

The principal item of the program was a debate, resolved "That the country affords a better opportunity for deevlopment of character than the city." The affirmative was upheld by Mrs. Jewison and Fred Barnard, while the negative was dealt with by Miss May Earle and Aylmer Dawson. Both sides went into full details on the subject and many excellent points were brought to light. Each speaker was given ten minutes in which he or she were to give their paper, and the leader of the affirmative was given three minutes to reply. The debaters held some real heated discussions, and the debate was made interesting as well as causing much merriment through the humorous points brought out.

The judges, who were Mr. Roy Rutherford for the affirmative, Mr. McClain for the negative, and Mr. Will Lang acting as neutral judge, gave the decision in favour of the negative.

During the program an excellent duet was rendered by Misses Dorothy Falls and Margaret Falls, while Rev. Foley gave an interesting reading. Another duet was then enjoyed rendered by Mr. and Mrs. N. Thompson.

Homemade candy was then passed around and the meeting came to a colse with the Epworth League benediction.

Owing to the friends of the Anglican church Guild, holding their annual play on Tuesday evening of next week it was decided to hold the next week's meeting on Thursday evening, under the direction of the Missionary Vice President. The pastor will show lantern slides of the misison fields with their inhabitants of China, and lecture upon the mission fields.

During the winter the Bailieboro Epworth League have been holding very interesting weekly meetings, and are endeavouring to make every meeting worth while.

The residents of this locality are now busily enagaged in taking out their annual supply of ice out of Rice Lake. In the bay where they are taking the ice out, it is a good thickness.

Messrs. Albert Dawson and W. D. Hibbard took out their supply on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The many friends of Miss Charlotte Barnard will be pleased to learn that she is recovering favourably after having had a severe attack of scarlet fever in Lindsay hospital.

BLIND WIDOW RESCUED FROM POVERTY BY FINDING OF HUSBAND'S $20,000 HOARD

Aged Woman Unaware of S mall Fortune Discovered in Home by Administra tors—Husband Died a Week Ago.

COMFREY, Minn., Feb. 8. —(Canadian Press.)—Years spent in poverty ended in a measure of happiness Saturday for Mrs. Walter Hutton, 75 years old and blind, when a cedar chest containing $20,000 in currency, bonds and other papers, of which she had no knowledge, was found in her home here.

Death of Mrs. Hutton's husband a week ago yesterday resulted in the uncovering of the small fortune which he apparently had hoarded for years without telling his wife. He had worked when he could at odd job and put most of his earnings in hiding.

The Huttons lived in a small house here and when Mr. Hutton died the Probate Court appointed two men as administrators of his supposedly meagre estate, and to arrange for the care of Mrs. Hutton, who also is partially paralyzed.

Saturday the administrators found the cedar chest in a corner of the house. Breaking it open, they found $4,300 in currency, $4,000 in Liberty bonds, and $8,000 first mortgage, and a deed to some property here.

Arrangements have been made to provide a nurse and other comforts for Mrs. Hutton.

SUBSIDY SUBJECT OF BITTER ATTACK

Hodges Calls It Blight and Curse—No Blessing to British.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(United Press).—The nationalization of British coal mines as sought by a group of trade union federations is being fought by Secretary Frank Hodges of the Miners' International Federation. He told the United Press in an interview that the nationalization would engender hardships for the miners of other countries without remedying the world's difficulties. Hodges also opposed the subsidy which is now being granted by the British Government to "tide over" the coal industry in the wake of last year's threat of the miners to cause a national strike.

"The subsidy," he said, "is a blight and a curse to international interests and no blessing to the British. Wages are kept up and prices come down, but what the taxpayer gains in buying coal he loses in the increased taxation necessary to supply the subsidy."

CLAIM NEW LAND

DETROIT, Feb. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Any new land discovered in the Arctic by Major Thomas G. Lampsier or Capt. George H. Wilkins will be claimed for the United States of America, "and there will be no dispute about that country's right to claim it," Vilhjalmar Stefanssen, famous Arctic explorer, said today.

"I know of no case where discovery rights were questioned, because the man in command of the expedition was an alien, even when those who outfitted the expedition were private nationals rather than the Government."

PLEDGE BROKEN BY MACDONALD, BURGESS AVERS

Deserted His Post and Electors, Says Candidate Opposing King.

200 AT MEETING

Prince Albert Called Upon Six Times to Elect Non-Resident.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—Charles Macdonald, former member of Parliament for Prince Albert, who resigned his seat to enable Premier Mackenzie King to contest the constituency, was accused of "deserting his post and throwing down the people of Prince Albert," by J. Slater, speaking on behalf of D. L. Burgess, independent candidate in the coming by-election, at a campaign meeting here Saturday night. Mr. Burgess protested against the candidacy of Premier King.

"I am no politician," said Mr. Burgess in his opening remarks. "I stand as a protest against the way the seat was handed by C. Macdonald, of Vancouver, to Premier King. Since when does the seat belong to an elected representative in such a manner that he can pass it around? Statements of the Liberal executive at the time the step was taken would lead one to believe it knew nothing of the matter. Decisions made by the Liberal executive to support King and the Progressives and by the Conservatives not to oppose him were made by twenty men and the electors of the constituency ignored. During the election, Mr. Macdonald made several pledges to the people of the constituency. He went to Ottawa, but before he raised his voice on your behalf, he resigned, and he now asks you to elect the Premier."

Mr. Burgess continued by stating that Prince Albert electors had been called upon six times to elect a non-resident member and that "the Government may not know where Prince Albert is as its representative is so often non-resident." He said that he appealed for support solely on principles and repeated his declaration that, if elected, he would not be "at the beck and call of any party."

About 200 persons attended the meeting.

When dining tables first came into use diners reclined on them and ate with their fingers.

New Explanation of Music Company Failure.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 8. —(Canadian Press.) — The session Saturday of the preliminary hearing into charges of theft against Joseph Xavier Hearst, president of the Hearst Music Publishing Company of Canada, brought out an entirely new reason for the failure of the company, he had interviewed thousands of dollars to Canadian investors.

Raymond Kersham, who holds 120 shares in the defunct concern, testified that following the failure of the comupany, he had interviewed Hearst and that Hearst had told him that an employee of the company at Chicago "had run off with the major portion" of the firm's capital and that hoping to be able to repay the shareholders Hearst "took a gamble on the stock exchange and lost the rest."

In explanation of his statement, Kersham told the court that Hearst had stated that a major portion of the business of the concern had been carried on south of the border. The hearing will continue on Monday.

MacDonald Disagrees With Philip Snowden's Opinions

LONDON, Feb. 8. —(Canadian Press Cables.) — After his return from a holiday in Ceylon, Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party in the House of Commons, declared Sunday that he failed to find anything in Philip Snowden's recent speech to justify speculation regarding an alliance between the Liberal and Labor parties based on an agricultural policy. Mr. Snowden was acting leader of the labor party during Mr. MacDonald's absence.

"I was never more surprised than when I opened a newspaper to see gorgeous accounts of the happy relations politically brought about and of how glad I had been," he observed. "I half expected to see reporters with garlands from the wedding bouquet. However, I shall be in the House of Commons Monday when I shall see what really has been happening."

RECKLESSNESS CAUSE OF SLANG

Etymologists Say People Don't Care What They Say.

"SO'S YOUR OLD MAN"

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Urchin of American idiom, the ultimate of license in language, ready-made wise cracks for any and all occasions—that's "So's your old man."

Everybody saying it; nobody knows exactly why.

From coast to coast it has "caught on," according to reports to Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, noted dictionary editor, and other New York etymologists.

Probably it has been translated by now into the Scandinavian, Liberian and Esperanto.

It echoes in ballroom and Bowery. Pastors use it in the pulpit. Radio broadcasters nightly send it singing around the earth.

No "idiotism" since "Ish ka bibble" has so gripped the fickle popular fancy.

And "Ish ka bibble", by comparison, is as full of tangible meaning as a sardine can is full of fish.

"We are living," discusses Vizetelly, "in an era of the most reckless abandoned corruption of our native tongue.

"Such an era has followed every great war.

"A public overwrought by unusual strain seeks an outlet in expression as well as in action.

"Pent-up emotions throw off restraints of customs in language as well as in conduct.

"People feel entitled to coin any word, any expression that they want to, regardless of whether there is sanction for it in grammar, literature, or logic.

"And so here, there, everywhere we begin to hear such nonsense as 'So's your old man.'"

Prof. Walter S. Pitkin of Columbia University hazards the supplementary analysis that wise cracks are the national hobby of the day; that to those less nimble of wit, original cracks sometimes aren't forthcoming readily; and that in such an exigency, "So's your old man" fills the bill. Hence the public favor it enjoys.

But the days of "So's your old man" are numbered, adds Dr. Vizetelly. This by the same immutable law that sooner or later consigns popular songs to oblivion.

"Two or three years ago," illustrates the dictionary expert, "we had an epidemic of so-called 'flapper slang.' We had 'airedale' for a man who was ugly and unprepossessing; 'mad money' for a girl's carfare home; 'dimbox' for anyone who sought to patch up a quarrel; 'snuggle pup' for a frequenter of petting parties; and 'alarm clock' for a chaperon.

"You don't hear this flapper slang any longer. The flappers are talking English again."

And where did "So's your old man" come from

From across the footlights Dr. Vitzetelly imagines. It's in vaudeville that most such expressions get their start.

Somewhere or other in the cauldron of sprightly speech where brews the American vernacular, the succesor to "So's your old man" already is simmering, no doubt.

"What will it be?" says Dr. Vizetelly. "Ask me when the Pyramids will fall down."

REPORTS TO BOARD OF EDUCATION

School Inspector.

In accordance with the regulations of the Education Department, Public School Inspector A. Mowat submitted this report on the Public Schools of the city for the year 1925.

1. Attendance.

During the past three years, there has been little change in the number of pupils enrolled in the Public Schools.

The regularity of attendance during 1925 was good, the average for the year being over 90%.

The enrolled attendance at each school was as follows:

Prince of Wales	714
Central	615
King Edward	573
Queen Mary	532
Queen Alexandra	445
King George	424
South Central	87
	3390

2. Accommodation.

The accommodation is most satisfactory. The number of pupils per teacher is not too great. No additional rooms were opened during the year.

The grounds of the King George school were much improved and all the school buildings received careful attention. They are comfortable and sanitary and are being well looked after.

3. The Teaching Staff.

The Board lost, at midsummer, an unusual number of experienced and capable teachers. Nearly all of them left the profession. Those who resigned were: Misses Erskine, Nichol, Yelland, Collinson, Rowe, Lapp, Hunter and Williams.

I am pleased to be able to report that an increasing number of the teachers are improving their academic and professional standing, and all the teachers have taken a deep interest in their work. Nearly one third of the staff now hold First Class academic standing or its equivalent, the others holding Second Class or Kindergarten Primary certificates.

4. The Pupils.

The Board's provision for the physical and mental welfare of the pupils is being carefully observed. They are receiving medical and dental care; supervised play and games are provided for them, and the Junior Red Cross programme of health is gradually being introduced into all the junior grades. Cadet training has been provided for the senior boys.

The mental progress of the pupils has also been satisfactory. The number of pupils passing the Entrance Examination is increasing and the average age of these pupils is decreasing. At the last Entrance Examination, 240 public school pupils passed, the largest number in the history of the schools.

5. The Course of Study.

In accordance with the new regulations of the Education Department it is now possible for the average student in the public schools to complete the eight year course in seven years, and the more brilliant students in a shorter period of time.

The regulation requiring study periods in the senior forms is proving of advantage to the pupils. In supervising their work during these periods, the teacher is able to give more individual attention than otherwise would be possible, and the pupils are developing self-reliance and initiative.

6. The Special Subjects.

The knowledge and skill gained in school should enable the pupils to be of service to society when they leave school, and the training and habits acquired at school should make them companionable.

This is the justification for the special subjects—Art, Music, Household Science, Sewing and Manual Training.

These subjects have been carefully taught and supervised throughout the year.

Good work has been done in the Auxiliary class throughout the year.

7. The Adolescent Act.

The Attendance Officer has so administered the Adolescent Attendance Act that it has caused no trouble either in the homes or in the schools.

During 1925 he granted 65 permits, 46 of which were to public school pupils. This number included all whose help or wages were needed by their parents. If any of these lost their jobs and could not secure other satisfactory ones, they had to return to school, so that this class of pupil was either at school or at work.

Nor are our schools becoming filled with over-age pupils. In 1925 there was an actual decrease in the number of such pupils in our schools. There are always a few pupils in any school system that are unable to profit by the courses offered them, but these are less than two per cent. of the total attendance.

I find parents loth to put their children to work at too early an age. They realize that it is these who become unskilled workers and the unskilled worker occupies rather an unenviable position.

Report of Supervision Committee.

Regarding the communication from Mr. Albert Mills, asking that his children be allowed to attend the City Schools as resident pupils, and which was referred to your Supervision Committee, we beg to recommend that, as Mr. Mills has not produced sufficient evidence that he is the owner of the required amount of property in the city, that no action be taken.

Respectfully submitted,

DR. H. M. YELLAND, Chairman.

CHAPTER X.

Jimmy and Detective Mooney left Fogarty, climbed into a taxicab, gave the driver the address Fogarty had shown them and settled back on the leather cushions.

Well, Rand, our job's pretty near done. By God, I knew that handkerchief meant something!"

Mooney," said Jimmy. "Do you think this woman killed my father? I don't."

Mooney patted him on the arm. "I know how you feel, Rand. You just can't square yourself with the fact that there was a woman mixed up in it. You know your father wasn't that kind. Isn't that it."

Rand nodded.

"Well, you'll probably get more than one jolt out of this before you're through. You can't get away from the fact that this Maynard woman was mixed up in the murder. Fogarty gives her his theater ticket. She says she's leaving the next day for Grafton. They find the ticket, stub in the room—and a woman's handkerchief.

"Mind, I'm not sayin' she committed the murder. But she was in the room. She knows who did it. . . . Well, here we are. I'll pile out and see if she lives here."

The cab had stopped. Mooney sprang out and ran into an apartment building. . . . In a few minutes he was back. He gave the driver an address and climbed into the taxi.

"Just as I thought," he commented. "Doesn't live there any more. Moved away two weeks ago. The janitor gave me her forwarding address."

The cab stopped again. This time Jimmy jumped out with Mooney. They found themselves on the porch of a rooming house. "Quite a comedown from that apartment," observed Mooney. "Probably found it hard to keep up with the rent, being out of a job."

He rang the bell. "The landlady will like this," he said. "It's after midnight."

A window opened on the second floor. . . . Jimmy and the detective were down off the porch. A woman's head thrust itself out of the window.

"Lady live here by the name of Olga Maynard?" called Mooney.

"No. She moved out a week ago."

"Say where she was goin'?"

"She said she was leaving town." The window losed with a bang.

The night yielded them nothing more. They went back to Fogarty's room, where that worthy furnished them with a description of Olga Maynard.

"Nothing more that I can do here," Mooney said to Jimmy later. "I'm taking the train tomorrow back to Grafton and see if I can run down the Maynard woman there. Before I go I'll report to the chief of police here and leave the handkerchief and ticket with him. And here's a card of introduction to the chief in case you run into a jam while you're here. You're staying, I take it?"

"I'm seeing it through, Mooney."

The next morning Jimmy called at the offices of the Q. and R. Railroad.

"You see," he said to Mary Lowell, "it didn't take me long to take advantage of your offer. I can use that job—if there's one here."

She seemed pleased to see him. "I'm glad you did, Mr. Rand. I spoke about you to Mr. Hilton—he's the chief clerk—and he said to show you in if you came."

Mr. Hilton thought there was something he could do. "You came pretty well recommended," he added, turning toward Mary and smiling.

She blushed, and started typing furiously.

"How much education have you had?" asked the chief clerk.

"Two years of college. I didn't graduate. I enlisted during the war, and when it was over I didn't go back to school."

"What branch?"

"Air service."

"I see." Hilton surveyed the tall figure for a moment, then "I think I'll take you on, Rand. Twenty-five a week is all I can give you to start. When can you begin?"

"I'm ready to take my coat off right now, Mr. Hilton."

The passing days brought no word from Mooney, nor did they bring Rand any success in his search for Olga Maynard. Jimmy was a frequent visitor at police headquarters, where he had been referred by the chief to Lieutenant O'Day, a gruff old war horse whom Jimmy, nevertheless, liked instantly. . . .

He saw much of Mary. They had even met outside one day during lunch hour—quite accidentally—and had eaten together, she insisting on paying her own check.

He asked her to let him call. He had been trying for days to summon enough courage to ask her, and when he did he cursed himself for his schoolboy shyness and stammering.

"Why certainly," she said warmly, and made him sorry he hadn't asked her before.

Her mother was a widow. Her chief complaint against life, he found when he called, was the fact that Mary had to work.

The Lowells, he gathered from her conversation, had once "amounted to something."

"Mother does live so much in the past," Mary confided to Jimmy later. "When father was living we never thought about money. There seemed to be plenty of it. He died suddenly, and his affairs were not in the best of shape. What little money was left after things had been settled was soon gone. It was necessary for me to leave school. Mother thinks it perfectly dreadful to have to depend on me for support. . . . I rather like it myself. I'm perfectly thrilled about my work."

. . . Jimmy got the impression of hostility on the part of Mrs. Lowell. He felt somehow that she hoped Mary would marry well—someone with a lot of money. . . . He felt uncomfortable in her presence.

A few nights later he took Mary to the theater.

"Don't let's go home just yet," he suggested afterward. Being alone with her had made him unaccountably gay. "I feel like dissipating. What do you say if we go some place and get a bite to eat and dance?"

"Lovely," she agreed. "We'll go to the Cafe Madrid. The music there is wonderful."

They found the Madrid filled with a noisy crowd; they were lucky to get a table.

"You were right about the music," he declared when they were on the floor . . . . His arm was around her waist—he was breathing the fragrance of her hair. . . . He thrilled.

She seemed instinctively to anticipate every move he made—every suggestion of a step. He clamored vainly for an encore when the orchestra stopped playing.

"You seem as clever at dancing as you are at rescuing young ladies," she bantered when they were back at their table.

"Lady," he said, "the young man is speechless. I have been trying for two minutes to think of words to describe something—and there aren't any such words. . . . You dance like a—like a breath. There—that's as close as I can come."

She laughed and impulsively reached over and missed his hair with her hand—then immediately drew away in confusion. She blushed.

"Mr. Rand," she said, "You—"

"Not Mr. Rand," he interrupted. "Jimmy. I've already decided to call you Mary. Eventually, you know. Why not now?"

"I don't think Jimmy suits you," she said. "It's so—so diminutive. I think Jim fits you better. You're too big to be called Jimmy; it's too boyish. I was thinking, though, of what you said that night about hoping you wouldn't have to stay in Chicago. You've never told me what brought you here from Grafton."

He hesitated. "I've decided not to tell you just yet," he said. "Please," he urged at her look of inquiry, and took her hand, "please don't think it's a secret I'm afraid to confide in you. Let me tell you later."

She shrugged. "I'm sure it's not necessary." She withdrew her hand. There was an awkward pause.

In the silence that followed Jimmy heard clearly the snatches of conversation from an adjacent table. Two men were chatting idly over their coffee.

" . . . Across the room there," he heard one say. "The blond. See her? Hang it, what's her name now? Oh, devil take it, I can never think of a name when I want to."

At the next words Jimmy started. The spoon that he had been toying with fell with a clatter to the floor.

"I've got it," one of the men was saying. "Maynard—that's her name, Olga Maynard. Some dame!—eh?"

TONGUE-TWISTERS ONE POLICE PLAN

For Tests to Find Out Whether Men Are Sober.

By MILTON BRONNER.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—When a man's full of hooch how are you going to test it and prove it?

That may not deeply interest dry America, but over here in wet England and dripping Scotland and damp Wales it's a matter of more than academic concern. The police surgeons and the police magistrates of all the big cities want to know.

"Smell the man's breath," said some experienced wives.

"No good," replied the police. "Some men smell like a distillery in full operation when they've only had one drink."

"Give him some tongue-twisters to say," suggested some of the police station sergeants in charge. And these were the ones most recommended:

"Terminological inexactitude.

"Truly rural.

"Methodist Episcopal.

"West Register street.

"Sixty-sixth Battery of Artillery.

"She sells seashells by the seashore."

At once one of the senior doctors at Westminster Hospital branded this as unfair. It would be all very well to try these on schoolmasters, elocutionists and members of learned professions, but the ordinary man, charged with drunkenness by the police, would be in such a state of emotional upset that he would fail, even though stone sober.

Romberg Test.

"All right," said others, "give him the Romberg test—

"Make him put heel and toes together, look up at the ceiling and close the eyes without swaying.

"Make him walk around a room without touching the walls.

"Make him walk a straight chalk line, turn suddenly at the end of the line and return.

"Make him hold one leg off the ground without wobbling."

"Rotten," said some London and Glasgow doctors; "quite a number of sober people might fail to do these mild acrobatic feats when excited by their arrest. Besides, a man with locomotor ataxia or giddiness, due to a quite innocent liver trouble, might reel around and be charged with being drunk."

Amid all this encircling gloom the British Medical Association has therefore decided to appoint a committee of experts whose object it will be to shed light. They are to try to produce a series of fair tests which will enable the police surgeons to decide whether an arrested person is really drunk.

The committee will consist of four former officers of the association—Sir Jenner Verrall, Dr. Forthergill, Dr. Bone and Dr. Turner; Drs. P. B. Spurgin, A. R. Moore, T. Rose and W. J. Keats, representing the Association of Metropolitan Police Surgeons; police surgeons from Liverpool and Birmingham; two magistrates, and two medical practitioners with special scientific knowledge of drunken men, those suggested being Sir William Wilcox and Dr. Farquhar Buzzard.

This committee of specialists is to report back to the British Medical Association. It is hoped to produce a series of tests which will be infallible for everything except Russian vodka and Serbian slivnitza.

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair By Washing It

When you wash children's hair, be careful what you use. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store, and a few ounces will last for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

LAWS QUOTED.

Provisions in Criminal Code For Benefit of Dumb Brutes.

R. C. Smith has submitted a report of his activities as Inspector for the Humane Society which shows that in the brief period since his appointment he has been exceedingly busy and further indicates that there is a real field for endeavour in humane work. BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FARMERS' DAY AT ROTARY IS GREAT SUCCESS

Many Representative County Citizens Guests of Local Club.

A SPLENDID ADDRESS.

Prof. Bell Urges Better Education For Children of County.

Many reresentative farmers of the Peterboro district were guests of the Peterboro Rotary Club at luncheon at the Empress Hotel today and heard an eloquent plea from Professor Bell of the Kemptville Agricultural College for better education for farmers' sons and daughters.

The gathering was arranged by the Rotary Club at the suggestion of Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, as an effort toward promoting a better understanding between farmers and city dwellers and the arrangements were in charge of a committee composed of Rotarians Geo. A. Gillespie, chairman Gerald Wood and Hugh Bertram, who deserve credit for the splendid success of Farmers' Day.

President John Seels was in the chair, and among the farmer guests were G. B. Nicholls, Smith; A. J. Edmison, Smith; Bruce Johnson, North Monaghan; Peter Nicholls, Smith; J. O. Ball, Cavan; Garbutt Mann, Smith; Wm. Steinkrauss, Smith; B. Sanderson, North Monaghan; Wm. Thompson, Indian River; J. A. Jobe, Bridgenorth; F. McGregor, Smith; Thos. McIndoo, Cavan; Harry Webber, North Monaghan; Wm. Dawson, Otonabee; Allan Mann, Smith; Jack Comrie, Keene; J. P. Smith, Lakefield; J. A. Middleton, Smith; H. Quinn, Douro; Chas. Brown, Douro; Allen Wilson, Otonabee; S. S. Staples, Cavan; Gordon Mann, Smith; David Wood, Cavan; Lieut.-Col. T. D. Johnston, M.P.P., Otonabee; Walter McKee, Smith; ... Reid, Otonabee; R. A. Garbutt, Smith; Arthur Franks, Smith; Arthur Armstrong, Smith; R. T. Lillico, North Monaghan; W. Franks, North Monaghan; F. A. Eason, Keene; T. D. Young, North Monaghan; Wellington Burgess, Norwood; R. H. Graham, Lakefield; M. Coughlin, Douro; J. P. Flood, Ennismore; E. Corkery, Ennismore; Joseph Mann, Smith; Wm. Montgomery.

Other guests included R. Denne, President of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition Tom Brown and Rotarian F. R. Wilford of Lindsay.

The guests were received by a song of greeting from the Rotarians and a brief but hearty welcome by President John Seels, after which the speaker of the day was introduced by Rotarian G. A. Gillespie.

In doing so Rotarian Gillespie expressed his appreciation of the splendid response from the farmers of the club's invitation to be present.

Professor Bell, after referring to the desirability of a better understanding between urban and rural Canadians, said that he proposed to direct his remarks chiefly to the farmers present.

His address was full of meat for his listeners, and was followed with close attention.

The speaker emphasized the importance of farmers realizing the opportunities that were before them; of appreciating that their calling was a dignified and promising one. There were too many who were continually grumbling about conditions, thereby driving their sons and daughters away from the farm and he urged a more optimistic attitude. There were three classes of farmers,—one consisting of those who were no good to themselves or to anybody else; the second, farmers who prospered themselves but were of no help to those around them, and the third, composed of the many farmers who not only farmed successfully, but were good citizens.

In this connection, Professor Bell urged the necessity of a better education for the children of farmers. To be successful as farmers and citizens not only was a good public school education necessary, but the boys and girls should have the advantage of a proper high school training, especially in the English language, and in mathematics. Adequate education especially in English was of the greatest importance and very few farmers of today had received such an education, the speaker declared in stressing this point.

A very hearty vote of thanks was passed to Professor Bell.

Rotarian Dr. A. W. McPherson called attention to the Rotary work on behalf of crippled children and promised the service of the Rotary Club on behalf of any such children living in the country. He urged the different communities to organize committees to secure a list of those children in need of attention.

A vote of thanks on behalf of the farmers was passed by the guests, on motion of S. S. Staples, ex-M.P.P., Cavan, and Allan B. Mann of Smith.

During the gathering, Rotarian Chris. Graham referred to the Rotary Ice Carnival at Brock Street Rink next Monday, and the farmers were given a special invitation to be present.

Large Volume Of Selling Weakens New York Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—An unexpectedly large volume of brokers' loans outstanding, federal investigation of the recent food combines, and the calling of about $20,000,000 in loans by banks today, resulting in the marking up of call money to 5 1-2 per cent, induced a large volume of selling in today's stock market, which was distinctly weak by early afternoon.

Record Turnover In Mines With Most Stocks Strong

TORONTO, Feb. 8. — (Canadian Press). — The turnover on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning amounted to 735,612 shares, the record for a single session this year, and twice the ordinary turnover. Columbus Kirkland and Consolidated West Dome were the leaders, though a large number of stocks were heavily dealt in. Columbus advanced ¾ at 8 and West Dome 1¼ at 24 3-4. The leaders were generally strong. Vipond gained one at 196, Vickers 23 at 48, Kirkland Lake 5 at 122, Hunton ¾ at 14, and Beaver 4 at 5. Crown Reserve eased 1½ at 22, and Barry Hollinger 1½ at 42½.

One of the features was the heavy sale of Tough Oakes. Nearly seventy thousand shares were thrown on the market and the price fell nine points to 55, but later recovered to 59.

Firm Opening Followed By Recessions At Toronto

TORONTO, Feb. 8. — (Canadian Press).—After a generally firm opening, a number of stocks showed recessions on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, and at the morning close the gains were balanced by losses. British Columbia Fishing, a new leader in activity, was a strong spot, advancing 1½ at 63 3-4, a point below the session's high. Canners Preferred, Canada Steamships Preferred and Industrial Alcohol were firm. The latter touched 20, a quarter higher. Smelters eased 2 at 119, and Brazilian, a quarter at 92. City Dairy was 7-8 lower at 77. In the unlisted section, Noranda Mine sold down 18 cents at 17.50.

Selling Movement Sent Wheat Price Downward

CHICAGO, Feb. 8. — Canadian Press. — General selling with which the market here opened to-day found support lacking and led quickly to a decided set back in values. Liverpool quotations were lower and the amount of wheat afloat for Europe showed 3,768,000 bushels increase as compared with a week ago. Besides advices were at hand indicating favorable conditions for the new crop of domestic winter wheat. Chicago opening prices 1 to 2 1-8 cents off, May (new) 172½ to 173½ and July 152 to 152¼ were followed by a further drop, a good deal of selling being due to standing orders to stop losses at various fixed limits.

Corn and oats fell with wheat and as a result of continued liberal receipts of corn. After opening ¼c to 1c off, May 81½ to 82c, corn market underwent an additional sag. Oats started ¾c to 1¼c lower, May 41-3-4 to 42 5-8. Later the losses continued. Provisions were responsive to the weakness of hog values and of grain as well.

CHILDREN FED.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 8 (Canadian Press)—Reports of destitution and want received in recent days from all parts of the mining region where the strike prevails were followed yesterday by the statement of Deputy Coroner Sener that Mrs. Mary Harrington of Ashland had died of actual starvation. The dead woman's husband had left the district to seek employment elsewhere. PREPARING FOR FLIGHT TO POLE

Supplies For Wilkins' Expedition To Go Forward Shortly.

USE SNOW MOTOR.

NEENA, Alaska, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—With a sudden drop in temperature, breaking the spell of unusually mild weather, preparations were going forward rapidly today for the overland trek of the Wilkins Polar expedition supply party to Point Barrow. Motor equipment and some of the supplies for the advance party have arrived. Gasoline and oils to fuel and lubricate the planes of the expedition in their attempted flight northward from Point Barrow over the Arctic Ocean are expected here February 17.

Shortly thereafter the supply party will set out, headed by Alexander Malcolm Smith, veteran dog team driver and explorer. Although at least one dog team will be taken along, the expedition will start with two gasoline snow motors hauling ten sleighs and fifteen tons of supplies.

Sourdoughs in this region are of the belief that the Malamute dog team eventually will be used if the supplies are to be landed at Point Barrow in time for the hop off of Captain George Hubert Wilkins in March or April.

"Kosher" according to the deputation, is a product killed, prepared and eaten in conformance with the ancient Mosaic law.

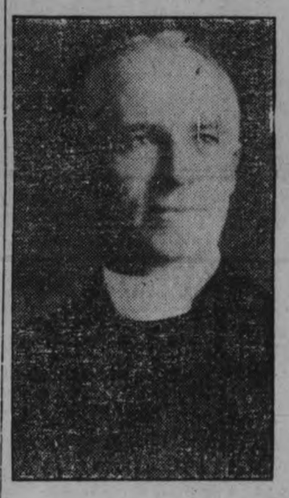
Premier Ferguson assured the deputation that he would give the request of the deputation consideration.

MANY DIE FROM RUBBING ALCOHOL

Rev. Ben Spence Comment on Decision of Brantford Jury.

Twenty-four deaths have been caused in Brantford in seven years by persons drinking this alcohol.

ONE MAN'S OPINION



REV. DR. R. C. BLAGRAVE.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave said today that an exhibition such as the one which Peterboro has held, is of great importance to any community. While some urban dwellers may be of the opinion that a city is self-sustaining, it is none the less true that it is dependent to a large extent on the wealth and progress of farming communities. Indeed, he continued, rural and urban districts are essentially inter-related.

The opportunities for competition and comparison which an exhibition provides, are valuable, because of improvements which naturally result. The manufacturers and farmers have a chance to investigate their mutual needs with the result that both industries benefit materially.

Social Side Important.

"The social side of the exhibition is an important factor and because this has been developed to a greater extent within recent years many visitors have been drawn within the exhibition gates who would not think of going down to see horses and cattle and machinery," said Dr. Blagrave. "Also," he added, "the social life of the country is linked up with the city for many find that they are standing upon common ground and not separated by conventionalities. I believe that the entertainment committee should be highly commended for the type of attractions which they have obtained in the past few years. Wonders have been accomplished and I believe that still greater wonders will come to pass because the directors seem to be imbued with a vision of progress. Time will find the importance of the event magnified in comparison with the broad extension of ideals."

"The support of the local people is necessary to help the directors attain the objective which they have set for this year although the time which has been added will help too."

Dr. Blagrave expressed himself as being in sympathy with the efforts of the directorate to obtain an increased membership.

Wipe meat and securely bind the two pieces together to make a "crown." Rub with salt and pepper. Peel and mince onions. Combine with bread crumbs, butter, celery, salt and pepper and egg slightly beaten. Heat milk and add enough to make moist, but not sticky. Fill crown of pork with stuffing and put into roaster. Roast two and one-half hours in a hot oven, basting frequently with the drippings in the pan. Remove to hot platter when done and cut away the cord. The meat will keep its shape after cooking. To serve cut between the ribs into the stuffing. Serve as many ribs with stuffing for each portion as preferred.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

A FEW NOVELTIES FOR THE COOK.

Novel tools for culinary use are constantly appearing in the shops.

Take, for instance, the variety offered in tiny pudding moulds, made of the best blocked tin so that they stand boiling. Plum, fig and other puddings are popular desserts so the moulds are much sought after. They are in the same shapes as the large ones, though there are a few in oblong shape with ornamental designs in the covers which are transferred to the tops of the puddings. For ice cream, there are lead moulds that are hinged and must be sealed when full with a strip of wax paper or a greased strip of cloth.

So many social affairs call for sandwhich serving that the fancy cutters are much in demand. They come, not alone in the card symbols for the bridge parties, but in stars, crescents, round with scalloped edge, shell-shaped, oblong and square. Two shapes may be cut from an ordinary slice of bread.

Individual jelly moulds for quick jellies are very popular, for they are decorative and also convenient to serve. Moulded puddings, hot and cold, jellied salads, meats and fish all appear in turn in these moulds. The china are considered the most sanitary moulds.

Almost all modern housewives use their rice ball nowadays. The ball is perforated and, when the rice is done, it may be lifted by the handle and placed in the oven to dry off a few minutes when it slips out on to a dish quite easily.

The frying pan family has increased in size recently and it takes several members now to satisfy the needs of the modern kitchen. There is the shallow, low, bowl-shaped pan that is used for egg cookery and also for making French pancakes. Then there is the kidney shaped omelette pan, single and double as desired, an iron pan with ttwo lips for making caramel and certain deep frying that does not require a kettle. Then there is the steel pan with fitted cover for smothering foods.

For cleaning lettuce and other leafy salads, there is nothing more convenient than the wire ball that stands on a sort of flanged foundation of the wire.

MYSTERIOUS TERMS USED IN KITCHEN

Lack of Scalloped Dish Prevented Scalloped Potatoes.

BY SISTER MARY.

There was once a woman who refused to make scalloped potatoes for the church social because she had no scalloped dishes, and I dare say we have all had the experience of wondering just what certain terms used in recipes really mean. And often a misunderstanding means a ruined dish.

The following definitions may prove helpful to all cooks and housekeepers.

Blanch—To whiten. This is done by pouring boiling water over, draining, and rinsing in cold water. Rice and Italian pastes are treated this way after cooking, and some vegetables receive the same treatment before cooking. Nuts are blanched to remove the skins.

Beat—beating is used to introduce air to the material. A rotary motion, lifting the bottom of the material to the top each time should be used.

Baste—to moisten while cooking, by dipping over from the top.

Boil—cooking in actively bubbling water. "The boiling point" is reached when the whole surface bubbles.

Braise—a slow method of cooking in a covered dish, in the oven or on top of the stove. A small amount of liquid is used, only enough to prevent burning.

Broil—cooking directly over the heat of the fire. Pan-broil means to cook in a very hot slightly oiled spider. In either straight broiling or pan broiling the material must be turned often to prevent the escape and loss of juice.

Casserole—From the French. A dish made of earthen ware with a close fitting cover. To casserole is to "braise" in a casserole in the oven. The dish is always sent to the table.

Cut—to mix with a cutting motion.

Devil—The addition of spices and seasonings to make a dish "hot" or piquant or both.

Fricassee—a slow mthod of cooking meat or poultry. The material is stewed in a sauce or stock.

Fry—a quick method of cooking. The material is cooked in a hot spider or frying pan just covered with fat. The pieces must be turned often to prevent burning and thorough cooking.

Deep-fat frying—to cook by immersion in a large quantity of hot fat in a kettle.

Grill —to boil.

Lard—to force a long narrow strip of fat salt pork or bacon into a piece of lean meat. The piece of fat used is called a "lardoon."

Marinate—to cover with French dressing, brine or a spiced vinegar for the purpose of bringing out the flavor.

To mask—to cover with a thick sauce or mayonnaise.

Parboil—to cook until one-third or one-half done unless the exact time is mentioned.

RAMEKIN—an individual round china dish with a flat rim. Each ramikin is placed on its own small plate. Creamed or scalloped mixtures, or a souffle can be served in ramekins. They are always sent to the table and a fork is used to eat their contents.

Saute—to fry lightly and quickly in a small amount of fat for the purpose of browning evenly all over.

Sear—to cook quickly the surface of meat to prevent the escape of juices.

Sterilize—to kill bacteria. Intense heat by boiling, baking or steaming is necessary for this process.

Timbal—a delicate mixture of fish, meat or vegetable baked in a mold surrounded by water. The mixture is unmolded to serve.

Timbal cases are small pastry shells fried in a deep flot fat on a special iron known as a timbal iron. They are filled with a creamed fish, meat or vegetable mixture.

Simmer—a slow method of cooking just below the boiling point.

Shir—to bake in a small earthenware dish.

Stew—a slow method of "simmering" in a small amount of water.

CALOMEL TO-NIGHT

Cleans and Tones Up the Whole System.

You need not fear any bad aftereffects, no salts or Seidlitz are needed when you take the new tanol calomel. It is the best medicine in the world for headaches, indigestion, gas on the stomach, constipation, high blood pressure, bad taste in mouth, rheumatism, poisoned system, etc. One tanol calomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime and a cup or two of hot water first thing in the morning will wash all the previous day's wastes, gases and toxins from the system making you feel better, and better, work better, digest better, and be 100 per cent better in every way. Get a few of these simple tablets from Webber's Drug Store, and you will be surprised how effective they are.

OATMEAL.

A half teaspoon of salt added to the boiling water will make all the difference between tastelessness and delicious flavor in oatmeal.

TEA FOR TWO!

By Neva Harrison

Many a happy moment is spent over a tea table for two. Many a momentous question has been asked and answered and many a heart has beat faster and happier just from the thought of a table a deux and a loved one's presence. Sometimes it comes as a marvelous surprise, and then the tea is forgotten and Dan Cupid puts up his much worn umbrella to avert the deluge of hot tea which is unwittingly poured over the table while the love-words are spoken and everything else in the world is forgot for the moment. And "Tea for Two" develops into a home and happiness and love for these two until—well, Love wouldn't be worth much without the wonderful dreams of the life-to-come, would it?

Today's Fashion

By Vera Winston

This Rose Kasha Costume is Trimmed with Gray Krimmer.

Light shades, such as we used to see for late Spring and Summer only, came into fashion in the middle of Winter this year, and have remained with us.

The youthful costume above is a smart example. The color is rose, a light, Springlike rose. The coat is made with its fullness at the back, ending at each side as it nears the front.

Krimmer fur in a delightful soft gray bands the coat and trims the cuffs. It also forms the brim on the tiny matching hat.

VALENTINE TEA

St. John's Women's Guild Sponsors a Party.

MADOC, Feb. 8 — A charming Valentine Tea was held at the home of Mrs. Fraser Aylesworth on Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of the Women's Guild of St. John's Church. Many guests were present during the afternoon. The tea-room looked particularly pretty with its valentine decorations of hearts and streamers of red, and red candles. Mrs. A. H. Watson poured tea, and the assistants were Mrs. E. T. Nayler, Mrs. B. Tanner and Miss Margaret Watson.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

Sometimes when I find myself in a gathering of some sort, say at an evening party, I look about me and think, "Some people seem to know instinctively how to look their very best. Others make fatal mistakes. Why is this?"

I must confess I have never been able to find out exactly why Miss Wall Flower will wear horizontal stripes when she is already plump without them, and why Mrs. Blunt will bob her hair when the shingled back reveals thick rolls of fat on her neck.

But then neither do I know the exact secret for Miss Belle's popularity. Maybe it is because she has clipped her side hair into that cunning little sideburn that curls so roguishly over her cheek, or maybe it is because she is naturally sweet and vivacious.

Anyway, the conclusion all these wonderings brings to me is that all of us should study ourselves, and the small individual things we can do to improve our looks.

I know one young girl who knew that her hair was naturally curly, but never bothered to induce this curl elsewhere than on top of her head. Then one day when she washed her face after her hair was arranged, she found that this application of water gave a delightful curl to the tiny fine hairs around her forehead, that had been straight before. Now she always gives special attention to these fine hairs.

Another pretty girl wears a tiny, tiny beauty patch in the evening. It seems to make her eyes more lustrous, she says.

Equally smart is the girl who will not wear light beige stockings, be they ever so smart, because she knows that her legs are far from thin. She chooses gun metal and sheer black instead. Thus she gains individuality, for sheer black remains the exception, and, at the same time, she avoids emphasizing the si e of her legs.

All of these little things have telling effects. Think them over carefully, and maybe they will suggest similar or different things that you yourself can do.

HER OWN WAY by a Girl of Today

WHY GIRLS WALK HOME.

As I wearily put my latchkey in the lock, I noticed with consternation that there was a light in mother's room. I knew I was too tired and wet and uncomfortable to go into details of my evening with dad and mother—especially dad.

I opened the door softly and sat down on the stairs and removed my wet and sodden shoes.

Sounds of conversation came from the room above where my parents slept. I could not distinguish the words but both voices were raised and disagreeably raucous. They were quarreling about something, as usual.

I knew that I would be in for another hour of explanations and excuses and would not be able to rest my weary body or ease my troubled mind unless I could pass that door, which was slightly ajar, without my parents hearing me. I didn't want to talk to my mother and father about this evening's episode, at least until morning. I was not just sure what I was going to do about it myself.

As I came nearer the room I unconsciously slowed my pace, for I was determined to pass that door without their knowing it.

I thought exultantly that my father's voice was raised to such a high pitch of anger that it would be impossible for him to hear me, but it also made it impossible for me not to hear what he was saying.

"I tell you, Susan, I will not have that girl staying out to this time of night. It is simply scandalous! It must be nearly morning." As if to confirm his statement, the clock on the landing struck four.

I stood still and held my breath while dad, after counting the tell-tale tones, returned to the attack.

"You need not tell me, Susan, that a girl can stay out until four o'clock in the morning and still retain any semblance of reputation or decency."

"Jason Dean, do you know you are talking about your daughter, Julia?" asked my mother angrily.

"I am perfectly well aware of it, madam, but I am not such a besotted fool as to think my daughter is any different from any other man's girl, although you may think so. I heard you making very scurrilous remarks about the little Winston girl the other day because she was hurt in a collision while joyriding with Lyman Andrews. Is it any more respectable for your daughter to be 'joyriding,' as you called it, than Winston's?"

"But, Jason," remonstrated my mother, "she is out with Charles Becker and you know I have been expecting the children to announce their engagement ever since he came home from college. Surely you cannot think that any young man would treat the girl he is going to marry otherwise than with respect!"

"Respect! Hell!" was my father's retort. "I know that when I was young no respectable girl would be out until four o'clock in the morning with a man alone unless she wanted to be considered fast. You ought to get hold of young Becker and make him tell you what his intentions are. It is my opinion that they are not of marriage."

They were so engrossed in their quarrel that I passed the door in safety and softly shut myself in my own room.

Then I sat down on the floor and silently laughed, although I wanted to scream.

I wondered what answer Chuck Becker would make mother when she asked his intentions toward me.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

Wife.—You have a high degree of mentality, which should make you a leader, if you embark on some life-work connected with science or business achievement. You would make a good teacher or government agent. You will be a good worker, and will work better for yourself than when harnessed to others. You are active, independend and persevering. You are like the little girl with the curl. When you are good, you are very, very good, but when you are bad, you are horrid. A promise with you is quite sacred and the world will expect a lot of you as you make your way in life, not perhaps, in a material way, but as a leader in your own circle. Self poise will do much to shape your happiness—also those around you. Avoid scolding and fault-finders, who depress you unnecessarily. You need change of scenery and a certain amount of excitement to retain your good health. Follow out your own ideas—do not copy those of others. Study the art of good dressing, and do not neglect the arrangement of your hair. Be careful of falls and accidents to your legs, hips and feet. A good business education would be the thing for you, then an early marriage with someone born in May, July, February or November.

You were born on Saturday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are opal and tan.

Becky.—You are inclined to be quite well-poised and self-satisfied, an admirable arrangement if not carried too far. Your nature is religious in essence and rather conservative, steering clear for the most part of new undertakings and preferring the established order of procedure. To reach the highest measure of which you are capable, you must serve other sin an intimate, personal way—the service inspired by love. You should be quite musical. You are inclined to have your own way of doing things, which frequently confuses those about you and may be cruel to those who cannot keep pace with you quick mind. You will live to a good old age if you keep down your tendency to worry and to keep constantly busy at something. Take time to relax. Follow your own inspirations, rather than the advice of others, that is when you are sure that you are right. Do not attempt to deceive your own inner conception of what is right either. You may get away with it for a time but the real person inside of you will triumph finally and then you will have to learn the lessons of life at an uncomfortable age. Learn them now instead, while you are young. If you are misunderstood, remember that it is because you are individual and do not worry about it. Have few intimate friends and do not offend that few. Do not depend on gratitude—you will not always get it. The keynote of your life should be friendliness with your own true self, and you will have to achieve this by being good in every way—you can't sidestep your obligations to your better nature at any time without paying a heavy penalty. Marry someone born in April, August or November, but do not choose the April man unless you have learned the art of self-control from the ground up. Then you will have to watch him and yourself at all times.

Yes, you were born on Friday.

Your colors are variations of steel and brick shades.

H. M. A.—You should have a happy life, as you were born with a good deal of the joy element in your nature, and a liking for good times, for singing and dancing and artistic pursuits. To get what you desire in this world, you must use the velvet glove at all times, rather than force. Diplomacy is your watchword. You would make a good nurse, but have ability in other lines, both of head and hands. You should not permit your natural kindness of heart to assume too much of the burden of others' worries and trials. You pay too much attention to showy people and should look for real worth rather than exterior veneer. You like arranging parties and good times for your friends and are loyal to these friends as long as you are permitted to have your own way. When offended, you are a bitter enemy. Your memory is excellent and you have a fine sense of color and exquisite taste. You are inclined to be capricious, which is a barrier to real happiness, and have a quick temper. You should not become angry over trifles and should not permit your sympathies to lead you to take sides in arguments or controversies. You will be at your best when you follow out your own original lines of thought and expression.

You were born on Thursday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are red and brown.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

"Where the sun comes the doctor doesn't," runs the old proverb.

We have known for ages that sunlight is an aid to health. It has remained for this generation to make a fad of it. Just now foggy and misty London has awakened to what sunlight can do for health and welfare.

The modern electric light inventors have devised bulbs and tubes capable of imitating the strongest sunlight. In your own home, on gloomiest of days, you may indulge in the luxury of synthetic sunshine.

I love the sunlight so well it has always been a mystery to me that anybody should shut it out of the home. But there are homes, too many of them, into which the sun never goes. Shutters and heavy curtains protect the carpets and coverings from fading, but, at the same time, they exclude the life-promoting rays.

I read a London dispatch which told of the popularity of this new fad. It told about the offices and other rooms which are being fitted up with the apparatus to supply this light. Let me quote:

"As a pick-up for the jaded, doctors are strongly recommending it. For the nerves and for the betterment of the blood, as well as for the treatment of more definite diseases, it is said to be invaluable, but it is the bracing and tonic effect that makes the modern women flock to the doctors for orders to take this cure. It even had royal devotees, and at least one queen is meditating the purchase of a lamp."

But why buy a lamp? In the heavens in the unfailing source of such energy. Open your windows and direct your steps, so that you may have an abundant daily bath in the rays of the sun. In our section of the world we have its brilliant light considerably more than half the days of the year.

Sunlight is deadly to germs, it is exhilarating to the nerves and heart. No one should live in the damp and in the dark. Life is too precious to shut it away from the goodly effects of the sunlight.

The rays of the sun are a real factor in improving health. Wounds will heal and diseases processes will be controlled by exposure to sunlight. Try it and be convinced.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DAVID HAS A CHAT WITH MR. POLAR BEAR.

David climbed upon a stone and looked into the pen. Curled up, sound asleep, in one corner was a great, big snow-white, furry creature.

"A Polar Bear, I do believe!" David exclaimed.

"Of course, I'm a Polar Bear," yawned the bundle of white fur, uncurling and stretching himself.

He got up slowly and lazily ambled over towards David.

David began to get down off the rock and Mr. Polar Bear laughed.

"Pshaw, don't run," he growled. "I'm lonesome. Come on over and ahve a chat."

"I wasn't going to run," laughed David, coming down to the fence. "I was just coming over to get a better look at you. You certainly have big feet, haven't you?"

"Yes, and I'm proud of them," growled Mr. Polar Bear. "Just see how long, coarse hairs are matted over them! Do you know why I wear them that way?"

"I haven't the least idea," answered David. "I don't believe I've ever stopped to talk to a Polar Bear before. Your feet must be at least eighteen inches long."

"Yes, they are," muttered Mr Polar Bear. "I'm glad they're no smaller. I use them as paddles when I'm in the water. Did you know that I'm a fine swimmer?" David shook his head and said he knew very little about the Bear family. "Of course you don't, unless you have lived up in the Far North. Well, anyway, those feet of mine look pretty big, but they help me in swimming and getting over the ice. See here," and he held up one of his front paws. "The soles of my feet are covered with thick hair. That keeps me from slipping when I run over the ice after a seal."

"Some snow shoes," laughed David, "Which do you like best, chasing seals under the ice or on top of it?" "Doesn't matter if I'm hungry," growled Mr. Polar Bear. "If a seal is under the water and ice, I can make a hole and drag him out. If I can see him swimming under the water, I can follow and catch him. It's great sport to run after a seal. I'll soon forget how to catch one if I stay in this Zoo much longer. But I don't care. Here I have everything that I need. They even put ice into my pond to keep me cool. Everyone is so good to me. When I see nice little boys like you looking at me over the fence, I always talk to them. I don't have to worry over where my food is coming from, nor run from my enemies and I never have to fight any more. So I guess I'm better off than my relatives whom I left back in the Far North. I'm mighty glad you came this afternoon. I was terribly lonesome. It's feeding time now, so come again."

Just then the closing bell sounded from the tower and David, promising to come and see Mr. Polar Bear again, ran home for his supper.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 6—SERGEANT COD AND HIS CODFISH SQUAD.

At last Jupe, the kind kangaroo, led the Twins to the gate of the castle where Blue Whiskers, the wizard, lived.

That is, he led them to the moat which ran at the foot of the gate.

"Halt!" cried a large blue crab. "Give the password or I'll pinch you."

"Rice pudding!" said Jupe quickly.

"Pass then," said the crab. "Let down the drawbridge," he called to a lobster on top of the wall.

The drawbridge came down and Jupe and the Twins passed over, and went in through a high gate made of sea shells.

Suddenly eight fat codfish with forks for guns, flopped up on their fins and demanded the password again.

"Eight rice puddings!" said Jupe.

"Now will the lady and gentleman please give the password also," said the sergeant of the squad.

Instantly Nancy said, "Apple-dumplings!"

And Nick said, "Peanut brittle!"

It was really too embarrassing! But the harder they tried to say "Rice pudding," the more their tongues became twisted.

"That won't do," said the sergeant. "If you don't say the pass-word in two minutes we shall have to dump you into the moat. And the moat isn't water either. It is made of cod liver oil. And no one likes cod liver oil that we know of."

Here Jupe whispered into the sergeant's ear.

"Ay, ay, sir!" said the codfish backing away. "If that is the case, we apologize. And when Sergeant Cod apologizes he does it right." So saying he reached into a box marked "bullets" and took out a handful of round objects which he divided between the Twins.

"These are codfish balls, fried, boiled, and baked very hard," he said. "But they are magic as well. They will turn into bicycles or even, if necessary, into automobiles. If anything happens to you in the Land of the Blue Cherry, just say:

'Roly poly fish-balls,
Get me out of these walls!'

"And puff! You'll be out before you know it."

The Twins took the fish-balls and put them into their pockets. But when they tried to thank the kind codfish, Nancy could only say, "Tomato-soup!" And all Nick could stammer out was "Waffles and syrup!"

"I'm sure you're quite welcome," said Sergeant Cod stepping back into line and saluting. "It's too bad you didn't come in by the wicket gate. It would have saved so much trouble. Your heads, too, maybe."

"There goes that old wicket gate again!" thought Nancy. "I'm sick of hearing of it. If only we had heard a little more of it before we came, and a little less after, it would be better all around. But I do wish we could see that old fellow Blue Whiskers before long, so he could fix our tongues right. It's no good thinking things if you can't say them."

Nick was thinking, "I do wish we could find out about the Blue Cherry. We haven't seen a sign of it since we came and poor Twinkle Pen is probably writing over everything in the Fairy Queen's palace. We must find it as soon as possible, and cure him."

By this time they were inside of Blue Whiskers' palace and what a sight met their eyes!

CHURCH DISAVOWS STAND OF MINISTER

Bishop Manning Preaches in Support of the Volstead Act.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—A chorus of disavowal and denial from Episcopalian pulpits and the Church in general went up in Sunday sermons against the stand of Dr. James Empringham, national secretary of the Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal Church, in favor of light wines and beer.

A few voices supported him, but from Bishop William T. Manning, at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, came definite support of the Volstead Act and emphatic denial that Dr. Empringham's position is that of the Episcopal Church.

I.O.D.E. CHAPTER ANNUAL MEETING

Otonabee Chapter Elects Miss S. A. Tomkins as Regent.

SPLENDID REPORTS.

The annual meeting of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. on February 3rd, with a good attendance, and the First Vice-Regent, Mrs. R. R. Hall, presiding.

A letter from Gregory King, the young Armenian protege of the Chapter was read. Gregory expressed with childish naivete, pleasure in gifts sent by the Chapter, and voiced a very mature but somewhat unconvincing appreciation of the value and desirability of formal education in the life of a small boy.

Four new members, Mesdames Harvey, Darcy, Phelan, and Stacey, were proposed and elected to membership.

The annual report was given by the secretary, Mrs. K. S. Wightman, with a resume of the year's activities.

The financial report was read by Mrs. J. A. Robinson. The Chapter receipts for the year amounted to the sum of $1,052.00. A few of the donations made by the Chapter were as follows: To the Health Association, $133; to The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, $200; to the Well Babies' Clinic, $50; to the War Memorial Fund, $25; toward secondary education for two local children, $150.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Hodgson for the use of her home for a musicale, and also for the unmeasured expenditure of time and effort on the parts of Mesdames Hodgson and Davidson, necessary to bring this event to so high a standard of artistic perfection.

The pledge was taken and the roll book signed by Miss L. Jobbitt and Mrs. Lillico.

The retiring First Vice-Regent, Mrs. R.R. Hall, in a few graceful phrases, thanked the Chapter for co-operation during her long term of office, and especially during the past year. A very hearty vote of thanks was in turn extended to Mrs. Hall for her splendid and self-sacrificing efforts for the Chapter.

Election of officers came next in order, and the executive for 1926-27 is as follows:

Regent—Miss S. A. Tomkins.
First Vice-Regent—Mrs. Davidson
Second Vice-Regent—Mrs. K. S. Wightman.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. A. Robinson.
Educational Secretary — Miss Archer; Miss Murphy, assistant.
Standard Bearer—Mrs. Lytle.
Councillors — Mrs. Wm. Comstock, Miss A. Lancaster, Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. Harstone, Mrs. White, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. LeClair, Mrs. Lawrence Mrs. Fulkinghorn.

The secretaryship was left vacant; Mrs. K. S. Wightman to continue her duties for at least one month.

Miss Tomkins, the Regent, then took the chair and was received with enthusiastic applause. The regent's opening address was forceful, spirited and eloquent, and roused the meeting to sudden rare response. Miss Tomkins pointed out the necessity and value of sacrifice in character building and in nation building, and appealing to Chapter members as Regent, exhorted them to rally to the great standards set by national and empire heroes, and give of their best to the noble cause with which they had allied themselves. The Regent attacked the knotty problem of ways and means with characteristic vigor and directness, pointing out that if each member would be responsible for a nominal sum, the liabilities of the Chapter would be covered for the year. After some discussion, the Regent appealed to the meeting, asking how many present would bring to the Chapter through her own efforts, the sum of $4.00. Almost everyone expressed willingness to undertake this much.

The Regent brought forward nominations for National and Provincial Councillors. It was decided that Mrs. E. B. Clegg be nominated for both positions.

Afternoon tea was served by the Social Committee.

W. J. Latimer the genial secretary from Orland was present and acted in his ever efficient style. Bro. Latimer and party motored over 50 miles through the snow to attend and this in itself speaks well of himself and the brethren from that district who braved the weather and bad roads to attend to their duty. After the usual routine of business the following officers were elected for the ensuing year and were installed by Past County Master Bro. A. B. McIntosh of Cold Springs.

HOUSE DEBATES ADDRESS AGAIN STARTING TODAY

Donald Sutherland Has Floor and is Expected to Move Amendment.

SOME DISCUSSION.

Members From Dairy Constituencies Are Expected To Speak on Matter.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—To-day the House of Commons will start what may be the last week before adjournment until March 15. The motion for the address, debate on which was suspended while the Government proposal for adjournment was under discussion, will be continued when the House assembles. Donald Sutherland, Conservative member for South Oxford, has the floor, and it is understood that he will move an amendment. This, it is said, will ask the House to declare that the Australian treaty is working injury to the Canadian dairy industry and the need for increased protection to the producers of Canada's dairy produce.

If this amendment is moved it will probably be productive of some discussion. Representatives of the constituencies in which dairying is carried on to any extent will want to place their views on record, and this may take two or three days. In event of this amendment being defeated, it is possible that the Conservatives will bring forward another amendment in the form of a straight motion of non-confidence in the Government.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 9.

The conflicting conditions arising on this day, under a negative ruling of the planets, both by lunar and mutual direction, may be best met by remaining quiet and working along lines of least resistance. The most hostile figure may be controlled by keeping the tongue and the temper in subjection, as these might precipitate dangers of loss of substance and stir up wrath. This injunction also applies to domestic and personal affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may best handle threatening affairs during the year by maintaining complete control over their own conduct which given leash may stir up dangers of various losses and put in jeopardy all the affairs and interests. A child born on this day may be disposed to be a dominating character who will mismanage its affairs by a sharp and ungovernable tongue and tempestuous nature; consequently it should be early inculcated in the desirability of self-government. It may have a peculiar but interesting career.

Tortoises are particularly fond of lettuce, cabbages and strawberries.

Lenglen Wins Tennis Doubles Against Helen Wills - Boston and Canadians In Overtime Draw

SUZANNE LENGLEN VICTORIOUS IN FIRST TENNIS CLASH WITH HELEN WILLS IN MIXED DOUBLES FINAL

Most Thrilling Game Ever Seen on Riviera—Royalty Present.

STRAIGHT SETS

French Pair Concentrated Assault on the American Girl.

NICE, France, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press)—Suzanne Lenglen and Helen Wills met across the tennis net Sunday for the first time in their careers, and the mighty Suzanne was victorious. The score was 6-1, 6-2, and the match was in the mixed doubles, Suzanne pairing with Baron Henri De Morpurgo, and Helen with Charles F. Aeschlimann.

The match provided the most thrilling, electrifying tennis ever seen on the Riviera, especially the first three games of the first set, which experts of 20 years' standing say has never been surpassed.

The meeting was only the prelude to the duel set for next week, when Miss Wills and Mlle. Lenglen will face each other, provided both come throughthe preliminaries, and that is looked to as a certainty.

The French champion proved yesterday that she is the greatest woman mixed doubles player tennis has ever known. Miss Wills, on the other hand ,showed that her mixed doubles game apparently had been somewhat neglected. Thus far she has demonstrated that she is a much greater singles than a doubles player.

Royalty Present.

To the large assembly—including British royalty, the Duke of Connaught, Indian potentates and kings of finance—the contest was a strictly Suzanne-Helen affair, and De Morpurgo and Aeschlimann, great doubles players as they are, were only secondary.

For once, the experts' figures agreed with the laymen's enthusiasm, and the point score indicates that it was the superiority of Mlle. Lenglen over Miss Wills that decided the victory, the men being about even on points earned and lost.

Helen's weakness consisted of playing the ball too high, into Suzanne's racquet. The French girl appeared, in covering the net, like a bird on the wing, flitting here and there and never missing a return, which she generally smashed back at Aeschlimann's feet for returned nets.

Only once did Miss Wills and her partner appear to have Suzane and her partner on the run. It was in the second set, when the games were one-all. Miss Wills won the third game to love on service, aceing Suzanne twice, while the spectators cheered.

Vastly Different.

The difference in the style and play of the two girls was as wide as the two worlds they represent. Suzanne was laughing and debonnaire; Helen, grim-visaged and determined, as they entered the courts. Mlle. Lenglen was the great artiste appearing before her home people in her home town. The great French star bowed and smiled to her public.

Helen was cool and collected, her usual paleness accentuated slightly. She seemed outwardly the calmest person nong the five thousand present. While Suzanne danced on the bascline, unable to remain quiet a moment, Helent stood stock still.

"Are you ready, Miss Lenglen?" Umpire St. Omerroy asked.

"Yes," Suzanne called.

To the same query, Miss Wills replied with the slightest inclination of the head.

Bombard Miss Wills.

Baron De Morpurgo won the toss, and elected to serve himself after Mlle. Lenglen had declined the honor. Both the Italian baron and Suzanne centered their attack upon the United States champion, who sent back sizzling drives until deuce was reached, Mlle. Lenglen winning the game, five points to three.

The second game was a repetition of the first. Miss Wills, stoutheartedly withstanding the combined attack of the opposite pair, while Aeschlimann stood still on his own side of the courts. This game Suzanne also won on points, 6 to 4. The rallies were the fastest ever seen on the Riviera and blase Wimbledon experts drawled "This is real tennis."

Miss Wills and Mr. Aeschlimann, unaccountably and by what strategy unknown, elected after winning the third game, to revert to the soft stroking and Mlle. Lenglen and her partner carried off the next four games, only one of which went to deuce.

Suzanne Puzzled.

The games were one-all in the second set, when Miss Wills electrified the crowd by winning the third game at love on service. The first service aced Suzanne clean, while the French girl appeared puzzled at the sizzling bound of the ball. Then, after a short rally for the second point, Suzanne again stood on the baseline to meet Helen's service, which bounded over the French champion's head for two aces in one game.

Mlle. Lenglen seemed to be rattled with the score of 2 to 1 against her and was guilty of more netting in the next two games than during the entire match.

Helen lost her "poker face" after winning her love game at the tremendous applause of the spectators. She smiled for the first time during the match and looked about her as if surprised, and a flush overspread her pale cheeks, but she could not repeat the magnificent play, resorting to lobbing, which the French champion and her partner smothered, winning the next five games and set, 6-2, and the match.

The point score:

First Set

Mlle. Lenglen and De Morpurgo ....5607444—30
Miss Wills and Aeschlimann ....3445112—20

Second Set

Mlle. Lenglen and De Morpurgo ....46044474—33

TROTTIER STAR IN VARSITY WIN

Toronto Student Better Than Hudson in Defeating McGill.

SCORE WAS 3-1

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 8.—(Canadian Press.)— University of Toronto's senior hockey team continued on its triumphant march through the Intercollegiate series by downing McGill 3 to 1 here on Saturday night. The local team put up a splendid battle but were no match for the speed and combination uncorked by the Blue and White machine.

Only at one time during the fray was McGill in the picture; at the start of the third session with the count 2 to 1 against them, the Red and White forwards staged a rally that kept play in Toronto territory for some time and Joe Sullivan was peppered with shots. Many scrambles ensued in front of the 'Varsity goal but each time the visiting goalie managed to clear. At one time an open net presented itself to McGill but the puck slowly rolled by, grazing the outside of the post. When the McGill squad saw that their best efforts were going for naught, they cracked and once again 'Varsity took up the attack and added another goal to their total, Trottier going through alone for his second of the match.

Trottier, one of the newcomers to the 'Varsity squad this season, featured the play with his skating and stickhandling with Lou Hudson a close second.

McGill's efforts were confined mostly to individual play, many good opportunities being wasted by failure to pass the puck. On the other hand, 'Varsity players passed the disc at almost every opportunity and only good work by Herb Murphy, in goal and the backchecking of Jack Lynch, sub centre, kept the U. of T. players from gaining a larger margin.

Varsity—Goal, Sullivan; defence, Porter and Wright; centre, Plaxton; wings, Hudson and Richards. Subs, Trottier, Devins and Stollery.

McGill—Goal, Murphy; defence, McMahon and McGerrigle; centre, Mickles; wings, Abbott and St. Germain. Subs, Lynch, Bell, Smith and Heney.

Referee—Reg. Noble.

TILDEN MAY RETIRE.

Theatre Interferes With His Tennis.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press).—Demands upon Willaim T. Tilden as a professional actor may compel the national tennis champion to withdraw as a member of the United States team selected to face Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra of France is an international team match at the seventh regiment armory three weeks hence.

"The strain of trying to carry on in tennis this winter while I am working behind the footlights seems to be too great for me," Tilden said yesterday. "My game has suffered a slump and I have been playing below form in practice. A few days ago I lost three out of four sets to a professional."

Senators Protest Toronto Referees For St. Pats' Game

OTTAWA, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press)—President Frank Ahearn of the Ottawa Hockey Club, has made an official protest to President Calder of the National Hockey League, against the appointment of two Toronto referees to handle the game played in Toronto Saturday night.

Mr. Ahearn stated that "We did not make the protest because we thought that Messrs. Laflamme and Hewitson would not officiate fairly, but because we believe it to be manifestly unfair to appoint two home referees to handle a match on their home ice." Referring to Saturday night's game, Mr. Ahearn said:

"Our team was up against a mental handicap in playing under two Toronto referees in Toronto. They stepped on the ice feeling that they had not been treated fairly."

CONACHER CREW HAND MADISONS SEVERE DEFEAT

Pirates Beat New York Americans 6 to 1 Saturday Night.

CROWD OF 12,000

Vernon Forkes Yanked After Pittsburgh Scored First Three.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 Canadian Press. — The New York Americans, Tex Rickard's ship in the National Hockey League, received a severe scuttling from the youthful Pirates of Pittsburgh here Saturday night, when the bucaneers completely outrushed and out-skated the Madisons, afflicted them with a 6 to 1 defeat, and sent them well down into the league cellar.

The Americans fought a game-losing battle throughout and despite the lop-sided score, Madison Square Garden reverberated for sixty full minutes from the shouts of 12,000 fans feverish from the dizzy clip of the game.

The Pittsburgh six brought their attack into play from the face off and while they held the whip hand at all times, the Americans struck at them with a short passing combination attack which was effective until it hit Roy Worters, the Pirates' net guardian.

Pirates Start Early.

The first period saw the Smoky City boys bulge the twine back of Forbes is the New York cage for 3 goals. Then it was announced Vernon was indisposed and Joey Ironstone, utility man, was sent in to guard the local net. Two more tallies were added in the second frame, but in the third the substitute goalie held the invaders to one count, while Edouard Bouchard was ringing up the lone score for the Madisons.

Rene Boileau, the Montreal amateur who has had his name translated to Rainey Drinkwater since donning the Star-Spangled sweater here, put in his first appearance in the third frame and stickhandled his way into the hearts of the Gotham fans. The Montreal boy back checked well and carried many rushes in to Worters. He once banged the puck into the cage only to have his efforts nullified by an offside ruling.

The line-up:

Pittsburgh: Goal, Worters; defence, Conacher and Smith; centre, Milks; wing, McCury and Darragh; subs., Cleghorn, Drury, Cotton, White, Berlinquette, Skinner, Spring.

New York: Goal, Forbes and Ironstone; defence, Langlois and Randall, centre, Burch; wing, Bouchard and S. Green; subs., Roach, R. Green, McKinnon, Drinkwater and Cameron.

Referees: Lou Marsh and Donald Grant.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—Running the approximate distance of nine miles in 41 minutes and 2 seconds, L. Moore, Cliffside Ski Club, Ottawa, won the Ontario cross-country ski-running championship here Sunday afternoon. The race was run under ideal weather conditions, and remarkably fast time was made by the 17 contestants. Moore was closely followed by L. Audette of the Ottawa Skit Club, who in three seconds later, with F. Amyot, O.S.C. third, one minute and 11 seconds after the leader.

The results of Saturday's ski-jumping contest, held at the new ski-tower, Rockliffe, were as follows:

1. Ivan Nelsen, Quebec Ski Club, Quebec.
2. J. Dupuis, Cliffside, Ottawa.
3. S. Knudsen, Berlin Mills, New Hampshire.

Special standing jump:

1. Ivan Nelsen, 106 1-2 feet.
2. J. Dupuis, 106 feet.

In the championship event Dupuis outjumped his Quebec rival, only to touch the ground on his third jump and lose the necessary points on form displayed. Fritz Von Allmen, former Swiss champion now of Toronto, was troubled by Saturday's slow going and fell on each of his jumps. Merrill Putnam also of Toronto was among the six leaders of the contest.

CANADIENS AND BOSTON LOCKED IN OVERTIME TIE ON MONTREAL ICE

Sprague Cleghorn Saved Bruins From Defeat by Spectacular Play.

20 MINUTES EXTRA

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 8 (Canadian Press) — Sprague Cleghorn provided the hockey thrill of the season when he saved his Boston team from defeat at the hands of the Canadiens at the Mount Royal Arena Saturday night and led them through twenty minutes of overtime play to a 3-3 draw.

Twice Boston had been forced to come from behind to tie the count. With but a few minutes remaining in the final period, the 5,500 spectators settled down anticipating overtime. The bench managers of the two teams drew off their regulars to rest them for the extra session play. There was every indication of a deadlock.

With but one minute to go, Joliat whipped a pass to Pete Lepine and the Canadien substitute centre, who took Morenz's place for the evening swept in on the Boston goalie and put Canadiens ahead 3 to 2. It looked like a certain Canadien win and the crowd started to file out of the rink. Art Ross threw back his regulars for the final minute of play. At the same time loudly protesting that the pass to Lepine had been offside.

From the face-off Canadiens carried the attack to Boston. Captain Cleghorn cleared, tore down the ice towards the Canadien goal, and rifled a shot of Rheaume. The Canadien goalie got in front of the puck and it bounded out.

But Cleghorn fought for the disc and batted in the rebound, tying the score with buyt four seconds of the game to be played.

Thrills at Finish

It was an open game, with both teams attending strictly to hockey. Few penalties were inflicted and these for the most part minor offences. While it was interesting at all stages, the play lacked the thrills supplied by other more rugged contests, yet the finish of the third period raised the tussle to a high level.

Canadiens were without Howie Morenz, their brilliant centre who was out with an injured ankle. But the absence of Morenz was countered by the improved showing of the Canadiens as a team. They adopted the short-passing game and worked it steadily throughout. This, coupled with aggressive and tricky hockey by Joliat, cunning play by Pete Lepine and some fast, hard work by Billy Boucher kept the home team in the fight, while Leduc added punch to the game with his speed and strenuous attacking.

Canadiens had a distinct edge in the first period, which netted them a one-goal lead. This was scored early by Captain Bill Coutu on a lone rush. Boston appeared jaded after their recent heavy programme. In the initial session they could not get settled down.

Tied Up Again

However, the Bruins showed fight. In the second period they opened out. Jackson tied the count on a brilliant shot after taking pass from Carson Cooper. Leduc came back and put Canadiens in front, but Boston's courage re-asserted itself and Cleghorn led a snappy three-man combination effort. The puck was whipped across the rink in long passes, Cleghorn, Herberts and Cooper figuring, with the latter putting the finishing touch to he trick and again knotting the score.

The game sarted to develop into a brilliant battle between goalkeepers, with honors even. Play was speedy, though the teams were beginning to show the effects and attacks were lacking their early punch. Players and referee were making frequent calls on the water bottle, as they tired in the final session. It looked like a Canadien break when Mantha got clear through, but he shot too soon. Then came Pete Lepine's goal which put Canadiens in front in the last minute and Cleghorn's herculean effort in the last seconds which snatched the game out of the fire for the Bruins.

SPEED SKATING HONORS WON BY CANADIAN GIRL

Leila Brooks of Toronto Clipped 23 2-5 Seconds Off Mile Mark.

DETROIT RACES

Valentine Bialis of Lake Placid New International Champion.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 8 (Canadian Press)—Valentine Bialis, of Lake Placid, N.Y., won the international speed skating championship at the three day meet which closed here Sunday, with a point score of 110. Bialis succeeds Charles Gorman of St. John, world's outdoor speed skating champion, as international champion. Gorman, who won his international last year, did not defend. Bialis' victory was the result of his finishing second to Eddie Reed, of Chicago, in the five mile event which brought the three day meet to a close. Reed's time was 15:15 2-5, which was four and one-fifth seconds slower than the world's record made by John S. Johnson, at Montreal, in 1895. Reed's time was said to be the fastest for the distance in ten years.

Record smashing honors fell to Leila Brooks, Toronto's entry, who clipped 23 2-5 seconds from the world's mark for women in the mile event. Miss Brooks' time was 3:33 2-5. The record shattered was made by Gladys Robinson, of Toronto, in 1923. The fast pace set by Lois Littlejohn, Chicago, forced Miss Brooks to extend herself, although she pulled away from her Chicago rival 75 yards from the finish.

Second to Bialis for the meet honors was Eddie Reed, whose victory in the 30 lap final event gave him 90 points. Eddie Murphy, of Chicago, placed third with 80 points.

Bialis' points were won by accumulating during the meet, first place in two events—the half mile and the three-quarter mile—second place in the five mile and the mile, and third in the two mile. Thirty points are awarded for first, 20 for second and 10 for third place.

Miss Brooks First

Leila Brooks was the meet winner among the women, with Miss Littlejohn second, and Ruth Mühlmeyer, Chicago, and Margaret McBride, Toronto, tied for third place.

Clas Thunberg, of Finland, Olympic speed skating champion, raced the mile against time and was clocked in two minutes, 45 1-5 seconds. A stiff wind prevented his endangering the world's mark of two minutes 42 2-5 seconds held by John S. Johnson.

O'Neil Farrell, the Chicago flash, who finished Saturday's races suffering from a "charley horse" and a slight illness, won the only other senior final raced yesterday, skating the 440 yard dash in 38 seconds. Lew Morris, of New York, was second, and Paul Forsman, New York, third.

Reed's Victory

Fast ice favored a field of thirty starters in the five-mile race. The time for the first mile of this event was 2:53. The lead was alternately held by Morris, Eddie Meyers, New York, and Willie Logan, Saint John, N.B., with Reed, Bialis and Eddie Murphy lying back with the pack, content to let the others set the pace.

On the next to last lap Bialis broke away, slipping up along the line of skaters who clung to the inside rail, and glided into the lead. It was not until the skaters were on the back stretch of the final lap that the slender, red-tighted figure of Reed streaked forward, hung on Bialis' heels as they went into the home stretch and then with sweeping strides nosed past the lad from Lake Placid to break the tape. Eddie Murphy was third, two strides behind Bialis.

Miss Brooks established three new world's records during the present meet. In addition to her performance in the mile today, she set a new mark for the 440 yard dash which she skated in 44 2-5 seconds. She took 1 2-5 seconds off her own former record in the half mile, her time being 1:36 3-5.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 23—FORWARD TO GUARD TO CENTER

The duties of a center are manifold and it takes a capable player to fill the position. The possibilities of the tap-off man on the scoring end of formations, however, are unlimited.

Many teams fail to use the center properly and then blame the man because the plays miscarry. Don't expect the tap-off man to give you possession of the ball then swing into a play immediately against a man who rates as high as your own center. In a case of evenly matched centers use a forward and a guard in working the ball into position then your center can do himself justice.

The right forward eludes his opponent and takes the tap. At the same time the left forward goes down the floor to cover the left guard's position. The latter player, having gone into center on the toss-up, makes certain your team has possession of the ball, then steps behind the opposing player and advances to the position marked on the accompanying drawing. There he takes a pass from the right forward.

The center, given time to recover from his jump and elude his opponent, goes up the floor to the basket where he takes a pass and shoots for goal. The right forward, first to handle the ball, is free and ready to follow up by that time and has the left guard as a second follow shooter if a second one is required.

The right guard checks his man out of the play. He also is ready for any defense that might be needed. As another defense man he has the left forward, who remains in the backfield once he has gone down the floor. The two are placed so strategically that between them they can stop any attack the opposition might make.

ST. PATS WON FROM OTTAWA

Beat Senators in Toronto—Third Straight Loss For Leaders.

SCORE WAS 4-1.

TORONTO, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press). — St. Fatrick's improved their position in the National League race Saturday night when they defeated the League leading Ottawa Senators for the second time this season on local ice, the score being 4 to 1. In addition to boosting the Irish out of last place, it was the first time that any club in the circuit has defeated the Senators twice this season. It was also the third straight reverse for the leaders in five days. Up until last Tuesday the Senators had lost but two games and their sudden collapse may make the concluding third of the schedule less of a parade than was anticipated a week ago.

The NUT Cracker

By JOE WILLIAMS

That 73-year-old farmer who challenged Jim Corbett might have got some action if he had challenged Jack Dempsey.

Berlenbach refuses to give Mike McTigue another fight. . . . This undoubtedly explains the young man's great popularity with the masses.

If you are bow-legged you are all out of luck. . . . But if you are knock-kneed you are in for a great career as a Charleston dancer.

America has finally decided to enter the world court, and it remains to be seen just what effect this action will have on the international fight for a standardized golf ball.

It may yet be necessary to put the gloves on Helen Wills and Suzanne and let them go to it in a good manly way with no holds or expletives barred.

Babe Ruth says he expects to be playing ball when he is 40 years old. . . . This will be good news for manufacturers of hot-dogs and abdominal belts.

Mushing is a popular winter sport practiced in Canada. . . . Who can remember when lushing was a popular winter sport in this country?

If they give Doc Cook time and publicity enough he'll not only prove he discovered the north pole, but built it.

Mr. O'Goofty used to be a ventriloquist, but had to give the racket up when his dummy developed tonsil trouble.

Jim Thorpe has quit football after 22 years of playing. . . . This includes, we suppose, the 18 he played at college.

A serious campaign is about to be launched to discourage golf in Scotland. . . . Admissions are to be charged to the tournaments.

There is no explaining these Londoners. . . . They bar women fighters and then pay to see Joe Beckett.

P.C.I. VICTORS IN TWO GOOD GAMES

Both Boys' and Girls' Teams Win Over Cobourg Teams.

The Cobourg Collegiate's two basketball teams, girls and boys, were each defeated here Saturday afternoon when they played the teams of the P.C.I. on the Y.M.C.A. gym floor.

The P.C.I. boys swamped the lads of the lake shore town 49 to 11. The P.C.I. boys play towered over that of Cobourg and they held complete sway throughout. The locals proved especially strong under the basket, few of their shots but landed in the hoop.

Winter Ecobichon, centre for P.C.I., was the big scorer of the game with ten baskets to his credit. The other forwards, Sturgeon and Dormer, scored cleverly also, while the P.C.I. defence continually broke up any Cobourg combination.

The teams:

Cobourg Collegiate—Centre, Chilton; forwards, Sleeman and Butler; defence, Murray and Lelande; subs, Rollings and Smith.

P. C. I.—Centre, Ecobichon; forwards, Sturgeon and Dormer; defence, Bookhout and Merrill; subs, Doughty, Levine and McDonald.

Girls' Game

The P.C.I. girls and the visitors' team played a close game the P.C.I. winning by 20 to 11. Jane McDuffee was the big scorer for P.C.I. and Miss Skitch for Cobourg.

HAVELOCK TEAM HERE THIS WEEK

Two Fast Games Scheduled For Brock Street Ice Box.

LAKEFIELD TO-NIGHT.

Tickets for the Intermediate O.H.A. games this week will be on sale at Bert McLeod's drug store on George Street. Reserved seats for the Havelock home game, which will be played here on Wednesday, can be obtained now.

To-night's game will decide whether Peterboro or Lakefield opposes Havelock in the finals for this group. The Petes have a strangle hold, unless something entirely unexpected turns up, due to their 11-4 win in Lakefield on Friday, which gave them a lead of seven goals. Havelock, however, promises to be an entirely different proposition. The team has been playing together all season and swept through the league composed of Hastings and Campbellford without a defeat, piling up some large scores. The Brennan brothers and Quinn are well-known to Peterboro fans, and they are ably supported by Davidson in goal, Hooper, Laing and others.

On Wednesday the game will be Havelock's home game, which has been transferred to Peterboro because the Havelock rink does not comply with the O.H.A. rules, while on Friday the railroaders will be back for the Petes' home game.

The Peterboro line-up for tonight's game will be: Goal, McClory; defence, Lackey and Helson; centre, King; wings, Dundas and McDougall; subs., Jackson and Williams.

COGS WON GAME FROM MILLBROOK

Beat Cosmos Club 2-1 After Ten Minutes' Overtime.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 8.—The Cognawagas, of Peterborough, and the local Cosmos Club played a keenly contested game of hockey on Saturday afternoon which resulted in a score of 2-1, for the visiting team.

No goals were scored in the first period, R. Hutchison winning one for the homesters in the second, and Peterborough getting their first in the third. To break the tie, overtime play was necessary, five minutes for each end, the visitors scoring their second goal just before the bell rang.

The ice was in good condition and the game was a fast one, devoid of rough play, with only one or two penalties for minor offences. The spectators lined the fence round two sides of the rink and gave plenty of encouragement to the local team. A few supporters had accompanied the Cognawagas and made themselves heard occasionally, particularly when the final result was in favor of the visiting team. The line-up was:

Cognawagas—Goal, Vannest; defence, A. Rook, J. Billingsley; forwards, Wilson, Cripps; centre, A. Davis. Sub, Mackness.

Cosmos—Goal, A. McCorry; defence, A. Jeffreys, L. Ingram; forwards, R. Hutchison, E. Hutchison; centre, F. Russell. Subs, R. Shaw, M. McCorry.

Referee—L. C. Russell.

JOYCE WETHERED—PUTT IS A REAL STROKE

In putting, the ball is definitely struck. It is firmly dismissed upon its journey. It is not scraped up to the hole. The grip is generally a divided one. The left hand may be if anything, rather under the shaft than over it, and the right hand is also slightly underneath. The blow which is delivered is a level blow, which causes the ball to glide over the green with the sire to disturb its surface.

For the less fortunate individual who finds this part of the game a thorn in the flesh, and who is compelled to labor heavily over the process, some essentially workmanlike method must be adopted. He may get the ball into the hole, but he putts less naturally. The difference in the running of the ball is at once apparent. There is not the same purposeful freedom of motion. It moves in a more sober manner over the ground. Still the ordinary person is thankful for satisfactory results, however they are obtained, and he has the additional consolation that the artistic putter may not by any means be the best holer out.

AT THE CAPITOL

BARTHELMESS NEXT NAVY ROMANCE

"Shore Leave," the First National attraction which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day, is the comedy hit of Richard Barthelmess career.

The story was adapted from the David Belasco success by Hubert Osborne, in which Frances Starr appeared several seasons ago. Barthelmess played the role created on the stage by James Rennie of the tough gob so successfully wooed by the little New England dressmaker.

The picture, which was adapted by John S. Robertson is an amusing comedy of the Navy.

The story tells of Bilge Smith who on a visit to shore, meets Connie Martin, the dressmaker, in a fishing village. Connie immediately falls in love with the "gob" and lays plans to trap the unwary sailor, whose intentions are far from being serious.

When the gob makes a passing ambition to be the captain of a freighter, Connie sets about salvaging her fathers ship, which has foundered in a river in India. Bilge, the gob, returns after a long cruise, to find Connie and her ship waiting. But to her sorrow she finds that the sailor not only never has given her a thought, but does not recognize her when he sees her.

AT THE REGENT

COULD YOU SLAY FIANCEE TO SAVE COUNTRY IN WAR?

Here's an interesting question—Could or would you kill your sweetheart to save your native country from crushing defeat in time of war?

This is the dilemma that confronts Jetta Goudal in the thrilling dramatic climax of "Three Faces East," a thrilling war-time mystery drama of the Secret Service, which will be shown at the Regent Theatre for three days, beginning today. Jetta plays a dual part in this picture, which was adapted by C. Gardner Sullivan from the stage success.

In the development of the story, Miss Goudal, as Miss Hawtree, presumably a German spy, falls in love with Valdar, a German spy. When he is about to send a message to Berlin that all is in readiness for an air raid on London which, if consummated, means the death of thousands if not the destruction of the city itself, she covers him with her revolver and theatens to kill him if he sends the message. A revolver battle ensues with the result that Valdar is mortally wounded, but by whom, only the final scenes reveal.

This is only one of many thrilling scenes in this remarkable picture.

AT THE GRAND

"THE GORILLA"

Laughs and thrills were about evenly distributed in "The Gorilla," Ralph Spence's mystery comedy which made a big hit with a good-sized audience at the Grand on Saturday night. Here was a thriller that out-batted "The Bat" if the expression may be pardoned. The author obviously intended his effort as a burlesque showing up of the mystery play of today and with that end in view deliberately loaded it up with mysterious disappearances, a ghost-haunted radio, swords and axes appearing through the walls, shots, screams, a gorilla that wandered all over the stage and eventually into the audience and enough other hair-raising ingredients to make up a half dozen plays. Whether you looked at it as travesty or accepted it seriously there was plenty of punch to the whole production and when you add to this melange of thrills a pair of the funniest detectives that ever trod the boards the material is there for an evening of real entertainment.

These burlesque detectives Mr. Mulligan and Mr. Garrity provided more opportunities for laughter than have been given here in many a moon. Mulligan, a clever travesty of the domineering third degree type of detective and Garrity his "wise cracking" partner got into heaps of trouble and the further they got in the more uproarious was the laughter of the audience. Edmund Elton as Mulligan and J. Harry Jenkins as Garrity gave a fine performance, took full advantage of their fun-making opportunities. The whole cast did excellent work, Dan Kelly contributing many a laugh by his portrayal of the negro servant, Matt Briggs offering a smooth and convincing performance as Arthur Marsden and Marion Swayne who had the only feminine role in the play, scoring as Alice Denby. Walter Plummer Jr. gave a breezy picture of a newspaper reporter.

"The Gorilla" was a very amusing and every pleasing production, excellently staged and splendidly acted.

There is a penalty in being too good. Rose Rolanda was engaged to play a small part in the Gilda Gray picture, "Aloma of the South Seas," because she could shimmy. After traveling to Bermuda, where the picture was filmed, dancing Rolanda was released from her contract because her shimmying ability not only matched Miss Gray's but is said to have surpassed it.

If I were an inventor, I would prove my theory that Hollywood is a hot-bed of emotions. I would fashion a mammoth thermometer, measuring the length of the film town's famed and failing boulevard. On one end of the giant instrument, I would hang a bag of mercury the size of many Zeppelins. After perfecting this Herculean feverrod, I would insert it into the heart of this heart-break hole.

I'll tell you what would happen: Hollywood is a civilized volcano, slopping over its lava of hot and cold emotions—the thermometer would break into a million pieces.

Bluff is Hollywood's grandest armor. It achieves the seemingly impossible. In crucial moments all stratas of the moving picture sphere rely on it.

Years ago, before she was working regularly, Bessie Love lived in a house that one would have thought only a bank president could afford. It was bluff. Bessie couldn't afford it. And now that Bessie is making $2000 a week, and can afford such a house, she doesn't. She lives in a very modest little bungalow.

Movie millions do not assuage for the tragedy of domestic disillusionment. There is Bill Hatt, the horse-faced hero from the prairies. Past 50, this hulk of heroism courted romance, and married a mere wisp of a girl, who was just 20. It was the only romance that ever entered his life.

Now he lives on memories and anticipation—once each week he sees his baby—the child on whom he settled $150,000 when he separated from Winifred Westover, the youthful mother who left him five months after their wedding.

Bill wanted to be a husband, a father—but it will never be. He is enying dearly for something he can paver have.

BILLY EVANS Says:

VETERAN STARS. MATERIAL SCARCE. PASSING CHAMPS.

Veteran big league ball players owe a vote of thanks to Manager Stanley Harris of Washington.

Two years ago, Harris with a good but not a great team, won an American League pennant and the world series.

Realizing his club would need to be strengthened if it was to repeat, Harris banked on veteran stars believed to have passed the peak of their game rather than highly touted phenoms.

He resurrected Coveleskie and Reuther, both generally believed to be through as pitchers; made a trade for Joe Harris to take advantage of his batting and secured the veteran catcher, Hank Severeid to fill the bill if Muddy Ruel was injured.

The Harris system was ridiculed in many quarters, but the vets came through for him to another pennant.

The success that Harris has had with veteran stars, believed to be slipping, has caused other managers to give consideration to the old-timers before permitting them to pass out of the big league picture.

The intensive play that now features both major league races, calls for a very high standard of play. There doesn't seem to be enough ball players to go around to make the 16 major league clubs equal in playing ability.

For that reason managers are turning to the veterans, who after they seem to be through playing under a certain banner, take on new life when subjected to a change of scenery.

Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn club, is one of the big league managers who is going to pin his faith for 1926 in the old-timers.

Since the close of the 1925 season Robbie has added six veterans to his roster, Barnes, O'Neil and Felix from Boston, Maranville, from Chicago and Witt from the New York Yanks. While Pitcher Boehler who has been with seven major league clubs, has been brought back from the minors for his eighth trial.

"I am banking on experience, poise and ability rather than speed for 1926," is the way Manager Robinson explains the Brooklyn situation.

The life of the big league ball player is mighty short at best. It is really surprising how rapidly the personnels of the major league teams change.

Let us take the Washington club of the American League as an example. That club won its first American League pennant in 1924. Just one year has elapsed. The club repeated, but there are a number of new faces on the team.

Catcher Hargrave and Pitcher George Mogridge are with the St. Louis Browns; Paul Zahniser is with Boston, and Pitcher Byron Speece with Cleveland.

Pitcher Joe Martina and Curley Ogden were shunted back to the minors, also Infielders Taylor and Miller.

So that in one short year eight members of the world champions of 1924 have departed from Washington. You can never tell in baseball.

APPROVE LANDIS

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—National League club owners not only favor renewing Baseball Commissioner Landis' term of office for a 10-year period when his present contract expires in 1927, but they also desire to increase his salary, now $50,000 a year.

The magnates did not go on record on the salary question at their mid-winter session Wednesday when they gave the Commissioner a vote of confidence, but William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs, was quoted Friday by the New York Sun as saying that "Landis can write his own ticket, so far as the National League is concerned."

APPEAL DISMISSED IN PITTSBURGH CASE

United and Continuing Sections of Church To Use It Alternately.

TORONTO, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press)—"I think the appeal and the action should be dismissed as both parties are responsible, one for the faulty constitution of the action, and the other for want of proper evidence to establish their only right and title to interfere, and both for the extreme paucity of the evidence generally, there should be no costs of the appeal, or the action, to either of them."

In these words Justice Hodgins winds up his judgment on the appeal of the trustees of St. John's Presbyterian Church, Pittsburg Township, from the judgment of Justice Logie who refused to enjoin the continuing Presbyterians from the use of church and who continued the modus vivendi under which each section of the congregation was to have use of the church on alternate Sundays.

24 MEN DIED FROM DRINKING 'RUB' ALCOHOL

Dominion Government Asked To Demand Doctor's Prescription For Sale.

SPENCE'S VIEW.

Says Only Non Potable Variety Should Be Sold Wothout Order.

(Special to the Examiner.)

TORONTO, Feb. 8. — A record of 24 deaths since September 1918, due to the drinking of rubbing alcohol, prompted a charge at Brantford to memorialize the Dominion government: "That, as there is no law under the O.T.A. to prohibit the sale of rubbing alcohol by druggists some action should be taken to restrict or prohibit the sale to the public without a doctor's requisition."

Rev. Ben. Spence in discussing the advisability of such restriction, said to-day: "We have always advocated that all alcohol should be treated as any other drug and dispensed only on a doctor's prescription. It is only the non-potable alcohol that has any right to be sold openly for commercial purposes. The distinction here is between mythl alcohol and ethyl alcohol. The first is the anti-freeze variety and there is small danger of any sane man using that even for rubbing let alone as a beverage.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—Two hold-ups were reported to the police over the week end.

Herbert Wyatt, aged 17, delivery boy employed by Arthur Low, butcher and grocer, was held up by an armed man Saturday night, wearing a ragged handkerchief over the lower part of his face, who robbed him of $19.

MUSSOLINI AIM PAINS GERMANY

Doesn't Appreciate Wholesale Retribution Hinted By Italy's Dictator.

AUSTRIA'S STAND.

BERLIN, Feb. 8 (United Press). —The German Foreign Office assumed an extremely cautious and equivocal attitude to-day toward Premier Mussolini's clear warning that Italy would not brook further German attacks on the Southern Tyrol policy of Italy.

And meantime the German press showed a striking unanimity in expressing "pain" rather than "anger" at Mussolini's suggestion that Italy could exact a revenge of "two eyes for an eye and a whole set of teeth for a tooth, or could even carry its colors beyond the famed Brenner Pass which now marks Italy's northernmost outpost."

Rely on League.

VIENNA, Feb. 8 (United Press). —The United Press learned unofficially to-day that Austria would rely upon the action of the League of Nations in the event Premier Mussolini of Italy attempts unfriendly acts in the Tyrol.

In the meantime traders said that it was probable that Austria would turn to America for friends, as a boycott on the Italian fruits was now definitely organized.

This action follows Saturday's speech of Mussolini in the Italian Chamber, in which he warned Germany against anti-Italian attacks upon the South Tyrol policy of Italy and declared that Italy, on occupation, could carry her flag beyond the Brenner Pass.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Taking his text from the fourth chapter of the Gospel according to St. Luke, eighth to fifteenth verses, Rev. P. Costello based his sermon at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday on the parable of the sower sowing the seed. The seed which fell by the wayside was likened to the Word of God which is received with joy at first and then forgotten in time of temptation, that which fell on rocky ground was the type which is driven from the soul by the devil's work, the seed which fell among thorns was the sort which bore no fruit in this world, but the seed in the good ground was fostered and made to bring forth good fruit in patience.

"The Catholic who is a Catholic in reality and not merely in name only is the one who will receive the good seed and strive to bring forth fruit in due season. 'They who persevere to the end,' says Christ, 'shall be saved.' There are too many Catholics in name only, whose lives are not those of practical Christians and who do not strive to bring forth good fruit. 'The tree that bringeth not forth good fruit shall be cut down and cast into the fire.' So with the Catholic likewise. We know our duty to God and to our neighbor. We must put the truths of our religion into practice. Catholics should not be guilty of blasphemy or lying or thievery, they should put from them thoughts of anger and hatred and revenge, of quarelling and fighting. They should be an example to their neighbors and strive to build up sanctity in their souls by receiving Holy Communion as often as possible. Let us first of all hold fast to the faith, practise it in our lives and persevere to the end."

ALL SAINTS' ANGLICAN

The twenty-fourth anniversary of the setting aside of All Saints' Church as a separate parish was celebrated yesterday. The special preacher was Major the Rev. R. McNamara well known both as a minister, and as an overseas chaplain. Special music was rendered by the choir.

At the morning service the speaker delivered an address most appropriate to the occasion, taking up the two points to be observed at an anniversary service, first, looking back over the events of the past year, and second, looking forward toward the new year. Encouragement was the first thought of the backward look. The things which had been done and the blesings received should encourage the people to press forward to greater things. Sadness at the failures of the year and at the loss of those who had been called from this life was also touched upon. Thanksgiving for the blessings received and pardon for the wrongs done were other points.

Looking forward, faith and obedience were stressed by the speaker as necessary. Harder work than had been done before, with self sacrifice in doing it and joy in its accomplishment were recommended for the coming year..

BOLSHEVISM FOREIGN

Dr. Adam Shortt, famous Canadian economist, who believes that Bolshevism and anarchism are foreign to the Anglo-Saxon nature, and will never be adopted by Great Britain, Australia, Canada or the United States. The private ownership of his own home by the average workman of Canada, he said, accounted for the fact that there was much less unrest in Canada than in Great Britain.

PAY POLL TAX.

Summons Will Follow Failure To Heed New Notice.

Poll tax dodgers are going to receive short shrift, it was shown this morning. William J. Green, city tax collector has prepared a list of those who have evaded the tax in the past year; this list has been submitted to the police authorities on the understanding if one more notice fails to elicit the desired response a summons to appear in court will follow. More than a score of names are listed. Persons past the age of 21 ,unmarried and not paying any other property tax, are assessable.

RUM RUNNER WHO SQUEALED IS KILLED

States' Informant Found Dead With Bullets in Head.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press)—Hans Fuhrmann, self-styled rum smuggler, whose "peaching" last summer was followed by grand jury indictments in an alleged $25,000,000 liquor ring, was found dead with bullet wounds in his head in a hotel room here on January 28. In revealing the facts yesterday, the medical examiners described the death as suicidal. Fuhrmann's widow, however, is of the belief that he did not take his own life.

Mrs. Fuhrmann claims her husband told her recently there were two prices totalling $35,000 resting on his head. She said he met death in a vicinity frequented by those against whom he would have testified in court had he lived.

YOUTH'S LEG WAS BADLY FRACTURED

Was Coasting and Collided With Telephone Pole—Was Serious.

APSLEY, Feb. 8 — A little boy, seven years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McColl, met with an accident recently. While sleigh riding down a hill he collided with a telephone post and injured his leg. He was carried to Dr. Shepherd, who did not decide on the extent of the injury. The little lad was kept in bed and on Thursday evening Dr. Smith of Lakefield, who was in the village, was called in, and on examination found a bad fracture above the knee. He at once rendered the necessary surgical aid, the lapse of time since the accident making it a somewhat diffijcult matter.

O.T.A. POLICY

what the result would be if such a proposal was made by a Government supporter.

Attorney-General Nickle declared that it would be out of order for a private member to bring in a bill covering Government control. "because it deals with the revenue of the Province," but if brought in as a resolution, "it would precipitate a discussion, and," he added significantly, "there is much to be said on the subject."

Might Use Currie.

There is a very interesting angle arising from the statement of Col. Currie. There are those in opposition to the Government who think that this may be the method by which the Ferguson forces will embrace the opportunity to bring forth a Government declaration on the matter. The Government, with a resolution being discussed, might make a general pronouncement of policy without introducing a bill. A bill would have all the dangers of detailed information for discussion in the House and on the hustings. However, the Premier has repeatedly declared that the Government will, when it has an announcement to make, make it openly, and frankly, without any subterranean methods.

ST. JOHN'S CHOIR ANNUAL MEETING

Excellent Reports of Year's Activities—Officers Are Elected.

At the close of the regular rehearsal on Thursday evening, the choir of St. John's Church held its annual meeting, with the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave also in attendance. The president, H. Morphet, occupied the chair and opened the meeting by calling for the choir secretary's report. This report, as submitted by Miss R. Quartermaine, showed the choir to have accomplished much and financially to be in a very healthy condition. After purchasing two sets of cantatas and eight new sets of anthems, there remained a surplus of over $46 in the treasury.

In review of the past year's work, F. G. Mann, A.Mus., organist and choirmaster, briefly alluded to the various achievements of the year, among which was the presentation to the church of a large group picture of the choir members and officers. The splendid record of attendance was maintained—Miss R. Quartermaine again leading in this resect, with Mrs. B. Willis a close second. Rev. Dr. Blagrave addressed the members, expressing his own and the congregation's appreciation of the services of the choir and its leader for the excellent work done, with particular emphasis on the reverent and devotional manner in which the choir performed its allotted task.

A pleasing feature was the presentation of a set of china dishes from the organist and choir to one of its members, A. Hayter, who is shortly to be married. This presentation was made by H. W. Morphet on behalf of the choir. Mr. Hayter, although caught unawares, replied suitably in a happy vein. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the men of the choir, upon which the ladies expressed their approval in no uncertain manner.

The officers for the ensuing year are:

Hon. President — Rev. R. C. Blagrave, B.D.
President—H. W. Morphet.
Vice-President—G. Coleman.
Secretary-Treasnrer — Miss R. Quartermaine.

AUSTRALIAN TREATY HARMFUL TO CANADIAN DAIRY INDUSTRY, SAYS AMENDMENT OF CONSERVATIVES

Lack of Protection for Farmers Lamentable, Says Donald Sutherland.

TREATY UNFAIR

Hon. J. A. Robb Denies Statement That Dairy Business is Languishing.

OTTAWA, Feb. 9—A Conservative amendment condemning the Australian trade treaty as detrimental to the dairy industry of Canada was introduced in the House yesterday afternoon by Donald Sutherland (South Oxford) as follows:

"We desire respectfully to express regret that resulting from the policy of and recent trade agreements made by the present Government the dairy products industry of Canada is now being subjected to most unfair and unwarrantable competition from other countries, and that the speech from the throne gives no indication of any remedial legislation which would remove the discrimination under which this industry suffers."

The interests of those engaged in the farming industry in Canada had been sacrificed through the Australian treaty to the benefit of persons who had acquired pulp concessions in this country and had brought pressure to bear upon the government, Mr. Sutherland said. The government realizing that a general election was coming on, apparently had decided to get the good will of such corporations.

Mr. Sutherland declared there was scarcely a city or town in Canada in which Australian and New Zealand butter or cheese was not on sale. Give the farmers of Canada fair play, he advised, and they would not be asking for rural credits. Did the government contemplate old age pensions legislation to farmers here "who are put out of business by the Australian treaty?"

Many Protests

The Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Sutherland asserted, was quite well aware that the dairy industry in Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific had been protesting against the injustice which had been done to it. Protection, to Mr. Sutherland's mind, meant "protection against unfair competition." The Australian treaty was unfair to the dairy industry in subjecting it to competition of an unfair nature.

The present importations of butter under the treaty had disorganized the market, but they were only a portion of the imports to come in the future. The Prime Minister had promised in Oxford, to have the treaty abbrogated if it proved injurious to the dairy industry. Certainly it was time to give notice of the termination of the treaty. The government had failed in its duty to the farmer. Agriculture had never had a reasonable tariff and consequently had never had a fair chance in Canada.

Mr. Sutherland read a number of communications from Dairy Associations, as well as some newspaper articles protesting against and criticizing the Australian treaty.

Situation Serious

The situation in Canada in respect to the dairy industry was very serious and the matter was of more importance to agriculture than rural credits. All the farmer demanded was fair play, and he should be placed in a position where he would be protected from "unfair competition."

Mr. Sutherland expressed his resentment against any effort to make Canada "the dumping ground" of countries with a high protective tariff. The lack of protection afforded the dairy industry was lamentable; and the attention of an active, virile government was required.

Hon. J. A. Robb

Hon. J. A. Robb, acting Minister of Trades and Commerce, declared that Mr. Sutherland had opposed every treaty which the present government had introduced in the house. In doing so, Mr. Sutherland had followed the example of his leader, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen. Yet, stated Mr. Robb, the treaties brought in for ratification by the King Government had given greater preferences to the dairy and agricul-

Cow Loses Life In Game Of Grim Hide and Seek

HILLBORO, N.Y., Feb. 9.—(United Press).—This is a tale of a cow, for whom Mrs. Carrie Onella, its owner, risked her life when fire broke out in her barn.

She drove the cow from the barn and was forced to jump from a window to save herself.

When she got outside she discovered that the cow had reentered the barn and had been burned to death.

NOW, HONESTLY—

All of us don't know so much after all.

For instance — what hooks are for.

We walk into the house; drop our overcoats most any place; toss our hats on a chair fling out muffler on the dining room table, and, at retiring time, do likewise with all other wearing apparel.

'Course it gives mothers a lot of things to pick up, but—

'Twould help if we'd remember that hooks are made to hang things on.

Hang that on your memory!

NATIONALIST NEWSPAPER SAYS GERMANY WOULD DECLARE WAR IF SHE WERE NOT DEFENSELESS

Lokal Anzeiger Concludes With Disapproval of League Application.

D'ANNUNZIO PLEASED.

Poet Soldier Fires Salute of 27 Guns To Honor Mussolini.

By Frederick Kuh
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—While awaiting to-day the speech of Foreign Minister Stressemann in answer to Italian Mussolini's warning to Germany, the press here adopted a more energetic tone toward Italy than heretofore. The Nationalists Lokal Anzeiger, for instance, said that were Germany not now defenseless, her retort to Mussolini's speech declaring Italy could not on occasion push her banners beyond the Brenner Pass, would be a declaration of war.

This paper, known as a mouthpiece of a large monarchist element, concludes its comment by depreciating the fact that Germany has forwarded to the League here application for membership. It suggests that Germany may decline to accept Italy's guarantee under the Locarno pact since the pact is signed by a man "filled with hatred against Germany."

D'Annunzio Pleased.

ROME, Feb. 9 (United Press).—Gabriel D'Annunzio, poet and hero of Fiume, is overjoyed at what he calls Premier Mussolini's masculine words to Germany in his Saturday's speech of warning. In his enthusiasm over them, the poet-soldier has fired a 27-gun salute from the submarine chaser Puglie, which now adorns his Lake Garda estate.

"The silent guard of Lake Garda congratulates your masculine words," D'Annunzio telegraphed "Il Duce" to-day, and salutes them with 27 cannon shots from the submarine chaser Puglie."

Application Considered.

GENEVA, Feb. 9. — (United Press).—Germany's request for admission to the League of Nations will be considered at a session of the League Council summoned for Friday.

This meeting will probably call for March 10 a special assembly to act finally on the application and to create a separate seat in the Council for the Germans.

Thus Germany would be able to sit in the regular Council meeting in March.

Boycott Of All Italy Spreads In Germany

BERLIN, Feb. 9 (United Press). — Germany's indignation at Premier Mussolini's beyond Brenner speech has led to a boycott of Italian oranges and other fruits, and Bavaria is now buying only Spanish fruits. The "Singakdemi" has cancelled a proposed singing tour of Italy.

At Munich station a huge placard declares: "German tourists going to Italy are traitors."

ROBBERY STORY WAS ONLY JOKE

Prisoner in Moose Jaw Trial Says He "Stuffed" Witness.

$38,600 STOLEN

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Feb. 9. — (Canadian Press.)—Alfred C. Collins, one of the men accused of robbing the post office staff here of $38,600 on the night of December 1, 1924, entered the witness box Monday, the sixth day of the hearing, and testified that when he told Percy Guy, one of the main witnesses for the Crown, that he was one of the bandits, he was joking. Collins frankly admitted having a conversation in a local pool room with Guy when the subject of the robbery was brought up and he had said:

"I know the whole gang who pulled that hold-up, and as a matter of fact they came to me the next day and gave me $2,000 to keep my mouth shut." This was all said in a joke, declared Collins, who agreed that it had proved a costly joke.

Collins also agreed that he had told Guy, "I went into the post office, walked up to Jones and stuck my finger in his cage and said give me the dough." This, also, was said in a joke, declared Collins, as he saw that Guy was swallowing what he had first said regarding knowing the whole gang.

Discrimination Alleged On Railways of P.E. Island

OTTAWA, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—Charges that returned soldiers in Prince Edward Island could not get work on the Government railways there unless they were "armed with a recommendation from some Liberal member or hekler," were made in the House of Commons yesterday by John A. Macdonald (Conservative, King's, P.E.I.). He read a telegram from a returned soldier in his constituency, complaining that he had been refused snow fighting work on the railway, while four members of another fami[ly] none of whom saw service overseas, were employed.

Hon. E. M. Macdonald, Minister of National Defence, asked Mr. Macdonald to send him the names of the men involved and he would take the matter up at once with the island railway authorities.

WHY PETERBOROUGH CITY COUNCIL ARRANGED TO TAKE ELECTRIC POWER FROM HYDRO ELECTRIC COMMISSION

Utilities Commission Explains Circumstances in First Letter of a Series Telling of Electric Utility Affairs City Had No Power.

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir.—It is proposed to furnish you with information regarding the Local Utilities, especially the Electric Utility, in a series of articles, which, it is hoped, will not be too long, and to ask you to publish them for the benefit of the people, the owners of the Utility.

Today, the subject will be: "Why the City Council Arranged to Receive the Electric Power from the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario."

This, of course, is not a matter that the Utilities Commission dealt with; it was and is entirely under the jurisdiction of the City Council, and accordingly it was the Council that made enquiries regarding power and made the agreements with the Hydro Commission.

But it is germane to the general subject, and for that reason is touched on here.

In the first place, as is no doubt well known, the City never owned a water power (except the Waterworks Dam) or electric power. When electricity began to be recognized as of importance to municipal service and growth, the City Council made efforts to secure power for Peterborough.

In 1907 the City Council negotiated with the Peterborough Light and Power Company to purchase their property, which, however, did not include power, as the Peterborough Light and Power Company never owned

Publication Of United States Income Tax Returns Repealed By Vote of 49 to 32 In Senate Yesterday

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—The Senate refused last night, by a vote of 49 to 32, to open income tax returns to public inspection.

Fifteen Republicans, sixteen Democrats, and one Farmer-Labor voted for publicity, while thirty-three Republicans and sixteen Democrats opposed the provision.

The vote removed one of the main stumbling blocks in the Senate consideration of the tax reduction bill and followed four days of debate on the question of publicity.

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, offered the amendment to make all income tax returns open to public inspection, and spoke for six hours yesterday in support of it, citing alleged corruption and fraud in the internal revenue bureau which, he said, would be prevented by publicity.

GERMANY, UNMOVED BY MUSSOLINI, SENDS APPLICATION TO THE LEAGUE

Sees Opportunity in League Membership to Solve Post-War Problems.

CABINET APPROVAL

BERLIN, Feb. 9. — (Canadian Press.)—Germany's formal application for membership in the League of Nations was believed to be on the way to Geneva last night. The cabinet yesterday approved the draft of the application, and took up, as well, the subject matter of Premier Mussolini's speech.

Mussolini's denunciation of Germany, it was declared, affected in no way the government's previous decision respecting the League of Nations. It is known that the members of the cabinet devoted the greater part of their deliberations to the question of countering the Italian premier's outbreak.

An official communique issued at the conclusion of the session, reviews in great detail the political and economic drift of European affairs since the signing of the Treaty of Versailles, and sets forth the reasons why it was impossible for Germany to file her application earlier.

Specific reference is made to the occupation of the Ruhr and its disastrous effects on Germany's economic position. Her presence in the League, the communique states, will afford Germany the necessary opportunity for active participation in the task of disentangling the wide range of post war problems, and, above all, will accomplish realization of the aims and purposes of the Locarno agreements, which are destined to furnish a firm foundation for the promotion of European peace.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

No. Peterborough, Ont. Feb. 9, 1926

The Dominion Bank

Pay Peterborough Exhibition or Order

Two Dollars

$2.00 John Crane.

This is what John Crane thinks of Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. His motto is, 'Say it with a cheque.'

But he adds:

Having been associated with the Peterborough Exhibition some years ago and knowing something of the difficulties and discouragements occasioned by bad weather and the lack of interest on the part of our citizens at that time, I am filled with admiration for the splendid and successful efforts of President Denne and his efficient board for the wonderful progress made in the past few years, culminating in the record-breaking of last year's Fair. Peterborough needs publicity, and the publicity we get is too often of a character calculated to do harm rather than good so far as the outside press is concerned. Such an exhibition as we had last year will do much to attract attention, and aside from the manifest benefits in an agricultural and livestock way which all goes to engender healthy competition and pride in progress, the occasion affords an opportunity of everybody getting together in a neighborly way — city resident and farmer rubbing shoulders together. This cannot be otherwise than beneficial in those days when attempts are being made to foster closer relationship between city and country.

I believe the citizens are behind President Denne and his able helpers as never before, and the full week Fair of 1926 should go over 100 per cent.

TWO MEN HANG IN WINNIPEG FOR BRUTAL CRIMES

John Stanton Dies For Killing Aged Man With a Hammer.

THREE YEARS AGO.

Steve Nazar Slew Taxicab Driver With Iron Bar—Robberies Committed.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press)—John Baker Stanton, 28, an internationally known criminal, and Steve Nazar, 19, a farm worker, paid the supreme penalty of the law here early this morning when they were hanged for the murder of John Penny, 70, and Louis Landy, a local taxi driver, respectively.

The murders were the most brutal in the history of the local police, Penny being killed by a hammer and Landy with an iron bar.

The crime for which John Stanton was executed today was described at the trial as the most brutal in the annals of Winnipeg's police history.

The murder of John Penny, 70-year-old recluse, was perpetrated in the early hours of December 19, 1922. Penny's head was battered in with a hammer, after efforts to stifle his life with ether, had failed. The body was found covered with blood, He had been gagged with remnants of the bed sheets while the aged man's hands and feet were securely bound with an electric light cord.

Police investigation resulted in the subsequent arrest of Albert "Happy" Horton, Arthur T. Searle and Annie Selbach, Penny's housekeeper. At the trial of the trio who were charged with the murder, it was adduced that Horton and Searle were in the house at the time the crime was committed. The former told of being asleep in the parlor and of being awakened by cries of "help," from an upstairs room. Frightened by the screams he had covered his head and tried to dose off again. The cries of distress, according to Horton, continued until he got up and walked into the hallway. There he had encountered Stanton descending the stairs, spattered with blood and holding a sum of money and jewels. Horton testified he had declined to share any of the money and ordered Stanton to make good his escape. He admitted on the stand that he had discussed with Stanton the possibility of robbing Penny, but denied he had known of Stanton's plans on the night of the crime. The three were acquitted.

John Stanton

Following a continent-wide search which extended over a period of two and a half years, Stanton was discovered in the Green Castle Prison Farm, Indiana, on June 15, 1925, where under the name of John Bak-

THUGS ATTACK MAN WITH ACID

Dastardly Attack on Toronto Steeplejack Last Night.

TAKE $60.

WINDSOR, Feb. 9. — (Canadian Press).—His face horribly seared by acid, John Murphy, 33 years old, of Toronto, steeplejack, lay on a cot in Grace Hospital last night while nurses attempted to assuage his agony. His eyes are tightly bandaged and not until many hours have elapsed will surgeons be able to tell whether the man will ever see again. On his way to the central Hotel last night Murphy was held up in the rear of the Reo garage by two men, who demanded money to buy food. It was too dark for Murphy to see, but he unhesitatingly pulled out his roll of money $60 in all, and tendered the men a one dollar bill. They laughed in his face. "Hand over that money and do it quick," he was ordered. Instead of complying, Murphy turned as though to escape, when one of the men dashed a bottle of vitriol into his face. Then as the victim screamed with pain and tried to grope his way to escape, the thugs seized the money from his hand and fled.

O.T.A. REVENUE HAS DECREASED

Drop in Fines and Confiscations Greater Than 4.4 Beer Profit.

TORONTO, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—Revenue totalling $1,423,303 was diverted into the Provincial Treasury during the past fiscal year by the Ontario Temperance Act. The sum is lower by $41,064 than the amount realized a year ago, the deficiency being due to the fact that the decreased revenue from fines and confiscated liquors was not counterbalanced by $68,000 new revenue from the sale of 4.4 beer permits. Figures made available yesterday showed that during the past year offenders under the Temperance Act paid a total of $378,298 in fines to the Province. The value of the confiscated liquor is given as $39,686, in contrast to the value of $106,596 placed upon the seizures of the year previous.

LINDSAY, Feb. 9.— Miss Della Smitheram, of Fenelon township, is in a critical condition as a result of an accident which occurred near the village of Fenelon Falls. Miss Smitheram and Mr. Elmer Lee, both students of the Continuation school, were driving home from school when the horse became unmanageable and ran away. Miss Smitheram jumped from the cutter, striking the ground with such force that she was rendered unconscious. She was taken to Dr. Graham's office, where it was found that she had sustained a fractured skull. She regained consciousness Saturday, but her condition is said to be critical.

BALDWIN DENIES ANY AGREEMENT WITH MUSSOLINI

British Press Says Italy Has Virtually Repudiated Locarno Pact.

BRITAIN LENIENT

Mussolini's Speech on Eve of German Entry Into League.

LONDON, Feb. 9. — (Canadian Press).—The worst aspect of Premier Mussolini's denunciation of Germany in the eyes of the British press is Italy's virtual repudiation of the League of Nations and the Locarno pact. Some of the more sedate newspapers refrain from comment, fearing to inflame the situation, but the press generally deplores "the outburst," especially on the eve of Germany's entry into the League.

The incident is considered doubly unfortunate owing to the conviction indicated in the French press and by many English papers that Great Britain's lenient treatment of Italy over the war debt was due to some implied understanding between the two countries for mutual aid in certain eventualities.

Denial By Baldwin.

Premier Baldwin's disclaimer in the House of Commons Monday of the existence of any such agreement fails to quiet the suspicions that some understanding, if not a written agreement, exists.

On this point, the Standard writes editorially:

"One restraint the less exists since Italy's obligations to Great Britain have been whittled down. The policy of 'gestures,' paid for by British tax-payers, purports to aim at European peace and appeasement. In fact, forgiveness of the German, French and Italian debts would seem to mean only greater liability to new wars, since every pound not used in paying the British creditor is available for the purposes of military ambition."

The Westminster Gazette: "The great powers, unlike the smaller, gave no guarantees in the peace treaties regarding the treatment of alien minorities. But this cannot absolve them from carrying out a broad liberal policy towards alien subjects in respect of language, culture and economic interests which the Italian Prime Minister spontaneously stated it was his intention to adopt when the Treaty of St. Germain was signed.

Italy's Pledge in 1919.

"These pledges were repeated publicly by Signor Tittoni and the King of Italy in December, 1919. If the liberal traditions which Tittoni then described as 'Italy's fame and prestige' have been entirely superseded by the new regime, it is as well that the friends who aided and sympathized with her in her darkest hour should know it.

"Although Italy's new subjects have no strict right of appeal to the League of Nations, it is incredible that any gross aggression could occur without the League taking cognizance of it."

Austrians Incensed.

VIENNA, Feb. 9. (Canadian Press). — Mussolini's speech has created consternation throughout Austria, more especially the Tyrol. A mass meeting at Innsbruck has demanded the convocation of the Provincial Diet in order to call upon the Government to take such steps at Geneva and Rome as might be calculated to banish the fears of the Tyrolese.

ALLEGED OPPRESSION OF GERMAN MINORITY IN TYROL BY ITALIANS CAUSE OF BITTER CONTROVERSY

Fascist Press Echoes Mussolini's Belligerence Toward Germany in Comments.

PREMIER'S SERVICE

Teach Lesson to "Kaiser Mentality" Among the German People.

ROME, Feb. 9. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Mussolini's famous speech of warning to Germany on the South Tyrol question, in the opinion of the newspapers which support the Government, served the cause of peace by showing to the world Italy in the role of a strong and proud defender of its dignity and by cutting off Germany's renascent ambitions.

None of the opposition newspapers comment on the speech except the Voce Republicana, which says: "Like the rest of the opposition press we are silent as a measure of prudence. However, we call attention to the fact that if our silence indicates a clear divergence from Mussolini's utterances and policies, this does not signify absolute disagreement with all of his conclusions."

La Tribuna, which supports the Fascist regime, says that the only menace to peace is the assumption that Italy is weak and submissive, and that Premier Mussolini's only war is against lies and calumnies.

This newspaper says that the Germans and Austrians, instead of invoking the spirit of Locarno, which is not applicable to the present situation, should scrupulously observe their treaty obligations. It declares that Italy is prepared to face any anti-Italian measures the Germans may take.

Boycott Reprisals.

"If Germany wishes to prevent her citizens from coming to Italy we might forestall this by refusing to vise their passports as undesirable guests," La Tribuna continues. "If they boycott our goods we can totally boycott theirs. If one single Italian working in Germany is touched we can expel from Italy all German citizens who since the war have found here profitable and respectable occupations."

The Gironale de Italia declares that the speech did a great service in teaching a lesson to the "William II. mentality," which is reviving in Germany. This paper expresses the hope that the new German mentality will be better able to understand the new Italy.

The treatment of the minority of German race and language living in the South Tyrol, which Italy obtained from Austria by the peace treaty of St. Germain has been the subject of heated controversy and charges and counter-charges for several weeks, leading up to Premier Mussolini's dramatic speech of Saturday.

In Germany and Austria it has been alleged that the Germans in South Tyrol have been oppressed by their Italian rulers, forced to use the Italian language in their schools and otherwise discriminated against. One Berlin paper charged that the purpose of Italian policy in South Tyrol was "degradation of the inhabitants and a state of cultural, mental and economic serfdom."

Much resentment was aroused shortly before Christmas by reports that Italian officials in the ceded Tyrol districts had prohibited the customary municipal Christmas trees, on the ground that this was a German, non-Italian institution. Later the Italian commissioner for South Tyrol rescinded this order, which the German press called "a brutal violation" of the cultural and religious rights of the Tyrolese people.

In both Berlin and Vienna a tourist boycott of Italy had been advocated as a reprisal for the alleged wrongs of the German Tyroleans.

The German charges evoked bitter replies from Italy, the newspapers and speakers in the Chamber of Deputies having denounced what they called "insane propaganda," among the Germans in the Upper Adige Valley, or South Tyrol. L'Inpero, extreme Fascist paper, referred to Germany as "our instinctive racial enemy." This journal first gave expression to the idea advanced by Premier Mussolini in his speech, that the famous Brenner Pass, now on the Italo-Austrial border and one of the great strategetic points in Europe, "is not the goal but the starting point."

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

(Contributed).

The increasing interest being taken in the series of sermons on the Jews being given in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Allan, was shown on Sunday night by the largest congregation that has yet turned out at these services. Almost every seat in the church was occupied, some pews being uncomfortably crowded. The fact that these services have been lasting until half-past eight and that the congregation has been increasing, indicates that people are turning out because they are obtaining information in which they are interested.

The subject of Sunday evening's address was "The Jew on the Long, Long Trail." Taking Jacob as a type of the Jewish people, Rev. Mr. Allan drew a number of striking comparisons between God's dealings with Jacob and with the Jewish people. He opened by stating that although we may not like the Jews as a people, and with good reason, yet we must recognize that they are a unique people with characteristics that challenge attention. In different places in the Scriptures God is spoken of as the God of Jacob. Wherever this expression is used it is in connection with periods of apostasy among the Jews.

The first thing about Jacob was that he got himself separated from the place of blessing. In his desire for the birthright he deceived his father, Isaac, and his brother Esau, and by the assistance of his mother succeeded in obtaining the blessing that was intended for Esau. He went to live among the people of the East, where there was a famine and where he soon became unpopular and the people conspired against him. All this is typical of the Jewish people. Because of their failure to accept Jesus as their Messiah, they were punished by being driven out of the Promised Land, the only place where God has promised to bless them as a nation. They are scattered among the peoples of the earth, who dislike them and conspire against them. It is not a question whether this dislike is well founded. It is a question of fact

Jacob cut himself off from the place of worship and lived among a people who worshipped idols. When the prophet Hosea prophesied that the Children of Israel would abide many days without a king and without a prince and without a sacrifice, he foretold their future rejection of their Messiah and their national punishment. For centuries now the Jews have been without a king, or a prince, or a sacrifice. Rev. Mr. Allan challenge the Jewish people to show how God could use them as a blessing to the other nations of the world as long as they seek to maintain their present forms of worship apart from Christ. They should recognize that when John the Baptist referred to Christ as the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world, he intended them to accept Christ.

Jacob was under a special covenant promise of God and was preserved through His troubles on that account. So the Jews to-day are under a covenant promise of God, Who has undertaken to see that while they are scattered among the nations of the earth, they shall not be utterly cast off and shall ultimately be re-gathered to the place of blessing. Jacob had a vision and wrestled with a man. So the Jews for centuries have been wrestling with Jesus of Nazareth, and have been prevented from accepting Him only because of their pride and prejudice. To-day God is not dealing with the Jews as a nation. The Jewish clock has stopped. These are the times of the Gentiles. God is proclaiming the message of salvation to both Jew and Gentile, both of whom may be saved as individuals through their acceptance of Christ as their Saviour. This is a selective process during which many are called but few are chosen. Only those who are born again through faith in Christ are blessed of God at this time.

The fourth in this series of addresses will be given a week from next Sunday night. Next Sunday evening's service will be intended specially for young men and young women.

Mid-Week Service.

The subject, "Where are the Dead?" illustrated by charts, drew out the largest attendance to the mid-week service last Wednesday that has attended a prayer meeting in St. Paul's Church in many years. This subject will be continued to-morrow (Wednesday) evening, when Rev. Mr. Allan intends to describe some happenings in the unseen world.

AIRMAN TO TELL ENGINEERS ART

Peterborough Branch E. I. C. is to Hear Lecture on Aviation.

One of the few benefits to mankind, resulting from the Great War, is the rapid development of aerial transportation, most of the real progress in which dates from the first war years.

How far we have developed in aerial work is not generally known to the layman, but it is safe to say that aerial navigation is playing a greater part in the building up of our Dominion than most of us realize.

The local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, at their next regular meeting, to be held in the Chamber of Commerce, on Thursday evening, Feb. 11th, are to have a paper on this subject presented by Wing Commander E. W. Stedman, O.B.E. Commander Stedman's lecture, which is entitled, "Aviator and Modern Engineering Practice," is primarily intended to cover the use of aerial machines in engineering projects, but as it includes exploration, geological and railway surveying, fishery and fire patrols, city planning, commercial photography, and many other phases of aviation, the lecture should appeal to anyone interested in aviation, whether from an engineering standpoint or otherwise.

This lecture was recently given before the Montreal branch, and in the January issue of "The Engineering Journal" an account of the lecture is given. One paragraph of this account reads as follows:

"The address was illustrated by a large number of aerial and other photographs, showing various phases of the use of aircraft, many of which were of un-exampled beauty, and brought forth spontaneous applause from the members present."

The same slides will be used by the lecturer at Peterborough, and the branch extends a very cordial invitation to all who may be interested in the subject, to attend this meeting.

The chair will be taken by A. L. Killaly, A.M.E.I.C., chairman of the Peterborough branch and the meeting will open at 8.15 p.m.

STRESEMANN TO REPLY TO ITALY

German Foreign Minister Deplores Irresponsible Utterances.

FREEDOM PROMISED.

BERLIN, Feb. 9 (Canadian Pretss)—"The German Government must decline to reply to Premier Mussolini in a tone which is better suited to mass meetings than to diplomatic conversation with other nations."

Foreign Minister Stresemann made this declaration in the Reichstag today in opening his reply to Saturday's broadside from the Italian Premier regarding the situation in the South Tyrol.

Going back to the genesis of the South Tyrol problem, the foreign minister pointed out that the Italian governments before the advent of the Fascisti, and also the King, had promised the inhabitants freedom of language, religion and culture.

Deploring what he termed irresponsible newspaper utterances and unauthorized attempt by a small group of Munich business men to inaugurate a boycott of Italy, he stated the government was unalterably opposed to such childish measures and was concerned in maintaining the best relations with Germany's neighbors.

He characterized Premier Mussolini's speech as "filled with arrogance, contradictions and vehemence which attempt to hide the inner weakness of his argument."

He insisted that Mussolini, who had accepted German hospitality earlier in his career, and now derided German tourists, was ungrateful.

HITCH EXPECTED IN WORLD COURT

Reservations of the United States' Senate May Not Be Accepted.

WILL BE DIFFICULTY.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press) — In spite of the fact that proponents of the world court and especially its enthusiastic advocates are publicly saying they are confident all the other nations that have accepted the statute for the court will give prompt assent to the reservations adopted by the United States Senate there is a possibility of a hitch over these reservations. On the one hand opponents of the court predict there will be difficulty in getting all the reservations accepted, and on the other hand the best informed friends of the court privately admit their uneasiness.

Faulkner, pleaded guilty in police court today to the theft of silk scarfs and neck ties and was remanded till February 17th for sentence. The charge was laid by an agent of the Provincial Police Department, Toronto.

Provincial Officer Faulkner, who was recently transferred to Chatham, was a few days ago, indefinitely suspended following discovery of the goods, which had been stolen at Listowel, in his home here.

WOULD INCREASE DUTY.

Two Motions For Higher Tariff on Coal Importations.

OTTAWA, Feb. 9. Canadian Press. — Two motions for increases in the duty on coal are to be made in the House of Commons. R. K. Smith (Conservative, Cumberland) intends to move for an "early enactment of a substantial increase in the Customs tariff of the importation of coal and steel products of all grades and kinds into Canada from foreign countries." Mr. Smith takes the ground that such action is "essential to the well being of the province of Nova Scotia and this Dominion."

T. L. Church (Conservative, Toronto, North west) intends to move that the time has arrived for Canada to have a national policy in relation to its coal supply and that no part of Canada should be left dependent on the United States for such supply.

DEVELOP EXPORT.

Ontario Agricultural Inquiry Committee To Bring in Recommendations.

TORONTO, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—A formal request for passage of legislation designed to aid the export of cattle from Ontario to England will be made in recommendations of the Ontario Agricultural Enquiry Committee. The committee held a final meeting at Parliament Buildings to-day to complete the report.

The committee's chief proposal will be a concrete plan for the establishment of an overseas marketing commission, in which it is expected the various provinces will join.

ATLANTIC FOILED BY HEROIC SAILORS

The heavy storm which swept the Atlantic recently took a heavy toll in shipping, but was the occasion of heroic rescues when the American liner, President Roosevelt, stood by for days and effected the rescue of the crew of the British freighter, Antinoe, and the liner Westphalia, figured similarly in rescuing the crew of the Dutch steamer, Alkaid. The above pictures show incidents in the latter rescue. On the left the 27 members of the Alkaid's crew are shown being brought aboard the Westphalia. Top right: The Westphalia's lifeboat leaving the sinking Alkaid, which was set on fire to prevent the hulk becoming a menace to navigation. Bottom right: Captain Roos, of the Alkaid, thanking Capt. Carl Graalfs, of the Westphalia (in uniform) for saving him and his crew.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY HAD GOOD BANQUET

St. Andrew's Branch Celebrated End of Membership Campaign.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Church held a very successful and well-attended banquet in the basement of the Sunday School hall last evening. This organization has been making a campaign for new members which has met with considerable success, and the banquet last evening was designed to mark the close of the drive and to welcome the new members. About one hundred and seventy-five people were present. The decorations were carried out with flowers on the tables and streamers of blue and white, the colors which marked the two sections of the drive, Mrs. J. H. Edmison acting as captain for the Blues, and Mrs. R. J. McWilliams for the Whites. White carnations and blue candles in silver holders were dainty accessories to the table arrangements. Mrs. C. R. Banks, president of the Ladies' Aid Society, acted as chairman and made a few brief opening remarks. Mr. John Crane led the community singing which was a feature of the programme.

Words of welcome to the new members were voiced by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Gordon, by Mrs. Forbes Allan, who with Mrs. G. H. Roper, had charge of the musical programme, and by Miss A. Lancaster, a member of the society.

During the evening a very enjoyable vocal programme was rendered by a quartette composed of Messrs. M. H. Park, H. Gillespie, D. Crailsle and R. A. Brown, with vocal solos by Mr. Hugh Niven.

A hearty vote of thanks to the vocalists was moved by Mrs. G. H. Roper and seconded by Mrs. M. J. Kerr, and Mr. G. A. Gillespie moved the vote of thanks to the ladies, which was seconded by Mr. John Crane.

Local Druggists Have Modern Remedy for Colds

A Vaporizing Salve which is Rubbed Over Throat and Chest for Colds.

When Vicks VapoRub, the "external" method of treating sore throat, bronchitis, deep chest colds, or croup, is applied over throat or chest, the ingredients are released as vapors by the body heat.

These vapors, inhaled with each breath carry the medication directly to the affected air passages, loosening the phlegm and relieving the congestion.

At the same time Vicks acts as a counter-irritant, stimulating the skin, and thus helps the vapors inhaled to break up the inflammation.

Colds are usually relieved over night.

Petting Parties, Short Skirts and Rouge Permissible For Married Women Now, Says New York Attorney

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press). — Petting parties, cocktails, short skirts and rouge are defended as permissible for women under modern day conventions by Max D. Steuer, attorney, in a brief opposing the appeal of Thomas H. Symington, railway equipment manufacturer, from the jury decision denying him a divorce.

Morals are not only a matter of geography but of eras, Mr. Steuer said, in a brief filed yesterday.

"Today society recognizes and respects the rights of both married and single women to enjoy and exercise far more latitude and freedom of action in their conduct than in former days," he declared.

The attorney held that change in custom justified Mrs. Symington in her association with Maurice Fatio, an architect, and Talbot W. Chambers, a coal merchant, whom Symington had named as co-respondents. He denied charges of misconduct, however.

So-called petting parties are no longer a badge of meretriciousness, or a cause of social ostracism. Daringly short skirts are now the order of the day and demonstrate how far feminity has gone, if not progressed, beyond the days of our forebears."

TWO MEN HANG

er, he was serving a term of 90 days for vagrancy. He was brought back to Winnipeg to face trial.

While awaiting his hearing, Stanton with four other inmates of the provincial jail, staged a daring break for liberty on the morning of October 6, last. Two of the turnkeys were slugged and bound. After ninety hours of freedom, Stanton with two others was re-captured, hiding in a straw stack about thirty miles south of Winnipeg.

He was subsequently brought to trial and found guilty of the Penny murder.

Stanton's counsel, entered an appeal on the grounds that the court had been prejudiced by the admission of photographs, depicting the death room in the Penny house and also upon the character of the cross-examination. The appeal was lost.

Of the three principal witnesses who testified against Stanton, Mrs. Annie Solbach is dead, while "Happy" Horton is serving five years in Stony Mountain penitentiary for highway robbery.

Stanton, who gave his age as 28, was born in St. Mary's, Ont.

Steve Nazar

Twenty-four hours after Louis Landy, Winnipeg taxicab driver, was found bludgeoned to death on October 27, 1925, Steve Nazar was under arrest charged with the crime. Landy was discovered with his skull battered in, his hands still clutching the steering wheel of his car.

Nazar was picked up by a member of the Winnipeg police force. In his possession was found a watch which later was identified as the property of the murdered man. A coat Nazar was wearing was stained with blood.

In a confession said to have been made by Nazar, and submitted as evidence at the trial, the convicted man told of having engaged the taxi driver to convey him to farm near Winnipeg where he had hopes of securing employment.

When he had reached his destination, Nazar informed the driver he was without funds to pay the fare. The driver had threatened to beat him up and in self-defence had felled Landy with an iron bar which he had found near the car. According to the confession, Nazar rifled the driver's pockets and hurried back to Winnipeg on foot.

Throughout the trial, Nazar maintained an air of unconcern, and when sentence of death was passed upon him, he merely smiled and walked back to his cell chatting good-humoredly to the attendants. Medical men who examined him, declared he had the mentality of a subnormal child.

An appeal for clemency was despatched to Ottawa, his youth and mental deficiency being advanced as extenuating factors.

WHY PETERBORO COUNCIL ARRANGED

power. Legislation was obtained to enable the City to carry out the purchase but the Company withdrew from the negotiations.

In 1908 the Council procured a report on Burleigh Falls, and negotiated with the Central Ontario Power Company for the property and the Company was asked if they would accept $50,000.00 for it, but they did not agree to do so and the negotiation fell through.

In 1908 and 1909 negotiations were had with the Auburn Woollen Company for the purchase of the Auburn water power. An offer was received from the Auburn Company to sell for $150,000.00, with a condition that the Auburn Company should receive all the power they required, say 200 horse-power, for $1500.00 a year, which would be about $7.50 per horse-power per year. This was not accepted by the Council.

In 1911 the Council asked the Hydro-Electric Power Commission for a report as to what water power would be the best for the City to purchase. The Commission recommended the purchase of the Otonabee Power Company's property. The Company was written to and asked to give a price and an option to the City, but the Company refused to sell to the City.

The Council also negotiated with the Dickson Company for the Lakefield Power property and procured an option at $200,000.00, the lowest price they could obtain. A report on this property was procured from Ross & Holgate, of Montreal, which convinced the Council that at that price the purchase and development of the property was not feasible.

The Electric Power Company of Toronto was formed as a holding company, and secured control of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, the Otnabee Power Company, and the Auburn Power Company, and thus controlled all the electric power being served to Peterborough. It also had control of Burleigh Falls, Healey Falls, the Seymour Power Company's development at Campbellford, Ranney Falls, Meyersburg, Frankford, Sidney Buckhorn and Fenelon Falls.

The City Council was convinced that as the Electrical Power Company controlled all the companies serving this city and the powers on the Otonabee and connecting waters from which otherwise power might hope to be obtained, except Lakefield, which the City had tried to buy) the only way to prevent Peterborough being controlled as to electric service by a monopoly privately owned, was to apply to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and that the Council did. The result finally was that the Council made an agreement with that Commission for power.

At first the Hydro Commission purchased electric current and supplied the City, but in 1916 the Ontario Government purchased the holdings of the Electric Power Company and handed them over to the Hydro Commission to operate.

This is a very brief summary of this phase of the power matter.

It will be seen that this City never owned electric power, that the City Council tried to secure a power privilege or development, that the City was in the hands of a private monopoly, and that the City Council took the only way of escape from the monopoly through the Hydro Electric Power Commission.

MICHIGAN FILES DIVERSION SUIT

Will Protest Against Any Diversion From Great Lakes.

SEPARATE ACTION.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—In an attempt to prevent the diversion of any water from the the Great Lakes, the State of Michigan will file a separate suit in the United States Supreme Court against the Chicago sanitary district, Attorney-General Andrew B. Dougherty announced to-day.

The State has determined to take separate court action rather than intervene with Wisconsin, Minnesota, Pennsylvania and Ohio, because Michigan desires to go somewhat farther than the other states. Dougherty said that the four states who are parties to the suit already filed a note unalterably opposed to the diversion of the 500 or 1,000 cubic feet a second for navigation purposes.

Michigan on the other hand wishes to protest against any diversion whatsoever.

A GRATIFYING RESPONSE.

The immediate response that is being made to the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition's invitation to the people of Peterboro and district to become members is most gratifying, indicating that the interest of the community in this great enterprise is of the year-round variety.

It is not difficult to create interest in the Exhibition during Fair week, of course—the 36,000 attendance last year shows that—but it is a different matter to intrigue people with the Exhibition seven months away, and, therefore, the number of people who have already paid in their membership fee since the campaign opened is a source of much satisfaction to the Directors.

The Exhibition is essentially a community organization, and thus the more people that are actually connected with it the more sure is the chance of a record Exhibition next autumn when for the first time there will be a full week's Fair here, and the attendance mark of 40,000 people will be the objective at which all efforts will be directed.

The first list of members shows a splendid percentage of farmer names, showing that rural support is strong behind the Exhibition, and containing a challenge that should not be ignored by city residents.

It is a city Exhibition as well as a country one, and the people of Peterboro should be proud of having their names associated with the organization.

PROFESSOR BELL'S PLEA.

Professor Bell's plea for a system of High School education that would give the country boy and girl what they need most to be successful, fell upon responsive ears yesterday when he addressed the farmer representatives at the Rotary Club's get-together luncheon.

It is true that the present High School course is littered up with a lot of things that are of little use to the boy who intends to be a farmer.

He doesn't need these things, as Professor Bell pointed out yesterday, but what he does need is a more thorough education in English and mathematics, with the first subject particularly stressed.

The successful farmer, in Professor Bell's opinion, should be able to talk and write good English—something that too few farmers of the present day can do, because of the limited opportunities that were given to learn in their youth.

The plea now is for a better chance for the farm children of today, a more adequate education that will enable them to associate on equal terms in social life with the people of the cities, and that will likewise enable them to demonstrate the dignity of their calling, the basic industry of this country.

Professor Bell certainly left the Peterboro County farmers who heard him with something over which to think, and if the Rotary effort did nothing more than to give this opportunity to hear the head of the Kemptville College it would have been well worth while.

THE ART EXHIBITION.

Some argument has arisen over the remarkable attendance at the Toronto Art Gallery last week when over 75,000 people saw the inaugural exhibition and viewed the magnificent collection of pictures.

One writer declares that this wonderful response to the invitation of the Art Gallery is not in any sense an evidence of an awakened interest in art, but rather that people flocked to the exhibition because they thought it was the "smart" thing to do, or because the published figures as to the value of some of the masterpieces was the attraction.

To some extent he's right, of course, but what of it?

Surely he'll have to admit that no matter what was the motive of their visit that most of those who saw the collection in the Art Gallery must have received a measure of benefit therefrom.

They could not scan the wonderful pictures displayed without a certain educational reaction, a realization of a new sense of beauty, and lifting of themselves for the time being at least above the ordinary drabness of their every-day life.

With many of them the effect may be only momentary—but is not even that worth while?

A number of Peterboro Rotarians saw the exhibition last evening, and will undoubtedly endorse the Examiner's opinion that the fact that 75,000 people viewed these masterpieces is a matter of great importance.

THE GAME OF POLITICS.

The game of politics as it is being played down at Ottawa just now is full of interest, and it would be much more enjoyed if there were not so many problems that call for solution.

The Government has succeeded in securing a recess, needed to reconstruct the Cabinet and to hold the by-elections necessitated by such rebuilding.

Naturally the Government, held in office by a very lean majority and dependent entirely on the good will of the Progressives and Independents, did not want to attempt to carry on in the House while the by-elections were being held, inasmuch as the resignation of even two or three members to make room for Cabinet Ministers might so weaken its forces that it might be defeated on a division.

The official Opposition in opposing the request for a recess argued that public business should go on, that the Government having declared that it was capable of functioning should do so without a recess.

One Progressive member pointed out that the House need not adjourn, inasmuch as the Opposition could offer the Government pairs for the seats made vacant through resignation of members who resigned in favour of Ministers.

The Government would thus be as safe from defeat in division as before, and the Opposition clamour for public business to be carried on could be satisfied.

No doubt that looked like a businesslike suggestion to the Progressive who made it, but the strategy of politics works out differently, and the proposal was received with laughter.

The recess has been approved—but the adjournment may be further delayed by the submission by the Opposition of more amendments to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

It is a great game, politics, but we have to pay through the nose for it, unfortunately.

A WAR VICTIM.

All the victims of the war did not meet death in the trenches.

Many of them are buried here in Canada, men who came home from the great adventure apparently as well as before they left, but with their vitality sapped or a weakness developed as a result of their war experience that killed them just as surely, if more slowly, than a German shell.

One of these war victims was buried today.

E. G. Dormer—"Eddie" to his friends and they were legion—was a citizen at whom none could have looked at askance if he had not offered his services for overseas duty.

He was above the age limit for military service, had a wife and family and was not the soldier type in physique—although he was in heart.

He could have remained at home and no one would have thought that it was his duty to go—but he heard the call, joined the 93rd Battalion, went overseas, was in one of the first drafts to leave the Peterboro County unit to join a fighting battalion in France, and "carried on" there.

The war over and back in Peterboro again, he was to outward appearance as well as before, but a heart condition developed recently, and death's call came suddenly early Sunday morning.

It is perhaps the case that this condition might have made its appearance if "Eddie" Dormer had not gone overseas to fight.

That may be the official view, but the layman looking at this case, and many others that may have come to his notice feels that there is a reasonable doubt, that the harrowing experience of the war may quite easily have been responsible for the condition that ended fatally for Pte. E. G. Dormer and similar conditions that have ended fatally for other ex-soldiers.

Furthermore, the man on the street feels that where there is a reasonable doubt the benefit should be given to the family of the man who fought when pensions are being considered.

WORTH THE EFFORT.

In the February issue of the Sydney Post there are two items referring to industrial conditions in the district. One is from Sydney Mines and tells of the Citizens' Relief Committee having taken care of 126 of the most needy cases in town. The future of the relief work is uncertain because there are no more funds, and "a donation of $300, presented to the Relief Committee by a well-known citizen, has been completely exhausted."

The other item tells of the effect of an order for coal placed by the Canadian National Railways, as a result of which "conditions in the colliery districts as regards the unemployment situation have taken a decided turn for the better."

There is a notable difference in the tone of these two items. The first one tells of families that need help because of their own power they have not enough on which to exist. It has been through the kindness and charity of others in the community that they have been able to exist. The other report is better—it speaks of conditions taking a turn for the better, and the difference is because there has been a substantial order placed for coal. That order means employment, which constitutes the best-known agency for relief.

That gives a practical illustration of what the development of Canadian industry for a Canadian market can accomplish. It is the point on which Hume Cronyn based his separate report on conditions in the coal mining area of the East.

We believe there will be a general agreement with his suggestions for installing coking stations for the conversion of Nova Scotia coal into coke for the Ontario markets, provided there is assurance given that the British Empire Steel Corporation's financing and management is brought strictly in line with the plan. It should have no more advantage than the men in the mines, because the desire of the people of Canada, if they embark on such a plan, will be to foster the establishment of Canadian employment.

It would make the steps more easy to take in working out a plan for coking Nova Scotia coal and giving it a preference in Canadian markets were assurance given that the company operating the mines had undergone some necessary changes. It has not, since the merging of the several companies that comprise the "Besco," shown the human qualities that make for ideal relationships with its employees; its housing plan for the workers has been as faulty and bad as could be. It would be necessary to know that the men holding views that make for these conditions have been replaced by others. It would be also essential to have assurance from competent and disinterested authorities that the capitalization of the company represented substantially the proper figure, with no fictitious stock to absorb surplus earnings.

The whole plan would have to be in the nature of a well-defined bargain between the Nova Scotia industry and those sections of Canada where the product would find its market. The prospects of providing profitable employment in Nova Scotia for a large number of Canadian citizens, giving us a supply of good fuel from Canadian mines through Canadian coking plants, adding greatly to the tonnage carried on Canadian railroads or water routes—these things are sufficiently attractive to warrant a very serious and consistent effort to bring them to pass.—London Advertiser.

The radio is a great educator. One learns early that "The Prisoner's Song" when sung by a saccharine-voiced tenor down in Clearwater, Fla., sounds very much like "The Prisoner's Song" sung by a ditto-voiced tenor in Pittsburg.

It seems impossible to get any one excited over the Prince Albert by-election—the Toronto Telegram, of course, excepted.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A GREATER SERVICE.

When a million dollars of life insurance is sold, a great deal more has been done for the nation than if a million dollars had been given to build an institution in which to put widows and orphans.

Upon the families of this country rests the nation, and when the mother and children are kept together, so that they can grow up and have the love, care and training of the mother, the greatest work in the world is being done.

The wider the insttiution of life insurance is extended, the less necessity there willbe to contribute to the maintenance of charity organization which constitute a stupendous financial outlay, besides exercising a deterrant moral and ethical influence.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ANSWER TO OLD EXHIBITOR

Peterborough, February 8, 1926.
Editor "Examiner," City.

Dear Sir, — The writer has very carefully read "An Old Exhibitor's" letter in your issue of Saturday, last, February 6th.

The Exhibition Board courts criticism, and are very glad to have suggestions from the public at all times. However, I do not think your correspondent is altogether fair in comparing our local Exhibition with Toronto, when it comes to the question of admission, and also, of entry fees for exhibits.

From information I have obtained, and which I have every reason to believe is correct, it is interesting to note that the entire expense of conducting the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, is covered before the gates ever open. This is from monies received for entry fees, rent of space in the buildings and on the grounds, and by grants from the Dominion and Provincial Governments. When the Exhibition Board tackles the problem of putting up a new Building such as the Pure Food Building which was built a few years ago, they do not have much difficulty in financing it, for they get manufacturers to take space under contract for 10 years, and the revenue derived therefrom is sufficient to take care of the building and financing of the project. This would be rather difficult to manage in Peterborough.

Then, again, for space on the grounds for refreshment tents, sale of novelties, etc., they get $40.00 a foot frontage, and even higher, I believe, so that for a small 10-ft. space, $400.00 or more, is paid. In addition to this there are the concessions for dining halls, which run up into thousands of dollars for each one. The Peterborough Exhibition revenue from concessions is very limited, and we have to depend on our gate admission to assist us in our expenses, and while the 10c to which your correspondent makes reference should not seriously handicap the public from attending the Exhibition, you will understand that it goes a long way towards helping us with our general expenses. If patrons are desirous of taking advantage of the 25c admission, they will again have the opportunity this year, same as last, of buying the advance sale tickets at 4 for $1.00, and these tickets can, also, be used for admission to the Grand Stand, as well as at the gate.

With reference to attractions in front of the grand stand, I believe the general public will agree that without these the Exhibition would fall very flat. There may be a certain element who would visit the Exhibition for the sole purpose of looking over the exhibits of live stock, etc., nevertheless, there are a great many more who would not visit the exhibition at all if it was not for the amusement end of the program. I wonder if your correspondent has ever been at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, or any other big exhibition, and found that they did not have a Midway, and a very elaborate and expensive program in front of grand stand. Did he ever witness the performance in front of the grand stand at the Toronto Exhibition and find there were many vacant seats around him? Did he ever go down the Midway at the Toronto Exhibition after 12 o'clock, noon, and find that it was not crowded I have attended the Exhibition in question for many years, and have always found this to be the case, and have also followed the Toronto Exhibition very closely and have found that each year they are spending more money on their midway to make it more attractive, and also, spending more money on their program in front of the grand stand, realizing that in order to keep in favor with the public, each year the program must be more elaborate and attractive than the preceding year. In these days the people desire to be entertained, and are ready to pay for it. Even the Churches find this necessary, and it is usual to find the Churches with the best soloists or choirs have the larger congregations. I have before me at the present time, a Canadian trade journal, February publication containing an interview with the Radio Department Manager of a large Toronto store, wherein he advises that in one day recently, their firm sold retail in Toronto alone, 150 radio sets. Surely this is evidence that the people are seeking entertainment, and are prepared to pay for it. While the idea of holding an agricultural exhibition is to improve the stock, etc., throughout the country, it is to be admitted that unless there were sufficient attractions put on to get the people to attend, the Exhibition would fall far short of serving the purpose for which it is intended.

Your correspondent claims to have seen a young man lose $5.00 in playing some of the games on the Midway. While these attractions are there for the people who wish to patronize them, nevertheless, there is nothing compulsory about it, and anyone who is not in a position to play them, or willing to take a chance, should not do so. He does not say anything about patrons of these games, who possibly for an investment of 10 or 25 cents, walk off with a blanket or lamp, or some similar article worth many dollars. It is quite true that all cannot win, for if they could, the game would not show any profit, and after all, that is what we are all working for. This same condition exists at Toronto, London, Ottawa, and any of the larger Fairs that conduct a Midway. The only reason the smaller Fairs do not have a Midway is simply because they are not large enough to support the expense necessary in bringing in one of these big travelling carnival companies, but, nevertheless, at even the smaller Fairs you will see many games, and at which the player does not always win, or even expect to win. He is out for a good time, and expects to pay for it. If he does not desire to play there is no one forcing him to do so.

With reference to cancelling the Musical and Vaudeville Program in front of the grand stand, and substituting a horse show and the judging of cattle, etc., I would like to ask how many we could hope to have in our grand stand, and how many would go on more than one occasion. When your correspondent mentions the Cobourg Horse Show, and holds them up as an example, I wonder if he has taken into consideration that this is just a preparation show for the Canadian National Exhibition. Further, I believe if he were to look over their financial statement, he would find that it was not even making any money with which to add improvements and accommodation to their grounds. If we did not have the accommodation we have on the Peterborough Exhibition Grounds, we do not think it would be possible to find many stables around Peterborough such as can be found around the homes of many of the wealthy summer residents of Cobourg, in which we could take care of our horses. This equipment has all been added to our local exhibition grounds within the past few years, and has all been paid for, with the exception of the small overdraft the officers and directorate have guaranteed to the bank by individually endorsing the note carrying the amount. The entire salary list to officers on our local Exhibition Board is $300.00—$200.00 in one case and $100.00 in another.

Please let me say in conclusion, that I believe were you to remove the Midway, Musical Program, Vaudeville Program, and Fireworks from your Exhibition, it would not last long. Further, that if the urban and rural population were at all interested in the Peterborough Exhibition, in view of the work and time spent on it by the President and Directors, absolutely gratis, they should not require to be invited twice to become a member at $2.00, and judging from the number who are subscribing for membership at the present time, I feel that our objective of 1,500 members will be reached.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I am,

Yours respectfully,

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—H. P. Kennedy discussing the export market said that cattle would have to come down to $2 a cwt. as recent returns only gave $6.25 a cwt. Cut will also have to be made in ocean freight he stated if shipments are to be profitable.

Rogers and Maybee bought about 250 export cattle during the morning at steady prices. Bulls were $5.25 to $5.75 and heifers $7.35 to $7.50 a cwt. Butchers' cattle were fairly active at about unchanged figures. Good mixed handyweight butchers inb unches sold at $7 to $7.25 a cwt. and heavy coarse steers at $6.75 a cwt. Butchers' cows were at a satisfactory market with good cows $5 to $5.50 a cwt. One string of fair quality baby beeves sold at $8.75 a cwt. For a load of good short keeps $6.75 a cwt. was bid and refused. Today's supply will be about cleaned up.

There was little or no change in calf prices and finished calves were competed for from 13 to 14 cents a pound. Good calves were 12 to 12½ cents and medium 9 to 11½ cents a pound.

The lamb trade is feeling the effect of Australian competition. Lambs in storage cost 25 cents a pound and fresh killed are now being bought at 23 cents. Today's lambs were poor in quality and one lot only of ewes and wethers brought 14 cents a pound. Sheep of quality sold at 7½ to 8 cents a pound.

Very little heed is being paid to the packers' week-end quotations on hogs. With only 1,000 on the market this morning a steady price of $13.25 a cwt. f.o.b. is full counted on.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—The only business of importance reported in the local cash grain market today was the sale of two loads of No. 3 C. W. barley at 65c per bushel, c.i.f., Bay Ports. Spot prices for C. W. oats were weaker at a decline of 2c per bushel with prices quoted for No. 2 Canadian Western oats at 60c.

Owing to the further weakness in cash wheat prices at Winnipeg today, which scored a decline of 3c per bushel for contract grades an easier feeling prevailed on the local market for spring wheat grades of flour, but no actual changes in values were announced.

The undertone to the Quebec potato market continues firm owing to the small amount of supplies arriving. Prices remain at $3 to $3.10 per bag of 90 pounds with small trading.

The receipts of butter today were 30 packages. The undertone to the market remains firm and prices showed no importance change, while the demand was again somewhat limited and the volume of business small.

There was an improved demand from local cheese buyers for winter made fodder goods and as the offerings were small a stronger feeling prevailed in the market and prices advanced with sales as high as 18 5-8c per lb. Prices for Western July makes of white and colored were unchanged at 22 3-4c to 23c per lb., and later mades at 20c to 21 1-2c per lb.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—Flour unchanged to 10 cents lower at $9.60 to $9.75 a barrel. Shipments 39,598 barrels.

Bran $24.50.

Wheat, No. 1 Northern $1.63 5-8 to $1.66 5-8. May $1.61 5-8; July $1.57 7-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 8 (Canadian Press).—Selling on a big scale in the wheat market today smashed prices down 5 1-4 cents a bushel. According to some observers, the increased selling was largely due to abandonment of speculative holdings bought of late on account of talk about prospective shortage of wheat. Closing quotations on wheat weak, 2 to 5 1-4c net lower, May (new) $1.69 3-8 to $1.69 3-4 and July $1.50 3-4 to $1.51, with corn 1 5-8 to 2 1-8c off; oats 2 1-8 to 2 3-8c down, and provisions showing 12 to 30c decline.

NO INSPIRATION FROM OTTAWA IN BURGESS STAND

Independent Candidate Opposing Premier King Says Rumors Untrue.

HANEY GOES WEST

Conservative Member of Ontario Legislature to Help Burgess.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—D. L. Burgess, Independent candidate who is opposing Premier W. L. Mackenzie King in the Prince Albert Federal by-election campaign, when interviewed in his committee rooms yesterday, definitely denied all current reports to the effect that his candidature had been inspired by the Ottawa Conservatives. As far as he was aware, there was no foundation for such rumors, he said.

Capt. W. S. Haney, member of the Ontario Legislature for West Lambton, and J. J. Maloney, of Hamilton, were on their way to Prince Albert to assist him in conducting his campaign, he said, but to the best of his knowledge they were coming out on their own. Mr. Haney was an old friend of his and was coming out to do what he could in an attempt to win the election. He said that he did not know Mr. Maloney personally, but had heard of him previous to the time that he had received word that he was on his way out West.

Last night the Liberals had meetings scheduled at Henriburg, Duck Lake, Laird, Stanleyville, Hilldrop, Bremner, Valbrand, Sturgeon River, Northside, Foxdale and East Prince Albert. Four Saskatchewan Ministers and five Government members in the Provincial Legislative Assembly are on the rostrum of speakers.

Special arrangements have been made to hasten the return of the ballot boxes to the returning officer. In the general election two weeks elapsed before the official declaration was made, but this time the official result is to be published within four days.

BREAD TRUST IN UNITED STATES MUST DISSOLVE

Federal Department of Justice Begins Action Against Proposed Merger.

PREVENT MONOPOLY

Combination Already Formed Must be Unscrambled, Department Demands.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. — Canadian Press. — The Federal Government moved yesterday to prevent the formation of "a gigantic combination for monopolistic control" of the baking business, and to force dissolution of such of its component parts as are alleged to have been already assembled.

Proceedings were started by the Department of Justice in the Federal court at Baltimore against seven great baking corporations and eight individuals, including the recently chartered Ward Food Products Corporation and William B. Ward. The court was asked to view the defendants as having violated both the Sherman Anti-trust Law and the Clayton Act and to permanently enjoin them from continuing further in the alleged merger.

Other defendants named in the action were the Ward Baking Corporation, the Ward Baking Company, the General Baking Corporation, the General Baking Company, the Continental Baking Corporation, the United Bakeries Corporation, and Howard B. Ward, William Deininger, Paul H. Helms, J. W. Rumbough, B. E. Peterson, George G. Barber and George B. Smith.

Extensive Inquiry.

The Department of Justice, in a statement, declared the action had resulted from a series of investigations which began with the first rumours of important mergers in the baking and related fields, and continued against the baking concerns as soon as Ward Food Products Corporation received its charter in Maryland last week.

Announcement of plans for a "two billion dollar organization" was claimed by the Department to have confirmed its findings that foundation stones for a huge combine were being gathered together. It charged in its court papers that the control proposed by the defendants extended both to local and inter-state competion.

Attention was called by the Department to the unique character of the action, inasmuch as it seeks to prevent the formation of a combination in restraint of trade. It was asserted however that all of the elements necessary to the amalgamation had been pressed into three large concerns and named them as the Ward Baking Corporation, the General Baking Corporation and the Continental Baking Corporation.

Each of these, but chiefly the Continental, the Court petition said, had acquired numerous competing bakeries and they, with the Ward Food Products Corporation, have the same resident agent in Maryland.

Planned since 1921.

Formation of the alleged monopoly was charged by the Department to have been conceived a number of years ago by William B. Ward and his associates, and that their plans had been directed to that end particularly since 1921.

The plan it was charged was to bring substantially all of the wholesale bakeries in the United States under a single control and by that meth od eliminate all competition between them in the sale of bakery products. The Department also saw a far-reaching programme by which the concerns involved in the suit were to acquire control of machinery and equipment and "eventually to buy miling companies, yeast companies, and other producers of such necessary ingredients."

Monopoly Impossible.

New York, February 9. — Sudden adjournment until Tuesday of the Federal Trade Commission's opening session yesterday in its inquiry into the affairs of the Continental Baking Corporation of Baltimore, was taken after George C. Barber, chairman of the board of directors, said he preferred not to make public figures showing the total volume of sales in 1925 of the Continental controlled units.

Barber explained his objection to publicity for the figures requested by saying the corporation "is doing business in a competitive field."

William H. Button, counsel for the corporation, said it not only has no monopoly but could not get one. Competition has increased, he added, rather than decreased, since the corporations acquisition of various baking concerns.

Yesterday's hearing, the first of a week's sessions here, developed the fact that the Continental had acquired no stock in other baking corporations since the Government filed its complaint last December. In this the Continental Baking Corporation, now controlling 103 bakeries in 81 cities in North America, is charged with lessening competition and creating a monopoly in the sale of baking products.

MOB REPELLED BY TEAR BOMBS

Court Surrounded By Barbed Wire and Guns.

NEGRO ON TRIAL.

GEORGETOWN, Del., Feb. 9.—Military guarded the Sussex County Court House when Georgetown awoke preparatory to the trial of Harry Butler, a negro, on a charge of feloniously assaulting Elnora Steinmetz, a 12-year-old girl.

Fear of mob rule caused the troops to be ordered out. Machine guns bristled from behind a six-foot barbed wire fence built around the court house; one gun was mounted on the court house tower, to command the landscape; soldiers with their rifles patrolled strategic points and 2,000 tear and mustard gas bombs were at hand, within the court house square.

Butler was secretly brought to the county jail here at 1.30 a.m. on Monday from Wilmington, where he had been held in the Newcastle Workhouse.

Cringing with fear, he was bundled into a fast automobile, with four state highway police to guard him; the roads were watched by other officers and the car sped without stop to Georgetown.

The town is filled with visitors, drawn here by one reason and another by the trial. Every hotel is full and many private residences have house visitors to the town. Scores were unable to find lodgings and spent the night huddled in automobiles. Feeling, which has run high, was believed responsible for most of the influx of outsiders and all were carefully watched by the National Guardsmen.

Gas bombs filled with tear gas were hurled by Delaware troops to prevent a mob from forcing its way into the court house here at the noon recess of the trial.

The mob attempted to break down the wire entanglements around the court house and officers in command ordered the soldiers of the Delaware National Guard to put on their gas masks.

A few seconds later parts of the fence gave way and the soldiers started to throw gas bombs into the crowd.

JAILED FOR GUN PLAY.

Three Months in Jail For Firing Rifle.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—A. R. Ross of Grandview, Man., returned from a distant trip and sought to reclaim a pet dog which he had boarded out during his absence. When he could not find the funds to pay for the animal's keep, the neighbor refused to release the dog. Ross borrowed a rifle and fired several rounds "just to scare" his creditor. He was sentenced to three months in jail yesterday and recommended for deportation to the United States at the expiry of the term.

PASSPORT FEES.

OTTAWA, Feb. 9. — (Canadian Press).—Fees collected on issuance of passports added $142,000 to the Treasury of Canada in the last fiscal year. In the twelve months some 26,000 new passports were issued and about 6,000 were renewed, an increase over the previous fiscal year.

SKATING CARNIVAL WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Many People in Costume Were Present at Warkworth Rink.

NORHAM, Feb. 9.—The carnival held at Warkworth on Friday evening reflected great credit upon the managers and upon those taking part. It was a success in every way. The Indian Band of Alderville furnished music to the delight and satisfaction of every one present. A broom ball match from 7 o'clock until 8 attracted many specators. The costumes were funny in the extreme. Spark Plug, Hay Stack and Snow Man led in this particular. The judges were Mrs. James Armstrong, Mrs. (Rev.) Wesley W. Jones of Warkworth and Rev. John F. Everson of Norham. The gate receipts amounted to $90, which together with donations of money and prizes made the net profit about $100. There was some talk of having to close the rink because it was not paying its way, but Friday night's success banished all such thoughts.

ELEVENTH HOUR PLEA REJECTED

Winnipeg Labor Member Appealed for Commutation of Death Penalty.

HANGING BRUTAL

OTTAWA, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—A request by J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, North Centre Winnipeg) in the House of Commons Monday that the sentence of death passed on two Winnipeg murders executed this morning, be commuted to life imprisonment, was refused by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice and acting Government leader.

Mr. Woodsworth drew the attention of the Minister to some remarks which he said had been made in the Manitoba Legislature by the Attorney-General of Manitoba, in regard to the execution. The Attorney-General of Manitoba had said that "hanging men by the neck was a relic of barbarism and there was nothing more brutal nor inhuman." In view of this statement, asked Mr. Woodsworth, could the Government not see its way clear to commuting the sentence of life imprisonment?

No Demand for Change.

Mr. Lapointe pointed out that, while criminal law came under Federal control, criminal courts and their administration were in the hands of the provinces, under the law, the mode of punishment and the place where it should take place was directed. Neither the minister of justice nor the attorney general of Manitoba had anything to do with that. Since his connection with the Justice Department, he had not observed that there was a general or appreciable demand for changing the mode of execution in Canada. He agreed, however, that it was a most important matter and said that the suggestion of the Attorney-General of Manioba deserved and would have most careful consideration.

"Obviously, however, my friend's request cannot be acceded to," he said to Mr. Woodsworth.

"To accede to it would mean to paralyse the administration of criminal law and justice throughout the country, because of a suggestion that a change in the mode of execution might be desirable."

Mr. Meighen asked if it would not be possible to change the place where the prisoner was confined and thus change the place of execution without contravening the provision of the criminal code. He pointed out that the jail yard was overlooked by the residence of students of the university.

Mr. Lapointe said that the place of execution had been stipulated in this case in the court's sentence and he did not know how it could be changed.

OTONABEE LADY IS 90 YEARS OLD

Mrs. Richard Short Received Many Tributes From Friends.

ADDRESS READ

On Monday afternoon, Feb. 1, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmor Davis, in honor of the 90th birthday of Mrs. Davis' mother, Mrs. Richard Short.

About fifty old friends and acquaintances gathered to extend their good wishes to Mrs. Short on this very unique occasion.

During the afternoon many floral tributes were presented, among them being a beautiful azalea from the Women's Club of the district and an address read by Mrs. Percy Donaldson:

"Dear Mrs. Short:

"It is indeed a great pleasure and privilege to the friends and acquaintances who have assembled at your home this afternoon to show honor and express their good wishes to you on this, your 90th birthday.

"To only a comparatively small few has the great boon of long life been given. In the passing of years the hand of time has indeed lingered and stayed its flight when it came across your pathway.

"Better than most of us, you can understand the hardships of sturdy men and women who left their homes in the far-away land and crossed the sea to carve new homes for themselves amidst the forests of this Canada of ours. The primitive contrivances of these early days have been cast aside and superceded by the new inventions and modern appliances of this very up-to-date 20th century.

"One by one the familiar faces of early days have passed away; the shadows have crept into your own life and your cup of joy has been mingled with sorrow. A feeling of loneliness must enter your heart when you think of olden days.

"There is no friend like the old friend who has shared your morning days,
No greeting like his welcome, no homage like his praise;
Fame is the scentless sunflower, with gaudy crown of gold,
But friendship is the breathing rose with sweets in every fold.

"As a neighbor you were ever ready to extend the hand of kindness, and in sickness and sorrow your presence and sympathy has been a comfort. Your hospitality was always open to receive the passing friend or stranger. Thus by your kindly and charitable spirit you have won a place for yourself in the hearts of many that will not soon be forgotten.

"May the sunset of your life be passed along life's pleasant pathway, and may you be spared to see many more happy years, is the sincere wish of your friends and neighbors of this community.

"Signed—Mrs. Pimmet and Mrs. S. Armstrong."

Mrs. Short thanked her friends in a few well-chosen words and complied to the request of the guests by reciting a few pieces of her own composition. A dainty lunch was then served by the ladies.

The table was decorated with flowers and centred with a handsome birthday cake, also a gift from the Women's Club.

The remainder of the evening was spent in speeches, recitations and music.

DO THIS AFTER SEVERE ILLNESS

How To Speedily Gain Strength and Put On Needed Weight.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines in Cod Liver Oil to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

But no body wants to take the ill-smelling, horrible tasting, stomach upsetting oil itself, so nowadays, up to date medical men are ordering a tablet of Cod Liver Oil and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after a severe illness and especially after the Grippe or a stubborn cough or cold.

Ask Bond's Drug Store or any regular druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They cost but little, are sugar coated and as pleasant to take as candy.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 pounds or more in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist will return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Great for weak, skinny, backward, run-down children, too, and gives them a hearty appetite.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Live Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets—60 cents.

AUSTRALIAN TREATY

tural industries than to any other industries in Canada.

Under the British West Indies treaty signed last June, the government had taken care to secure most favored nation terms for products of Canada, and particularly with respect to Canadian dairy and agricultural products. For instance a preference of fifty per cent had been secured but in no case would the duty upon any Canadian product exported under the treaty exceed one third of the general rate. If the amendment of Mr. Sutherland carried, all that was outlined in the speech from the throne respecting the Australian treaty would "go by the board."

With regard to the amount of United tSates farm products coming into Canada, that country, stated Mr. Robb, bought considerably more farm products from Canada than the Dominion purchased from the United States. The export of cream and milk, for instance, had increased enormously. If the reciprocity pact had carried, Canada would be shipping large quantities of butter.

The tariff against Canadian butter had, however, been raised several times by the United States following the rejectment of the reciprocity treaty.

Denies Dairy Slump

Mr. Robb took issue on the suggestion that the Canadian dairy industry was in a bad state. He quoted several newspaper extracts in support of his contention that the export of butter and cheese had increased during the past year.

"I will admit that our treaty with Australia was not all we could desire, but it takes two to make a bargain," Mr. Robb went on.

Australia had pointed out that Canada could give preference on most things only by raising the tariff. The Commonwealth had asked for a tariff on wool, but he had to respond that in such a cold country the price of wool must be kept down. Nor could Canada very well put a high tariff on hides, and so he had done the best he could. He had put in a saving clause whereby the treaty could be cancelled on six months' notice.

It should be remembered that apart from the obvious benefits Canada enjoyed under the treaty, there were several indirect advantages. Australia used many boxes in her export fruit and dairy produce, and the wood for these boxes came mostly from British Columbia.

Mr. Robb reviewed the history of trade negotiations with Australia. Sir Mackenzie Bowell in 1889, Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding in 1897 and 1906, and Sir George Foster in 1913 all had sought to establish a preferential trade agreement with Australia but for one reason or another, the negotiations had not come to fruit. The treaty passed by the Canadian Parliament last year had given Canada access to the newsprint consumers in Australia, the Commonwealth having been persuaded to remove the tariff of $15.00 a ton against Canadian paper.

Controlled by World Price

He did not believe that the prices of dairy products were affected by such isolated influences as the Australian exportation. Like the price of wheat, the price of butter and cheese was affected directly by the world market. Canada exported so much butter that it was extremely unlikely she would import very much from Australia. As a matter of fact since the treaty went into effect, the butter coming in from Australia did not average one-third of an ounce per head of Canada's population.

The price of butter last year was lower in the United States, where they had an eight cent duty, than it was in Canada. The shipping strike, which slowed up the shipment of Australian butter, had caused Great Britain to look elsewhere for her supply, and, as a consequence, Canada had less butter in storage than she had had for several years.

As for eggs, Mr. Robb suggested that Australia could never compete with Canadian farmers in the fresh egg market because the Australian egg would be bout seven weeks old when it reached Montreal, "and they don't buy that kind of a fresh egg in Montreal."

Mr. Robb believed that the oleomargarine regulations introduced by the Meighen government in 1920 were more damaging to the Canadian dairy business than the Australian treaty ever would be. Mr. Sutherland had "stood up against his own party" a gainst those regulations and in defence of the dairy industry.

The balance of trade for many years had been strongly in favor of Canada, Mr. Robb said. For the twelve months ended December 1925, imports from Australia had amounted to $2,271,216 while Canada's exports to Australia had totalled $14,075,554. In view of this condition, and especially when one took into consideration the speeches made against the treaty by opposition members, it was almost to be wondered at that Australia did not want to abrogate it. The price of butter in Canada was on a level with that obtaining in the markets of the world.

Hon. S. F. Tolmie (Conservative-Victoria) drew the attention of the Minister to the fact that the seasons were opposite in Canada and Australia. Was it fair to have grass-produced butter from Australia entering Canada in winter to compete with the Canadian product.

Farmers Not Alarmed

Mr. Robb replied that the Dairy Commissioner had emphasized the advisability of shipping Canadian butter fresh. Canadian butter had sometimes beaten the Australian and New Zealand product in the British market. Speaking for his own constituency, the farmers were not afraid to compete with those of New Zealand or Australia. Any trade agreement which allowed Canada's products to enter the markets of the world freely was a good thing for Canada. He said that the balance of trade in Canada's favor last year was $308,000,000.

Dr. Murray MacLaren (Conservative, Saint John-Albert) asked if the way to encourage farmers to stay on the land was to bring into operation a treaty which made it more difficult for them to make a living. He predicted that it would not be long, if Mr. Robb continued in his present position, before he (Mr. Robb) was coming to the house and asking for changes in the treaty. He felt that he should make some remarks because his province, as well as two of the other provinces of Canada, had no representation in the government Dr. MacLarens aid. He then went on to discuss the transportation problem in Canada.

SEYMOUR CIRCUIT OFFICIAL BOARD HOLDS ITS INAUGURAL MEETING

Three Churches, Zion, Tabernacle and Stephen's, Were Represented.

NEED MORE FUNDS.

Church at Stanwood Has Been Removed, Adding to Duty of Others.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 9.—The official board of the Seymour charge held its first meeting under the organization as laid down by the General Council of the United Church of Canada, at the parsonage on Rear Street on Monday afternoon; the moderator, Rev. C. D. Daniel, presiding. The Board is composed of four elders and five stewards from each of the three churches in the charge—Zion at Petherick's Corners; Tabernacle on the English Line, and Stephen's Church at Hoard's Station. Of these 27 officials all but one were present at the inaugural meeting and this shows the interest that is being taken in the affairs of the charge.

Goes to Presbytery.

Alex. Hume was elected as representative to the next meeting of the Presbytery at Cobourg on behalf of the laymen, with Thomas Fry as alternate.

The Finances.

Under the recent re-arrangement of the circuit the church at Stanwood was attached to the Springbrook and Rylstone charge and this transfer lays upon the three remaining congregations the duty of raising an additional $390, which would have been Stanwood's share of the amount required to pay the stipend of the pastor. To this fund each of the three churches will contribute as follows, including the amount that under former conditions would have been raised by Stanwood; Tabernacle, $620; Zion and Stephen's, $15 each. Of the shortage due to the transfer of Stanwood, Tabernacle will raise $90, Stephen's $275 and Zion $25.

Ways and Means

The question of adopting the duplex envelope system of raising funds was discussed and it was decided to refer the matter to the various congregations. The church at Stephen's has already introduced the duplex envelopes.

Maintenance and Extension Fund.

Stephen's allocation for this fund was $320 and the congregation has already gone over the top and has raised $400. The Tabernacle congregation was allotted $490 and although the canvass is not yet completed there will be no difficulty in reaching their objective. Zion's share of the allotment is $390 and this amount is already assured.

Pastoral Relationship.

A resolution was introduced, and unanimously adopted, commending the work already done by Rev. C. D. Daniel since coming to the charge a year and a half ago, and containing an expression of the wish of the officials, that the pastoral relationship would continue. Under the former Methodist discipline this resolution would mean an invitation to the pastor to remain another year but the officials are not quite clear as to the action that will be taken with regard to the stationing of pastors at the next meeting of the church court that will deal with such matters. However, they have put themselves on record as being in favor of retaining Mr. Daniel in his present position.

A Committee Heard.

The congregation at Stanwood helped to build the parsonage at Campbellford and is now entitled to a refund which will be used in defraying the cost of erecting a new residence for the pastor at Springbrook. A committee from the latter charge, composed mostly of members of the church at Stanwood, was heard Monday with regard to this matter, but no definite action was taken.

Retained in Office.

Ernest Mitchell of the Tabernacle congregation, who was recording steward of the quarterly official board before the consummation of Church Union, has been elected secretary of the new official board.

Increase in Membership.

At the communion services in Stephen's Church last Sunday, 18 new members were admitted, eight by certificate and 10 on profession of faith.

OBITUARY.

MRS. J. A. McGRAIL.

The death took place in Hastings on Saturday evening, after a lingering illness, of Kathleen Fallona, beloved wife of Mr. John A. McGrail of Hastings. Deceased was born in Sherbrooke, Quebec, and has resided here with her husband for twenty-one years.

The funeral was held on Monday morning at nine o'clock, mass being held at the Church of Our Lady Mount Carmel.

MRS. ELLEN WHIBBS.

DOURO, Feb. 9.—The late Mrs. Ellen Whibbs, who passed away recently in her ninety-first year, was one of Douro's grand old pioneers, being born in March, 1835, just twelve years after the first white man set foot in the township. She naturally endured all the hardships and privations of the early days. She had ridden on horseback to Cobourg with wheat to be ground. She had often driven to Peterboro behind a team of oxen and often walked to Peterborough likewise. At one time she went on a visit to relatives in the United States and was four days in a sail-boat on Lake Erie without a sight of land.

Her parents were Michael Torpey and Mary McCarthy. She had three sisters, and three brothers, viz: Mrs. Michael Leahyof Iowa (living); Mrs. John Coughlin, Mrs. William Moher, Dennis, William and Eugene, who predeceased her. Her husband also predeceased her some nineteen years ago.

For some years the late Mr. and Mrs. Whibbs kept a hotel on the Dummer road. The building was later moved to the corner one mile north of the village, and is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Brown.

Besides her four children, five grandchildren also survive her, namely, Hubert, Norman and Emmett Allen, Mabel Allen and Mary Quinlan.

Rev. P. Butler of Peterborough sang the funeral mass. Pall-bearers were her sons, George and Frank, William Quinlan (son-in-law) Augustus Whibbs, Thomas E. Whibbs and Roger Torpey. Interment took place at St. Joseph's cemetery. Many neighbors and friends were prevented from attending the funeral on account of the inclemency of the weather.

Mrs. Whibbs was remarkably active in body and bright in mind until her death. Gradually one by one, Douro's splendid pioneers are passing on, and the township is the poorer for their going.

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1920 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found mysteriously murdered in a cheap hotel. The only clues are a woman's handkerchief and a yellow ticket stub from the Paragon Theater in Chicago.

JIMMY, the murdered man's son, decides to go to Chicago until the mystery is solved. He and DETECTIVE MOONEY trace the ticket stub to a THOMAS FOGARTY, who proves an alibi and says he gave the ticket to a woman named OLGA MAYNARD.

Jimmy and Mooney try to find her but they learn she has gone to GRAFTON, where the murder took place. JANET RAND, Jimmy's sister, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN, and Jimmy, while in Chicago meets MARY LOWELL, who is instrumental in getting him a job.

He is with Mary in a cabaret when he hears a man pronounce the name of Olga Maynard.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

Olga Maynard! He wheeled sharply in his chair to see who had pronounced the name. The two men were looking across the room at a table in a far corner.

Jimmy saw a girl sitting alone, smoking a cigaret. She certainly fitted Fogarty's description of Olga Maynard. he thought. . . Tall, blond, highly rouged—he could tell that even from where he sat. He stared at her.

Mary's voice cut in: "I think we had better go. Do you mind taking me home?" She had seen his start at the mention of Olga's name—had seen him stare at her across the room. There was ice in her tone.

Her words brought him suddenly to a realization that he had offended her "Mary, I'm sorry. I was startled. Must we go now? We've only had one dance."

He was thinking; stalling for time. It wouldn't do to let Olga Maynard get out of his sight now that he had found her. How could he talk to her with Mary present? He cursed the chance that had thrown the two of them together. If only Mary didn't insist on going there'd be some way of getting word. . .

"Are you coming?" asked Mary cooly. She had risen.

He scrambled to his feet with a muttered apology. He was furious with himself. He saw Olga Maynard eyeing them as they passed her table near the door. He thought frantically of trying to give her some signal, but didn't dare.

"Will you give me my vanity box, please?" They were standing in front of the hat checking room. He brought it out of his pocket. Mary took it and vanished into a dressing room.

He tossed the hat checks to the girl behind the counter. "Be right back," he called to her and hurried straight over to Olga Maynard.

"I beg your pardon," he said swiftly. He was bending over her table. "Your name is Olga Maynard, isn't it?"

She surveyed him amusedly through half closed eyes. "Who wants to know?" she drawled.

"I'm sorry—I'm in a terrible hurry—I'm with a young lady," he stammered. "Will you meet me here in a half hour? Damn it," he cried impatiently at her quick look, "I'm not trying to make a date. It's important. Will you meet me?"

"Well, I like that! Where did you get hold of that line? Say, I'm with company myself, if you want to know Here he comes now, Mister." She nodded toward the door.

He debated briefly whether to get hold of a policeman and have her arrested. He decided instantly against it.

"Listen," he said desperately. "You meet me here tomorrow night. I've got a musical comedy job for you. A friend of mine told me about you—Tom Fogarty."

She started. "Say, who are you?" she asked.

"Colvin—Barry Colvin," he flung back. It was the first name he could think of. "I'll be here tomorrow night. Same time."

. . . He was tipping the check room girl when Mary emerged from the dressing room. . . . She was frigidly silent on the ride home.

He was half tempted to tell her everything—why he was in Chicago and who Olga Maynard was—but on reflection decided stubbornly not to . . Back in his room, he threw his hat angrily on the bed, convinced that he had made a botch of things.

* * *

Olga Maynard met him. She kept him waiting a half hour, but he never doubted for a minute that she was coming.

"Well," she said, sitting down at his table, "I'm here."

He had risen. "It was good of you to come." He offered her a cigaret, and lit one himself to hide his excitement.

She waited for him to speak. "Miss Maynard," he began, "I lied to you last night about my name. It wasn't Colvin. My name"—he was watching her closely to observe the effect of his words—"is Rand. James Rand. I'm from Grafton."

She betrayed no surprise. "Grafton's a good place to come from," she remarked dryly. "I've been there."

"Yes, I know you have. As a matter of fact, you were there week before last."

"Say, who are you—Sherlock Holmes in disguise?" She said, half angrily: "I didn't come here to hear my history. What have you been doing—trying to get something on me?"

"No, I haven't, but listen to me. I—"

"You said," she interrupted, "you had a musical comedy job lined up. I'm interested. If you haven't, I'm not. Now tell me what's on your mind."

"I'll tell you in a minute what's on my mind, but first I want you to answer a few questions. Tell me this—did you go to the Paragon Theater the evening of Nov. 25? That was a Monday night—the night before you went to Grafton."

"Say—"

"You answer me!" He brought his hand smartly down on the table.

She shrugged her shoulders. "All right—I did. Sure."

"Where did you get the ticket?"

"Tom Fogarty gave it to me." There was bewilderment in her eyes.

"All right. Fogarty at least is telling the truth. Now then, did you ever hear of a man named Henry Rand?"

"No."

"Did you ever know a man named H. A. Jones?"

"No. Say, for God's sake cut this out and tell me what it's all about! You'd think I'd murdered somebody, the way you act."

"Miss Maynard," he said, "that's exactly what you're suspected of doing."

"No! You're lying!" She sprang to her feet. Her eyes darted a look of rage at him. "You dirty dog!" she whispered hoarsely, "You're trying to get something on me. Why can't they leave me lone—"

"Why can't who leave you alone?" he broke in.

"You know who I'm talking about. You know very well. You can go to hell. I'm leaving." She grabbed her pocketbook—a beaded bag.

"Miss Maynard," he took hold of her wrist, aware that they were very nearly creating a scene. "don't go yet. Sit down and listen to me. You've got to." He was holding her wrist cruelly tight. She winced with the pain and sat down, he half forcing her into her chair.

"I'm not trying to get anything on you, as you say. You listen to these facts and see for yourself. Henry Rand was my father. He was murdered in a hotel in Grafton on Nov. 27. You've just told me you used Fogarty's ticket at the Paragon Theater two nights before. Well, the stub of that ticket was found in the room with my father. How did it get there?"

She was white beneath her rouge. She was gripping the edge of the table with her hands. "It's a lie!" She leaned toward him, tense. "It's a lie! I don't believe it!"

"It's the truth. How do you suppose I know you used Fogarty's ticket? We found the stub and traced it down to Fogarty. He told the police he gave it to you."

"The police! God! Do they know this?"

"They're looking for you now. The landlady at your last address said you had left town. I was there."

"I tell you," she said, her voice strained and slow, "I don't know anything about it. It's a frame-up. How about Fogarty, if he knows so much? What was to prevent him having a duplicate ticket made and planted? Where was he?"

"He's already proved an alibi. He was not in Grafton when the murder was committed. You were."

"Sure I was—looking for work—and I didn't find it. That's why I'm back. Take me out of here. I'm sick. I'll faint if I don't get out in the air."

"Where do you live?" Jimmy asked her. "I'll take you home."

She gave him an address in Washington.

"Come on," he said, "let's go out." He signaled to a waiter.

He paid the check and took her arm. She leaned heavily on him as they walked to the door.

"You've got to tell me all you know about this," he said to her when they had reached the street. She was acting, was concealing something, he told himself. He continued, roughly: "If you don't tell me, maybe you'll tell the police."

She blazed at him. "I don't know anything about it, I tell you. Let me alone."

"What did you do with the theater ticket after you used it?" he asked. They were walking down Lincoln.

She answered him wearily: "I don't know. I suppose I threw it away. What do you think I'd do with it—put it in a scrap book?"

"Look here," he said, "you're not playing fair with me. I'm trying to be decent with you and you accuse me of being a party to some kind of a frame-up. Every word I've said to you tonight is true. I'm asking you to give an explanation of how that ticket stub could have got into that room and you refuse. I've been wasting time. I should have turned you over to the police when I first saw you.

"I've been persuading myself that you didn't have anything to do with it. Now I'm beginning to think I was a fool. I've a good mind to call a policeman now. They want you for murder, do you understand that?"

"Murder! Oh God no! They can't!" She swayed toward him and would have fallen if he had not caught her in his arms. They were in front of the Mayfair Hotel. He hailed a taxicab.

The light from the street lamp above them was bright on her heavily painted face and blond hair. She was limp in his arms when he noticed the man and woman in front of the hotel staring at him. They were in evening clothes. The woman was Mary Lowell. He lifted Olga Maynard into the cab and closed the door.

SOCIAL EVENING FOR BRIDAL COUPLE

Shower Held at Rush Point for People Recently Married.

Social evening and shower on Friday, January 22nd. A goodly number of the residents of Rush Point and vicinity met at the home of Mr. Frank Keating, where Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Keating were made the recipients of a miscellaneous shower.

A very pleasant and congenial party assembled to do honor to the occasion. The evening passed merrily with music and games and after lunch a very enoyable dance whiled away the wee small hours of morning.

Many beautiful and useful gifts were received by the young couple including kitchen utensils, bedding, table linen, dishes, silverware, towels, fancy work and a considerable sum of money.

Mr. and Mrs. Keating spent a week of their honeymoon visiting friends at Rush Point and vicinity.

They were quietly married in Niagara at the Presbyterian Manse, on the afternoon of Wednesday, Jan. 6. Rev. Mr. Barber officiated.

The bride looked very dainty in her rose silk with cream lace and pearls. She was attended by her cousin, Violet Simpson. Mr. Fred Simpson attended the groom.

The wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. Fred Simpson. The young couple spent a short time across the border before coming to Rush Point.

They returned to Niagara on Sunday, January 24, where they will reside for the present.

Their many friends in this neighborhood wish for them all joy and prosperity while feeling sadly the loss which Rush Point suffers in giving up two such well known young people.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

What are your eating habits? Do you eat when you are hungry, or at a set hour of the clock, whether you are hungry or not?

The reason we eat three meals every day at stated hours, is because it is essential to the household routine to have regularity in these matters. No housewife could plan her meals or keep any help if meals were on demand and not at stated times.

I never have been quite sure why in America we have three meals a day. Why is it not two? Or four?

Just how often and how much you should eat depends on your manner of life. If you work at manual labor, hard manual labor, you need more food than an office worker requires.

Hard muscular work calls for more protein. This is the repair and building food. You cannot use the muscles without tearing down and destroying muscular tissue. So you must have more protein.

The more energy you expend the more carbohydrates you need to supply it. On this account you must eat more starch and sugar than the sedentary person does.

If your work is out-of-door labor in cold weather, you must have heat-producing food in considerable quantities. That is why fat, sugar and starch are required.

If your work makes no muscular demands, it is a mistake to eat quantities of protein food. The simplest form of protein is lean meat. This is not good for you in large quantities if your muscles are at rest. To take it in excess means that the kidneys will be overworked and trouble, actual disease, may follow.

There was an old Gilbert and Sullivan song, beginning: "Let the punishment fit the crime." It may be paraphrased: Let the food selected fit the work to be done.

If everybody would take thought of these things, it would do much to reduce disease and to prolong life. Carlyle was right in saying: "we dig our graves with our teeth." We actually do. By overeating and, especially, by the wrong choice of foods, we are doing things with our teeth and to our stomachs which will send us to the cemetery ahead of schedule.

If we could get everybody to eat sensibly and, in most cases, this means to eat less, we can add to the happiness and health of the human family. More sickness and more early deaths come from faulty eating than from all other factors combined.

Let us set forth with the determination to mend our ways!

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

S. O. S. Q.—What causes varicose veins, and what can be done for them?

A.—This condition is usually caused by increased tension in the veins due to either constant standing, external pressure, or some obstruction of the deep veins. If the varicose veins are slight, bandaging, or wearing an elastic stocking is often effective. In most cases surgical procedure is necessary.

* * *

J. S. C. Q.—I am troubled with an itching as though something had stung me and when I scratch or rub there seems to be a swelling. What causes this condition and what treatment would you suggest?

A.—This condition is probably due to urticaria or hives. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and restate your question.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

PEGGY MEETS GRANDPA BROWN'S BARNYARD FRIEND.

When Peggy went into Grandpa Brown's big barn to look for the eggs, Red Hen was doing so much cackling about, she heard a funny little squeak.

There, above her head, on one of the rafters, sat a dear little owl looking right at her.

"Hello there, Peggy! Are you trying to find Red Hen's eggs?" Mr. Owl asked, winking his great big eyes. "If you are, they are tucked under the hay in the loft. I have been watching her for the last three days. She comes in every afternoon, flies up into the loft, stays a little while, then comes out, tosses a straw over her shoulder, jumps down and goes out of the barn cackling as if she has done something wonderful. You'd better get the eggs before they spoil."

"Thank you for telling on her, Mr. Owl," said Peggy. "Grandma Brown says if Red Hen doesn't begin to lay pretty soon she'll be baked in a pie."

"She's thinking about setting. I'll bet you anything," chuckled Mr. Owl. "That's why she is hiding her nest in the hay."

Peggy climbed up into the loft and there was a lovely nest with three eggs nestled in it.

"I'll have to tell Grandma she's hiding her nest away. Then she'll make her a nice nest," laughed Peggy, gathering up the eggs and climbing down again. "But tell me, Mr. Owl,

"They Call Me Short-Eared Owl."

how does it come you are awake at this hour of the day? I thought owls slept during the daytime."

"Most of my relatives do sleep in the daytime," replied Mr. Owl. "But I'm what they call a Short-eared Owl. We can see in the daytime just as well as at night. I don't know but that we see better in daylight than after dark."

"Do you have your nest in the barn here?" Peggy asked.

"Goodness, no," replied Mr. Owl. "My wife and I live out in the thick grasses along the marshes. But we both love mice and there are so many in your Grandpa's barn that I come up here every day for them. I heard your Grandpa tell your cousin Richard, not to shoot me as I was one of his best friends. You see the mice and rats would soon carry the place off if I wasn't here to stop them. If you'll excuse me I'll go home before Mama Owl begins to get nervous. You take the eggs to Grandma Brown and have her put Red Hen on a nest," and spreading his pretty wings Mr. Short-eared Owl flew out of the barn right into the bright sunlight.

Peggy took the eggs into the house and told Grandma Brown what Short-eared Owl had said.

"Well, he's right," laughed Grandma Brown. "Short-eared Owl and his cousin Screech Owl are two of the best friends your Grandpa has. Screech Owl chases the mice and rats at night and Short-eared Owl takes care in the daytime."

They took Red Hen's eggs out in the barn and made a nice little nest for her. They gave her some of White Chick's eggs and Red Hen was the happiest little hen in the whole barnyard.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 10.

An active and progressive day is forecast from the prevailing reign of many important planets in fortuitous angles of the heavens. There may be rewards for industry and steadfastness, with many opportunities to turn the stimulated energies into profitable channels. There may be change of employment and environment, but both should bring advancement and pleasure. A similar state of affairs should obtain in all personal relations, bringing happiness and substantial benefits.

Those whose birthday it is are under a most auspicious rule for the incoming year, with probable changes of benefit and substantial returns for fidelity to those served. The pleasant and prosperous augury should extend to all manner of personal affiliations. A child born on this day should be talented and accomplished and may rise to responsible position in life through the development of its splendid qualities of mind and character.

TRAFFIC.

"The world do move," 'tis truly said—and faster every day. We all fight hard to get ahead, but, frankly, does it pay? With crazy traffic speeding every human being's riled. We don't know where it's leading, but we know we're going wild.

The public streets and highways are the careless driver's place. Like lightning, through the byways, goes the frantic human race. The spirit seems to seize us, as we're stepping on the gas. The thrill is there to please us—we must let nobody pass.

What matters, when we're tearing, just so long as we get through? What matters what the rushing to our nervous strain may do? To sit before the driving wheel's the only thing we need, to kinda fill our system with the great desire for speed.

Our hearts are beating faster, but the warning comes in vain. We haven't time to realize the wear and tear of strain. I guess we'll keep on going till we've driven to the brink of breakdown, then we'll likely take the time to stop and think.

PILOTS QUESTION FINDINGS OF DOMINION WRECK COMMISSION

Urge That It Be Under Control of Department of Justice.

MARINE PROBLEM

QUEBEC, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—The placing of the Dominion Wreck Commission under the control of the Department of Justice instead of having it under the direction of the Department of Marine and Fisheries despite the fact that a report had been received from Ottawa to the effect that this change would not be made, is still held to be a necessity by President J. A. Bernier of the Quebec Pilots' Union.

Mr. Bernier said yesterday that "In the eyes of the pilots the Dominion Wreck Commission, as at present constituted, is far from being what it should be. There are several points of view. At present, the possibility that any one of us may sooner or later be brought before the Commission to be scheduled to its often questionable judgments, give us reason to be rather circumspect."

Should Be Reorganized.

Nevertheless, Mr. Bernier declared that for some considerable time past it had been shown that a complete re-organization of the marine accident investigation system was necessary. He stated that all factions interested in marine matters should be represented in any movement which might bring about the re-organization of the system. He declared that the Department of Marine, being the most closely interested in such a change should logically be the first to take the initiative to bring about a complete re-organization.

Ship owners, and all certificated men on coastal, seagoing or lake vessels from all sections of Canada should be given an opportunity to present their opinions before such reorganization should be proceeded with, Dr. Bernier said. Something must be done along these lines in the near future if the Dominion Wreck Commission was not to lose every vestige of public confidence.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 7—THE TWINS PRESENT THEIR CARDS.

What a sight met the Twins' eyes as they followed Jupe through the door of Blue Whiskers palace!

Two fat white pigs dressed in blue satin stood on each side of the door with card trays in their hands.

Beyond them stood a double row of little black pigs dressed in red satin with large white ruffs around their necks.

There seemed to be about two miles of black pigs, standing up as straight and stiff as pokers. Indeed they looked like black candy pigs, made of shiny licorice, and dressed up as favors for a Christmas party.

Between these two rows of little black pigs stretched a long narrow carpet, which got so pointed away off in the distance that it disappeared into nothing. Beyond that was a high affair that most probably was a throne, if one could have seen it clearly.

"It s too far away to worry about now! thought Nick, "but he whispered to Nancy, "No doubt our roller skates will be useful now. I shou.d hate to wa.k all that distance!" That is, he tried to whisper it, but his tongue would not work.

The two white pigs in the blue suits stepped up to the visitors and held out silver trays.

"Cards, please," they said in high squealing voices, sticking the trays under the childrens' noses.

Jupe was about to explain that the Twins had dropped in quite informally and really hadn t thought of bringing any visiting cards along, when his astonished eyes beheld Nick pull a card from one of his pockets.

And furthermore, Nancy took a card from her pocket also, at the very same time!

Jupe leaned over to see what the cares said. And you may imagine how surprised he was when he read on Nick s card "Count von Hyanlow, and on Nancy's card, "The Duchess of Doldrums."

When the Twins saw the surprised look on Jupe's face at these elegant names, they tried ever so hard to tell him that when they started out on their adventure, they had been playing a game called, "I'm a Millionnaire." Each card in that game has a different name on it, and when the Fairy Queen telephoned Nick had the card marked "Count von Hyanlow," and Nancy had the one marked the "Duchess of Doldrum."

But they couldn't explain—poor things! Their tongues were too sadly twisted. When Nancy tried to tell Jupe all about it, all she could say was, "I'll be eight next birthday," and all Nick could say was, "Judy had six new kittens last week."

"We shall announce you," said the little white pigs picking up the cards and looking them over approvingly. "We see you obeyed the Blue Laws and chose your cards in blue. The backs of them are quite handsome. All done in little bicycles and seashells and pig-tails. And we are glad your names have handles. They are much more elegant to pronounce."

So saying one white pig took Nancy's card and called out, "The Duchess of Doldrums."

The Twins could hear it die out, and then he repeated somewhere down the line of little black pigs to die out again.

Then the other white pig took Nick's card and shouted out, "The Count von Hyanlow!"

And it went on down the line and died out three times too!

"You're announced," said the Pigs. "Proceed. But be sure and keep on the carpet. There's a reason. It's all in the Blue Laws."

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two girls both eighteen and have been going with two young men two years our senior. We think a great deal of them. We are undecided whether we can keep their friendship or not and we want your advice on this.

BABE AND KATE.

BABE AND KATE: If you share the tastes and interests of these young men and the four of you are congenial, you don't have to worry about keeping their friendship! They will want to see you again if they enjoy your company—and if they don't, there is nothing you can do to help the situation.

BOY HURT.

Claude Freeman and Automobile Collide on Monaghan Road.

Claude Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Freeman of 532 Patterson street suffered what might have been a serious accident when he collided with an automobile when coasting across Monaghan road down the hill near the Prince of Wales school, yesterday. Dr. A. G. Howson reported this morning that the youth was making favorable progress and thought that within a few days he would be none the worse for his adventure.

While no accurate information regarding the accident is available it is thought that the bobs were struck and that the injuries were caused more by the resulting spill than by a direct impact.

ART STUDY CLUB HELD A MEETING

Works of Gainsborough, English Portrait Painter, Were Studied.

INTERESTING PAPER

At the recent meeting of the Art Study Club, held at the home of Mrs. J. Mackintosh, Weller street, a very interesting paper on "Gainsborough" was read by Mrs. R. J. Kidd. The response to the roll call at this meeting was a quotation from an English poet. At the conclusion of Mrs. Kidd's paper, a discussion took place, and Mrs. B. L. Barns drew some comparisons between the work of Gainsborough and Sir Joshua Reynolds.

Thomas Gainsborough was born at Sudbury in Suffolk in 1727, the son of a clothier. His inherent talent for painting came from his mother, who was a skilful painter of flowers and encouraged in her son a love for drawing. He was very backward at school, spending most of his time in making sketches and drawings on his books. When a boy of fifteen, he was sent to London to learn the rudiments of art from Hayman, the historical painter, and, returning to his home three years later, was soon married to a Miss Margaret Burr, a young lady of Scottish extraction, and possessor of a nice income, as well as good looks and manners. His wife was just sixteen years of age at that time, and it was fortunate that she possessed an income, for Gainsborough for some years afterward made very little by his brush. After a sojourn in Ipswich and London, he returned once more to his native Sudbury, and there occupied himself early and late with reproducing on canvas the natural beauties of that section. Later he went to Bath and there had considerable success in painting portraits of celebrities at the famous watering place. He spent fifteen happy years there and his art developed rapidly. There he fell under the influence of Van Dyke, who remained his favorite master during life.

In 1774, Gainsborough went to London and settled down in a portion of Schomberg House, Pall Mall. Here he quickly became the rival of Sir Joshua Reynolds, and the city soon divided itself into factions favoring one or the other artist. He became one of the original members of the Royal Academy, and his art was represented in its first exhibition. It was said of him at that time, "As a landscape artist he is the precursor of the modern naturalists, and his portraits of ladies especially possess an unapproachable daintiness and grace." George Third was a patron of the Royal Academy, and noted the work of Gainsborough, who was called to Court and commanded to paint the portraits of the King and Queen and the other members of the royal family.

It was to refute the opinions of Sir Joshua Reynolds, as expressed in a lecture to the students at the Royal Academy, in which he spoke decisively against the use of cold colors in a picture, such as blue, green and grey, that Gainsborough painted the famous "Blue Boy." Gainsborough was very fond of blue for use in the dress of his sitters and used it constantly for years before this lecture was delivered by Sir Joshua.

Of his landscapes, a brother artist once said: "They are soothing, tender and affecting. His hand is as light as the sweep of a cloud, as swift as the flash of the sunbeam. His forms are grand, simple and ideal." His miniature painting of figures as seen in "The Market Cart" is characterized by all the qualities to be seen in his work on a larger scale, and is full of charm and gracefulness.

Many critics have united in agreeing that Gainsborough's masterpiece of portraiture is the picture sometimes known as "The Morning Walk," depicting Squire Hallett and his wife, and possessed by Lord Rothschild. In 1783, he exhibited a series of fifteen heads of the King, Queen, the Prince of Wales and other members of the reigning family, each one probably finished at a single sitting. The one of Queen Charlotte was most sympathetically painted, and a writer of the day said: "He has the knack of making even our old Queen Charlotte look picturesque." The famous "Blue Boy" was a portrait of Jonathan Buttall, a wealthy ironmonger, and the portrait of Mrs. Siddons, the actress, is another masterpiece. In executing this portrait, he is said to have exclaimed to the lady: "D— your nose, Madam, there is no end to it." In painting the Duchess of Devonshire, it was said that the beauty of the sitter, the charm of her looks and conversation, deprived the artist of that readiness of hand and hasty happiness of touch which belonged to him, and he asserted: "Her Grace is too hard for me." It is not considered one of Gainsborough's most sympathetic portraits, although the sale price to Mr. Pierpont Morgan was £10,605.

The next meeting of the Art Study Club will be held on Feb. 16, at the home of Mrs. W. H. Meredith, Water street, when a paper on "Whistler" will be given by Mrs. W. Sangster. The response to the roll call will be a quotation from the works of John Ruskin.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES THE NEW SWEATERS AND SKIRTS.

So many of Madame's young clients have returned from Winter resorts with their heads full of ideas as to what they like in sports clothes.

"I do declare," Madame remarked, "I'm not half through with the things for my early Spring opening, and here these enthusiastic young girls are, begging me to design them things for resort wear, both now and for later occasions."

As one young girl explained it, she had seen so many effective things being worn while she was away, that she wanted to talk over her sports wardrobe with Madame while her ideas on what she liked were so clear.

"Well, what do you like best?" Madame asked, to get an idea what the attractive visions were that the young thing had in mind.

"For one thing, I adore lots of separate skirts and sweater costumes," replied the client, who is never at a loss to know exactly what she likes to wear and do.

"Then you like what is decidedly smart for practically every sports occasion," Madame answered. "I must design some of these outfits for you."

Accordingly, Madame began consulting the materials in the stockroom.

"In the first place, I'm going to do a little costume that you can wear now, when you go to the country on week-ends," Madame told her.

The result of this was the costume I am sketching here in my diary, because I think it's so attractive, and so expressive of the youthful spirit of the age.

A thin sweater of fine camel's hair wool has gay colors all over it, red and brown and henna and a little blue. The skirt is the finest of imported Kasha, in natural tint, to harmonize with the sweater.

Madame had a small hat made, of softest beige, to be worn with this outfit.

Gay Colors in Natural Camel's Hair Sweater With Skirt of Natural Kasha.

But I don't want to give up the company and good times I can have with men. I want to dance. I want to go out on automobile rides to places where I can have a good dinner. I want the flattery and the flowers—the attentions that do not mean intentions—in short, being a woman, I want the companionship of the other six.

TOMORROW: The Old vs. the New.

HER OWN WAY

by a Girl of Today

YOUTH'S DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

I had hardly got into bed when I heard mother from outside my door say in a very relieved tone:

"Why, Jason, Julia is home. Her door is closed."

Dad called back.

"Perhaps the wind closed it. We did not hear her come in."

I did not want mother to see my wet clothes and mud-caked shoes, so I called as though I was just awakened from sleep.

"What's the matter? Is that you, mother? What do you want?"

"Nothing," answered mother happily. "I just came to see if you were home. Your father and I did not hear you." She pattered back to her own room and I settled in bed to have it out with myself.

Up until this time I had been just milling around, waiting for something to turn up, but now I had reached the place where I not only had to make a decision, but, having made it, I would have to stand by it.

Of course, after tonight everything was off between Chuck Becker and me. A man does not feel like paying any attention to a girl after she has given him such a smash in the face as I had.

And, as for announcing his engagement to me, I am certain Charlie never intended to marry me any more than I had intended to marry him. He was a good pal when he had not been drinking and I, having nothing better to do last summer, have let him play around with me, until last night I found out he thought he owned me.

And that brought me to the resolution that had been forming in my mind ever since I left high school. No man will ever be able to say he owns Julia Dean, either legally or illegally. No one is going to own me but my own little self, whether I marry or become an old maid.

I know that this "owning business" was quite the thing in my mother's time. I remember hearing my mother say that the moment a girl fell in love with a man she wanted "to belong" to him.

That is all very well—for the man. But I certainly do not want to "belong" to anybody. I do not want to marry, either. Not for a long, long time, at least. I expect I will have to, some time, but I want to be happy as long as I can and I have never seen a man and woman that have been married over four years that were particularly happy.

Mother and add are always quarreling. Dad wants his word to be law and mother fights against it because she knows he is wrong most of the time with his old-fashioned snap judgment in regard to women.

Even mother gives in more than I would. Consequently, if I happened to marry a man that thought as much of himself and his opinions as dad does, we would be fighting all the time.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

C. H. W.—You should be a very nice young man, although you have your faults, like the rest of us. With a confident, reposeful nature, and a destiny that points the way to joy for yourself and those about you, if you realize the best that is in you, you should have a well-rounded life and you belong also to that fortunate class that usually possesses a certain amount of money. You are frank and energetic, but you are often in a hurry and dislike to await results. Your own individual way of doing things confuses others who work with you, and their minds not being as active as yours, they lag behind you. You are frequently abrupt and cruel with these well-intentioned people. You have strong likes and dislikes, and are apt to despise what you cannot comprehend. You will probably live to a good old age, if you are careful of your health and guard against nervous trouble, brought on by worry and rushing. You are capable of minding your own business and keeping your own secrets. You should have comparatively few intimate friends, and take care not to offend them. Try to overlook your friends' faults and to refrain from pointing out their shortcomings to them. They may not think you are ordained to set them on the road to perfection. You were born on Friday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are gray and scarlet.

L. F. W.—You have a strong, highly developed nature, capable of meeting the circumstances of daily life with integrity and virtue, but you will have to find success in life through one avenue only—and that in hard work, in keeping everlastingly at whatever you are doing. However, you belong to that lucky class of people who usually have their expectations realized and are seldom without money. You will live to a ripe old age if you suppress a tendency to worry and to rush matters to completion, as you dislike to await results. You are individualistic, and should follow above everything else your own original ideas. In this lies the strength of your type. You love with whole-souled concentration, but resent any interference with your individuality and have your own peculiar way of doing things. Follow out your own inspirations, rather than the advice of others. You should cultivate calmness and repose and try not to depend on appreciation and gratitude, which you will not always receive. Develop your talents along one line, as the specialist is the one who succeeds in this age. Do not worry, do not give way to anger, and above all, suppress jealousy and hate. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are red and brown.

C. R. C.—As your birth date is not given, it is impossible to give you a satisfactory reading. Please forward this, with your full name, if you desire same.

L. M. F.—You are a tireless worker, but do better when working for yourself than when harnessed to others. You have a kind disposition, are active, independent and persevering. While your nature is undeveloped, you are apt to be somewhat coarse and material-minded, but you have plenty of time ahead of you to correct these traits. While you remain unmarried, you will find success only through hard work. You would make a good teacher, or be successful in commercial life. You are magnetic and people will be drawn to you, but you dislike any demonstration of affection. You were born with original ideas, which you should follow out at all times. The world has enough copyists. Self-reliance is your watchword, but see that you are well prepared for your work and failure will not touch you. A good business education should be sought by you. Dress as well as possible—your natural dignity demands good clothes. Marry young and secure love and companionship while life is dawning. Marry a man born in May, July, February or November. Learn, first of all, however, that there is something higher than the intellect and permit your heart and soul to influence your attitude toward mankind. You were born on Friday, not Thursday, as you state. The date you ask about is past. Your colors are blue and cream.

C. J. D.—You have ability with both head and hands. You should be able to accomplish much in business or scientific life. You will find that the best way for you to achieve success is to use the velvet glove always, obtaining what you wish by cleverness rather than by force. You are kind, often assuming too much of the burdens of others to your own detriment, and you are apt to pay too much attention too, to showy people and things. Learn to look for real worth rather than surface show. You are very fond of the physical things of life which appeal to you immensely. You will not be as happy or successful as you might be until your spiritual nature is fully developed. A certain tendency toward capriciousness will not make your married life happy. Be careful in what you eat, as your stomach and intestines will bother you otherwise. Your great danger lies in a liking for strong drink. Learn that the body is the servant of the mind and should be disciplined by it, if you wish to succeed. Control your temper and listen to the advice of others. You are not capable of remaining agreeable under difficulties, so should guard well against explosive anger.

You were born on Saturday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are opal shades and tan.

M. A. O.—Yours is a somewhat strange personality, and one that will have to strive hard for happiness. You have material and spiritual ability, but not much "stick-to-itive-ness," showing charm but not much depth in your nature. A fickle and changeable quality in your life is its most outstanding characteristic. You will have to fight always against this and fight hard, else you will achieve nothing and go through life like a will o'the wisp, drawn here and there by conflicting currents, with no stability or force of your own. You are apt to have influence over others, which your own nature may not always exert for good. You are also inclined to put things off and to have too strong a liking for praise and flattery. Scolding and nagging are indicated in your reading. With a quick temper, a scolding habit and a changeable tendency in most things, you have a good deal to face, haven't you? If you strive to understand and control your own nature, you may be capable of a certain amount of happiness and success. Self control is the keynote of most achievements in this life. You have a warm heart which is not always evident to those about you.

You were born on Monday. The day you ask about, a Friday, is one on which to avoid arguments and to undertake nothing new. Your color is pink.

Completely Relieved After Short Treatment

Ontario Man Suffered With Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Mr. H. Waldriff Highly Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills.

ENGLEHART, Ont., Feb. 8.—(Special).—"I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for kidney and bladder trouble. After using a few boxes I felt completely relieved. Was also bothered with a sore back and can honestly say I have not been bothered with any of these symptoms since. Can highly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. H. Waldriff, a well known resident of this place sends us this statement.

Dodd's Kidney Pills simply heal sick kidneys. They relieved Mr. Waldriff because his ailments were symptoms of kidney disease. When the kidneys get out of order they fail to strain the impurities out of the blood and general lassitude and weakness ensues. This condition is not only disagreeable but dangerous as well. The impurities in the blood are the seeds if disease. If they are not removed Rheumatism, Lumbago, Gravel, Dropsy, Diabetes, or Bright's Disease may result.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cereal, thin cream, scrambled eggs with dried beef, bran muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Baked salsify, toasted bran muffins, apple sauce, ginger drop cakes, milk, tea.

Dinner—Breaded veal cutlets, potatoes en casserole, creamed string beans, endive salad, peach tapicoa, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

Let potatoes stand in cold water for one hour before paring. This freshens them without soaking out any of their valuable properties. Do not let them soak in cold water after paring but cook as soon as possible. They must of course be dropped into cold water as pared to prevent discoloration.

Baked Salsify.

One bunch salsify, 3 tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 2 eggs.

Wash and scrape salsify. Cut in to prevent discoloration. Drain and put into boiling water to cover containing 2 tablespoons lemon juice. When half cooked add salt. Cook until tender, about 30 minutes and rub through a strainer. Add butter, salt, paprika, milk and yolks of eggs well beaten. Beat well and fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into a well-buttered baking dish and bake surrounded by hot water for 40 minutes. Serve at once.

Here's new dental way to Gums like Coral

Also lightens cloudy teeth remarkably

Accept, please, full 10-day tube of this scientific, film-removing dentifrice, urged by world's dental authorities. Note the difference in your teeth and gums.

Thanks to modern dental science, it's been found that teeth seldom are naturally off color. Most often they are simply coated with a dingy film which ordinary dentifrices do not successfully clear off. That's why brushing fails you.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you'll feel that film now—a slippery sort of coating. It absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. It invites germ growth, tooth decay and gum troubles. For health's sake and for beauty, you must remove it.

Today, in place of using an old-type dentifrice, get the film-removing paste called Pepsodent which dental authorities now so widely urge. You'll find, to your own surprise, that your teeth gleam like jewels, that your gums are of a healthy, coral tint—your smile gleaming and attractive.

Obtain Pepsodent at your druggist. Costs only a few cents. Or send coupon for 10-day tube free to try. Do this for your own sake.

INTERMEDIATE PETES SWAMP LAKEFIELD IN SECOND GAME OF GROUP SEMI-FINAL ROUND

Defeated Northerners 10-3 Here, Winning Round 21-7.

VISITORS OUTPLAYED

Result of Game Was Never in Doubt—Havelock Here Next.

(By C. J. B.)

Peterborough Intermediates piled up another big score last night and eliminated Lakefield from the O.H A. series without difficulty. The score was 10-3, and the score on the round was 21-7. The Petes were superior all the way through a fast cleanly contested game. They outplayed the visitors in every position. The winners play Havelock here on Wednesday and Friday.

The most interesting part of the game, from the spectators' viewpoint, was the work of Ab Graham in goal for the visitors. The antics of the stocky custodian caught the eye of the crowd, although they were far from effective in stopping the shots of the Petes' marksmen. The goalkeeper kicked and swung at the puck, he stopped shots that he didn't see until they hit his pads or stick, and on one occasion he jumped up in the air to stop a shot which was sliding along the ice and returned to his proper level just in time to drop on the puck, stopping it. His favorite method of clearing rebounds was to take a golf swing at the puck as it lay on the ice in front of the net, and many golfers might copy his stance to their benefit.

One goal in particular tickled the fans. The puck had been in the corner and Graham turned to look over the back of the net to see where it was. Unfortunately Pete King was crossing the ice at the blue line at the time and backhanded the puck past Graham while his back was turned.

King and Williams starred for the Petes. King scored four goals and Williams got three. Williams was more effective at checking. One which Williams scored was the prettiest goal of the night. The little centre man worked his way down the left boards, was forced into the corner and swung out past the Lakefield defence man to beat Graham with a fast one into the corner of the net. Jackson, who subbed on defence and forward line, played a good game, scoring two goals. The remaining counter was scored by Helson on a pass from Dundas. The latter, along with McDouglall, played a good game on the wings. Both checked hard and carried the puck well in a number of solo and combination rushes but were unlucky with their shots. Lackey was good on the defence but he also had trouble in beating Graham. LeBarr played a good game in the nets and turned aside many strong attacks. He did not have as busy a session as his rival but gave a good account of himself

None of the Lakefield players was in a class with the Petes. They all showed a nice turn of speed but lacked effectiveness when they had the puck. Louis Sabatino checked well, as did Blewett. The Hill brothers each got a goal and played a fair checking game. Kerr started a number of rushes but none of them went far enough. Ridpath was unable to keep the puck and was inclined to circle too much.

The game was remarkably clean. Referee Hudson was little lax on off sides, but spotted any attempts at interference. He issued two penalties, but Darcy Hill, when chased for bodychecking towards the end of the game, eluded him in the shifting of subs and the team remained at full strength, with the culprit still on the ice. Blewett served the only penalty for a cross check in the first period. The teams:

Peterborough:
Goal—Lebarr.
Defence—Lackey and Helson.
Centre—King.
Wings—Dundas and McDougall.
Subs—Williams and Jackson.

Lakefield:
Goal—Graham.
Defence—Kerr and D. Hill.
Centre—L. Sabatino.
Wings—Blewett and R. Hill.
Subs—Ridpath and J. Sabatino.

First Period.

Lew LeBarr had the first shot to handle in the game, but he stopped that one and several more before Graham was tested. Pete King fired the first shot at Graham and it was stopped—by the net. The Petes continued to press but some eight minutes elapsed before Williams bulged the twine for the next goal. Just after that Blewett was invited to take a rest and while he was off Jackson added a third counter. King made it four on the game and eleven on the round two minutes later.

How They Looked To Graham.

The Petes were combining nicely, going down three abreast every time, although the speed of the visitors enabled them to break up some of these rushes, the forwards coming from behind to intercept the passes. A combination attack through the defence, King to Williams to Jackson, ended with the goal judge's hand held high but the referee decided, on looking things over, that the shot had gone outside instead of inside the post.

Second Period.

King and Williams each added a counter in the second period before Blewett counted for Lakefield. King scored his while Graham looked over the back of the net and then Williams made his tricky rush which ended successfully. On a combined rush several shots were fired at LeBarr and then the veteran grabbed a rebound to beat the local goalie. Jackson got that one back on a pass from King a few minutes later.

Third Period.

The last two goals of the game were scored by the Lakefield boys, but the Petes had scored three before the visitors notched any in the final frame. King scored the first, Williams slammed home a rebound from Jackson for the next, and Helson took a perfect pass from Dundas to count the third. Bob Hill then went down unchecked and fired a high one which lit on LeBarr's back and rolled into the net. A minute later Darcy Hill got through and beat LeBarr from close in. Darcy had been waved to the penalty box shortly before but remained on the ice.

"Tate" will replace Muddy Ruel as first-string catcher for the Washington club this season," says Clark Griffith, from Tampa, Fla.

Griffith is busy down there playing golf and trying to sign his pennant-winning ball club between matches. Only 23 are still in the hold-out class. His star backstop is one of them.

Ruel last season was generally regarded as the most valuable, if not the best, catcher in the American League. He had a good year at the bat, was in most every game and handled the erratic Watshington pitching staff superbly.

To say that Tate, third-string catcher on the club, will replace Ruel makes it seem as if Griffith is becoming childish.

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

Eddie Collins, White Sox manager, has been in six world series; four with the Athletics and two with the Sox.

Collins did the unique in batting as a classic participant. In every other series he was in he hit over .400, reaching his highest mark in 1910—his first one—when he batted .429.

In his other three series he fell below the .300 point. In 1914, when the Braves surprised the entire baseballdom by whipping the Mack troupe in straight games, Collins only turned in a stick average of .214.

BASEBALL RIVALS MEET AT HOCKEY

Shea's School Beat Petherick's 4-3 in Well-Contested Game.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Feb. 9.—Old baseball rivals met once more when School Sections No. 1 and No. 2 crossed sticks on Friday afternoon to indulge in a good clean game of hockey. The puck was faced off at 4.15, with Mr. Lindsay Watson handling the bell, and Mr. George Anderson as timekeeper in the penalty box. The ice was in very good condition and had been cleaned off a little larger than regulation size so that there was plenty of room to keep the puck travelling. The game was exciting from start to finish, with wild cheers from the spectators whenever their respective side was getting a little the better of the play. The first period ended with the score 2-1 in favor of Shea's (No. 1).

The second period was just as fast as the first, with the players holding their positions better and playing a little more combination, each scoring one goal.

The third period opened with Shea's School playing heavy defence in an attempt to hold its own and Petherick's fighting hard to even the score, which they did when Gerald Petherick received a nice pass from Don. Kerr and, raising the puck, bulged the nets for the third time in Petherick's favor, tying the score.

With six more minutes to play, each team fought hard to break the score. After much slashing of hickory and wild rushes in a scramble in front of the Petherick goal, the puck happened to land between the posts. There was one more minute for the Petherick team to even the score but it failed to do so, and when the timekeeper's bell rang, sticks were crossed in three cheers, with the penalty box receiving not a single victim.

The star players of the Petherick team were Gerald and Arthur Petherick, and for Shea's team, Donald Watson and Douglas Ingram.

The line-up was as follows:

Petherick's—Goal, E. S. Fairman; r. defence, F. Fry; l. defence, G. Barnum; centre, G. Petherick; r. wing, D. Kerr; l. wing, A. Petherick; sub., Al. Simpson.

Shea's—Goal, E. A. Fairman; r. defence, C. Miller; l. defence, McKenzie; centre, D. Ingram; r. wing C. Ingram; l. wing, D. Watson; sub., J. Cleugh.

Referee—Mr. Lindsay Watson.

Those who came from a distance to see the game were: Mr. Lorne Barnum, Miss Nettie Hay and Mr. Lorne Hay.

FASTER TENNIS BY MISS WILLS

Reverted To Hand Driving For Easy Victory in Carlton Tourney.

FIRST ROUND.

CANNES, France, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—Helen Wills, reverting to her hard driving game, which she abandoned for a time in her mixed doubles match against Suzanne Lenglen Sunday, scored an easy victory in the first round of the Carlton tennis tournament yesterday, defeating Miss Ethel Fischer of England in two love sets.

Mlle. Lenglen was idle yesterday, having drawn a bye in the first round of the singles. She was not even at the court to watch her rival play.

The decisive manner in which Miss Wills disposed of her opponent brought the betting odds against her in her expected match with Mlle. Lenglen from 7 to 1 down to 5 to 1. The big match, it is believed, will be played Saturday.

The California girl's play Monday, however, was hardly a convincing criterion of her game, since she was not extended. She lost only 13 points in the two sets, five in the first and eight in the second. Not a single game went to deuce, and Miss Wills' point score made up entirely of fours, is considered unique in the history of Riviera tennis. This score follows:

First Set:—
Miss Wills.... ....444444—24
Miss Fischer ....111002— 5
Second Set:—
Miss Wills.... ....444444—24
Miss Fischer ....201212— 8

PLAYED EVERY INNING.

STIRLING LOSES GAME AT HOME

Marmora Team Broke Home Record of Red and White.

SCORE WAS 4-3.

MARMORA, Feb. 9. — (Special.)—Marmora won a hard game at Stirling last night in which they defeated the Red and Whites by the score of 4-3, Marmora was minus Bond who was inured at Tweed the previous week and the non arrival of Jack at the commencement of the game further disorganized the team at the start. The game was keen throughput.

In the first period Stirling scored through Hackers and the speedy Wallace shortly after increased their lead by a good shot which baffled Neal.

The arrival of Jack a little later changed the complexion of the Marmora team. Within a few seconds Berry had opened the score for Marmora, in accepting a pass from Jack. The period closed with the score 2-1 in Stirling's favor.

Early in the second period McWilliams evened the score for the visitors. This player failed a few moments later with a good chance to score. After effecting several good saves, Hulin was again beaten, Auger being successful. Wallace in this period was very aggressive for Stirling, Neal having to save with much frequency from this player. The period closed with Marmora leading 3-2.

The play in the third period was fast and exciting. A rush by Marmora culminated in C. Jones shooting into an open goal. Whitty and his boys endeavored hard to reduce the lead and a further goal came to Stirling from the veteran's stick. The game closed with Stirling swarming around the Marmora net. The ice was in ideal condition.

The gate receipts were of a record nature, over $300 being paid for admission. The refereeing was most satisfactory, the game being kept in fine control. Stirling thus lost their home record for the season.

The line-ups:

Marmora: Goal, C. Neal, right defence, Jones; left defence, Auger; centre, Berry; right wing, Brady; left wing, McWilliams; subs., Jack and R. Neal.

Stirling: Goal, Hulin; right defence, Whitty; left defence, Tulloch; centre, J. Ackers, right wing, Wallace; left wing, H. Ackers; subs, Mc Gee and Ingram.

Goal umpires: H. Boudreau, H. Leal.

Referee: Leo Barrett of Belleville.

CURLING CANCELLED.

Campbellford Rinks Ready To Take Part in Tankard Play-off.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 9. — Two rinks of the curling club were ready to leave for Toronto to take part in the Tankard play-off when a telegram was received informing them that the contest had been postponed. The skips of the two rinks that will represent Campbellford at Toronto are S. J. Moore and R. H. Cole. The other players will probably be the same as those who won a place in Peterborough last week.

TO FILM TENNIS.

U. S. Producer Pays More Than $100,000.

CANNES, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—The exclusive right to take motion pictures of the expected match between Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen in the finals of the Carlton tournament has been sold at a United States producer for a consideration reported to run over the $100,000 mark. United States cameramen were informed of this yesterday when they were refused admittance to the match.

"This is a plain business proposition," said Thomas Burke, brother of the professional world champion tennis player, Albert Burke, who is handling the financial affairs of the Carlton tennis tournament. He said no pictures could be taken without the approval of the concessionaire.

"That's news to me," was Miss Wills' comment.

"I never bother about moving pictures," said Mlle. Lenglen.

NOT CORRECT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 9. — In a contributed obituary notice which appeared in The Examiner Monday it was stated that the late James Montgomery of Codrington had been a Liberal. Those who knew the deceased would scarcely recognize him by that description, as the late Mr. Montgomery had all his life been a staunch Conservative.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 24—FORWARD TO GUARD TO GUARD

Much can be gained by having your players switch opponents during a game without changing positions. By that I mean make your men interchangeable and use them in plays accordingly. To do so you will attain the utmost in deception and gain the strongest offensive strength possible.

The forward to guard formation calls upon your forwards to become guards, one guard to change to center and the other guard to take a forward stand. Time it properly and your opponents will be left entirely at sea.

The forwards and the left guard all start in motion at the same time, the right forward alongside the tap-off man to take the ball, the left guard back of the center to receive a pass and the left forward to cover the left guard's vacated position. The instant the right forward passes he goes further down the floor and occupies the right guard's position. He, in turn, sweeps along the side of the court and to the goal, to take a pass from the left guard and shoot for the basket.

These manoeuvers, which must be completed quickly if they are to be successful, put the forwards in the guards normal positions. They also put the right guard under the basket shooting and the left guard ready to relieve the center of his duties. The latter, once the first pass is completed dashes up to follow the right guard's shot. The left guard, then playing the tap-off's opponent, is ready to act as a second follow shot.

The play is easy to complete for it is little more than a changing of positions on the part of the forwards and guards. Added to this it leaves the opposition with a rather hazy idea as to which players are which. The deception is by no means of small importance in the adaptability of the formation.

BILLY EVANS Says:

UNIQUE DECISION, COSTLY LUXURY, GOLF EXPENSE.

Bill Mehlhorn, famous pro golfer, who recently came in for much criticism because he talked too loudly, while Bobby Cruickshank was trying to sink a short putt that would have tied Macdonald Smith for the Texas open, is in the limelight again.

Mehlhorn recently announced that he intended to disconnect himself from golf clubs as a professional.

Other famous golfers like Walter Hagen and Leo Diegel, have for a time tried the free lance game, but have always returned to the fold. Unless I am mistaken Diegel is once again a free agent in golfdom.

Mehlhorn, however, insists he is through. It is hardly believed the unpleasant circumstances in the Texas open, had anything to do with the decision.

It is just possible that the action of Mehlhorn is a forerunner to the fact that in the near future the high salaried golf professional will be a thing of the past.

Under present conditions the position of golf professional at one of the big clubs is a mighty lucrative one. All the golf concessions are his.

I know one crack golfer who seldom has taken part in any but the bigger tournaments, simply because he found there was more money staying at home attending to the wants of the club members.

The municipal golf links throughout the country are indirectly hurting the golf professional. These clubs charge a very moderate fee. Smaller golf clubs have felt the influence of the municipal owned courses more than those located in the larger cities.

Already a number of the smaller clubs have taken over the operation of the club house, getting the receipts from such operations as polishing and shining clubs as well as many other like jobs.

The profits of the concessions, according to many of the smaller clubs, have done much to lessen the annual extra assessment.

* * *

Golf clubs will always need instructors to tutor the members in their faults. This revenue will go to the pro but many of the other soft spots seem to be on the decline.

Of course, the leading clubs of the larger cities will always boast their golf professionals. The prestige of these star players undoubtedly add much to the reputation of the club. Expense means nothing.

Many golfers take as much interest in the showing of the club's golf professional as the alumni of a college do in the work of the football team.

Golf, however, has been making such rapid strides that it is only natural to expect changes in the administration of the affairs of the sport.

* * *

Regardless of the changes, there is still a big field for the professional. Enthusiasts of the game are always willing to come across to see a duel between two stars.

MOVIEGRAPHS

COLOR FILMS WILL BRING NEW STARS TO FAME.

(By Jack Jungmeyer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—It is written in the future book of movies that color films will be the commonplace of the better product within the next five years; that black and white will be largely a memory of the cradle epoch of the screen.

Judged by pioneering experiments in color physics now under way, and results already shown in the first ventures, this spells revolution in the mechanics, investiture and personnel of the pantomime stage.

The chief disturbance will be in the ranks of the actors, and it may well be that color photography will relegate to oblivion many personages now prominent, while newcomers, more happily endowed, will blaze in gorgeous new splendor. For "color personality"—the way one registers for the tint camera—has been proved decidedly different from one's semblance in the present-day neutrals.

These prophesies are inspired from comment by Albert Parker, director of Douglas Fairbanks' technicolor "Black Pirate," during the course of which he subjected over 60 beautiful actresses to the "lens that paints," with Billie Dove as the final choice.

"Color personality," asserts Parker, whose explorations in this field have been extensive, "is determined by pigmentation, by texture of the skin, by color of the hair and eyes and the indefinable glow of the blood behind the features.

"Nor can this native quality be very much altered by make-up. The color camera peers through any superficial masking and brings out often unexpected tone values and strange emphases. Tests in black and white afford no criterion."

TIGER SMITH DIED AFTER BOXING BOUT

Police Search For Opponent Who Battered Negro For Four Rounds.

STAMFORD, Conn., Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—"Tiger" Smith, negro boxer of South Norwalk, died in hospital late last night from undetermined injuries following a bout here last night with Kid Broad, of this city. Smith, substituted at the last moment for Battling Murray of New York, was unmercifully battered by Broad for four rounds. The police are searching for Broad to arrest him, pending the outcome of an inquiry into the death, to-day.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MAGNATES MEETING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press).—The club presidents of the American League assembled here to-day to adopt a playing schedule for the coming season but with other and more important topics on the tap. Playing dates already have been assigned and the magnates merely have to approve them, leaving the remainder of the session for discussion of the proposed revised constituted for the League and other matters, including resin for pitchers and pre-season player trades.

QUEEN'S SPORTS SHOW DEFICIT

Even Football Went in the Hole During the Past Season.

TO STOP LEAKS.

KINGSTON, Feb. 9.—(Special.)—That every department of intercollegiate sports at Queen's University showed a financial deficit, during the past year, is the report issued from the college. Football, which is usually profitable, dropped behind, too.

In order to meet this situation, the Athletic Board of Control is considering several measures. It was decided to employ an equipment man, in order to stop many of the leakages. It was also decided to inaugurate a budgeting system for team managers. A budget for the activities of each team for the season will also be asked for and these budgets will be passed upon. When a budget is passed, it will be expected that each team manager will keep well within the limits. Closer co-operation between teams, students and the Athletic Board is the ideal aimed at.

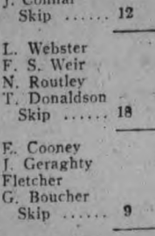
HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

Abe Mitchell — Restricted Follow-Through.

WALTER HAGEN—BEGIN WITH PUTTER.

It has been suggested that the ideal way to learn the game is to begin with the putter and work backward to the driver. The beginner would undoubtedly learn a lot faster in this manner and a lot better, too. For example, if you were to take a person who had never had a golf club in his hand before and place a ball a foot away from the hole and tell him to make the putt, the chances are he would do it. Then gradually lengthen the distance until you had him standing at the edge of the green and you would find that inside of a week he would be a very good putter. Then take up the mashie and teach him how to hit the ball with this club and you would soon have him working to perfection in the art of approaching, and all before he had ever hit a ball from the tee.



When he began to use the wooden clubs he would know that it was absolutely essential in their use to keep the head down and to follow through. He would also know, if he had learned the other shots with the iron clubs, that the club must do the work instead of the body.

Headaches and Biliousness

Are quickly relieved by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

When you feel irritable, cranky and downhearted, you can easily blame the liver, for there is no organ in the human body which so quickly throws the system out of sorts as a torpid, sluggish liver.

You do not need to be in the blues long, if you know about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for by their direct action on the liver they relieve promptly and prove lastingly beneficial.

Once the liver is right the bowels function regularly and the whole digestive system resumes its work. You feel fine and take a delight in telling others of the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is why this favorite prescription of Dr. Chase is so popular and is found in every store where medicines are sold.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

ROLAND DENNE

When asked for his opinion on the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Mr. Denne said "Nothing has done more for Peterborough from an education viewpoint than the Peterborough Exhibition."

The Directors give their services year after year absolutely gratis and there are only two paid officials on the board—the Secretary and the Superintendent. The Board has always worked for a more friendly relationship between the rural and urban dwellers and is ready at all times to help any farmer to get information through the Provincial and Dominion Departments of Agriculture that will benefit him and the community at large. Mr. Denne said that the City of London, realizing that its fair was a benefit to the City had guaranteed bonds amounting to $150,000 for the purpose of erecting more buildings and he felt sure if the same plan was followed in Peterborough the buildings resulting would produce enough revenue to meet the interest and sinking fund. The Board was willing to cooperate with any body that had the good of the community at heart and in proof of this Mr. Denne cited the number of uses that the grounds are put by the different sporting associations. Everybody, he said, should have a membership ticket, as it not only admitted him to the grounds during the entire exhibition but supplied the funds that are needed for the vast improvements that are carried out from year to year.

SKI CLUB NOTES.

The ski run held last Wednesday night proved to be the biggest success of the season. Many new faces were among those present, and since then the membership has increased considerably. To-morrow night's hike should be another "Wow," if the present ideal weather for ski-ing holds out. All members and those who have handed in their application cards are cordially invited to attend. Dancing and refreshments at club house following hike.

Owing to the shortage of snow on Green Hill the jump has not yet been erected, but a smaller one has been built of Prophet's Hill, west of Jackson Park. The jump is by no means a small one, but owing to the poor take-off on this hill, the speed required for long distance jumping cannot be obtained and up to date the longest distance acquired is 30 feet.

The route planned by the field committee for this week's hike is as follows: Leave Y.W.C.A. at 7.30 sharp and proceed up Aylmer to McDonnell, west on McDonnel to Park, north on Park to Smith, and out Smith to Jackson Park, through the park, and then down Monaghan Road to Rye's Hill. Returning to club house for refreshments.

AT THE REGENT

BIG DRAMATIC PICTURE. "Three Faces East" Wins Favor at Local Theatre.

Proving itself a distinctly worthwhile photoplay, 'Three Faces East' a Rupert Julian production featuring Jetta Goudal, Robert Ames, Henry Walthall and Clive Brok, was heartily received by big audiences at the Regent Theatre yesterday. For sustained interest, swift moving action and thrills, this picture stands in a class alone.

The story deals with the adventures of several members of the British and German Secret Service during the war. It is finely developed along dramatic lines and there is a surprise finish which it would be unfair to the reader to reveal. The scenes along the fighting line, in the hospital, in London and Berlin are not only impressive because of their massiveness and fidelity, but they hold the attention of spectators with highly thrilling results. Here is a picture that one can see again and again with increasing interest. It was superbly directed by Rupert Julian under Cecil B. DeMille's supervision.

The featured players present highly artistic portrayals and they contribute to the enjoyableness of the production. From start to finish there isn't a dull moment in the action, and with its beautiful photography and thrills, "Three Faces East" is a mystery drama of superlative quality.

AT THE CAPITOL

RICHARD BARTHELMESS IN "SHORE LEAVE."

One of the most delightful pictures seen at the Capitol Theatre in some time is the feature for the first three days of this week, "Shore Leave," with Richard Barthelmess starring, supported by Dorothy Mackail, and one of the best comedies, with Lloyd Hamilton in "Framed," accompanies it. Altogether, it is a programme that is interesting and likable from start to finish.

Richard Barthelmess has a role in this picture, that of a youthful gob whose shore leave leads him to a chance acquaintance with a village dressmaker, and the love story of the two is a peculiar affair. The conversation in the sub-titles is one of the most entertaining portions of the picture and the dark-eyed, serious youth with his intense ways does just as good work in this picture as he did in any previous role. It reminds one somewhat of his attractive presentation of the young hero in "The City Beautiful," but there is somehting almost more human in the story, if that were possible, of the sea going dressmaker and the sailor who "won't live off'n no rich woman." The manner of their meeting and re-union, the funny party to the "Smiths" of the navy, and the scene where the gob comes back to his lady love and she offers him .. bowl of hot water and a cake of tar soap to wash his face, are parts of a picture that has been filmed with an eye always to the humorous touches.

The youthful charm of the serious-eyed young Barthelmess as "Bilge" Smith, the out of the ordinary prettiness of Dorothy Mackail as Connie Martin and the intensely human atmosphere of the story of "Shore Leave," make it a feature very worth while and one of the best evening's entertainments offered here in some time.

There is real mirth in "Framed," and a continuous series of hearty giggles accompanies the progress of the ludicrous star, Lloyd Hamilton, through the comedy which portrays the trials of a swain endeavoring to get his picture taken "in the worst possible way." The adventures of the gentleman later at a party round out an extremely funny comedy.

—Jeanette.

BARREL OF FUN MONDAY NIGHT

Rotary Old Time Ice Carnival One of Season's Big Events.

There will be a barrel of fun at Brock Street Rink next Monday night when the Peterboro Rotary Club will stage an old-time ice carnival—something that has not been seen in many a moon on the scale of this affair. Fine prizes are being offered for the best costumes, both fancy and comic, and some wonderful efforts in this line may be expected. Then the programme will include a number of skating races, and as a fitting finale there will be a burlesque hockey game between the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs. All in all, the event promises to provide plenty of entertainment, and the public is expected to turn out in droves to watch the fun. The proceeds will be used to help finance some of the splendid Rotary activities, every cent being devoted to these purposes.

The points were about evenly distributed between the two boxers, and only Hillier's aggressiveness won his decision.

All Drivers For Hire, Pay, or Gain Should Get Them at Once.

Chauffeurs should make haste in securing their 1926 licenses. So said Inspector Reid this morning and judging by the way he said it he wasn't joking. All drivers of motor vehicles "for hire, pay, or gain," should take their buttons and license numbers down to the police station so that the records there may be completed.

WEDDING BELLS

SMITH—McAULIFFE.

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Sunday, January 31st, at 2 p.m. by Rev. Father A. D. McDougall, at the presbytery of the Sacred Heart Roman Catholic church, Sioux Lookout, Ont., when Catherine Mary, only daughter of Mrs. L. McAulliffe of Omemee, Ontario, and Cecil Stewart, second son of Mrs. E. Smith, Dublin, Ireland, were united in the bonds of holy matrimony.

The bride, who was becomingly attired for the occasion, was attended by Miss Lenore Ena Smith, of Winnipeg, Man., and the bridegroom by Mr. Desmond Smith, of McDougall Mills, Ontario.

The entire party spent a very enjoyable time in Sioux Lookout over the week end, and, accompanied by a few friends, honored the occasion by partaking of a wedding dinner prettily arranged by Mrs. Clark.

The happy couple left for McDougall Mills, where they have resided for a considerable time, and where they will take up their residence for the present. On arrival they were the recipients of many hearty congratulations and wishes for their future happiness from the wide circle of friends with whom they have become acquainted in this little village in the heart of the woods.

A pretty little episode was the wishes extended by the children to the bride, who holds the position as teacher in the school, on her return to take up her abode amongst them again.

LILLICO—MILES.

A quiet wedding took place on Jan. 27, at one o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Slater, of Smith township, when their only daughter, Mrs. Mary Edith Irene Miles, of Lakefield, became the wife of Mr. William Elmor Lillico, of Mariposa township, son of Mrs. Emma and the late William Lillico.

The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Nelson of Lakefield. The ceremony was performed under a beautiful arch of evergreens by Rev. S. A. Kemp, pastor of Regent street United church, the bride wearing a gown of navy blue crepe with silver trimmings. The groom's gift to the bride was a rope of pearls, and to the organist a gold bar pin with amethyst setting. A dainty luncheon was served to the immediate relatives of the contracting parties, after which the bride and groom left Lakefield on the three o'clock train for Toronto, Georgetown and other points. On their return they will reside at the home of the groom in Mariposa. The bride was the recipient of many very pretty and useful gifts, among them being a beautiful brass jardiniere from the Regent street Adult Bible Class, of which she was a faithful member.

Stock Prices Resist Strong Selling Move

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press)—Stock price displayed splendid resistance today to the selling inspired by a further break in food shares and the marking up of the renewal rate on call money. One block of 10,000 shares of Sinclair changed hands at 24 and the stock then moved up to 24 1-4 or 1 1-8 points above yesterday's close while California Petroleum crossed 38 to the highest price since the stock was split up in 1923, on buying influenced by the expected inclusion of that company into one of the Western Oil mergers now pending.

Gold Stocks Suffered Drop In Heavy Trading Session

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—(Canadian Press.)—The trend was mixed on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning with very little abatement of exceptionally heavy trading. The leading golds suffered recessions, Teck Hughes being sold down four at 365 and Tough Oakes 3 1-4 at 55 1-2. Kirkland Lake lost two at 121 and Lake Shore 45 at 12.20. Others were strong, Vickers advancing six at 52 and Argo Consolidated 1 1-2 at 45 1-2. One point gains were shown by Chaput Hughes at 17 and Consolidated West Dome at 26 1-2. Silvers were generally weak and Amulet lost three at 126.

Trading On Broad List With Uncertain Trend To-day

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—(Canadian Press.)—Trading was fairly heavy and a broad list was dealt in, but the general tone of the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning was uncertain, with slight recessions fairly numerous. Brazilian led with a decline of 3-8 at 91 5-8 and Winnipeg lost one at 51 in active trading. Smelters closed the morning unchanged at 219 and British Columbia fishing was a firm spot, gaining 3-4 at 63 3-4. Canners preferred, International Utilities and City Dairy all were slightly lower. Mackay issues were heavily dealt in and common advanced a point to 137, from which it later receded to 136. The preferred closed this morning 1-8 higher at 73 1-8.

Drop In Wheat Price Starts Buying Movement

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press). — New downturns here in the price of wheat today followed early news of fresh declines at Liverpool. On the set-backs, however, better buying developed, based on opinions that the bearish factor has been discounted, and that rallies were to be looked for. Chicago opening prices, 1-2c to 1 3-4c lower, May (new) $1.68 to $1.68 7-8 and July $1.66 1-4 to $1.66 3-4, were followed by a recovery to slightly above yesterday's finish.

Corn and oats were relatively firmer than wheat. Moist weather, unfavorable for the movement of corn was a strengthening influence. After opening 1-2c o to 1-8c up, May f80 1-4 to 80 5-8, corn scored moderate general gains.

Oats started at 3-4c decline to 1-4c advance, May 41c to 41 1-8c. Later all months showed some upturn.

MERCIER HEADS CUSTOMS BOARD

Montreal Member Named Chairman By Special Committee of House.

COUNSEL RETAINED.

OTTAWA, Feb. 9. Canadian Press—Paul Mercier, (Liberal, of St. Henri, Montreal), was to day unanimously elected chairman of special committee of the House of Commons, which is to investigate alleged irregularities in the Customs Department.

The election of Mr. Mercier was proposed by D. Donaghey, Liberal, of North Vancouver, and seconded by Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative of West Calgary. The motion was carried without debate.

Hon. G. S. Boivin, Minister of Customs, announced that the government had decided to give the committee benefit of counsel to bring out the evidence, and had retained Aime Geoffrion, K.C., of Montreal, for that purpose.

Hon. W. H. Stevens protested. It was not the government's prorogative to say who the committee would retain as counsel. In reply to the demand of Mr. Stevens, Mr. Boivin said the government would agree to the Conservative members of the committee retaining other counsel as well as Mr. Geoffrion.

Mr. Stevens suggested that a number of Montreal firms be subpoenaed to appear before the committee next week and produce all books showing the conduct of their business. The firms to be heard next week are in Montreal, Rock Island, Quebec, and in Ford City. The committee agreed.

LADY CURLERS WIN FIRST GAME

Eliminate the Toronto Club Ladies in First Round of Tankard.

PLAYING GRANITES.

The two ladies' rinks representing the Peterborough Curling Club were successful in eliminating their opponents from the Toronto Club in the first round of the Ontario Ladies' Tankard this morning when they concluded the games with a total of five up. The games were keenly contested and many shots were played which drew excited admiration from a number of male exponents who had assembled presumably to jeer but remained to cheer. One shot in particular, performed in such a manner as to cause one man to remark that it would live long in his memory. Much caustic comment was passed at the start of several shots but in some uncanny manner the stones appeared to move so as to form a perfect guard or to eliminate the placements of the opponent so that the shot which started under such unfavorable auspices caused unconcealed delight as it drew into some position of vantage.

While the Toronto Curling Club succumbed this morning the Granites from the same city have a chance this afternoon to humble the local players. However, should they continue to display the form which was in evidence in the first session the games played this afternoon will be of no mediocre variety.

These are the results of the morning games

DAIRY IMPORTS FROM AUSTRALIA NEGLIGIBLE SAYS MOTHERWELL IN STATEMENT ON ALLEGED 'FLOOD'

270 Pounds of Cheese (Three Boxes) Under New Trade Treaty.

TUESDAY DEBATE.

Two Million Pounds of Butter Since Treaty in Force.

OTTAWA, Feb. 10. (Canadian Press).—In a sitting which closed at 6 p.m. yesterday, the House continued debate on the Conservative amendment to the address moved by Donald Sutherland of South Oxford. This is the amendment which holds that Canadian dairying is being subjected to unfair and unwarrantable competition by reason of recent trade agreements. Although not specifically mentioned, the Australian trade treaty is particularly in view.

The debate was continued by J. A. Macdonald, Conservative of King's, P.E.I. Mr. Macdonald objected to extensive expenditures on the Hudson Bay Railway while P.E.I. could not get $750,000 for its own railway.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, declared that despite all the "noise" about the Australian treaty, only 270 pounds of Australian cheese had "flooded" the Canadian market since the treaty came into effect. Of butter, about two million pounds had been imported. As Canada manufacttured about 275,000,000 pounds annually, what possible effect, questioned Mr. Motherwell, could the importation of so small a quantity have in Canada?

To this, Fred Davis, Conservative of Calgary, returned that dairy industries throughout Canada were sending persistent requests to the Minister of Agriculture for relief from the treaty.

How Many Amendments?

Hon. W. R. Motherwell said the country was beginning to wonder how many more amendments the Conservatives were going to move. The Government was eternally grateful to Mr. Meighen for the first one he moved when the session opened. The present amendment to the address moved by Mr. Sutherland was obstruction and nothing else.

Mr. Sutherland protested that it was not obstruction.

"Then I presume it was moved to facilitate the passing of the address." It it was not obstruction, it must be there to assist.

Mr. Motherwell said that despite all the "noise" made by Mr. Sutherland about the treaty with Australia, in the four months the

Bricklaying Peer Says Workers Should Aid Others

LONDON, Feb. 10 (United Press).—Declaring he had laid 1,000 bricks a day "with my own hands," Lord Deerhurst Earl Coventry's heir, told a Worcestershire gathering that the bricklayers ought to work harder when building workers' cottages.

"If they are going to build for a big man," he said, "let them charge what they like, but when it comes down to the laborer's cottage, damn it, they ought to put their hearts into it and help their fellow-workers and not to try to make it more expensive for them."

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE OPENS

Speech From Throne Contains No Surprises; No Mention of O.T.A.

Every Item Had Been Previously Announced and Most Important Part Has Reference To Power Development on Ottawa River.

PROVINCIAL FINANCES IMPROVED AND NO NEW TAXES ARE ARRANGED

Education To Receive Considerable Attention on Recommendation of Premier as Minister of Education — Boys To Be Brought From Britain For Farm Work.

TORONTO, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—In clear, bright winter weather, the third session of the sixteenth Legislature of Ontario was formally opened here this afternoon by His Honor Lieut.Governor H. Cockshutt.

The Speech from the Throne contained no surprises. Every item in it had been previously announced as being considered for legislation at this session. The Ontario Temperance Act is not mentioned, nor is there even any indirect reference to prohibition or temperance legislation past, present or future.

Probably the most important part of the Speech is the reference to power development on the Ottawa River.

The Speech forecasts no new taxes, but states that noteworthy progress has been made in the improvement of provincial finances.

Agriculture, education and public health receive considerable attention in forecasts of legislation which will not prove very contentious in the House. In immigration, special attention is to be given to the bringing out from Britain of boys for farm work.

The Speech from the Throne continued:

"In the interests of agriculture, plans are under consideration for stimulating immigration, mainly from the British Isles. Special efforts will be made to encourage the bringidg out of boys adaptable for farm work. Increased attention is being devoted to the marketing of our agricultural products. It is recognized that the maintenance of a high uniform quality is one of the main essentials. With this in view legislation will be introduced for the further improvement of our dairy products. The action of the Government in reducing the rate of interest on farm loans has proven of great advantage to borrowers.

"During recess, the agricultural inquiry committee continued its labors and embodied the result in a further report dealing with co-operation and national market. This report contains a number of important suggestions looking towards the more advantageous disposal of the principal farm products. These valuable contributions to information upon these subjects will be submitted to you for your consideration.

Township School Boards.

"Your attention will be directed again to the suggestion for the formation of township school boards, in the hope that public discussion of this subject may lead to the adoption of a means of reducing the cost of education to rural taxpayers. Systematic and thorough investigation has been instituted into the teaching of the English and French languages, and will be continued during the present school year. I am glad to observe that an opportunity to promote co-operation, where possible, with the Imperial authorities along education lines has been effected by an exchange of inspectors, which should lead to advantageous results.

"The development of power at Queenston having been carried to successful completion during the past year, other sources of supply are now being considered to meet the growing needs of the province. My ministers are pressing for recognition of the right of the province to proceed with the initial development of the St. Lawrence River.

Seek Arrangement.

"Meanwhile they are hopeful that amicable arrangement will be effected shortly with our sister province of Quebec, whereby matter of the Ottawa River along the interprovincial boundary will be rendered available for development.

"Arrangements now being completed will ensure extensive industrial developments in our northern districts. It has been considered wise in utilizing our forest resources to adopt approved methods of conservation in order that this great source of natural wealth may, as far as practicable, be perpetuated."

The speech referred to growing mineral output and to "the valuable work being accomplished by the Department of Health through co-operation with a number of national organizations for the promotion of better conditions in the Province."

Noteworthy progress has been made in the improvement of Provincial finances. With the advance already made, we are now within measurable distance of restoring the balance between ordinary revenue and expenditure. The question of the ultimate redemption of existing debt, together with the adoption of a definite policy toward the same and for future committments, is receiving the earnest attention of many Ministers.

"Among the measure which will be brought before you are bills: to improve the quality of dairy products; to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act; to amend the Land Tax Act; to amend the Minimum Wage Act, respecting the development of Northern and North-Western Ontario; to revise and consolidate the Election Act and the Voters' Lists Act, and for other purposes."

Likely Long Session.

Indications are that the session will be as long as that of last year, when the provincial parliament took ten weeks to get through its business. The Government has given no indications of major legislation, but the two Opposition parties are preparing for more vigorous fighting than in the previous two session of the present Parliament. It is admitted that this may project important measures into the proceeding of the House. The Progressives under the leadership of W. E. Raney, former Attorney-General, have held a caucus at which they discussed their tentative programme. The Liberals held a caucus immediately before the opening of the session, when they planned their course. W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, has been busy in the recess, speaking in various parts of the province. He has severely criticized the Government on its temperance policy, particularly with regard to 4.4 beer and he has also charged it with extravagance.

School Questions.

Premier Ferguson has several matters he will bring before the House as Minister of Education. One of these is township school boards. Last year the bill to create township school boards in the place of the present "school sections" went to second reading and was then withdrawn. The Premier will this year give the members an opportunity to express their views and

Many Seeking Passage Under Reduced Rates

LONDON, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—The revival of interest in emigration to Canada following the inauguration of the £3 rate of passage recently agreed upon between the British and Canadian Governments is specially marked at Liverpool, Manchester, Glasgow, Southampton, Cardiff and Belfast, according to representatives of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Services, who say that at these places there are long lists of applicants for steamship passage to Canada.

BELGIAN PREMIER FLED BEFORE ODIUM OF BRUSSELS FASCISTS AT PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATION

Former Soldiers Demand Resignation of Premier Poullet—Cheer King.

HONORED FLAGS.

Battle-Scarred Emblems of Disbanded Regiments Deposited.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press)—A Fascist attempt to convert a patriotic manifestation yesterday in honor of the battle scarred flags of the disbanded Belgian regiments into a demonstration against Premier Poullet, has left Brussels somewhat stunned.

The ceremony of depositing the flags at the army museum drew out a great crowd and Crown Prince Leopold on appearing was given an ovation, but the Premier was greeted with shouts of "Down with Poullet!" "Resign."

M. Poullet eventually left the museum by a rear door, but the crowds cheered the King and Crown Prince.

Apparently inspired by hyper-patriotic fervor, bands of young men literally tore the hats and caps off the heads of bystanders, whom they judged insufficiently quick in uncovering before the passage of the heroic standards.

Attack Red Flag

The Fascist fervor reached such heights that a trolley employe waving a red signal was taken for a Communist agitator and severely belabored by youthful enthusiasts.

The Fascists returning from the ceremony were led by the chief of the Fascist movement, Nothomb, before the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in the Place Du Congres, where he delivered a speech based on patriotism, but advised them not to pursue the manifestations further. The manifestants, including a large number of officers, responded to this by singing the national anthem twice, with heads bared, and then dispersed.

55 Tins Of Alleged Opium Seized At Vancouver Port

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Bessie McCumber, alias Mrs. Charles Marine was arrested and 55 tins of alleged opium valued at $3,850 were seized Tuesday by Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers.

The alleged opium was contained in a large trunk and is believed to have been landed from a trans-Pacific liner. The trunk was traced to a downtown hotel, and from there to a taxi-cab, which was delivering it to a private residence when the arrest and seizure was made.

ALDERMEN TO VISIT TORONTO TO DISCUSS NEW PROPOSITION FROM H.E.P.C. ON STREET CARS

Council Asked To Spend $20,000 on Repairs to Equipment.

FEELING HOSTILE.

Mayor Gave Opinion That Hydro Would Then Apply Pressure.

As many of the Aldermen as can will go to Toronto on Friday to hear the proposition of the H.E.P.C. about the street railway. This was the decision of the Committee of the Whole Council at a meeting last night.

Mayor Holloway said that the Commission wanted the city to provide $20,000 for improvements to the buildings and cars. He expressed the opinion that after the city had put its $20,000 into the system, the Commission would put pressure on the city to buy the system.

The Aldermen will go to Toronto and hear the proposal and return home to talk it over. Some of the Aldermen expressed the opinion that the system would be a poor buy. The Mayor said that the problem facing the city would then be that of losing the street car service or buying the system.

There was some discussion about paying the 20 per cent. held back on the Wilford contract because of a leak recently discovered in the pipe line. The matter will be taken up with the company which issued the maintenance bond.

A deputation will go to Ottawa to join in the protest against the increase in rates sought by the Bell Telephone Company.

BOARD DECIDES AMOUNT STANDS WITHOUT CHANGE

Cost of Education Cannot Be Reduced Below $223,600.

SPECIAL MEETING.

Members of Board Discussed Various Items of Expenditure.

At a special meeting of the Board of Education held last night for the purpose of reconsidering the 1926 estimates for the Public Schools and the Collegiate Institute, the Board decided that the amounts originally decided on were as low as possible and could not be reduced without impairing the efficiency of the schools. The secretary explained the different amounts and stated that those for salaries of teachers, officers, janitors, supervisor of repairs and insurance were actual expenses, and as such would have to be met. The amounts allotted for fuel, printing and stationery repairs and furniture, and expense account were stated to be based on past experience.

The following resolution, proposed by Dr. J. J. Craig, and seconded by J. A. McNabb, carried unanimously:

"That, pursuant to the Public Schools Act, Section 47, and the High Schools Act, Section 37, the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough be, and they are hereby requested, to pay the treasurer of the Board of Education in monthly instalments the money to be used for current expenses of the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute for the year 1926 as follows:

January 15th	$15,000.00
February 15th	18,000.00
March 1st	18,000.00
April 1st	18,000.00
May 1st	18,000.00
June 1st	18,000.00
July 1st	18,000.00
August 1st	15,000.00
September 1st	18,000.00
October 1st	22,000.00
November 1st	22,000.00
December 1st	23,600.00
	$223,600.00

"and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the City Council."

GYPSUM FOUND IN NEW ONTARIO

Mining Firms Ask Government To Extend T. and N. O. To Deposit.

NEAR MOOSE RIVER.

TORONTO, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—Valuable gypsum deposits have been discovered in Northern Ontario, 150 miles beyond Cochrane, towards James Bay, Premier Ferguson announced yesterday after noon. He stated that a large and important mining interest had approached the Government for assistance in working the deposit. The assistance sought is an extension of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway to the deposits which lie between the present end of steel and Moose River. Several firms have expressed willingness to guarantee the Government certain returns under contract if the railway extension is made. The gypsum is said to be of superior quality. The Government is taking the matter of railway extension under consideration.

THREE PEOPLE BURNED TO DEATH WHEN FIRE DESTROYS DWELLING AND STORE IN ELMVALE VILLAGE

Storekeeper, With Wife and Son, Die in Building—Other Stores Burned.

IN EARLY MORNING.

Entire Business Section of Village Was Threatened For a Time.

ELMVALE, Ont., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press). — Joseph MacWaters, Mrs. Joseph MacWaters, and their son, Lawrence MacWaters the latter aged 15, were burned to death this morning in a fire which destroyed their store and dwelling, together with three other buildings, and threatened for a time to wipe out a considerable portion of this village.

The fire was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pearson, who occupied the store and dwelling adjoining that of Mr. MacWaters. They were awakened about 3.30 a.m. by the noise of cracking flames and by smoke. They escaped in scanty apparel. The MacWaters' building was then a seething furnace and nothing was seen of the unfortunate inmates.

The Pearson store and dwelling was quickly destroyed by fire. Wilfred Burt's barber shop and James McDermott's insurance office followed. The progress of the fire was finally stopped by the brick walls of the Standard Bank on one side, and the Central Hotel on the other.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. MacWaters were found in the ruins.

Search for the body of the boy, Lawrence, is continuing.

Mr. and Mrs. McWaters are survived by another son, who is in business in Belleville.

Bathing Peaches.

The same amount, $300, was allowed for the salary of the caretakers at the bathing beaches.

The matter of accommodation at Inverlea Park was the cause of discussion. The estimates last year included $45 for a tent but Alderman Ackerman and Alderman MacDonald favored the inclusion of $450 to make a start for permanent buildings.

Alderman Hancock was opposed to this, but it was put in, being supported by Alderman Turner.

Insurance at $13.50 and light at $2.50 were passed on the bathing beaches. Repairs and incidentals will take $300.

Locker fees have been dwindling from year to year at the Lock street beach.

The total amount for the bathing beaches comes to $1366.

Lights in Victoria Park will require $20. Work on seats and fencing in the parks is estimated at $100. Care of the parks is estimated at $900, curbing, grading and seeding at $20.

The estimates will contain $1250 for this park.

HANGMAN AGAINST JAIL EXECUTIONS

Use Penitentiaries, Advice of Arthur Ellis.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press) — All executions in Canada should be carried out behind the walls of the penitentiaries and away from the gaze of the morbid curious, Arthur Ellis, official hangman, declared after he had sprung the trap which sent John Stanton and Steve Nazar, convicted murderers, to their doom here yesterday.

"I do not believe in sentences of capital punishment being carried out in the provincial jails. The penitentiaries are the proper places for such things, and they should be so utilized," he said.

No matter how atrocious the crime, sentiment is generally aroused in favor of the convicted man, while execution, Mr. Ellis asserted, had a revolting effect on the populace.

"With executions held in the district penitentiaries, sentiment would die down between the date of the sentence and the hanging. There would be no excitement; there would be no gathering of the curious. That would be far better than the present system. I speak from experience," he concluded, grimly.

CAR OWNERS TO COME TO COURT

Have Failed To Obtain 1926 Licenses—Cars Block Street.

WHEN DANCE IS HELD.

Chief of Police Samuel Newhall, in conversation with The Examiner this morning stated that many owners of motor vehicles would be summoned to appear in court as a result of their failure to provide their autos with the new 1926 license plates. Several numbers had been taken yesterday, he said, and immediate action would follow.

Murray Street Blocked

Continuing the Chief said that on the occasion of a recent dance in the Great War Veterans' Hall, Murray Street became congested with the number of autos which dance patrons left parked in front of the building. Private vehicles, he said, were lined there two deep and in such a manner that the licensed taxi drivers were forced to drive along sidewalk to deliver their fares. Residents and others who wished to make use of the street were put to considerable inconvenience in consequence. In addition to that, the Chief said, if the fire department had received a call at that time and the trucks were obliged to pass long Murray Street, much damage and possibly loss of life would have been the direct result.

Chief Newhall stated that at the next dance held there, steps would be taken to see that cars were parked in accordance with law and that the numbers of any autos wrongly parked would be taken. An appearance of the owner of such vehicle before the magistrate would follow, he declared.

STRING ORCHESTRA CONCERT ENJOYED

Careful Training and Musical Ability Shown By Members.

Under the excellent direction of F. G. Mann, A.Mus., organist for St. John's Church, the Peterborough String Orchestra made its initial appearance under that name in St. John's Parish Hall last night. The selections were well chosen, and the instruments arranged in such a way as to give the greatest tone value. While many of the artists are quite young, they have nevertheless gained commendable mastery of their instruments, and the fact of their youth augurs well for the future development of a splendid musical aggregation.

The soloists were well chosen and displayed fine execution of several difficult parts. The trio work was much enjoyed, a splendid variety being offered, which carried an appeal to all members of the audience. Considerable feeling was evidenced in the ensembles, the members of the orchestra being particularly susceptible to direction, which tended to give full value to the emotional stresses in the various numbers.

The stage was arranged to represent a drawing-room, and was decorated with ferns, potted blooms, and softly shaded lights. To the Church Women's Association is due the credit for the splendid stage effect.

Four solo numbers were presented. Robert Wyllie gave a capable rendition of Beethoven's "Menuet." Miss C. Taylor played "Menuet in G," by Beethoven. Ganne's "La Czarine" was presented effectively by William Gaskin, and Miss D. Fine exhibited wonderful control and poise in her interpretation of De Beriot's "Sixth Air Varie."

The trio, composed of Mrs. M. B. Hoyland (violin), R. Farthing ('cello), and F. G. Mann (piano), played the following numbers: "Traumerei" (Shuman), "Gondoliera" (Abt), "Rosaline" (Rubner), "Ballet From Sylvia" (Delibes), "Angel's Serenade" (Braga), "Deh non Voler Constringere" (Donizetti), and Gavotte Louis XIII.

Selections by the entire orchestra were: "Maritana" (Wallace), "Iolanthe" (Sullivan), "Stradella" (Flotow), "Chimes of Normandy" (Planquette), an overture, "Calif of Bagdad" (Boieldieu), and Verdi's "Il Trovatore."

Peterborough Exhibition wants you as a member!

ONE MAN'S OPINION

CHARLES H. ACKERMAN.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition as a local institution has arrived.

The diversified attractions have, in my opinion, made it.

Not all of the patrons by any means are agriculturists; many, if not one-half, of the supporters are citizens of Peterborough who are employed in the factories and whose thoughts do not usually run towards farm life.

But once a year they are brought unconsciously face to face with agriculture: cows, hens, tall corn, big pumpkins and everything, and the wonder and mystery of that industry — agriculture — is brought home to them and to their growing families, and it does them no harm.

Roland Denne has done much towards building this institution to its present magnitude.

Attendance, and more attendance with their "Two-Bits" plus admission fee, is going to enable Rollie and his workers to provide each year something even better, more interesting and instructive than before.

BELMONT U.F.W.O. REGULAR MEETING

Plans Made for Oyster Supper at Next Meeting.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 10 — The regular meeting of the Belmont U.F.W.O. Club, No. 1561a, was held at the home of Mrs. J. McMillan, on Thursday evening with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by singing "The Maple Leaf Forever," and "Feeding the National," after which the roll was called.

The sum of $10.20 was realized from the sale of tickets at 10c each for drawing on a quilt, Mr. R. Barrie being the winner.

It was decided that $5 of the quilt money be sent to the Sick Childrens Hospital, Toronto, and $2 to Mrs. McMillan toward expenses of convention, also quilt lining and batting.

The club agreed to do some neighborly assistance and a vote was unanimously passed that the club hold an oyster supper at the next meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith on the first Thursday in March, when a silver collection will be taken up. After the business of the evening was disposed of a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

A large number of the members of the Sentinel Lodge, L.O.B.A., of Petherick's Corners, attended the regular meeting of the McGill L.O.B.A., No.471, on Friday evening, for the purpose of receiving the second degree.

The degree work was put on by Mrs. S. McGill, Worthy Mistress of the local lodge, in a very efficient manner. At the close of the ceremony a social hour was spent. Vocal solos, which were much appreciated were rendered by Sisters L. Jackson and M. McGill.

OLD-TIME SOCIAL

Downeyville Ladies Held Pleasant Gathering in Parish Hall.

DOWNEYVILLE, Feb. 10.—A very successful old-time social was held here in Parish Hall Friday evening, under the auspices of the Catholic Woman's League. Cards were played at some thirty tables. Miss Gertrude O'Neill, of King's Wharf, received the ladies' prize, while Mr. Thos. Lucas won the gentleman's. Both received fountain pens. After the cards a dainty lunch was served by the ladies. Hooper's four-piece orchestra from Lindsay furnished excellent music for the dancing for a few hours.

A number of pretty costumes were worn by the ladies and gentlemen. Miss Agnes Murray won the prize for her costume, having all the requisites of olden times, with a large hoop skirt and powdered wig. Mr. Clare Harrington won the gentleman's prize in an Eighteenth Century suit with high ruffled neckpiece, waist coat, buckled shoes and wig. The gentleman's prize was a fountain pen and the ladies' prize a parasol.

Rev. Father McAuley, of Ennismore, was a visitor for the occasion. The Catholic Woman's League is being congratulated on the success of their entertainment.

Miss Loretto Harrington began her duties as organist of St. Luke's church here. Miss Harrington succeeded Mrs. Walter Herlihey (nee Carmena Morrissey), who was married a few weeks ago.

THE MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN.

The clear-cut explanation made by Mr. W. F. Turner, one of the Directors, as to the financial and amusement side of Peterboro's Industrial Exhibition should do much to increase enthusiasm for the Exhibition and to swell the list of new members.

Mr. Turner has made a close study of other exhibitions, and in his communication to the Examiner was able to justify the local Exhibition in its scale of admission charges and concession rates.

There have been many suggestions that the admission fee should be dropped from 35c to 25c.

As a matter of fact, patrons of the Exhibition have the privilege, Mr. Turner points out, of buying four advance sale tickets for $1.00 if they choose to do so, and it is, of course, self-evident that the extra 10 cents paid by those who do not buy their tickets in advance is a very material help toward meeting the heavy costs of the Exhibition.

Mr. Turner's letter brings the whole subject thoroughly before the people, and should result in many applications for membership in the campaign for 1,500 members that is now under way.

If you have not already joined, the Examiner advises you to read Mr. Turner's communication again—it appeared in Tuesday's issue.

SAFETY FIRST.

No stronger argument in favour of the plan suggested by ex-Ald. Crowe that all motor cars entering upon streets upon which there is a large amount of traffic should come to a full stop could be found than the action of one of Toronto's largest taxi cab companies in voluntarily adopting the system and ordering all its drivers to carry it out on all occasions.

Toronto has so far not seen fit to pass a regulation making the full-stop plan compulsory, so that the decision of the taxi company to put the system into force on its own account is the more notable.

It is clear proof that the effectiveness of the plan in making driving conditions safe is recognized, and it is equally clear that the restriction does not cause the annoyance to drivers that many motorists claim would be occasioned by such a regulation.

If the practice of coming to a full stop was any serious handicap to motorists it is not likely that a company operating a huge fleet of cars, in the operation of which time is a factor, would saddle itself with such an annoyance when there is no pressure upon it to do so.

In cities where the method has been enforced for some time its effectiveness is recognized, and many drivers who looked upon the passing of the regulation with misgivings are warm in their praise after having seen the plan in operation.

EXEMPTING AMATEUR SPORT.

The action of the Manitoba Government in increasing the tax on pari-mutuel betting and at the same time exempting amateur sport from the amusement tax levy, will strike most people as in the right direction, and it is hoped that the Ontario Government will not fail to notice what is being done in the Western Province.

It has always seemed to the Examiner a mistake to levy an amusement tax upon amateur sports, and to keep a small army of inspectors busy checking up on the returns from hundreds of baseball, football and hockey games, the gate receipts from which in many cases amounted to only a few dollars.

Chasing after the secretaries of rural football clubs for the dollar or two that would represent the Government's share of the receipts is a practice the utility of which might well be questioned.

In some lines of sport the big city clubs may attract enough patronage to make the amusement tax revenue from this source of some importance, but the levy when applied to the small village and small town clubs is only an annoyance and not a revenue producer.

The Manitoba plan of increasing the betting tax to make up for the loss of revenue caused by exempting amateur sport from the amusement tax might well be adopted in this Province.

PETERBORO'S FINE ORCHESTRA.

The second concert in the series arranged by the Peterboro Symphony Orchestra, which is to be held in the Conservatory Hall tonight, affords an opportunity of not only hearing this splendid orchestra at its best, but also of affording some very much needed assistance to the organization.

The people of Peterboro, the Examiner feels sure, are anxious to keep the Symphony Orchestra in existence, but it cannot be maintained without financial help.

Orchestras, like nearly everything else, require a certain amount of money.

They cannot be kept alive without revenue, and for that reason the concert tonight should be well patronized.

Under Mr. Gliddon's direction, the Symphony Orchestra has made steady progress, and no small city in Canada has anything finer to offer.

It would be a pity indeed were the result of this fine work on the part of the conductor and the sacrifice of time and the painstaking attention of the members of the orchestra to go for nothing because of inability to finance the organization.

Peterboro cannot afford to lose its Symphony Orchestra, because the abandonment of the present organization would be a staggering blow to the advancement of music in this city.

Tonight's attendance should be a convincing demonstration that Peterboro's music-lovers are solidly lined up behind the orchestra.

WOMEN'S FANCIES.

In the course of some praiseworthy felicitations on its hundredth anniversary, one of the big metropolitan stores is philosophizing instructively about the growth of merchandising in the last century, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The enormous increase of buying and selling which are now institutionalized in great buildings which are more like palaces than stores, is usually regarded merely as something that has happened without any effort to explain why it has happened.

As a matter of fact, the growth of manufacturing and retailing are deserving of some more biographic or biologic notice than they have received from those scientists and philosophers whose business it is to look into grindstones. Such terms as quantity production and volume sales have acquired an immense vogue without any one taking the trouble to inquire why people want so much more than people wanted in the old times and how it is that they can afford to buy things so steadily and in such increasing quantities.

The metropolitan store attributes the great increase of buying, calling for an ever-increasing manufacture of goods, to "women's fancies." It further explains that where in former times the women bought what the merchant had, now they demand what they want, and it is up to the merchant to get it. In other words, this merchandising expert says that the enormous mercantile structure is built upon the most imponderable thing in the world, the fancy that turns up butterfly-like in a woman's head.

But for the real philosopher, of course, the main task is to explain what produces a woman's fancies. Why does the woman of today want and demand so many things that her grandmother never thought of? And how is it that she is able to afford such a continually expanding budget? The mere fact that prosperity has increased so rapidly within a hundred years and that the tastes of the people have changed and their wants multiplied gives no clue to the whys and wherefores of these momentous changes. To know just why the old store has been suddenly transfigured into the merchandising palaces that are rising everywhere along city thoroughfares would be to know one of the great secrets of human progress.

"ELECTRIFYING" GREAT BRITAIN.

Her industrial supremacy challenged by the gradual passing of the age of steam, Great Britain is preparing to embark upon the production on a gigantic scale of electrical power for distribution at a standard frequency throughout the country.

The scheme, as outlined by Premier Baldwin in a recent statement to the House of Commons, provides efficient means where by Great Britain can still retain the economic advantages resulting from her vast resources in coal, the chief foundation of her industrial prosperity ever since the discovery of the power of steam. For coal will be the basis of the production of the electrical energy which is expected to transform most of the country's basic industries in the next 15 years, with resulting increase in employment, greater production, and maintenance of the industrial leadership Great Britain has enjoyed for more than a century.

Electrical energy has been produced from coal in fairly large quantities for many years there, though the output per capita is very much below that of countries possessing and developing extensive water powers. A committee appointed, together with the Ministry fo Transport and the Electricity Commissioners, to examine the present position, reported that there were 582 public utility generating stations in Great Britain, but last year 42 of these stations were responsible for more than half of the total output. A startling difference in the cost of generation between the large efficient stations and the small local ones was also discovered. The working cost per unit varied from .44 of a penny to 10d. and 11d., and the amount of coal used to generate one unit varied from 1.8 lb t 10 lbs. and over. Fifteen different frequencies were found to be in use, none of which could be interconnected. The Baldwin Government proposes to establish a central board which will reduce the present 584 stations to 60 by closing the small and inefficient stations, or by using them only as distributing stations. The new board will then link up these stations with main transmission lines, and standardization of frequency, at an estimated cost of £10,000,000, will be carried out at the expense of the board. Nevertheless, the scheme will not be one of public ownership, generating and distributing companies still being required to raise their own capital, although they will work on the principle of limitation of profits.

The announcement of the proposal has been very favorably received in Great Britain, where it is felt to be not a question of politics or party, but of arriving at the best means of utilizing in the national interest the advantages which the country possesses, by mass production, standardization and mass supply. The electrical manufacturers are said to welcome the proposals not only for themselves and the 200,000 workpeople already employed in the industry, but for the greater labor force of skilled men which the new proposals will enlist in the industry.

Incidentally, such cities as Edinburgh, which for generations has borne the nickname of "Auld Reekie," will undergo a transformation owing to the diminution of the smoke nuisance. But more important is the fact that Great Britain will be enabled to compete on more favorable terms than at present with the great manufacturing countries of Europe, and also with America.

For a race which, ever since the days of the Spanish Armada, has, at regular intervals, been declared to be decadent, Britishers show an uncanny aptitude for getting at the root of their problems, and not only manage to survive, but keep just a lap or two in advance in the world race of commerce and industry.—London Advertiser.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

HAPPINESS DEFINED.

While taking a trip through New England recently I saw this sign: "Happiness is a State of Mind."

This is not a true definition. Happiness is the state of being happy.

I will admit that the mind has a lot to do with happiness, but let a man have a hipe carbuncle on the back of his neck and his "state of mind" will change from beatitudes to boils.

So you see a "state of mind" can be changed by a sour stomach or by a soft corn under the big toe.

And this leads me to say: When you feel that everybody else is cranky and all of your associates are disagreeable, check over your physical condition and I'll bet two expired pawn tickets against a barrel of sour apples that the trouble is not so much with others as with you.

The disadvantage of being disagreeable is that you start others fighting and no man can continue to be happy while fighting.

I would say: Happiness is a State of Health, and no man can be happy or healthy while fighting.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

WANTS BUS SERVICE.

To Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Why does not the new bus line make some provision for this locality? We pay high taxes, high light and water rates, and we sure are weary, weary from the long daily walk.

A belt line from Jackson Park down Smith to Reid, then out Reid to Normal School and down town would more than tickle our ribs.

NORTH-ENDER.

The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear sir:

Your efforts to boost the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are well worthy of support, not only because of the benefit of having the fair held in Peterboro', but for the great worth of the show to farmers. Here is the logical meeting place for city and country.

I do not believe that "Old Exhibitor's" plan would work out, since there is no doubt that the majority of people are attracted by the swings and sideshows. To do away with them would be to kill the fair—bf that there is no question, to my mind.

As for the gambling, so-called, it is like the liquor question and smoking, and petting—there is room for a difference of opinion and it does not show the greatest intelligence to become fanatical.

And taking for granted "Old Exhibitor" is correct in all his wildest statements, this is RIGHT OR WRONG, OUR EXHIBITION.

Yours truly,
A. JOHNSTON.

WANTS REFORM.

To Editor of Examiner:

Regarding the Peterboro Exhibition, there is no doubt that nearly all residents of this city and surrounding country desire to see a successful Exhibition, ministering to the educational and social welfare of the producer, manufacturer and consumer.

I am sure those of us who are parents will agree that there should be entertainment for the young folks, and we do not object to a supply of mere fun or even harmless nonsense, but what we do most emphatically object to, is that this Exhibition should be made a protected area for the gambler and an educational centre for youthful depravity.

"Old Exhibitor" does this community a good service when he hits this thing hard. The Examiner states that it has exploded his criticism, but it only heard the sound of its own back-fire.

When our children come home from this Fair showing with glee the things they have won by gambling it makes one consider whether this thing is a blessing or a curse to the community.

If they always lost, it would not be so bad, but they are allowed to win enough for bait purposes. They spend all their own money and borrow from their more prudent fellows, and the only argument for this state of educational depravity is the necessary dollar, no matter how we get it.

There is an old warning about putting temptation in the path of the young with a millstone suggestion to it that it would be well for our Fair Directors to read before preparing next year's programme.

"Old Exhibitor" points out that things coarse, vulgar and depraving are not the things that make an exhibition a success.

This is an opportune time for our Directors to do some necessary house-cleaning, and for our children's sake, we hope they will make the Peterboro Exhibition a place of wholesome, educational, social and community enjoyment, and we think a membership campaign with such purpose in view would meet with cordial support.

A. B. CUNNINGHAM.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Please publish the following:

Writing on "Science and Religion" in the February issue of Harper's Magazine, Rev. Dr. H. E. Fosdick has the following to say regarding fundamentalism:

As for the issues now popularly upsetting the equilibrium of the churches in America, let fundamentalism look to itself. It is not fighting evolution with facts, which alone can be effective instruments in such a war. No one who knows the facts is against evolution. It is fighting evolution with authoritative dicta from an inerrant Book and with a horrified sense of outraged sanctity about the disturbance of an outgrown way of thinking. That sort of procedure never yet did anything but harm to religion. Meanwhile, increasing multitudes of devout Christians rejoice in the larger thought of God and the stronger faith in Him which evolution has brought.

With his wonted facility in the bandying of words and verbal conjurings, Dr. Fosdick obscures the issue that is at present dividing the Churches, not of America alone, but of the entire Christian world. Fundamentalists are not, as he would endeavor to make out, opposing facts of evolution, but protesting against unproved hypotheses, either of evolution or any other science setting itself up against the plain, authoritative statement of Word of God. The statement that "no one who knows the facts is against evolution" is simply not true, and is merely another instance of that intellectual snobbishness, that we-are-the-people attitude of mind, that is part and parcel of so much of the modernistic writing of today. The question at issue is the choice between accepting as true what at least professes to be God's Word, or of believing what the science of today says is truth, even when it flatly contradicts that Word. The modernist says, "Let science be true," while the fundamentalist declares, "Let God be true," even should it be necessary to make every man a liar.

TRUTH V ERROR.

Dear Editor,—

Having often thought of taking the opportunity, with your permission, of pointing out the Truth to some in Error. I would ask space for this reply to a statement made by the writer of "Truth versus Error." (It was to the effect that there is no eternal punishment.) Sometimes one would ask, is the writer defending "Truth" or "Error."

If I understand right, he belongs to the body known as Bible Students, professing to study God's word. Now we know that a student must follow the book he studies. That is, if one studies Euclid, one must affirm that the "straight line" is the shortest distance between two points. One who says that it is the longest distance between two points would be a poor student. Let us apply this to Bible study. In the ninth Psalm, we read: "The wicked shall be turned into hell." It is wonderful how God introduces the doom of hell. First He passes condemnation on man. ("The Lord is known by the judgement He executeth.") At this boom of Higgaion, a solemn sound is heard—Selah! (Think on these things). And while we solemnly listen to the deep Higgaion, the judge proclaims, "The wicked shall be turned into hell"—Solemn sound indeed!

The fact that man is himself responsible for going to a lost eternity is emphasized in this "They are sunk down in the pit that they themselves have made."

The Lord Jesus said, as recorded by John, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life." If he is the embodiment of truth, how can we deny His words? He spoke of the rich man lifting up his eyes in hell. In Matthew 10:28, He said, "Fear him that hath power to destroy body and soul in hell fire."

Yet a so-called Bible Student will suggest that there is no hell, or eternal punishing of the lost. In Revelation 20:3' we read the devil was "Cast into the bottomless pit." This tells us that the devil is not in hell, as a great many affirm. The adversary of God and man is today going about as a roaring lion or an angel of light. Otherwise as an infidel roaring his wrath, defying God, or a man deceiving others by "handling deceitfully the Word of God."

The devil knows his final doom is the lake of fire seen in Revelation 20:10, and he desires that men might go with him. For this purpose he is deceiving them today. As God of this world, he is blinding their minds lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ should shine in unto them, and they be saved. How good is the loving God, who has warned us of the devil's certain doom, and of the danger men are in who follow in his wake. Like Bunyan of old we cry "Flee from the wrath to come." God warns us "Beware, lest He take thee away with His stroke, then the great ransom cannot deliver thee." We read in Romans 5:8, "While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." He bore the wrath of God for us, and said "He that heareth my word and believeth on Him that sent me, hath ever-lasting life; and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death into life." This shows us that there is danger of condemnation. Let every man take warning, and flee to Christ for salvation. This is the only Truth revealed by God for the saving of the soul. All other ways are steeped in Error, as God says. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof, are the ways of death."

No longer choose the Error of man, reader, choose the Truth of God.

Thanking you for your anticipated kind attention, I remain,

CHRISTIAN.

PRAIRIE CENSUS BEGINS IN JUNE

Population of Three Provinces to be Counted This Year.

EVERY FIVE YEARS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press)—A new census of the population and agriculture of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, has been authorized by order-in-council. The actual work of taking the census by the enumerators will begin on June 1 next.

In the meantime, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics is taking the necessary preliminary steps in the matter. The time which will be consumed by the enumerators in making the proposed census is approximated at ten days.

The last census of the three prairie provinces was taken in 1921, when the census for the whole of Canada was prepared. While these statistics for the Dominion are gathered every ten years, the census for Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta is taken every five years, under the Federal Acts constituting these provinces.

At the time of the taking of the last census in 1921, the population of Manitoba was 610,118, and that of Saskatchewan 757,510; while Alberta had 588,454 people.

GIRLS HYSTERICAL IN MONTREAL BLAZE

Forty Led From Loft Factory By Constable.

Montreal, Feb. 10.—Fire which broke out in the premises of Miller Bros., cloak and dress manufacturers shortly after noon Tuesday, menaced the centre of downtown Montreal. The greater part of the city's fire apparatus was called to fight the blaze, which had gained a good start before being discovered.

The damage was estimated at $100,000.

Forty girl employees, many of whom were on the verge of hysteria, were led from the Miller premises by Traffic Constable Bourgeois, who discovered the fire.

The flames were discovered on the third floor of the building, which is a four-storey affair and soon the upper part was a mass of flames.

The employees of the Woolworth Company, occupying the ground floor, were forced from their counters by the dense clouds of smoke that poured down from the upper storeys.

Constable Bourgeois dashed up the stairs where he found smoke and flames and about 40 girls, employees of Miller Brothers, huddled in a corner, too frightened to move. The constable hurriedly marshalled the girls into line and stood by the doorway, which was rapidly filling with smoke and flames, and saw that all reached safety. Nearly all walked out in orderly fashion, although several were disposed to hysterics.

Firemen brought the blaze under control after an hour's work.

EVERY DOLLAR ACCOUNTED FOR

Governor of Illinois Says Interest Paid Into State Treasury.

'OUSTER' ACTION.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 10. — (Canadian Press).—Ouster proceedings directed against Governor Len Small, whose plea for a re-hearing in the civil suit against him was denied by the Supreme Court Tuesday, were adjudged by authorities last night as premature, although the action was deemed a possibility for the near future.

The State Supreme Court affirmed a previous decision, which says the Governor must account for about $1,100,000. The money is described as interest on state funds loaned while he was the State Treasurer.

Determination of the exact amount due, said to approximate $1,250,000, is the next step in legal proceedings. The case automatically goes back to the court of origin, the Sangamon County Court, where the master in chancery will hold the necessary hearings.

Governor Small issued a statement through his lawyers, denying that he had withheld any money due the State.

"I have hertofore assured the people of the State," he said, "and I now repeat that I have already accounted for and paid over into the State Treasury every dollar of interest received by me during my term as State Treasurer."

HARD TIMES PARTY.

APSLEY, Feb. 10.—A hard times party was held in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening at which guests were supposed to appear in costumes representing hard times. The majority certainly bore out the character. The prizes for the best went to Miss Cicely Spence and Roland Tucker, Mrs. Smith and Roy Brown being the judges. The party broke up at midnight after a very pleasant dance. The next social and last until after Easter will be held on Friday evening and will take the form of a Valentine social, and production of a play, entitled "Brown-Eyed Betty."

POLICE ROUTED PROTEST MARCH IN MINE STRIKE

Demonstration Against Hydraulic Production of Coal at Scranton.

500 IN PARADE.

Strikers in Ugly Mood Dispersed By Armed Police Squad.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—First open hostilities of the five-month-old coal strike occurred Tuesday when 500 striking miners marched on two washeries here in a demonstration against hydraulic production of coal which their leader asserted was "taking the bread out of their mouths." They were dispersed by twenty-five policemen armed with sawed-off shotguns. None was injured.

The police detained three men who identified themselves as leaders of the demonstration, but subsequently released them with warnings. At the same time Chief of Police Rose announced the establishment of a "riot squad" at police headquarters sufficient to cope with any emergency that might arise in the future. He also sent for some tear gas.

The march was the climax to complaints by miners against the growing washer coal production in this area, which has placed them in an ugly mood. Operators last night indicated the washer production would continue.

ALBERTA'S LIQUOR MONEY TO OTTAWA

Sum of $2,128,000 Paid To Federal Treasury.

EDMONTON, Alta., Feb. 10. — (Canadian Press).—More money spent on liquor in Alberta last year went to Ottawa than remained for Alberta's own treasury, according to the report of the Liquor Board now submitted to the Government.

Over $2,128,000 was paid to the Dominion Government in 1925, representing Customs and Excise duties on liquor and spirits, taxes on beer, excise on malt, and sales taxes on the various products sold. No reduction in the duty charged by the Dominion Government was made during the year, and there is little prospect, says the report, of any material lowering of present retail prices until such reduction is given effect.

FIFTY ARRESTED BY ITALIANS IN BAVARIAN PLOT

Arms and Ammunition Seized in Former Austrian Territory.

SUSPECT REVOLT.

Fascisti Believe Other Military Stores Hidden in Trentino.

VERONA, Italy, Feb. 10. (Canadian Press).—Fifty persons have been arrested and large quantities of arms and ammunition have been seized by Fascist militiamen and carabiniers in series of raids carried out over a period of three days in the region of Laverone in the former Austrian territory of Trentino, where the authorities suspected the existence of a plot fomented by Bavarians for an armed rebellion against Italian sovereignty.

The arms include 150 revolvers, rifles, sabres and bayonets, and one machine gun. The search is being continued, as the authorities believe this is only a small part of the munitions hidden away in various localities difficult of access.

Reports received here say that one of those arrested was frequently visited by persons coming from Munich, Bavaria, entrusted with the task of carrying on revolutionary propaganda.

BIRTH CONTROL BILL EXCLUDED

Policy of Despair Says Labor Member in British House.

VOTE 167 TO 81.

LONDON, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press Cable).—The House of Commons by a vote of 167 to 81 yesterday, refused E. Thurtle, Labor member for Shoreditch, leave to introduce a bill authorizing the local authorities to incur expenditures in conveying knowledge of birth control methods to married women.

Thurtle quoted figures showing that there was a continual falling off in the birth rate among the upper and middle classes, but that the birth classes, but that the birth rate was stationary among the poor. He showed that in the rich Westminster area the birth rate is 11.2 per 1,000, whereas in Shoreditch, which is one of the poorest and most crowded of the London district, it is 25 per 1 000.

He said he did not believe that birth control was the root cure for poverty, but it the working classes exercised wise restraint upoh the size of their families, it would have an ameliorative effect on their conditions.

Rev. J. Barr, Labor member for Motherwell, opposed the proposed bill. He said he believed birth control was economically a policy of despair.

STILLMAN SILENT ON FUTURE PLANS

Banker and Wife Happy on Liner—Avoid Passengers.

BUFFETED BY STORM.

Aboard S.S. Olympic, Feb. 9. — Heavy seas Monday took some of the joy out of the "second honeymoon" of James A. Stillman, former New York banker, and Mrs. Anne U. Stillman bound for Paris after dropping their marital litigation.

But the huge breakers buffeting the ship furnished some recompense to the couple, for they kept other passengers in their staterooms and shielded the Stillmans from the curious. The liner's passengers were now quite aware that the retiring couple they had glimpsed a few times since Saturday morning were the Stillmans, for the shi's newspaper had let the secret out quite thoroughly.

The two have decided to retire behind a Chinese wall of secrecy as to their plans, and Stillman is shielding his wife from interviews.

Stillman, who describes himself as 'Mrs. Stillman's spokesman," continues to decline to confirm or deny that they are reconciled or that they are going to Paris to arrange a quick and easy divorce minus the publicity which has shone fiercely on their marital differences in America for several years. Mrs. Stillman thoroughly acquiesces in her husband's programme of discouraging intimate publicity.

But he scarcely needs to confirm that there is a reconciliation. Every act of himself and wife points clearly to a new-found happiness and an earnest effort to forget a past crammed with unproven charges against Mrs. Stillman and dark answering claims against him.

Sunday night the Stillmans dined together in the restaurant, avoiding the general dining room. Stillman was attired in tuxedo and his Titian-haired wife was sparkling in a champagne-colored gown.

To the few observers in the restaurant, they appeared extremely happy as they laughed and chatted.

After linner they retired to his stateroom and held an extensive conference. Mrs. Stillman has moved into the Louis XVI. suite which her husband obtained after dropping his incognito of "Ben Smith." Mrs. Stillman, too, is no longer "Miss Fuller," the mysterious passenger who embarked at New York Friday night.

ue to McCormick.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9. — Fowler McCormick, son of Harold F. McCormick, Chicago financier, is pictured in The New York American today as having brought about the "psychological changes" in the lives of James A. Stillman and his wife, Mrs. Anne U. Stillman, which led to their reunion and their present "second honeymoon" aboard the steamship Olympic.

To Fowler, whom Mrs. Stillman told the newspaper was the "man who taught me how to fight," the former Fifi Potter has given credit for effecting the change in her mental attitude that made recoucilation with her husband possible after their years of bitter court fights.

POLICE TO GUARD CUSTOMS BUILDING

Employees at Montreal To Have Passes.

MONTREAL, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press)—In future all persons entering the Customs building, McGill street, will be obliged to pass the examination of a Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer, who will be stationed at the doorway. Announcement to this effect was made Tuesday by W. S. Weldon, collector of customs, following notification from Ottawa.

This is the first time that the collector could recall when federal police were ordered to guard the local building. He said that strangers entering and leaving the building would come under the surveillance of the officers and that employees would likely be furnished with passes. This is the proceedure which is adhered to at the Federal buildings in Ottawa, where a large force of constables are kept on duty.

It is likely that the constables' uniforms when on duty, will be similar to that used at Ottawa, serge, yellow-striped trousers, and helmets.

CHURCH OPPOSED TO PROHIBITION

Cardinal O'Connell Announces Position of Roman Catholics.

FOR TEMPERANCE.

BOSTON, Feb. 9 (Canadian Press) — The Catholic Church, through Cardinal O'Connell, its ranking prelate in the United States yesterday announced for the first time its opposition to compulsory prohibition. The official view of the church on the question of prohibition was given out by the Cardinal at the diocesan house here in the form of a long statement. The Cardinal made it clear that the Catholic Church does not need persuasion to fight against intemperance. He emphasizes that "compulsory prohibition in general is flatly opposed to Holy Scripture and to Catholic tradition." Ale, wine and their like, the Cardinal holds, are not in themselves evil. He claims that they have their lawful uses.

"85 years of age, yet full of energy"—writes one of the hundreds of Wincarnis users who have told us of the wonderful benefits they have derived from Wincarnis. This sturdy old man attributes his present health to the regular daily use of Wincarnis for the last five years.

Before that time he found himself tiring quickly, having sleepless, restless nights, and frequent spells of mental depression—the results of a run-down condition.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run-down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients, and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia, sleeplessness and the general debility that accompanies a run-down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

SOFT ANSWER BY STRESEMANN TO WRATH OF FASCIST LEADER

No Oratorical Fireworks By German Foreign Minister in Reichstag.

HOPE IN LEAGUE.

BERLIN, Feb. 10. — (Canadian Press).—Those who expected oratorical fireworks, violent outbursts and patriotic demonstrations during the Italo-German debate in the Reichstag Tuesday were disappointed, for Gustav Stresemann, the Foreign Minister, spoke mildly, though firmly, and the members of the House, with the exception of the Nationalists and Communists, carried themselves with reserve.

Dr. Stresemann, who is most effective when speaking extemporaneously, read a carefully worded speech in a voice that was heard with difficulty. The absence of most of the members of the Cabinet, including Dr. Luther, the Chancellor, from the Ministerial benches, seemed like a pre-arrangement, while there were many empty seats in the body of the House.

Joer Mention of League.

Except for an occasional "hear, hear," when Dr. Stresemann cited the South Tyrolean wrongs and decried Mussolini's belittling of things German, he stirred his audience effectively only when he declared that the Italian Premier's threats were incompatible with the spirit of the League of Nations. The Nationalists and Communists at this point broke into disdainful and ironical hilarity, which nettled the Foreign Minister.

While scouting Mussolini's threats and stigmatizing his speech as fit for the vulgarity of mass meetings, filled with arrogance, contradictions and immoderate language, Dr. Stresemann was careful to make it plain that Germany desires continuance of friendly relations with Italy. He asserted that Germany accepts the Brenner frontier as stipulated by the peace treaty, and considered possible revision of this as Austria's, not Germany's, problem. He also declared that the German and Italian peoples have no quarrel.

Hope From League.

By a careful marshalling of the historical sequence of events since the Great War, the Minister sought to show that Mussolini's course was at variance with his own previous utterances, as well as the royal promises to South Tyrol. Recognizing the futility of any action, save a protest, under Germany's weak condition, Dr. Stresemann laid emphasis on the hope for a remedy once Germany is a member of the League of Nations, to which speeches such as the Italian Premier's can be automatically taken.

The Foreign Minister admitted that false items of news concerning Tyrol appeared in the German press and that private persons in Munich had urged a boycott of Italian goods which had provoked Mussolini to threaten retaliation.

DAIRY IMPORTS

treaty had been in force, only 270 pounds of cheese had come into Canada from that country. "Three whole boxes—90 lbs. each—had flooded the market of Canada. As for butter, the importations from Australia had increased from 903,000 pounds in 1911, to 7,000,000 pounds in 1924, under the Conservative Government, and nothing had been heard of Mr. Sutherland "roaring up and down the side lines."

Mr. Sutherland pointed out that there was a three cent per pound duty at that time.

"Well, that only makes it worse," said Mr. Motherwell.

The importation of butter during the present fiscal year was a little less than 2,000,000 pounds. There was no appreciable difference in the importation of this commodity at the present time. Canada manufactured approximately 275,000,000 pounds of butter annually. What possible effect could the importation of such a small quantity have on the price here? Prices, it is true, had dropped on butter and cheese in Canada, but not nearly to the extent as the decrease in United States.

No Renovated Butter.

H. C. Hocken (Conservative, Toronto West Centre) interrupted to ask if renovated butter was sold in Canada last year.

Mr. Motherwell replied that no renovated butter had been sold last year. "Art thou a citizen of Canada and know not these things?" the Minister asked Mr. Hocken, to the amusement of the House.

The Australian treaty, Mr. Motherwell added, contained a clause providing for its abrogation on six months' notice. The provision was a wise one; but Mr. Sutherland should not be impatient. Surely this treaty should be given a fair trial.

Speakers on the Opposition side were emphasizing the price to be paid by Canada for the treaty, but ignoring what Canada would receive, Mr. Motherwell said. They did not mention the market for Canadian newsprint which was opened up by the treaty. This would be a benefit to the Canadian farmer because his pulpwood would be a source of revenue for him. Even if it could be proved that the Canadian producer was the loser as a result of the treaty while the Canadian consumer of dairy products was the gainer, it must be remembered that Canada should regard this treaty as a unit. It must not be looked at only from the angle of one class. It was a question of the greatest good to the greatest number.

Review of Western Vote.

Fred. Davis (Conservative, Calgary East) said he had hoped to obtain some useful information in regard to the treaty from the Minister of Agriculture, but he had failed to do so. He declared himself a believer in the tariff policy of the Conservative party, and he said that the Progressives did not represent the view of the people of Western Canada on tariff matters. In the West, at the last general election, the voters had been divided into three groups. He proposed to give the House some information in regard to the vote cast for each of these groups. In British Columbia, the Conservatives had polled 90,016 votes; the Liberals 63,374; the Progressives 765. In the Yukon, 742 votes had been cast for the Conservative candidate and 508 for the Liberal. In Alberta, the most highly organized farmer province in the Dominion of Canada, which sent nine Progressives to Parliament, the total Progressive vote was 50,574 as against the Conservative vote of 51,111.

The Conservatives had but three members in the House of Commons from Alberta.

In the four Western provinces, the Conservatives had a majority of 37,025 votes over the Liberals and 102,214 votes over the Progressives. These figures should demonstrate that the Progressive representation in the House did not express the true desires of Western Canada.

Protests Against Treaty.

Mr. Davis said that dairy industries throughout Canada were sending persistent requests to the Minister of Agriculture for relief from the burden of the Australian treaty. It was not a small issue by any means, and while there had been great improvements last year, there were immediate dangers of severe losses to the industry. Mr. Davis quoted the resolutions passed by dairy conventions, and particularly the Western Canadian Dairymen's Association. He read a letter from P. Burns and Company, whom he described as "the largest creamery manufacturer in Alberta," stating that the Australian exporter would under the treaty govern the prices of dairy products in Canada. Mr Davis said that the Burns Company in endeavoring to control the industry in the West, had been compelled to purchase the first shipment of Australian butter to arrive in this country.

Mr. Davis took issue with Mr. Motherwell's assertion that Canada produced 275,000,000 pounds of butter annually. The proper amount of production was 175,000,000.

The Minister of Agriculture interjected to state that in his computation he had included both creamery and dairy butter.

Mr. Davis said that the development of our home markets for our own products should be encouraged and as long as the dairy industry of Canada could produce sufficient butter for the wants and requirements of the people of this country, the Canadian market should be maintained for them.

Instead of reducing the tariff on other commodities mentioned in the treaty, such as canned meats, mutton, poultry and game, the duty should be raised.

Mr. Davis was still speaking at 6 o'clock when an adjournment was made until this afternoon.

THOMAS INGHAM.

ROSENEATH, Feb. 10. — The funeral of the late Thomas Ingham was held from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Braithwaite, on Friday afternoon. Service was held in the United church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. T. N. Lovelace, after which the remains were taken to Centenary cemetery for interment.

Mr. Ingham was a life long resident of this township, having spent a considerable time farming. He drove the Roseneath-Cobourg mail route for sixteen years, enduring many hardships during his term. During the last few years he has lived a life of retirement, although he made a hobby of poultry and hot bed work, from which he supplied the community with small plants in the spring. In politics he was a staunch Liberal and in religion a former Methodist but since Union a member of the United church, where he was to be seen every Sunday both at church and Sunday school. He was also a regular follower of the local baseball team, both at home and abroad, and his presence on the lines will be missed. His wife predeceased him some years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss an only child, Mrs. Joseph Braithwaite; a brother, Mr. Geo. Ingham; a sister, Mrs. McIlrey of Strathrery, and his only grandson, Arthur Braithwaite, with whom he has been living. Among those attending from a distance were, two brothers-in-law, Messrs. Brock and McIrey of Strathrery and two nephews, Dr. Geo. Ingham of Stratford and Bruce Ingham of Bowmanville.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Alex. Shearer, Ezekiel Brisbin, M. Davey, Andrew Brown, R. B. Nichol and John Nichol.

MRS. HUGH McARTHUR.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10. — Jane Gay, relict of Hugh McArthur, died at noon Monday in a Kingston hospital after a long illness. The remains will be brought to Campbellford for interment.

The late Mrs. McArthur was born in West Huntington, Hastings County, 72 years ago, and resided there until at the age of 23 she was married, her husband being a farmer near Healey Falls. Mr. McArthur died nine years ago, and the family remained on the farm until the mother's health failed, when they disposed of the property and moved to Campbellford.

The late Mrs. McArthur is survived by four daughters: Mrs. J. I. Adams of Campbellford, Mrs. Bruce Gould of Morganston, and Misses Emma and Mary, who reside on Rear Street. The latter has been in Rochester for some time, but returned home on hearing of the serious illness of her mother. A daughter, Ida, and a son, John W., died in 1901 within five days of each other, and the mother never seemed to have recovered fully from the shock of their death.

The deceased was a faithful member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, with which her two unmarried daughters are still associated.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon from the family residence on Rear Street to the Baptist Church, of which one of the daughters, Mrs. Adams, is a leading member. Religious services will be conducted by Rev. James Grier and Rev. Edmund D. Ford.

JAMES DANFORD.

BONAR LAW, February 9. — News of the sudden death of James Danford of the 11th concession of Rawdon, on Wednesday afternoon, came with a shock to his many friends and relatives.

Mr. Danford was carrying a quarter of beef, and fell backward, passing away immediately.

The deceased, who was only 59 years of age, had been suffering from heart disease for some time, and which it is believed was the cause of his early demise.

Mr. Danford was a prominent and very successful farmer and well known in municipal affairs.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his widow, three sons and two daughters, namely Gladys and Frances, both school teachers; Kenneth of Picton, Samuel of Trenton and James of Rawdon.

The funeral service was held on Friday at Springbrook church. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Clare and Mr. Gardiner. Interment took place at Mount Neho cemetery. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved ones.

Edward park, mostly in the southwest corner, and $300 was put in to add to this work.

Sundry repairs around the park were put at $100.

Toboggan Slides.

This item brought up some discussion about a slide at Jackson Park. Ald. Phelan suggested that the H.E.P.C. be approached for a grant.

Ald. Turner said revenues for livery and refreshment privileges could be estimated at $135 and he advised that $600 be put in for the work in addition to this revenue.

Two hundred was put in for the caretaker and $800 for the slide.

Skating Rinks.

Alderman MacDonald asked why the rink on Homewood Avenue was discontinued. Ald. Turner said that the made land at this point was not good for ice making and that the owners of the property had raised some objections. The estimates for the rinks were set at $700.

Light for Central Park was set at $50. No work was done there last year, although money was appropriated.

Extensions for dressing rooms were suggested for several of the rinks to cost $250.

Ald. Greene suggested that one be built each year at a cost of $150.

Ald. Turner suggested $200, which was put in.

The total for parks was set at $4640, making a total with the beaches, of $6006, an increase of some $700 over last year.

Before this was passed, Alderman Turner mentioned that last year money had been spent by the Parks Committee on the Tourist Camping grounds, and $200 was added for this.

A letter was read complaining that boys playing hockey interfered with the pleasure skating of small children and girls, and asking that some specific hours be set aside for hockey playing. The matter was left to the chairman.

Alderman Cotton asked that the Ladies' Softball League be given some dates on the Riverside Park for League games with teams from outside points.

The matter will be considered when the disposal of the park is considered.

Fire, Water and Light.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee will require $39,861.44 for the fire brigade this year, according to the estimates passed last night. Hydrants and light costs were left to the chairman.

Ald. Turner brought up the matter of insurance on the fire apparatus, covering any injuries which might be done by the equipment while going to a fire.

Ald. Ackerman submitted rates for 1925 on public liability at 243.00 and property damage at 97.50, and said that the rate had been reduced to approximately $300 for the two classes of liability. On motion of Ald. Fife, the money was put in the estimates.

The estimates were then discussed and mostly passed as set down by the Chief. Some matters, such as an increase in the amount for fire alarm system, were the cause of some discussion.

Ald. Green objected to the idea of buying shirts for the men, believing that, while uniform suits should be bought, the men should buy their other clothes themselves. The committee passed the clothing accounts and will inspect the state of the clothing

Assistant Chief Ward asked for an increase from $1,600 to $1,800, which was referred to the Council.

A cut of $100 was made in the estimate for service equipment, $300 in the convention allowance, and $550 for gasoline, etc.

JANET RAND Jimmy's sister breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN and Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. While with Mary at a cafe he accidentally runs into Olga Maynard and makes an engagement with her for the next night.

She breaks down under his questions and faints. He is lifting her into a taxi when Mary who is with another man sees him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XII.

Jimmy fumbled helplessly trying to revive the woman who slumped beside him in the taxicab seat. He slapped her wrists, called to her, looked beseechingly at the driver, but that worthy was gazing imperturbably ahead and minding his own business.

The rough jolting of the cab finally did what he was unable to do. She opened her eyes, looked at him and then began to cry.

He was sorry he had been so brutal with her, and angry that he had been unable to get any satisfactory explanation from her.

Tears had streaked her rouge. Her hair—bleached, Jimmy concluded—was in disarray.

"What are you going to do? she asked. Her handkerchief was pressed closely to her mouth. Jimmy barely heard her.

"I don t know. Perhaps it would be better for you to give yourself up to the police. They'll find you anyway in time.

"How can I explain to them? I can't tell them any more than I've told you. If you don't believe me, they won't." She was crying again.

"Do some thinking. Try to remember what could have happened to the theater stub after you used it." He was trying to be kind to her. He felt uncomfortable, self-reproachful, in the face of her tears.

"If I thought you wouldn't try to run away, he continued. "I d leave you here —the cab had stopped in front of her apartment building— and count on seeing you here again tomorrow night. Believe me, I don t " t to see you in this trouble.

"Where would I go? Where could I go? she asked. "I ll be here tomorrow night. I promise you.

"I believe you, he said, and helped her out of the cab.

His first thought when he reached the office the following morning was to find Mary and try to explain. When he did encounter her, however, along toward noon the speech froze on his lips. He was about to speak, but she gave him a curt nod and turned on her heel. . . . He thought of writing her a note and sending it through the office boy.

"She d probably tear it up, he reflected. He brought his worries along with him when he went out to lunch . . . . He toyed with his food and pushed it back uneaten.

Going up in the elevator he was conscious of a man staring at him. He was a man of perhaps 40 with black hair, gray around the temples, and a sharp pointed nose. He was broad-shouldered and bulky of chest but uncommonly slender from his waist down. There was something familiar looking about him. Jimmy knew he had seen him before.

A half smile played about his lips as he contemplated Jimmy. He seemed amused. It irritated Jimmy. He felt like asking to be let in on the joke. He resented being stared at like a monkey in a zoo. He was even annoyed by the other's fine grooming and obviously expensive attire.

They went in the office together, and Jimmy realized where he had seen him. It was the man who had been with Mary last night when he was helping Olga Maynard into the taxi.

The man opened the door of the chief clerk's office and walked in, leaving it open. Jimmy could see Mary smile at his greeting. They talked and Mary laughed heartily at something he was saying. Jimmy wondered whether they were laughing at the recollection of the spectacle he and Olga Maynard must have made in front of the hotel.

"Who is that, Mac? he asked the young fellow at the next desk.

"Who? Oh, that's Church—Sam Church. He's one of the attorneys for the Q. and R. Handles a lot of death and accident claims. Comes in here quite a lot and makes it a point to give a little dictation once in a while to the boss' stenographer. I think he s pretty sweet on her myself.

"I see—thanks.

"As a matter of fact, Mac continued. "I have a sneaking suspicion that Miss Lowell doesn t exactly hate Sam Church. Good looking dog... Built like a bull in the upper story—chest and shoulders—and like a greyhound below. Got a lot of money, too. I hear. That's all you need to get along in this world, Rand—money. It'll buy anything."

"You think, Mac," Jimmy asked, "that money can buy love?"

Mac was slow in answering. "Rand," he said, "it'll buy anything. There's nothing in this sentimental love in a cottage stuff. I know. I was engaged once. Then war came along and I went away, with her crying and everybody promising wonderful things for the boys when we came back."

He cursed. "And then what happened? My girl marries one of these fat profiteers that stayed safe at home and made a pile of money while they were digging machine gun bullets out of me in France.

"Rats!" he said. "Give me a million and I'll have everything I want and do anything I want. And if I overstep the law I can buy myself off. John Law doesn't bother the guy with dough. But he makes us poor fish step."

"Mac," said Jimmy, "I think you're wrong. I hope you're wrong." He bent over his desk as Church came out of Mary's office, talking in low tones to the chief clerk. Hilton. The same amused smile was playing over his features as he passed Jimmy and walked out of the main office door.

"Mary—" he stood in front of the water cooler, making a pretense of drinking, and blocking her path—"Mary, I know it looked rotten. Just give me a chance to explain."

"Mr. Rand—please!" She was looking through him rather than at him, her dark blue eyes cold as ice.

"Let me explain, Mary—after five o'clock. Give me a chance," he pleaded.

"It is not necessary, Mr. Rand. I am able to understand what I see without the aid of an interpreter."

She stepped past him and was gone. He breathed again that subtle fragrance of her hair, as he had done the night he danced with her. . . . He stood staring after her retreating figure with hunger in his eyes. . . .

Shortly before five o'clock Hilton called him into his private office and told him he was discharged.

"We're giving you a week's salary instead of the customary two weeks that we allow our discharged employes. Considering the short length of your stay here, I think that is fairly generous."

Jimmy took it calmly, without so much as raising an eyebrow. "Anything wrong with my work?" he asked. "I at least did my best while I was here."

"No, Rand, not a thing. In fact, I thought you were doing very well. It's just a case of cutting expenses, and, as you're the last man to be taken on, you're naturally the first to go. Sorry."

Jimmy felt like saying: "You're lying, Mr. Hilton. As soon as I go you'll hire someone in my place. I know why I'm fired. Mary Lowell did it. She had me hired and she had me fired."

Instead he turned silently and walked out of Hilton's office back to his desk.

"Mac," he said, "I'm fired."

Mac said nothing, but gazed abstractedly toward Hilton's office and clicked his pen against his teeth.

"Mac," said Jimmy a little later, "blast them all. Do you hear?"

He was clearing his desk when Mac's hand fell on his shoulder. He could feel the grip gradually tighten until the flesh ached under the pressure of Mac's fingers.

Mac stood like that for some time. Then he turned silently and hobbled away. . . . His bullet-shattered leg was stiff as a ramrod from ankle to hip.

Inside the chief clerk's office, Mr. Hilton was dictating to his secretary.

"A memorandum to the cashier, Miss Lowell, to the effect that Mr. Rand has been taken off the payroll."

Her flying pencil stopped and slipped from her fingers. The short-hand characters in her notebook became suddenly a meaningless array of hieroglyphics.

"Another memorandum, Miss Lowell, to the auditor."

She recovered her pencil. It began again to move swiftly over the page, in rhythm to his voice. . . .

When he had finished dictating she ran to the outer office and looked toward Jimmy's desk. He had left. The office was empty. . . . She gazed for a long time at the door through which he had gone.

Jimmy walked to his room through streets crowded with home-going workers. He walked without seeing, unmindful of the way he was jostled in the crowds.

He said aloud: "Why was I fired? She condemned me without hearing me. She judged me without a trial." He said again and again: "Why was I fired? Why was I fired?" . . .

He climbed the stairs to his room and found a telegram on the dresser. Absently he opened the yellow envelope and noticed that it was from Detective Mooney.

He heard the shrill voice of Mrs. King, the landlady, calling up the stairs. "Telephone, Mr. Rand."

He picked up the receiver. "Hello," he said.

A man's voice answered. "Hello—Rand?"

"Yes, this is Rand."

"Rand, this is Lieutenant O'Day at headquarters. Come down here right away."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

George A. Gillespie, in expressing his views of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, said that he was quite in sympathy with the plan for expansion and thought that the scheme now on foot for a six-day Fair should work out profitably and increase the value of the show in its importance to the community. He agreed with others who have expressed their opinions, that the Fair was necessary to promote a feeling of relationship between rural and urban districts and that the social value could not be over-emphasized.

"I have watched the Exhibition grow from nothing to its present dimensions, and I believe that it has still greater possibilities of development," he said. "I have always been an enthusiastic backer and shall continue to do my utmost, for I believe that a good Industrial Exhibition is indispensable to any live municipality."

also the views of their constituents. Scores of meetings have been held in the townships to discuss the matter and many of them have passed resolutions either for or against the proposed system. These will be presented to the House, so that the members can get the feeling of the people.

The Premier will also bring up the matter of the teaching of the first two years of university work in collegiate and high schools. This also come up last session. The object of the proposal is to give relief to the universities in certain courses and provide cheaper and higher education for those unable to get to university centres.

Marriage Licenses.

A bill introduced by E. R. Wigle, Conservative member for Centre Huron passed last year making it compulsory to get a marriage license three days before the day of marriage will be repealed, it is stated. The provision has caused considerable inconvenience to scores of parties throughout the province. On one occasion, because of the failure of the groom to get his license three days ahead, a city church wedding had to be postponed. The young couple cancelled an ocean trip to Europe, in consequence. The bill providing for the granting of the license three days before the marriage was a private one. The original bill would have put further regulations on marriage. The most enthusiastic of its supporters wanted all marriages advertised before being allowed. The House compromised on the three day section, and the others were deleted.

It is generally believed, although there has been no official announcement, that Hon. W. H. Price, Provincial Treasurer, will bring in measure to increase the revenue of the province. Whether these will be new taxes or changes in the present levies has not yet been divulged.

In the debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne, both Opposition groups will criticize the Government for not holding bye-elections to fill the seven vacancies which have occurred since the last session. The Liberals will contend, as Mr. Sinclair has been contending on the platform that a portion of the people have been disenfranchised because they have no representative in this session of Parliament. The vacancies are: London, East Simcoe, Cochrane, North Norfolk, East Kent, Kenora, Centre Grey. Two were held by Conservatives, one by a Liberal, three by Progressives and one by Labor. In the protest the Liberals will be supported by the Progressives.

It is also expected that the budget debate will be carried on in a more critical manner this year. The opposition groups will fight on every occasion, believing that there may easily be an election following the present session.

Although not of great political significance, the Government will probably tell the House what it proposes to do with the properties it now owns or rents to house its civil service which next fall will all be taken into the new "Eastern Block" of the legislature buildings which is being rapidly constructed on the east side of Queen's Park. The new block will house various developments which are now scattered in several buildings throughout Toronto. The Government may dispose of several valuable properties it now holds for office purposes and will also be released from rentals now paid for many other buildings.

The story of two brothers who lived on $9 a week

A BANK MANAGER may never intrude himself into the business affairs of a client, but when he is invited to act in an advisory capacity, frequently there is an inspiring story of achievement to be told as a result of the union of practical ability and expert financial direction.

Two brothers in their twenties, living in an eastern city, possessed a "Shoestring" of $1,500, a supply of Canadian pluck and a knowledge of the manufacture and sale of a certain commodity. They went into business for themselves, and were assisted by their father in the purchase of materials. Then they sought the best financial advice and co-operation and were directed to the Bank of Toronto.

Our manager immediately got down to brass tacks with these two boys. They put their cards on the table, face up. Their "strong suit" was their honesty, energy and willingness to sacrifice. They were drawing only $9 a week each from the business; every other cent made was going back into the business.

The Bank of Toronto manager enlisted the resources of the Bank in the interests of these young men. Reasonable advances were made; the financial standing of new accounts was carefully checked; fluctuations in prices of supplies and labor were carefully checked. And the young firm grew on the strongest of foundation stones.

The relationship continues to this day. The young men are now leaders in Canadian business, their names known and honored from coast to coast;; they are worth $250,000 each, and the daily output of their factory runs into thousands of units of the commodity they are making.

While their development is almost entirely due to their own initiative and energy, good judgment in seeking sound financial co-operation from a bank that gave more than mechanical service played an important part in their success.

ECLIPSE FASHIONS

Exclusive Patterns by Hazel Bayne

The Two-piece Dress Remains High Style

Women like the comfort of a separate skirt which has sufficient fulness to accommodate a walking stride. This dress is developed of plain velvet and brocaded metal cloth, but practically any dress material may be used for the overblouse with skirt to match, or contrast, whichever suits you. The skirt is simply made, with three box-plaits across the front, and attached to a body lining. Nor are the lines of the blouse elaborate—it is distinguished chiefly by its set-in vestee-front with attached collar that may be worn high or low, and oddly arranged patch pockets. The belt slips under the edge of the pockets and girdles the plain back. No. 1261 is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years, or (34, 36 and 38 inches bust only). Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 4 yards 36-inch, or 3 yards 54-inch material, with ⅝ yard lining for bodice top. Price 20 cents.

Our Fashion Book, illustrating the newest and most practical styles, will be of interest to every home dressmaker. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast — Tangerines, uncooked breakfast food with hot milk, poached eggs on toast, graham muffins with raisins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Sausage rolls, stewed tomatoes with croutons, steamed brown bread, baked apples, milk, tea.

Dinner—Boiled fresh codfish with egg sauce, mashed potatoes, buttered brussels sprouts, new onions, canned pears, date cake, rye bread, milk, coffee.

The sausage rolls are ideal for a cold winter day but children under ten years of age should be served a lamb chop or scraped beef ball to take the place of these delectable but not-so-easy- to-digest savories.

Sausage Rolls.

Four small sausages, 1 1-2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 1-2 tablespoons lard, milk to make a soft dough.

Slit skin on one side of each sausage and peel off taking care not to break meat. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Rub in shortening with tips of fingers. Cut in milk with a knife. The dough should be as soft as can be handled. Roll on a floured board to about 1-4 inch thickness. Cut in oblong-shaped pieces large enough to completely cover each sausage. Roll each sausage in the dough, pinching ends together. Prick top of each roll deeply with a fork. Bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

SHORN BEAUTY

By Juanita Hamel

It used to be said "Love laughs at locksmiths!" Now the saying has been changed to "Love laughs at barbers!" But beauty must keep up to the styles, and even though she has held out all these months and months, she has finally succumbed to the wiles of Fashion and consented to lose her crown of beauty.

And she's so scared! Perhaps she won't look nice! Perhaps He won't love her as much! Perhaps—oh, a thousand thoughts are chasing themselves around in her adorable little head, but she needn't worry. Beauty will always be lovely, whether bobbed or not. And Love never changes. And the Crown of Beauty will be a golden nimbus enhancing her loveliness, and she'll be more adorable and adored than ever.

FASHION NOTES.

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (United Press).—Jumper frocks or one-piece dresses with long bodices and circular flaring hemlines in pastel shades for afternoon wear. Little felt hats match exactly the shade of the frock and among the most popular shades are pinkish tans, pale ashes-of roses and nile greens. Hosiery also matches the frock and shoes are either matching kid or satin or black.

Cape-back frocks are also making an appearance. Even jumper frocks often use a square or rounded rear cape which begins at the shoulder seams and ends at or just below the normal waistline. Often the capelet is lined in a soft, contrasting shade of silk as in the case of a dove blue frock with orchid-lined capelet.

Fifty-four inch bordered prints which are sold by the yard at the stores are being fashioned by women of New York into jumper frocks. The border forms the bottom of the skirt with the remainder of the pattern forming the jumper. Long scarfs with ends of the bordered print may be worn with them. Several recently seen were sleeveless being made with a long shoulder. In certain dark colors enlivened with floral print they are adaptable for the formal afternoon occasion.

Mannish-lined fur coats are favorites with the younger set this season. Often the sleeves are mannish and set into snug shoulders, collars are lapel-shaped and entire coat lines are straight. Both plain and double-breasted closings may be used. Leopard is very nice when made up in this way and beaver is even more popular. Often the coat lining is plaid kasha or other bright colored woolen cloth.

Wide bracelets set with large stones are more popular than narrow types. Stones are generally of semi-precious type and because of the width of the bracelet qut one is worn on an arm.

HER OWN WAY

by a Girl of Today

THE OLD VS. THE NEW.

I was awake when dad left his room the next morning, but I heard him still ragging mother about me.

At first he insisted that I should be called down to the breakfast table right away that I might receive my bawling out from him. But mother diplomatically called his attention to the clock that showed him he had barely time to get to his office at half past eight.

I surmised that rather than break his inflexible rule of being at his desk at this hour, he was willing to let me and my reputation wait until evening, for I heard only one more unintelligible growl as he clumped down the stairs.

As soon as he was well out of the house mother came up to my room.

"What time did you get in last night, Julia?" she asked.

"About four o'clock," I answered composedly.

"What was the matter? Did Charles' automobile break down?"

"I don't think so."

"You 'don't think so!'—I don't understand," said mother. Then she suddenly stopped. She had caught sight of my rain-drenched clothing and my mud-caked shoes.

"What's the matter with your clothes, Julia? They look as though you had been walking out in the rain!"

"I was."

"And yet you say that Charles' automobile did not break down."

"As far as I know, mother, dear, it did not. I left Chuck in his old boat about a mile and a half from here on the highway and walked home. That was the reason I was so late."

"Walked home?" repeated mother in a mystified voice. Then, all at once, she got an inkling of understanding, for even mother had heard why girls who went auto-riding with men walked home.

"Walked home?" she repeated. "Julia, you do not mean—"

"That's just what I do mean. You see, Chuck was drunk when we started but I didn't know it and, in spite of all I could do, he kept taking a sip now and then from out of his flask. At last he got ugly because I would not let the petting party go any further and I got out and walked home."

Mother burst into tears.

The Home Kitchen

By Jeannette Norton

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT THE AVERAGE HELPING.

The hundred-calorie portion, or average helping, is much more generous in vegetable dishes than in other foods. Remember that two thousand five hundred calories of balanced rations are allowed the average person a day. Measuring cups, spoons and scales should be in all well-regulated kitchens. Dry and liquid measuring tables should be at hand to guide us in doubtful moments. Food charts are also helpful if we really wish to live wisely and well.

Among the coarser foods, cabbage is held in high esteem. One pound is a hundred-calorie portion. Invest in a two-pound cabbage, remove all the outer leaves, cut the heart out deeply from each piece, weigh again and it will be but little over a pound. Cut it as fine as possible. Have a saucepan of water boiling rapidly, add a teaspoonful of salt, and drop in the cabbage lightly, a little at a time, so as not to stop the water boiling and, when all is in, boil rapidly for ten minutes. Drain thoroughly, add a generous lump of butter, pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of sugar and a few drops of lemon juice. The result will be a little over a hundred calories.

A baked potato weighing three ounces is an average helping. Three tablespoonfuls of stewed corn is correct as an average helping. A three-ounce slice of roast beef and we have another hundred calories. A few leaves of lettuce dressed with lemon and salt will add only about eight calories, then a half cantaloup, an average sized baked apple, a large banana, or a small piece of lemon pie, or pumpkin, or apple pie, and we have had a dinner that is worth while and have exhausted a little more than five hundred of our allotted food rations for the day. Now, it is easy to see how we can cut down if we want to get thin, and how we can increase if we want to get fat. As long as we keep the rations balanced, we are in control of the outcome. It is the overeating, or the under feeding, that does the damage.

All doctors agree on the benefits of citrous fruits added to the diet and they may be taken with any meal where milk is used without injury. A piece of pie, with a single crust and a meringue means from a hundred to a hundred and fifty calories and is not advised for the person who is trying to lose weight.

The sleeve of this season shows signs of great development. Fullness begins usually about the elbow and is held in closely at the wrist by a narrow band. One still sees many plain, close fitting sleeves.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

A. T. M.—You have a peace-loving nature and will make an extremely good husband in whom your wife can put trust and confidence. You are inclined to a certain amount of reserve and retirement, and must strive constantly to overcome shyness, introspection and even morbidness. You have a liking for the mystic and occult. You should achieve much, in mechanical, theatrical or literary lines, and are interested in religious or educational matters, in which you can do good work. You have a deep hidden love nature and are anxious to give of your abundance to those in need, but should guard against overdoing in this way. You would make a good cashier, bookkeeper or accountant. You have too little self-esteem and should remember that the world takes you at your own estimation. Cultivate self-esteem without self-consciousness. You are careful and methodical in your habits, although inclined to be restless. A certain amount of travel will be a good thing for you. The value of silent meditation should be learned by you, as long as it does not tend toward morbidity. Strive to control that inner restlessness and anxiety that mars your life. You are not careful enough of yourself, your health or your possessions and are sometimes not prudent enough in the choice of friends.

Begin important undertakings in May or June, and preferably on Saturday.

You were born on Wednesday. The day you ask about, a Friday, is one on which to be cheerful and generous. Don't put off anything that should be completed on that day, confidently assume any responsibility offered you, and play no games of chance.

Your colors are orange and gray.

V. H. M.—You were born to bring joy and happiness to others and in this way to win it for yourself. The cultivation of what is best in your nature will help you to achieve this manifest destiny. However, you have a very strong tendency, that will probably always cause you a good deal of trouble, toward change and uncertainty. Unless you can combat this inclination, and you are at an age when you can start in with a will, and follow out your own natural tendency, you will not be happy or successful. How about it? You have extreme ability with both head and hands, are fearless and kind, except when irritated, and may become a great leader in time. You are adaptable to most occasions in life, but are apt to pay too much attention to physical enjoyments and showy people, who are not always the most worth while. With you, you have only to try hard to do a thing and you will accomplish it. You will be most successful as a contractor, builder, engineer or lawyer. Watch a taste for strong drink, which is very dangerous for you, and overcome a tendency to domineer. Do not marry until you have studied your own nature well and have sought to control your fickle tendency, or you will be very unhappy and make your wife unhappy. Marry a girl born in January, September or October. May and July are your lucky months and Friday your lucky day. You are not not apt to find fault and will always mind your own business, you will not be the first to cast a slur, or—to forgive an injury. Do not allow yourself to become angry over trifles, do not drink or gamble, and do not stand idly by while others are garnering the prizes of life.

You were born on Saturday. The day you ask about is past. Your color is black.

L. M. C.—You have not very much initiative or efficiency, but are naturally charming and affectionate, which are more admirable qualities in a woman. Your happiness will come to you through personal service to others—the service inspired by love. But you have one fault that you must strive always to combat, the habit of whining and scolding, and you will make life miserable for yourself and everyone around you unless you can realize this and try to overcome it. You are affectionate, unselfish and self-sacrificing and have a great deal of family pride. You are very fond of travelling, but are inclined to be always wishing that you had done something else or gone somewhere else, in a nervous dissatisfaction with the things that you have done. You are exceptionally fond of flowers in your home and have good luck with their growth and care. You like color also, and everything beautiful in nature and in art. You should take particular care of your stomach, and cultivate moderation in everything you do. Be careful in your choice of friends and do not be led astray by showy appearances. Be lovable. If you allow a tendency to nag and scold to mar your life, you will be a disagreeable old woman in time. Keep your hands and feet still. You were born on Monday. The date asked about is past. Your colors are gold and white.

Chum.—You have material and spiritual charm that bestows social and personal attraction upon you, but you lack depth and are inclined to be fickle and changeable. You will find your greatest happiness in servin others—the service inspired by love and you should be quite musical. Yo are a natural leader, if you can ove come this fickle quality, and you a kind-hearted. You like moving ar travel and will have a wide circle acquaintances as you go through lif When you are jolly, you are very jol and when you are miserable, you a quite wretched. You are a good frie and will always keep your promis You would make a good designer, milliner, or manager of a store or hot Almost any commercial position wou be well filled by you. You will be he piest when you learn the lesson of se control and poise. Avoid scolders a fault-finders, who depress you. Chan of scenery and a certain amount excitement are almost absolutely nece sary for your health. You were bo with original ideas. Follow them ou and do not copy others. A goo business education is a necessity fo you. Marry a man born in May, July February or November. Begin import ant undertakings in March or Novem ber, and preferably on Tuesdays o Saturdays. You were born on Thurs day. Your color is pink.

M. R.—You were born with a stron character, capable of meeting an coping with the many emergencies o daily life, but circumstances at presen and your extreme youth make it impera tive that you do not try to stand alon and that you associate yourself wit others in any undertakings. You hav ability along artistic lines, a quick vivid memory and will do your bes work in religious or educational endeav ors. You are fond of responsibility an would make a good cashier, bookkeepe or accountant. You are apt to be to modest of your own worth and shoul cultivate self-esteem. A certain amoun of travel will be beneficial to you, t overcome your innate restlessness. D not give way to sensitive feelings o fits of melancholy. Control you tears and you will be surprised ho much reserve strength you will di cover in yourself. Learn the valu of silence, as you are inclined to tal too much, and also learn the value o money. Marry a man born in Septem ber, October or July and cultivate th society of men. You will make a admirable wife.

You were born on Friday. Saturda is your lucky day. The date you as about, a Friday, is one on which to b sunny tempered and to play no game of chance. Your colors are red an brown.

THOMAS A. EDISON, INVENTOR, IS NEARING FOUR SCORE MARK

Greatest Inventive Genius of All Time is Still Active.

CONTINUES WORK

Points to Fact That Ancestors Lived to Great Age.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Thomas A. Edison, who has been called "the greatest inventive genius of all time," will enter upon his eightieth year this week, and still he's cheating Old Man Time. According to all reports, he is exceedingly brisk and chipper as he nears the four-score milestone and is said to be dining on spinach and carrots in preparation for the much illumined cake he must eat next Thursday.

In absolute disregard of the rules of living which prompt nearly all persons of his age to take it a bit easy, the wizard of West Orange continues to work with almost the same energy and industry which have characterized his entire life. Only within the past few years has he been induced to "slow down" in the least. As a slight concession to the urgings of his family and friends, Mr. Edison nowadays does take an occasional day off, and he has even been induced once or twice to spend a few weeks in the South to escape the rigors of winter. But, all in all, he sticks pretty closely to the daily routine of hard work and study that he has followed for so many years. For more than forty years he has made his home at Llewellyn Park, near West Orange, where he also maintains the laboratories which have become famous the world over and which are yearly visited by men of distinction from many countries.

To all appearances, the beginning of his eightieth year finds Mr. Edison still in his prime, physically as vigorous as most men many years his junior, and mentally as keen and alert as at any period of his marvellous career. He proudly points to the record of his ancestors and vows he will beat them all. His great-grandfather lived to be 104, and his father was 94 when he died.

For half a century the name of Edison has been known throughout the civilized world, and wherever his name is known the stimulating power of his inventions is felt; for all these inventions have been on the side of moral and social progress, and hence they are each and all charged with a potential optimistic inspiration.

Mr. Edison has been termed a man of herculean suggestiveness—not only the greatest inventor of an age singularly fruitful in inventions, but a discoverer as well. For, when he could not find material with the properties he required, he explored the regions of the unknown, and brought back captive the requisites for his inventions. The carbon disc by which he perfected his electric light is an example of this almost inspirational exploration.

Mr. Edison is social by nature, and very companionable with those who enjoy his confidence. His geniality has always made him a host of friends, and gathered round him a band of enthusiastic and devoted workers. Each year these friends and followers, who have banded together under the name of the Edison Pioneers, celebrate the birthday anniversary of the famous inventor with a banquet, either in New York or in Newark. For nearly a decade this custom has been followed and oftentimes as many as 150 or more guests have attended. On the occasion of these dinners Mr. Edison has been known to carry his luncheon with him in a tin box so that he might not break the inviolable rules of his diet.

Mr. Edison's personal tastes are simple. Personal notoriety has never been to his liking. "A man," he once said, "is to be measured by what he does, and not by what is said of him."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 11.

This should be a day for pushing the affairs to splendid fruition, according to the auspicious rule of benefic astral forces. With Jupiter, the Great Fortune of Astrology, in conjunction with Luna, all matters should thrive and expand. There is a sign urging to new enterprises, mainly in dealing with corporations and also with secret societies, or in matters of diplomacy or benignant conspiracy, and the activities should be turned to the fulfillment of all such ambitions, but thoughtfully.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of fulfilled ambitions and are encouraged to make alliances with large corporations, diplomatic agencies or secret societies, all of which should thrive in growth and finance. A child born on this day may be ambitious, energetic, generous and free, and should attain high position and reward in important positions.

MY LI'L TOT.

See that youngster down the street? She's a tot of mine. Sweetest child you'll ever meet. Simply super-fine. Only five, but as she grows, say, you'd be surprised, just how much this youngster knows. I've just realized.

Cute? Why, gee, she's cuter still. Clever little ways. Things she does are fit to kill every time she plays. Rules around my neighborhood. Sister's what she's called. Spirit does the neighbors good. That's what she's installed.

Races in and races out, happy all day long. When this youngster's not about everything seems wrong. Only to the corner she ever likes to roam. That's the place she waits for me when I'm comin' home.

Every night, when sleep time comes, sister's tucked in bed. Crazy tunes her daddy hums, e'er the good night's said. Simply had to let this out. Now I'm feelin' fine. Here's to one I'm wild about—she's a tot of mine.

HEART TROUBLE OR INDIGESTION?

Heartburn, Pressurse Around Heart Palpitation, A Feeling of Fullness Shortness of Breath.

THIS SIMPLE 3-MINUTE TEST TELLS WHAT'S WRONG.

While there are many people who really have Heart Trouble, there are many thousands more who are literally "scared to death" because they think they have it.

To live in constant fear of Heart Failure is a terrible handicap, especially when 90 per cent of the self-diagnosed Bad Heart symptoms—Palpitation, shortness or breath, difficult breathing, a feeling of fullness or pressure around the Heart—are mainly caused by a sour, gassy, upset stomach. To prove that this is true and that your past worries have been a sad mistake—simply make this three-minute test and watch results!

From any good druggist obtain a couple of ounces of pure Bisurated Magnesia (either powder or tablets) and beginning with tomorrow take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets immediately after each meal—and, if the usual distressing symptoms fail to appear, you may safely rest assured that you have found your trouble.

This is a pleasant, inexpensive test that seldom fails to relieve stomach distress, Gas, Sourness and Bloating—almost instantly, and a single trial proves its value! Be sure and ask for Bisurated Magnesia, not a laxative.

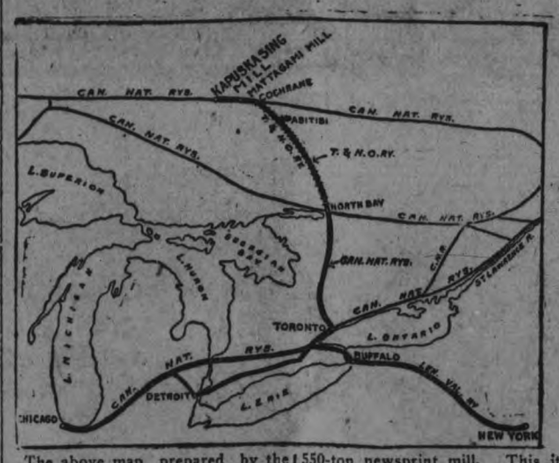
SITE OF NEW PAPER MILL



The above map prepared by the Canadian National Railways, shows the point at Kapuskasing, 70 miles west of Cochrane, where the Spruce Falls Lumber Co. plans to build a 550-ton newsprint mill. This it is estimated, will add a third more tonnage to the T. and N. O. and give a long, profitable haulage to the C.N.R.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 8—BLUE WHISKERS SEES THE TWINS.

"You may proceed," said one of the fat white pigs to the Twins. He took a large brass watch out of one of the pockets of his blue satin suit and looked at it closely.

"It is now three minutes to four. You should reach Blue Whiskers at four fourteen if you skate fast. But be sure you stay on the carpet."

"Here's my card," said the kangaroo. "You may as well announce me too."

"Certainly, sir!" said the pig, politely holding out his tray again.

Jupe, who seemed to have everything in the world in his pocket, laid a card on the tray, neatly engraved with the words, "Mister Jumping Jupiter."

"Mister Jumping Jupiter," squealed the white pig loudly.

"Mister Jumping Jupiter," squealed the line of little black pigs.

At last everything was ready!

Off started Nancy and Nick on their roller skates between the two lines of little black pigs, followed by Jupe, who covered twenty feet at one jump.

But when they had gone about half way, a strange thing happened. The two pigs near the door stepped off the end of the carpet and it rolled up like a watch spring, hitting the Twins and sending them flying ahead like bullets. At that minute Jupe was doing one of his jumps, so the carpet missed him altogether.

The Twins went sailing down the aisle and hit the lower step of Blue Whiskers' throne with a bang.

"Oh!" said Nancy.

"Oh!" cried Nick.

"Oh!" cried Blue Whiskers in surprise. "Company's come! What are the names, please?"

"The Duchess of Doldrums and the Count von Hyanlow, your Majesty," said a shaggy black bear, which stood beside Blue Whiskers' throne.

"Arise!" said Blue Whiskers quickly. "Arise, Duchess! Arise, Count! You are quite unexpected but most welcome. I've been looking for a little boy and girl called Nancy and Nick, who are not so welcome. They disobeyed the Blue Laws. They came to this land by the back way and without my permission. They should have gone through the wicket."

"There goes the wicket again!" thought Nancy as she scrambled to her feet and stood as still as her skates would permit.

At that minute Jupe arrived, for jump as fast as he could, he couldn't keep up with the Twins. He was all out of breath and looked worried.

"I hope you are not hurt, my dears. That carpet certainly did bump you! Your Royal Highness, these are the Twins, Nancy and Nick. I brought them to you to see if you would untwist their tongues."

"Oh, ho," said Blue Whiskers. "Trying to steal a march on me, were you? Pretending you are a duchess and a what-you-may-call-him just so I'd let you in! Out you go and your tongues may stay twisted forever."

Nancy tried hard to tell Blue Whiskers how it had happened that she and Nick had given the doorkeeper cards from a game they had been playing, but all she could say was, "London Bridge is falling down."

Poor Nick tried, too, to explain the whole matter, but all he could say was, "Sing a song of sixpence."

"I have an idea, sir!" suddenly said Jupe. "Your Royal Highness is very fond of stories. Suppose these children should know some funny stories. How can they tell you about them unless you untwist their tongues?"

"That is true, sir," said the shaggy bear. "They very possibly know something funny."

"Bring in the by-laws and the constitution, said Blue Whiskers suddenly. "We shall see what that says about it. The Duchess of Doldrums! Count von Hyanlow! Hum!

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Perhaps some friend of yours has changed in his features and expression. Through the years you have known him his lower jaw has grown enormously The lower teeth project above the upper. The ears have become very large.

All these changes have taken place after he was forty. I am not referring to the natural growth of youth, but to deforming development in middle life.

This is a disease. It is known to the doctors as "acromegaly."

If the acromegaly begins in early life it results in giantism. That is, the bones and framework of the body grow far beyond their normal limits.

In consequence, a person who, in infancy seemed normal, reaches the stature of his father while yet in tender years. Then he goes on and on, perhaps to seven and even eight feet in height. His hands and feet are enormous. He becomes a giant.

Fortunately, giantism is not common. Neither is acromegaly, although it is far more frequently met than is giantism.

This disease is oftener seen in women than in men. The face is shaped like an egg, with the big end downward. That is, the abnormal thickening is of the lower part of the face. The ribs and breast bone may be involved in the same way.

There are other symptoms besides deformity of the face. There may be headache, deafness, failing sight, mental depression, irritable temper and nosebleed.

These signs may be observed by the friends before the victim is aware of his progressive trouble. Then he finds it difficult to put on his hat, because his head has increased in size. His gloves are hard to put on because the hands have grown.

One of the ductless glands, in this case the "pituitary gland," has become thickened and overactive. In consequence, the balance is disturbed and unusual development results.

The physical changes are very slow. They may take years and years to develop, but in time the features are disturbed and the changes I have described take place. It is a trying disease, because it is so impossible to stay the progress of the ailment. Fortunately, it is unrelated to length of life. Even though the features are badly deformed, the health may seem unimpaired.

I know several men who have acromegaly. They go about their professional and business duties just as they always have. Their associates recognize the trouble, but disregard it because, after all, "beauty is only skin deep." The disease impairs the beauty but not the usefulness.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

DOLLY MEETS A BEAUTIFUL CAT.

"O-C-E-L-O-T." Dotty spelled each letter on the sign in the Zoo very slowly. "Wonder what kind of a queer-looking animal that could be?" she mused.

"What! Haven't you met Mrs. Ocelot yet?" asked a tiny voice. Dotty turned around to find Squeedee, the wee elfin from Joyland, standing at her side. "She is one of the most beautiful cats in the animal world."

"A cat!" Dotty exclaimed. "Why put a cat in such a strong cage?"

Before Squeedee had a chance to answer her, a beautiful animal, peeked from behind the rocks and, seeing Squeedee, came out to greet him.

She was about four feet long from her snout to the tip end of the tail. Her coat was a yellowish brown color. Rows of large spots, of a darker shade, outlined with black, ran down both sides. Her head was beautifully marked and her tail was ringed with black. Her legs were rather short for the size of her body.

Mrs. Ocelot was glad to see Squeedee and Dotty. She poked her great heavy paw through the bars to shake Dotty's hand.

"You Are a Pretty Animal."

"Well, Mrs. Ocelot!" Dotty exclaimed. "You certainly are a pretty animal. Do you really belong to the cat family?"

"Yes, indeed I do," replied Mrs. Ocelot. "I guess I rank as one of the most beautiful of the cat tribe, as well as being one of the most savage. That is in my wild state. I've been in captivity so long, I don't believe I could be savage if they did turn me loose."

"Would you believe to look at Mrs. Ocelot, she's afraid of dogs?" asked Squeedee. "If a dog comes her way, Mrs. Ocelot climbs a tree as fast as she can."

"I'm not ashamed to admit I'm afraid of dogs," laughed Mrs. Ocelot. "I can remember one day back in Brazil a big dog chased me. I climbed into a tree and stayed there all day and night. I certainly am afraid of dogs."

"Another thing Mrs. Ocelot is afraid of," laughed Squeedee, a merry twinkle in his eyes. "She's afraid of her husband."

"That is one queer thing about we Ocelots," replied the animal. "The females are always kept in subjection. We never think of eating one mouthful until our mates have all they want. Funny, when we first came here, I heard the keeper tell some man, I was homesick and wouldn't eat. Why, I wouldn't think of eating until Mr. Ocelot had finished his meal. There comes the keeper with our supper now."

Her mate, a beautiful big cat, came out. Mrs. Ocelot went over to one corner of her cage to wait for her turn at the supper table.

The closing bell sounded; it made Dotty think of her own supper, so thanking Squeedee, she ran for home.

Why He Succeeded

From hard work on a farm to the study of medicine in Cincinnati, where he was graduated, was the course which Doctor R. V. Pierce took.

In his younger days he practiced medicine over a large district. It was then the new oil fields near Titusville, Pa. Finally he determined to put up some of his prescriptions in ready-to-use form in order to reach a larger number of families.

He thus early moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established the World's Dispensary, where he put up Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood as well as the Favorite Prescription for women, carefully preparing them from roots, barks and herbs and placed them with druggists everywhere.

During the last sixty years Dr. Pierce's Discovery, for the blood, has been sold in larger quantities by druggists than any other medicine. It is a tonic in its effects on the stomach and digestive apparatus; an alterative in its action on the blood, liver and skin. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young and care free.

Ask your druggist for Dr. Pierce's Discovery, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10c for trial pkg. of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory, in Bridgeburg, Ont.

ARTICLE No. 34

There has been more or less discussion as to the type of hand that justifies a bid of a four card suit. About the weakest four card suit that should be bid without any outside strength is four to the ace king, queen or any four honors. Some writers advocate a bid with only four to the ace king, but with such a holding the hand should also contain at least a king in an outside suit. For example, as dealer, bid one club with each of the following:

Hearts — 7, 6, 2
Clubs — A, K, Q, 7
Diamonds — 8, 4, 3, 2
Spades — 9, 2

Hearts — K, 7, 2
Clubs — A, K, 4, 2
Diamonds — 8, 3, 2
Spades — J, 10, 2

Hearts — 8, 3, 2
Clubs — K, Q, J, 10
Diamonds — 8, 3, 2
Spades — 9, 4, 3

but pass with the following:

Hearts — 7, 6, 2
Clubs — A, K, 7, 2
Diamonds — 8, 4, 3, 2
Spades — Q, 2

In other words, don't bid four card suits without at least half a trick (a guarded king) on the side. The four card suit bids are also interesting as second round or take-out bids. For example, the dealer bid one spade on the following hand:

Hearts — K, Q, 9, 2
Clubs — 7, 6
Diamonds — 10, 8, 4
Spades — A, Q, 10, 2

Second hand passed and the dealer's partner bid one trump on the following hand:

Hearts — A, 8, 7, 6
Clubs — J, 4
Diamonds — A, K, 9, 3, 2
Spades — 9, 3

His opponents passed and opened clubs, running off five club tricks before he got the lead. If the dealer had bid two hearts, his other four card suit, he would have made game. Such hands are semi-two suiters and frequently work out better at the suit bid than at no-trump.

Another point to consider in the bidding of four card suits occurs when holding the 4-4-4-1 or 5-4-4 type of distribution. For example, suppose as dealer you hold the following hand:

Hearts — A, K, J, 4
Clubs — 4
Diamonds — A, Q, 10, 6
Spades — K, 9, 4, 3

and bid one diamond. Second hand passes and your partner bids one no-trump. You should then bid two hearts for the 4-4-4-1 type of hand plays far better at a suit bid, and you should try to find the best bid for the combined hands.

Here's another example. Suppose your partner bids one no-trump, second hand passes and you hold the following hand:

Hearts — 9, 8, 4, 3
Clubs — A, Q, J, 7
Diamonds — A, 9, 4, 2
Spades — 10

With this hand you should bid two clubs. This type of hand is hopeless as a no-trump proposition so try for a suit bid, and in doing so, try to find the suit bid that is the best for the combined hands.

Here's still another example. Suppose as dealer you hold the following hand:

Hearts — A, 10, 9, 7, 2
Clubs — none
Diamonds — A, K, Q, 4
Spades — A, Q, J, 7

With this hand, first bid one spade and if overbid, show the heart bid. Then if you have another chance, bid diamonds. With a hand as strong as this one, it is almost a certainty that you can go game in the suit that best matches up with your partner's, so you should try to find that suit.

The following hands were given as problems in the preceding article. There is no score, you are the dealer and have bid one no-trump. Second hand has passed, your partner has bid two spades and fourth hand has passed. What would you now bid?

Hand No. 1
Hearts — Q, 7, 2
Clubs — A, K, 7, 3
Diamonds — K, 6
Spades — 10, 9, 4, 2

Hand No. 2
Hearts — Q, 10, 6, 3
Clubs — A, J, 5, 2
Diamonds — K, Q, 7
Spades — Q, 4

Hand No. 3
Hearts — J, 10, 4, 2
Clubs — K, J, 7
Diamonds — A, K, Q, 6
Spades — 7, 6

With Hand No. 1, you should pass. You have fine help for the spade bid and it offers a better chance for game than the no-trump. With Hand No. 2, the writer would bid two no-trump. It is a close hand but the no-trump offers a slightly better chance for game than the spades. With hand No. 3 the two no-trump bid is obligatory. With only two small spades a game in that suit is unlikely and yet the hand is strong enough to try for game in no-trump.

Answer to Problem No. 17

Hearts — K, 7
Clubs — 6, 5, 4
Diamonds — 9, 8, 6, 2
Spades — A, K, Q, 4

Hearts — 10, 6, 5
Clubs — 9, 2
Diamonds — Q, 10, 7
Spades — 10, 9, 8, 5, 2

: Y :
: A B :
: Z :

Hearts — J, 8, 3
Clubs — A, K, Q, 10, 8, 3
Diamonds — 5, 3
Spades — J, 6

Hearts — A, Q, 9, 4, 2
Clubs — J, 7
Diamonds — A, K, J, 4
Spades — 7, 3

There is no score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one heart, A and Y passed and B bid two clubs. Z bid two hearts and all passed. A opened the nine of clubs and B won the first two tricks with the king and queen. He then led the ace of clubs which Z trumped with the nine of hearts and A over trumped with the ten. A now led the six of hearts. How can Z so play the hand that he will make the balance of the tricks against any defense? Z should win this trick with the king of hearts in dummy and then lead out his three remaining heart tricks. On these tricks A is forced to make two discards. If he discards two spades, dummy's spades are good. If he discards one or more diamonds, Z's diamonds are good. No matter what he does, YZ must score game. It is a fine example of the "squeeze," that is, the forcing of one hand to discard winning cards.

HELEN WILLS DISGUSTED WITH COMMERCIALISM OVER TENNIS

Continues In Contest To Avoid Misconstruction of Default.

BETS 5 TO 1 NOW.

CANNES, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—The commercialism which has been entering into Riviera tennis, as exemplified by the sale of the exclusive moving picture rights to a private firm and heavy betting on her match with Mlle. Lenglen, nearly caused Miss Helen Wills the United States champion, to scratch yesterday from the singles play in the Carlton club tournament and for a few hours jeopardized the meeting between the French and United States champions.

So disgusted was the California girl with the manner in which the organization has handled the tournament that, according to the belief expressed by her friends, only the thought that the default would be interpreted throughout the world as fear to meet Mlle. Lenglen in a singles combat, prevented her from announcing her retirement.

May Meet Sunday.

The elements in the shape of torrential rains, necessitating postponement of Tuesday's events in the tournament, have conspired to delay the Lenglen-Wills match another day. Sunday, February 14, now appears the most probable date for their meeting.

Interest in the meantime is growing, and odds are freely offered in the Cannes, Nice and Monte Carlo casinos on the contest.

The managements of three casinos aver that they are total strangers to any gambling on their premises, except legalized soule, roulette and baccarat and that any betting on tennis is done outside their jurisdiction. Nevertheless, a Greek syndicate, which for three years has ruled supreme over the baccarat tables at Deauville and Cannes, announced yesterday that it has five million francs it is willing to wager on Mlle. Lenglen against one million francs on Mills Wills. Even money in small and large amounts that the California girl doesn't win five games in two sets is the most frequent bet.

Like Race Track.

Both Miss Wills and Mlle. Lenglen have showed great annoyance on learning of the reports of the heavy betting, but Helen, with her usual philosophy remarked to the guests at a tea: "I suppose you cannot prevent gamblers from betting on anything. But it seems rather incongruous that the tennis activities of two young women are treated like a race track feature or a boxing match.

Suzanne, dancing at the Cannes casino, remarked to her partner: "It is so silly; but I am pleased to see that I am a five to one favorite."

There is much discontent among the British and United States cameramen over the sale of the exclusive picture rights, which is said to have been for $100,000, and they are arranging to "shoot" the match from the top of nearby buildings and other vantage points.

Two thousand extra seats are being erected, and the price of tickets for Saturday and Sunday has doubled, but, even so speculators are reaping a harvest and are offering best reserved seats for ten times the original price.

PLANNED HER GAME

BERKELEY, Calif., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press). — Betting odds which make Suzanne Lenglen, world's tennis champion, a five to one favorite over Helen Wills, United States titleholder, are described as "ridiculous by William C. "Pop" Fuller, veteran coach, who is largely responsible for Miss Wills' great success. Discussing the coming net battle of the two stars in France, "Pop" said yesterday:

"I had a long talk with Miss Wills before she left and together we outlined her campaign.

"Her game will be centered around a hard-hitting, driving attack and she will attempt to keep her rival from the net where she is so deadly. A lobbing game against Suzanne in singles would be suicide and Helen knows this.

"Miss Wills realizes that she cannot match Mlle. Lenglen in ability to cover court—being much slower of foot—and this means that she will have to put added speed on her shots."

Three challenges from the United States and one from Canada have been received for the Duke of York's international trophy, to be competed for in Great Britain next June.

AMERICAN LEAGUE BARS RESIN BALL

Would Return Freak Deliveries Abolished in 1920.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—The use of resin by American League pitchers will not be permitted this year, the club owners of the league ruled yesterday in unanimously opposing the rule recently adopted at a meeting of the joint rules committee of the major leagues in New York.

The magnates, without a single exception opposed the rule on the ground that such modification would influence the return of freak deliveries which were abolished from baseball in 1920.

Ban Johnson, president of the league, in explaining the action, said the league could nullify the action of the joint rules committee if it was unanimously approved.

Asked how the action would affect World's Series' competition, since the National League has voted for use of resin, President Johnson said special rules would have to be adopted for the series.

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

Zack Wheat, Brooklyn's famous outfielder, has been in the majors since 1909. He's one of the oldest players in point of service in the big leagues.

But up until the 1925 season Wheat had never been able to reach the century figure in scoring runs, despite the fact he was seldom out of the lineup. Several times the Dodger got over the 90-mark, twice bringing in 92 counters. In one campaign — 1917—he scored only 38 runs.

Last season, however, Wheat jumped into the elite circle, crossing the plate 125 times in 150 games. His efforts ranked him third in the National League, Pittsburg, and Hornsby, Cardinals, being the only players to outscore the veteran Brooklyn pastimer.

ST. PATS LOSE TO MONTREAL

Beaten at Home Five Goals To Three—Canadiens Beat Pirates.

WIN FOR BRUINS.

TORONTO, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press)—Once again Eddie Gerrard's Montreal Maroons proved too strong for St. Patrick's, the second placers winning last night's National League fixture at the Arena by 5 to 3, after the score had been tied three times in the first thirty minutes. Twice during this time the Montreal team had come from behind to tie the count while the locals overtook the winners on one occasion.

Canadiens 4; Pittsburg 2

MONTREAL, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press)—Canadiens drew one game closer to Pittsburgh and third position in the National Hockey League race when they beat the Pirates here last night by 4 to 2. Their team weakened by the absence of Howie Morenz, who is out with an injured ankle, and of Mantha, who underwent a minor operation yesterday afternoon, Canadiens had their backs to the wall. Sheer fight pulled them through to victory over the speedy buccanneers in a cleanly fought battle in which only three penalties were awarded.

Boston 4; New York 0

BOSTON, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press) — Boston Bruins continued their winning streak last night by defeating Tommy Gorman's temperamental New York Americans 4 to 0. The visitors gave a rather poor exhibition, and the score would have been much bigger but for the marvelous goal tending of Vernon Forbes.

OMEMEE WON HOCKEY GAME

Beat C. P. C. 3-1 in Close Struggle at Omemee.

COMBINED WELL.

The C. P. C. team journeyed to Omemee last night to be beaten in a fast game by a 3 to 1 score. The Packers faded in the last period after leading 1 to 0 at the close of the second period. The Packers became disorganized under the pressure and combination of the Omemee forwards. The lighting system also bothered Mein in the C.P.C. goal, while Tripp in the opposing nets played a sensational game and seemed right at home. Porky Morton starred for Omemee, showing a good turn of speed and a wicked shot, While Halliday was the most consistent player on the Packers' team.

The Teams.

Omemee: Goal, Tripp, defence A. Clemett and W. Morton; forwards, N. Clemett, G. Morton, F. Crofton. Subs., Stephens, McKay and Falconer.

C. P. C.: Goal, Mein; defence, Halliday, Oxley; forwards, Maudsley, Holland, LeBarr. Subs., Chambers and Whitehouse.

DISTRICT CROWD AT STIRLING GAME

New Rink Packed To Roof For Marmora Game.

BURNBRAE, Feb. 9 — That the true lover of hockey will not recognize any obstacle that prevents him from attending games, was evidenced Monday night by the crowd that attended the Stirling-Marmora game played in Stirling's new rink. Burnbrae and Menie sent a large contingent of ardent fans, and other districts must have done as well, as the rink was packed to the rafters. The line-up of cars would have been a credit to a fall fair much less a hockey match in mid-winter. Stirling lost the game after getting a 2-0 lead in the first ten minutes.

The boys of S. S. No. 11 and S.S. No. 1 staged an interesting hockey match on Mr. Fred Hay's marsh last week, the score being 4-3 in favor of No. 1. Messrs. Elliott and Fairman are the teachers and are endeavoring to promote good, clean sport among the junior members of the communities here.

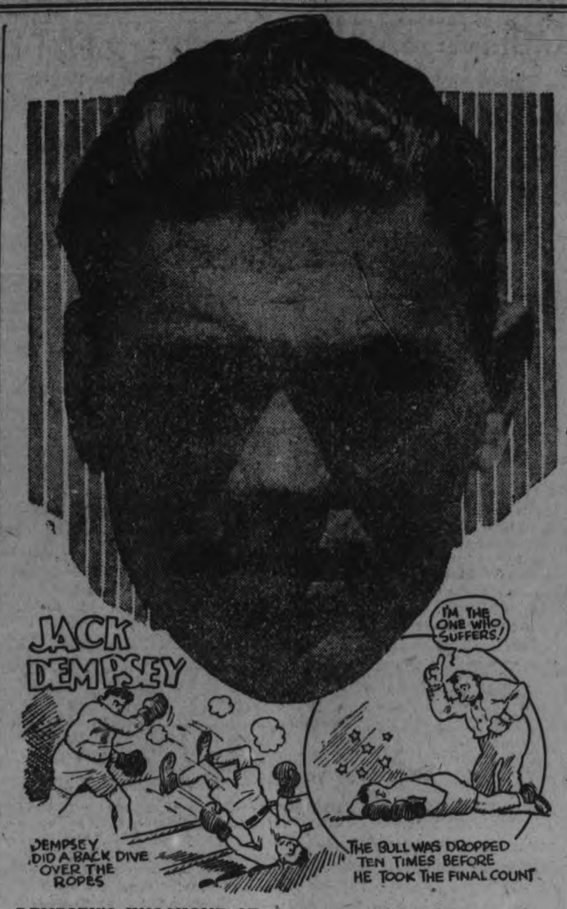
Skating and hockey continue as the chief sport at Hoards and the open air rink is well patronized. The Boards hockey team made its edbut last week by beating a visiting team from Stockdale by a 4-2 score.

CURLERS AT TORONTO.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10. — Two rinks of curlers are at Toronto playing in the district cup competition, the preliminary round of which was played in Belleville last week. The rinks are: J. P. Archer, W. S. Wiggins, P. Sarginson, S. J. Moore (skip); Joe Poulton, Marshall West, H. Denike, R. H. Cole (skip).

OMEMEE TEAM LOST 3-2.

OMEMEE, Feb. 10.—The Junior hockey team travelled to Lindsay by C.N.R. on Saturday last and met the Juniors of that town in a return game. Both teams worked hard, but the Lindsayites proved too much for the Greyhounds, and they met defeat by one goal, the score being 3-2 in favor of Lindsay.



DEMPSEY'S KNOCKOUT OF FIRPO BIG THRILL.

(By Joe Williams.)

Let them tell you of the historic fight in which Jim Corbett pecked the rotund John L. to fragments in 21 rounds at New Orleans back in the romantic 90's.

Let them tell you of the two bruising, bloody fights between the barrel-chested Tom Sharkey and the stoical Jim Jeffries, two hammer-and-tongs battles that went 20 and 25 rounds, respectively.

Let them recount again the dramatic details of that March day at Carson City, Nev., when old Bob Fitzsimmons buried his explosive knockout punch deep into Corbett's innards.

Let them tell you of Jess Willard's notable triumph over Jack Johnson, the fugitive negro champion, under a boiling sun in 26 rounds at Havana in 1915.

Then suppress a yawn and tell them about the GREATEST HEAVYWEIGHT FIGHT EVER HELD ANYWHERE—

When Jack Dempsey battered Luis Angel Firpo, "The Wild Bull of The Pampas," into an unrecognizable heap in two rounds on the night of September 14, 1923, at the Polo Grounds with 85,000 persons gazing down on the primitive spectacle, too emotionally excited to cheer.

Into four minutes of fighting were crowded 12 knockdowns. Ten times the South American was on the floor. Once the American champion was on his knees. Another time he was completely out of the ring, having been slammed through the ropes by the savagery of the bull's snorting attack.

Skill? There was none. Science? This detail was mutually ignored. Generalship? Neither had time for such a refined procedure. This was a FIGHT, the kind of fight men in the outlands hold, the kind that made the old Bowery a district of stark terror, the kind that show a blood relation between man and beast.

The fight lasted one round and 57 seconds. I know of no better way to tell the story than to reprint the blow-by-blow description.

Round One.

Dempsey missed a left to the body and Firpo counted with a short right jolt to the jaw that dropped Dempsey to one knee. Few saw the punch, it was so speedily delivered, but it hurt. Coming out of a clinch, Dempsey hooked a left to the jaw and Firpo went down for a two count. Dempsey dove forward and landed a heavy left to the waistline, dropping Firpo again, this time for a three count. Another left to the body and the bull stayed down for a nine. A right to the head toppled the bull again, but he was up immediately.

Dempsey twice more floored the bull and twice more he climbed to his feet without taking a count. Dempsey, clearly bewildered, stood back, and the bull, swinging both hands like pistons, lunged forward. A right hand caught Dempsey on the jaw and the American champion did a literal backward dive over the ropes out of the ring, landing on his back among the newspaper men.

Dempsey was partially helped back into the ring and was on his feet in fighting attitude before Referee Johnny Gallagher passed "nine" in his count. Dempsey was clearly stunned. Firpo, madly excited, continued to rain blows on him but without effect. At the bell Dempsey was launching a new attack, completely recovered.

Round Two.

Firpo was breathing heavily. Dempsey, for the first time in the fight, appeared cool, unflustered, confident. Firpo missed a hard right and Dempsey counted with a hook to the jaw and two shots to the body, dropping the bull. Dempsey sent a terrific right to the body and the bull went down again, taking a five count. "Make him wipe off his gloves," shouted the hysterical Kearns from Dempsey's corner. But Dempsey waited for nothing. With the bull back on his feet, Dempsey, now "the killer" of old, moved forward, fired a left hook to the jaw and a right to the same spot—a beautiful one-two punch—and the bull dropped as if poleaxed. Dempsey stepped over his body and walked to his corner, while Gallagher chanted the count.

BILLY EVANS Says:

HOME RUN RECORD.

Making 59 home runs in one season is a man's job.

Babe Ruth says he doesn't expect to break the record made in 1921, despite the fact that his physical condition is the best it has ever been at this time of the year.

I have always believed the 59 home runs in one season was one record that would never be broken. So I agree with Babe when he says he is going to keep on trying, but fears he will not make the grade.

There are two reasons why Ruth will find it a most difficult task to make 60 home runs in 1926. The ball isn't as lively and he is no longer playing at the Polo Grounds.

While the Yankee Stadium has a short right field, it is not nearly so soft picking as the Polo Grounds. Babe used to hit them in with one hand when playing there.

Enthused over his fine physical condition, Ruth announces he is good for seven more years. Maybe.

Ruth's legs will fail him long before his batting eye gives out. Babe's legs are frail for so heavy a body.

ABOUT DEMPSEY.

Despite the fact that Jack Dempsey has ruled the heavyweight division for a long time, due to superiority over the class plus an unwillingness to fight often, he is seldom given a high rating by those who have opposed him in the ring.

Georges Carpentier, over here to gather in some more soft money, isn't very complimentary in speaking of Dempsey, even though he kissed the canvas in his championship bout.

"A fast moving fighter has no reason to fear Dempsey," says Carpentier. "He isn't a hard hitter against a moving target. He is at his best against a slow moving fighter like Willard or Firpo.

"Dempsey is a crusher, he punishes you when in close. When I fought him in Jersey City, I didn't mind his punching at long range, it was in the clinches he beat me. I can still feel some of those rabbit punches that landed on the back of my neck."

Every fighter I have talked with relative to Dempsey, believes he will lose to the first good man that opposes him. Most of them, however, are of the opinion that he will never fight again.

* * *

It will be interesting to note what action is taken relative to the use of resin. The National League is in favor of permitting the pitchers to dabble with it, while the American takes the opposite view. The rules committee by a vote of 5 to 3 favors it.

There is no question but that resin would enable the pitchers to doctor the ball. It would be an easy matter to use it in the loading of the seams. This was the type ball that made Eddie Cicottee so effective.

If the two leagues decide to use their own judgment in the matter, it would make things very unpleasant in the world series.

If such is the case, resin would probably be permitted in all games played at the National League parks and not at the American.

* * *

It took years to legislate the trick stuff out of the game, to go back to be a step in the wrong direction.

RALLY BY LAKEFIELD JUNIORS ALMOST TIED MARKHAM'S SCORE

Second Round Junior O. H. A. Game Fast and Clean.

SCORE WAS 6 TO 5.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 10. — Five fast goals in the last period after they had been blanked in the first two left Lakefield Juniors one goal down in their game with Markham here last night, the final score being 6 to 5 in favor of the visitors. It was one of the fastest and cleanest games ever seen in Lakefield in the Junior O.H.A. series. Markham led by 3 to 0 at the end of the first period, and raised the count to 5 to 0 at the second intermission.

The teams were as follows:

Markham—Goal, Lunan; defence, Underwood and Stevenson; centre, Mason; wings, Crosley and Andrews; subs., M. Glendenning and E. Glendenning.

Lakefield—Goal, Junkin; defence, Loosemoore and Morin; centre, Wannamaker; wings, Northey and Stabler; subs., Pullen and Cockburn.

Referee—W. Jackson, Peterboro.

Only two penalties for minor offences were handed out Crosby of Markham and Stabler of Lakefield joining the timers for brief periods.

Markham had much the heavier team, but they did not use their weight unduly. Lunan, in goal, played a wonderful game for the visitors, while Underwood and Stevenson were clever and fast.

Lakefield's Juniors drew a bye this season, and were handicapped last night by lack of practice. This was the first occasion the team played together, and they did remarkably well, especially in the last period, when they swarmed around the Markham defence.

In the first two periods Underwood scored two, Stevenson two, and Andrews one. In the final, Underwood added another to the Markham string and then Lakefield started, their goals going to Morin, Northey, Loosemoore Wannamaker, and Cockburn.

The rink was packed not only with village fans but also many from the surrounding district.

FRATERNAL VISIT OF YOUNG PEOPLE

Members of Burnbrae Society Visited Campbellford.

ENJOYABLE EVENING.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10. — The Young People's Society of the Burnbrae Presbyterian Church paid a fraternal visit to their sister society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, Monday evening, and spent a most enjoyable and profitable evening which could not fail to strengthen the bonds that have always held these societies in close communion in an important branch of church work. There were over 60 visitors from Burnbrae and the local contingent swelled the total to over 200, as the Refreshment Committee had provided exactly that number of cups for the banquet that followed the regular programme and the supply proved inadequate.

After Rev. James Grier had welcomed the visitors on behalf of the young people and of the congregation, the visitors took charge of the meeting, with Grant Thain, the President, in the chair, and put on a programme that showed careful preparation and which was thoroughly appreciated by the members of the home society and their friends. This programme consisted of a musical selection by a quartette composed of Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Taylor and Mrs. George Craighead and George Donald; a solo by Malcolm Hutchins, a clever juvenile vocalist, who appeared in the costume of an Indian chief, and sang as an encore a verse of the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee" in the Cree language.

One of the numbers of the evening's entertainment was "The Old Maid's Song," rendered by 11 of Burnbrae's most personable young ladies, arrayed in out-of-date costumes, who bemoaned the fates of maidens who have reached middle age without winning as much as a caress from a member of the opposite sex. The ladies who impersonated these luckless members of their sisterhood were Misses Jessie Linn, Annie Hobbs, Helen Oddie, Emma, Nellie and Elsie Bennett, Jean and Emily Craighead, Sylvia Whitton, Emily Little and Kate Hobbs. Even the disguises failed to conceal the fact that these young ladies are in no imminent danger of meeting with the fate which they so musically anticipated and deplored. There was a reading by Miss Margaret Milne, a duet by Mrs. Victor Taylor and Mrs. Charles Milne, an old-time song rendered in costume, a reading by Miss Hazel McKenzie, a duet by Fern Wetherell and Malcolm Hutchions, a solo by George Donald and a one-act play in which the parts were taken by Misses Hazel McKenzie and Luella Matthews and Robert Matthews and Marshall Millar.

Mrs. Victor Taylor and Miss Jean Craighead acted as accompanists for the visiting vocalists.

During the evening the pastor of the Burnbrae Church, Rev. D. A. McKenzie, delivered a brief address, in which he pointed out to the young people the many advantages which they enjoy as compared to those which were afforded their forefathers. He reminded them that these advantages increased their responsibilities, and that greater things were expected of them than their ancestors with the limited opportunities were able to attain.

Refreshments were served by the members of the Campbellford Society and the proceedings were brought to a close with an interchange of courtesies; J. A. Anderson and Rev. James Greer moving a vote of thanks to the visitors for the fine programme which they had provided, and Victor Taylor returning the compliment to the hosts of the evening for their hospitality.

HOCKEY NOTES

(Belleville Ontario)

The fans about the city are all having about the wonderful improvement in the playing of Stan Hagerman and Billy Goyer, but Hagerman in particular. This boy was not very good last winter, in fact he never really tried, but this winter he started out to show the boys that he had ability and right now he is the best right winger in the group and can also play some game in centre ice. Stanley never was very much in getting goals, but this season he is right up with the leaders. He is always aggressive but fair and sportsmanship is his middle name. Thursday night a fine example of this was given. When Mort. Kennedy was hurt, Stan. was the first boy to him and he immediately picked him up and held his head until he came too. The penalty that he received in the last period was certainly not coming to him as he was out of the play entirely and Garrand skated into him. Steve Vair was a little hasty in his decision which he regretted after the game for he came into the room and apologized.

All the sport scribes attribute great age to Vernon Weir and Papa Frechette. Vernon is quite young and will be playing a little longer than some of the boys that he is teaming with at present. It is just a few short years since he graduated from the junior class. Every game sees an improvement in his playing and a cleaner player never stepped on the ice. Frego overstepped the boundary when he picked on Vernon to give him the boards. All the harsh words and threats that Frego received for his act was a smile. As a backchecker Weir has no equal in this group.

Curling, which originated in Scotland, now has many followers not only in Great Britain and Ireland, but in Canada, the United States, Scandinavia, Switzerland and New Zealand.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 25—OFFENSE ON OPEN COURT THOW-IN

Playing conditions and regulations are different in various sections and districts. Steel or wire partitions are used in some instances to "cage" the playing surfaces while open courts are the order for play at the other style of game.

Gradually open courts are coming more and more into use generally throughout the country. The Middle Atlantic States, the stronghold of the cage game, are rapidly being won over to the open court game and I see no other result except complete abolition of cages within a very short space of time.

There are rules to guide offense and defense plays on throw-in from out-of bound in the open court game the same as there is on the tap-off. Certain laws must be followed to make the most of scoring opportunities for the ball gong out-of bounds.

When one of your players tosses the ball back into the playing zone use your powers of elusiveness the same as you would on the tap-off out-of bound in the open court game the same as there is on the tap-off. plays. Start and stop, make false moves and gestures, throw your hips and pivot—anything to break loose from your opponents. Keep separated rather than bunched so that you'll have freedom to move about.

Forget where the other team is playing so far as their positions are concerned in relation to yours. Let them worry about you. The ball in the hands of one of your players puts you on the offense and your opponents on the defense. It's up to them to guard; it's your part to break away.

Director Alan Crossland selected Estelle Taylor, Jack Dempsey's wife, to portray the role of Lucrezia Borgia in John Barrymore's "Don Juan," because, as he declared, "she is the perfect type."

After decreeing Estelle "the perfect type," the director had the actress don a blond wig to conceal her black tresses and paste a heavy and dark make-up over her fair complexion.

Woman of mystery is Jetta Goudal, French film frappe, who paints make-believe emotion on the DeMille cinema canvasses. She is a continental musical comedy with the comedy gone forever. No one knows her history here save the whisperings that followed in her wake.

The story that is told concerns a man in her native land who broke her heart . . . sorrow caused self-banishment and drove her into Hollywood's picture potpourri. (Penalty ad fini) Red blotches of anger stain her olive-tinted face when one refers to this man left behind or any man who may loom on the road ahead.

That is why you never see Jetta Goudal in the Montmartre or on the Boulevard or anywhere else in the company of a male escort. She has never had a date since coming here. She is Hollywood's most mysterious recluse.

Will Hays is having a cleansing effect on motion pictures.

When Louis B. Then he issued an order to capture the culprit responsible for the dastardly deed.

CHILDREN'S AID REQUEST IS CUT

Will Ask Council For Grant of $1,200 This Year.

TO HOLD TAG DAY.

The desire of the City Council to keep down the t . rat , backed by the unanimous wish of the general public to the same effect, and the contrary needs of ie.. engaged in community welfare work, and with a right to go to the council to ask for funds, were in conflict yesterday for a short time when a deputation from the council attended the monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society in the board room of the Chamber of Commerce, and asked that the Society's recent request for the sum of $1643 as this year's gra-t fro.. the city be shut down to a smaller amount.

Another elem.nt which entered into the discussion which followed, was what might be termed a 'strike' by the feminine members of the Children's Aid Society, the majority of whom declared in no uncertain terms that they were tire' of taking the burden of tag day all on their own shoulders and felt that some of the task should fall on the masculine re. . .entatives.

Both questions were settled rather easily and gracefully by the capitulation of the ladies, through their spokeswoman, Mrs. J. S. Fanning, when they consented once more to put on a tag day this year, and the Society as a whole decided to co-operate with the wish of the council, and to lower their request for a grant to the sum of $1200. Last year's grant was $1,000.

This year the Children's Aid Society decided to ask both city and county councils for larger grants than usual, with a view if possible to doing away with the annual tag day, which has been decreasing in the amount of its total for some years past. As the quota of children in the Shelter is larger from the county than from the city, a grant of $1909 was asked from the county, and $1000 of this has been granted, an increase of $200 over last year's county grant of $800.

Co-operation in the city's desire to keep the tax rate at as low a level as possible was the point maintained in the lowering of the society's request for civic funds. The various spokesmen of the delegation from the council, Mayor Holloway, Alderman R. Denne, Alderman J. Fife and Alderman Nagle Phelan, who were accompanied by City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, stressed this point with great emphasis, reminded the members also that an increased tax rate would have the same effect on their pocketbooks as it would have on the finances of their fellow-citizens, and regretted that the society's annual tag day was about to be abandoned. In the discussion which developed later, it was asserted that no motion to abolish the tag day had ever gone before the Board, but that complaints as to an excessive amount of hard work for an unequal and diminishing return had influenced the society in a desire to obtain a larger city and county grant with a view to doing away, if possible, with the unremunerative tag day.

There was an element of veiled reproof in the utterances of some of the gentlemen of the Board, when they referred to the excellence of tag day, and expressed the opinion that the modern tendency to do away with anything that is hard and laborious in in the daily round was creeping into the minds of those members who favored its abolition. The ladies countered this atmosphere by declaring that they had borne the burden of arrangements and toil on tag day for as long as they cared to do so, and were quite willing to let the men or anyone else handle it hereafter.

One of the gentlemen then made a tentative suggestion that the tag day be carried on by the male members, and reference was made to the excellent work in this respect done in years past by Ex-Alderman Walter Stocker. There was an apparent unanimity of opinion in the resolution that proposed Mr. Stocker as a member of this year's board, one man remarking feelingly: "We need him for tag day," and he was duly elected forthwith.

However, the capitulation of the ladies signalized their acceptance of the major burden of tag day for one year more at least, and their desire to co-operate with the wish of the council in keeping down the tax rate.

Mayor Holloway, when referring to the requests for funds made by different spending bodies, spoke of the high costs to the city of education, and the demands of the Board of Education, which are considered excessive. The cost of education to the city for every day in the year is $612, and for every actual school day in the year, the cost is $1200. His Worship also said that the Library Board was asking for an increase in its grant. The Health Association, he said, and the Nicholls Hospital Board had united with the city's desire to keep down the rate to such an extent that both had signified their intention of refraining from approaching the council for a grant this year.

Routine Business.

In the absence of Mr. Ackerman, the chair was taken yesterday by the first vice-president, Mrs. W. H. Gibbs. Other members present were Messrs. Edgar, Powell, Abraham, Hopwood, Dobbin, Rev. R. C. FACTS ABOUT ELECTRIC UTILITY

NUMBER TWO

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—The cost of light and power to the citizens of Peterborough, under City ownership of the Electric distributing system, and the receiving of power from the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, is easily ascertained, as it is published each year. It is a gratifying feature of the City's ownership of this utility, that the business has grown each year. The revenue received for domestic light by the City has increased from $40,043.65 in 1917 to $80,417.54 in 1924 (the last published report of the Hydro Commission). But while the revenue from domestic light has increased 100 per cent, the quantity of electricity used in the homes has increased 220 per cent. The net cost per K.W.H. for domestic light in 1917 was 4.1 cents and in 1924 it was 2.6 cents.

The revenue increased because the quantity sold had grown rapidly and the cost was reduced by nearly one half.

There has been a similar growth in Commercial lighting.

The revenue from Commercial lighting increased from $26,601.65 in 1917 to $41,591.42 in 1924, an increase of 56 per cent, but the quantity of current used increased in the same time from 613,865 K.W.H. to 2,411,775 K.W.H. and the cost to the customer decreased from 4.3 cents per K.W.H. to 1-7 cents per K.W.H.

The revenue from power did not increase to the same extent, but increased from $46,235.49 in 1917 to $67,445.87 in 1924, while the average cost per horse power remained practically stationary, being $16.10 in 1917 and $16.65 in 1924.

There is another way, too, of looking at the cost of electricity to the citizens, and that is by comparing what they have paid under City ownership with what the same use of electricity would have cost at the rates charged by the private company before the City took over the business.

Take the year 1924. The quantity of electricity used for domestic light was 3,119,460 K.W.H. The Light and Power Company's rate was 7 cents per K.W.H. and at that rate the cost to the citizens would have been $218,362.20, while what they actualy paid to the City was $80,417.54, a saving in one year of $137,944.66.

The quantity used in 1924 for Commercial light was 2,415,775 K.W.H. The Company's rate was 10 cents per K.W.H. and the cost to the business men at that rate would have been $241,177.50, while they actually paid in that year $41,591.42, a saving of $199,586.08.

A comparison of the cost of power is not so easily made, because the Company charged $20.00 per H.P. per year for quantities above 20 H.P., but smaller installations were charged a higher rate, up to $45.00 per H.P. The average horse power used in 1924 was 4,051 H.P., but as it is not known upon what quantity the Company charged a higher rate than $20.00, and also because the Company charged on the rated capacity of the motors or maximum demand, a fair comparison cannot be made. In the comparison, however, the difference is in favour of the Company's rates and against the City charges.

Taking the average Horse Power used in 1924, and counting as if it would all have been charged for at $20.00 a H.P., and also that the charge by the Company would have been on the average instead of on the rated capacity or peak, the cost of power would then have been $81,020.00, while the amount actually paid by the power users was $67,445.87, a saving on this basis of $13,574.13, although the saving actually was more.

The whole saving, then, to those who used light and power in 1924, with the disadvantage in the comparison as to power pointed out, was:—

In Domestic light	$137,944.66
In Commercial light	199,586.08
In Power	13,574.13
Total saving in one year..	$351,104.87

The saving from 1917 to 1924, both years inclusive, on the same basis of comparison, was $1,815,047.31.

As to power, the cost in Peterborough, as compared with other cities, assuming an 80 H.P. peak and an average consumption of 60 H.P. per month, is as follows, at the regular rates charged:

Peterborough	$17.88
St. Catharines	18.30
Ottawa	20.23
Guelph	20.52
Hamilton	20.62
St. Thomas	21.68
Niagara Falls	21.68
Kingston	21.68
Toronto	22.63
Welland	24.73
London	24.73
Kitchener	25.41
Owen Sound	25.87
Collingwood	25.87
Chatham	30.76
Galt	31.56
Stratford	32.37
Windsor	32.37
Sarnia	34.38
Brockville	37.20

PLAYERS TO BE PHOTOGRAPHED

Souvenir of Kiwanis-Rotary Game at Big Carnival.

Rotarian Fred Roy has consented to be on hand with his camera at the beginning of the Kiwanis-Rotary hockey match at the Rotary Carnival at Brock Street Rink on Monday night in order to take pictures of the participants.

This is considered necessary in view of the strenuous nature of the game, as it is felt their friends would like to have this souvenir of the gladiators.

Arrangements have been made for an adequate ambulance service, doctors have been warned for duty and everything is ready for the emergency.

This hockey match will only be one of many features of interest at the big carnival.

The turnout of skaters in costume promises to be a record-breaker, and some very attractive as well as some very amusing costumes are expected.

The skating races will supply a lot of excitement, and then will come the spectacular wind-up, the hockey match between Kiwanis and Rotary, which is expected to answer the question, "Where is the professional hockey league to look for its players?"

The proceeds all go to help Rotary's activities for crippled children and under-privileged boys.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

F. M. DELA FOSSE.

I find it hard to understand why my opinion should be asked on the question of the value of an annual exhibition in Peterboro, unless the fact may have leaked out that I was once a farmer and did my humble share towards attempting to benefit mankind by making two blades of grass grow on a property where none had ever had a chance to grow before My efforts in this direction extended over a term of years, made me realize how hard a task the farmer has, and how much we owe to him for the luxuries and the necessaries of life. I think therefore an exhibition is of value to any community in pressing this fact home and teaching the younger members of it how vitally important for our national existence is the development of our agricultural resources.

But an exhibition does far more than this, for it brings before us many diverse industries which serve to show us how very complex and widespread are the methods which make the wheels of commerce to revolve, and how civilization is year by year building on an ever-broadening basis. An exhibition gives everyone a chance to become acquainted with his neighbor, and thus to gain a better understanding of the interests of others. It is of value also as an advertising medium, probably the very best that can be imagined. I am convinced if the same spirit of goaheadativeness animated the hearts and minds of our citizens at large as animates the hearts of those who have the management of the exhibition in their keeping there would be less talk of hard times, for whole-hearted optimism working hand in hand with judicious advertising would soon bring prosperity to our city and countryside.

The sanest way of proving that optimism is by becoming members of the Exhibition Association. If we strengthen the hands of the directors in this way they can be relied upon to advertise Peterboro to the best advantage possible.

VALENTINE TEA HELD BY ST PAUL'S LADIES

W. M. S. Was in Charge of Very Successful Social.

The Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's church held a very successful tea yesterday afternoon in the guild room of the church, the proceeds to be devoted to the Expense Fund of the society. The sum of nearly $50 was realized.

Decorations were carried out with spring flowers and streamers of red hearts and Cupids. The guests were received by Mrs. Robert Hall and Mrs. Wm. Allan. The table, which was charmingly arranged with a filet cloth, centred by a large silver basket of red carnations, flanked by bud vases of spring flowers, silver candlesticks and decorated with kewpies and hearts, was presided over by Mrs. R. R. Hall and Mrs. R. H. Fortye. Arrangements for tea were in charge of Mrs. J. Garbutt, assisted by Mrs. Gordon Greer, Mrs. Fred Weir, Mrs. J. P. Pulkinghorn, Mrs. D. Jordan, Mrs. J. Savigny, Miss Elsie Cameron and Miss Erskine. Mrs. C. A. White acted as general convenor.

A table of home-made cooking was in charge of Mrs. S. Taylor and Mrs. H. Morgan.

During the afternoon, a pleasant musical programme was given, arranged by Mrs. R. W. Davidson, and including vocal solos by Miss Olive Cullen and Ronald Fleming, and violin selections by Mr. A. McEwen, with Mrs. W. A. Logan playing accompaniments.

DR. SEAGLE SAYS "THE FOOL" BUILDS UP UNDERSTANDING

Noted New Yorker Praises Fox Production of Channing Pollock's Great Play.

In making the William Fox screen version of Channing Pollock's stage success "The Fool," which comes to the Regent Theatre Monday next, Harry Millarde, the director, had the assistance of one of New York's most prominent clergymen, the Rev. Nathan A. Seagle, D.D., pastor of the fashionable St. Stephen's Episcopal Church there.

The advice and suggestion of Dr. Seagle were very valuable to Harry Millarde in building the monster cathedral interior where some of the most dramatic scenes in "The Fool" were filmed. This church "set" is perhaps the largest interior ever erected in a New York studio. Dr. Seagle aided in directing Edmund Lowe as the young minister who delivers a scathing sermon from the pulpit and also overseeing other parts of the church ritual which are observed in these scenes.

In commenting on his experiences in the Fox studio, the clergyman said: "It is such plays as 'The Fool' and such instances of co-operation between the church and the screen as this, that will serve eventually to bring about a perfect amity and understanding between the motion pictures and the church."

The cast includes the following principals: Edmund Lowe, Brenda Bond, Raymond Bloomer, Downing Clark and Riley Hatch.

CHOIR LARGER.

For many months the Executive committee of the Peterboro Male Voice Choir has been busily engaged in connection with the plans and arrangements for the big event of 1926. Final arrangements were completed at the meeting last night for the sixth annual concert of the Peterboro Male Voice Choir, to be held in the Grand Opera House on Friday night, March 26. The choir will be assisted by Mrs. Heloise Macklem, harpist (first harpist of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra), Toronto, also by Albert David "Canada's best knwn tenor" of Toronto, and Miss Agnes Logan, accompanist.

The choir this season has a membership of over seventy-five voices of splendid quality, with the tone balance excellent, and the way in which they sang the beautiful numbers last night was most gratifying and a real treat is in store for its many patrons

Subscription lists are already out and in the hands of the members of the Choir, and by the number of subscriptions reported already listed last night. It looks as though the entire house would be sold out for the event.

BOXING IN GERMANY.

Determination to put boxing right in Germany is great. The Union of German Boxers has decided to create two courts of appeal, the more important to consist of four representatives of the Boxers' Union, one sports writer and four independent sportsmen, one to be a doctor and another a legal man. This body will have power to grant and revoke licenses, control boxing throughout Germany and make rulings concerning titleholders.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM WEATHERSTONE.

The death occurred this morning at the family residence, 120 Hilliard Street, of William Weatherstone, an old and respected citizen of the city. The funeral announcement will be made later.

EDWARD C. DORMER.

The funeral of the late Edward (Eddie) Dormer took place yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. The many floral designs speak in highest terms of the sterling qualities, not only as a citizen but also as a friend in the Orange Order, of which he was a prominent and an ardent worker. His comrades of the Great War who were privileged to return with him, will miss his kindly smile and his cheerfulness in assisting with their endeavors in connection with the G.W.V.A. here. The funeral service, conducted by Rev. Mr. Todd and Rev. Mr. Patterson, was very impressive. Great tribute was paid to the deceased.

The bearers were comrades who had served with him overseas, with honorary bearers from the Orange Order and the R.B.P.

Interment was made in Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. ROBERT BOWERS.

The death occurred at the family residence, 251 Prince street, of Rhoda Orbell, widow of the late Robert Bowers, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 9th. She leaves to mourn her loss two daughters, Mrs. Arthur McLaren, of Peterborough, and Mrs. E. Hargraves, of Birmingham, England, one brother, Wm. Orbell, of Peterborough, and one sister, Mrs. Gardner, of Manchester, England.

The late Mrs. Bowers was a devoted member of St. James' United Church. The funeral will take place from the family residence on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Richards officiating.

FREDERICK ANDERSON.

Low twelve struck for the late Worshipful Brother Frederick Anderson of Norwood Lodge A.F. and A.M.

The funeral service was held at the family residence, 400 Bethune Street, Monday, February 8, and was conducted by the Rev. W. S. Rose, D.D., pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church, assisted by members of Peterboro Lodges representing the Norwood Lodge.

The Masonic ritual was read by Brother Richardson of Corinthian Lodge, and the pall was borne by Brothers Hughes, Campbell, Devey, Richardson and Hawthorne.

The service at the Lakefield Cemetery was conducted by Worshipful Master Graham of Lakefield Lodge.

The deceased brother was born in Dummer, and moved to Norwood in his youth, later became a member of the craft, and held its highest office. The Order to which he belonged and the community can ill afford to lose a member who so well exemplified the teachings of the craft and all have benefited by his association.

He left to mourn his loss, the widow and one son, Garfield, of Peterboro.

ANDREW McFARLANE

This afternoon, one of the older Peterborough citizens was laid to rest in the person of Andrew McFarlane who passed away unexpectedly on Wednesday, February 3, while visiting at the home of his son in Claremont, California.

The funeral today was under the auspices of the I.O.O.F. lodge No. 111 while the following acted as bearers: G. A Gillespie, D. H. Moore, J. I. Kidd, T. C. Elliott, William Savigny and Harry Long. After a service in the house the body was conveyed to Little Lake cemetery for interment.

The deceased was in his seventy seventh year and had lived his days in usefulness being at all times a valued citizen and interested in the welfare of others. He was born in 1849, was of Scottish parentage and came to Peterborough as a youth in 1868. For the past 45 years he has been connected with the William Hamilton Company and by his industry and talent succeeded in attaining the president's chair of that concern. It is said of him that he knew how to be fair alike to his employees and to the firm which he represented—a higher tribute than which cannot be paid to any business man.

Mr. McFarlane devoted considerable time to fraternal work. Last year he was accorded the fifty year jewel for his devoted service in the I.O.O.F. He was also a member of the Foresters. In addition he was an assiduous church worker, St. Andrews being the field for his efforts. He had been a member of the Board of Management in that institution for the past fifty years.

In political circles the deceased was a prominent Liberal and was chairman of the Liberal Association in the time of the Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P.

Two of his children predeceased him, one son, W. G. McFarlane, died in 1906, while his eldest daughter, Mrs. J. H. Gain, of Toronto, died last year.

Those who remain to mourn his loss are, his sorrowing wife, Harriet Wells, three sons, Charles D. of Peterborough, J. Ernest of Claremont, Cal., and A. Bruce of Vancouver, B.C., and two daughters, Mrs. W. D. Wilgar of Peterborough and Mrs. R. G. McCuish of Vancouver, B.C.

PONZI WORRIES ABOUT HIS WIFE

Indictment For Alleged Violation of Realty Law a Shock.

AVOIDED POLICE.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 10 (Canadian Press)—Though authorities have extended their search to the entire state for Charles Ponzi, indicted Monday for violation of a state law, in connection with his real estate operations, newspapermen claimed last night, Ponzie was in Jacksonville and that they had interviewed him.

They said they found Ponzi at the office of an attorney who has been retained by the land promoter.

"I do not want to make any statement at present as it is an embarrassing situation," Ponzi was quoted as having said.

"The indictment was a shock to her," they said he declared in referring to his wife about whom he seemed to be worried.

Ponzi, his wife and two associates were indicted here on four counts of alleged violation of the "Declaration of Trusts" laws as a result of his dealing in real estate since his arrival here from Boston.

The indictments against Ponzi and his associaties were said to be the first step in the recently announced campaign of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce and the National Business Bureau of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, to clear the Florida real estate field of alleged unscrupulous dealers.

A standing vote of the audience gave an indefinite decision as it proved impossible to count such a huge audience.

MARK ST. MEN WERE BANQUETTED

Formation of Men's Association Was Discussed at Meeting.

A very enjoyable function was held last night in the basement of the Mark Street church, when about 80 members assembled for a banquet given for the men of the congregation and catered for by the Ladies' Aid Society. Rev. R. T. Richards acted as chairman, and community singing was led by Mr. V. Boorman.

During the evening, numbers were given by a male quartette composed of Messrs. Speer, Mills, Boorman and W. J. Smith, also several vocal solos by Mr. Mills. An inspiritional address was given by Rev. J. E. Todd, pastor of the George street church, and it was decided to organize a Men's Association in the church. GRATUITIES LARGE IN LUNCHEON BILL

Auditor-General's Criticism of Several London Payments.

OTTAWA, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—One of the criticisms contained in the Auditor-General's report, the second volume of which was tabled in the House of Commons Tuesday, is that of the method of authorizing expenditure incurred in June, 1924, at the Ritz Hotel in London for a luncheon given by Canada in connection with the Wembley Exhibition. The Auditor-General complains that the bill was approved only by an official of the Government instead of by the Governor-in-Council. The luncheon, described as "C.M.A. Luncheon, cost £330 9s 6d. It consisted of 173 covers at 32s 6d floral decorations £21, services of usher £2 7s, and gratuities "as requested" £26.

The same criticism is applied to an expenditure out of petty cash by the same official of £37 11s 11d for a "luncheon to the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association." Petty cash payments, says the report, ought not to exceed £5. Above that, authority of the Governor-in-Council should be given for disbursements.

The explanation given by the officials is that this item was chargeable to advertising. While other Dominions had paid big sums for space in newspapers, Canada had received much free advertising and the opportunity of recognizing the courtesy and assistance had been seized while certain pressmen were in London.

POLICE OFFICER BEFORE BOARD

Commissioner Starnes Tells of Work of R.C.M.P. at Customs Probe.

BOIVIN PRESENT.

OTTAWA, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—The examination of Commissioner Courtland Starnes of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, featured today's sitting of the committee of the House of Commons which is investigating the administration of the Canadian customs department. Mr. Starne's brought a number of files dealing with investigations made by his force on behalf of the customs department. These included a number of drug and smuggling cases. Confidential reports on what was described as "the Bisaillon case" and also on the "Lortie-St. George case,' were included in those landed over to the committee today. These are to be revealed to members of the committe only and will not be made available for publication.

One of the points the Commissioner was questioned upon was that of whether cases were dropped on instructions from somebody after seizures had actually been made. Mr. Starnes could give no information on the point, and was willing to produce his monthly reports showing cases investigated reported to the department concerned, and whether or not prosecution had followed. The R.C.M.P. did not prosecute, but reported to the department administering the Act.

In answer to the question, Mr. Starnes said that the detachment station at Phillipsburg, Que., on the international border, had been removed three years ago. He did not know whey. Perhaps for reasons of economy. Hon. R. B. Bennett commented that the RC.M.P. had officers on the border in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia, and Ontario, but not in Quebec.

Early in the proceedings, Mr. Stevens objected to some remarks of Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs and took occasion to formally object to Mr. Boivin sitting at the committee table and taking an active part on behalf of the Government. Mr. Boivin was not a member of the committee and his presence might intimidate witnesses who might be called from Government departments.

LINDSAY OPPOSES REMISSION OF TAX

Reeve O'Reilly Would Increase Gas Tax to Five Cents.

LINDSAY, Feb. 10. — Lindsay Town Council has gone on record in opposition to the campaign being waged by Hamilton, Toronto and other cities relative to the apportioning of the Provincial amusement tax between the province and the municipal corporations, as well as the remission of the gasoline tax on motor vehicles for police and fire departments as the vehicles do not use the highways for the construction and maintenance of which the tax is imposed.

The attack on these proposals was led by Reeve O'Reilly, who pointed out that the Province raised its money through taxes on its lands, mines and forests as well as its tax on gasoline and amusement. Toronto and other cities would be the gainer if the proposal to remit the gasoline tax was considered seriously. The Government used the money derived from the gas tax on the roads of the province, so that it was really returned to the people. The only fault he had to find with the gasoline tax was that it should be five cents instead of three cents in order that more money could be secured for road construction. If the Government did not raise money through the imposition of the amusement and gasoline tax, the people would be taxed through other channels.

BUY BRITISH COAL.

Big Increase in Shipments To the U. S. A.

LONDON, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—Lieutenant-Colonel G. R. Lane-Fox, Under-Secretary of State for Mines, replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday, said that 442,474 tons of coal had been exported from Great Britain to the United States during the four months which ended January 31, at an average price of 37s 7½d ($9.09) a ton, f.o.b. For the four months which ended January 31, 1925 he said, Great Britain exported to the United States 44,002 tons at an average price of 32s 0½d ($7.75) a ton, f.o.b.

WEEK'S SECOND BLIZZARD DEEPENED SNOW BLANKET OVER NEW ENGLAND, CLOSING SCHOOLS, COURTS AND FACTORIES, AND INCREASING WINTER'S FATALITIES

Transportation Suspended By Snow Barrier, and Expenditure of Millions For Snow Removal Last Thursday Completely Nullified.

16 DEATHS REPORTED AS RESULT OF STORM AND SCORES OF MINOR INJURIES

Distress of Miners' Families Aggravated — Rum Row Deserted as Gale Swept the Sea— Heavy Property Damage.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press) — Northeastern United States, the chosen battle ground for the elements, last night lay under two feet of snow as a result of the second blizzard to visit the region within a week.

Roaring down on the wings of northeast gales which piled up huge drifts on land and rolled up mountainous waves at sea, causing shipping to scurry to shelter, the storm laid a fresh covering ranging from 10 to 15 inches in depth over the snow blanket left by last Thursday's blizzard. Drifts are six to ten feet in height.

Sixteen deaths as a result of the storm were reported.

Three of them were in the wreck of the fishing schooner Ralph Brown near Gloucester, Mass., two in Connecticut, one in New York City, two in Boston and one in Philadelphia. Scores received minor injuries as a result of street accidents. Railroads were crippled motor and street car traffic was suspended or demoralized. Property damage was great, and the millions of dollars expended in removing the snow of last week from streets and highways went for naught.

All Activity Stalled

The storm raged through Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and last night was whirling up the Atlantic coast toward northern New England.

A survey of the area showed:

A score of railway trains stalled in New England and on Long Island! all schools in New York and Rhode Island, and many in other states, closed. County courts on Long Island; all schools in New York and Rhode Island, and many factories and business houses everywhere closing hours earlier than usual; all mail deliveries slowed up; all traffic in Boston harbor suspended, and trains, where running at all, seriously delayed.

The air mail service, for the second time since its inauguration, was suspended. All pilots between New York and Chicago remained at the hangars at which the start of the storm found them.

Shipping was hampered by the gale and heavy seas. Wireless stations reported a number of requests for radio compass bearings. The only casualty reported was the Ralph Brown, blown ashore at Briar Neck, near Gloucester. Eighteen of the crew of 21 were saved.

Plough Rammed Coupe

Throughout the storm area many cars were stalled. Near New Bedford, Mass., the coupe of Dr. Thomas Wolfe was completely buried. A snowplough crew discovered the coupe when their plough rammed into it. Dr. Wolfe was found safe inside.

In the anthracite regions the storm added fresh burdens to hundreds of families impoverished by the six months' strike of the miners.

In the larger cities a milk famine was threatened, due to the delay of numerous milk trains.

Rum row was left to its own devices as the coast guard patrol boats scurried to shelter.

However, the rough sea was considered a sufficient barrier to any unauthorized landing if liquor boats.

THE WEATHER.

The lowest point the thermometer went last night was 5 degrees below zero, while the preceding night it only got down to zero. Comparatively mild conditions now prevail throughout the west, while south of Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence heavy snow has again fallen.—W.P.

Right Of Lovelorn Swains and Maids Upheld In Court May Sit In Movies With Their Arms Around Each Other

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (United Press) — According to Magistrate MacCreary, Margaret Brown, 17, and John Crauford, 21, were within their legal rights when they sat in a movie theatre with their arms around each other.

"This innocent mode of displaying affection often leads to matrimony," MacCreary told a protesting theatre manager, and the case was dismissed.

LONDON BUSINESS MEN FORM CLUB TO SERVE JAIL TERM OF EX-ALD. DRAKE ON O.T.A. CHARGE

Say That He Refused To Sell Strong Beer and Revenge Was Cause.

NINE PLEDGED.

Eighteen More Are Required To Serve One Day Each.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 11 (Special to The Examiner) — Underdtaking the task in all seriousness, as a relief expedition for ex-Ald. Gordon Drake, now serving a thirty day term in the county jail, a group of London business men, meeting in a down town office building this morning formed the "Give a day for Drake Club," for the extraordinary purpose of enlisting twenty-seven men each to serve one day as a substitute for the ex-alderman at the county bastile.

The proposal was first advanced jestingly but almost immediately presented itself to a prominent insurance man as a feasible proposition. Telephone calls were sent out to a number, who, it was believed, would be interested and the meeting was the result. An effort was made to reach Warden Dawson of the county jail to ascertain what powers he had to accept substitutes for prisoners, but the warden was not available and his assistant referred the enquirers to the County Crown Attorney. The meeting thereat commissioned one of the associates to secure legal opinion and if it can be done they are to meet again this afternoon.

One of those who attended the meeting, a heavy real estate operator, offered to "underwrite" ten days and to enlist his recruits from the membership of a social organization. The man who laid the private complaint against Drake is said to have been a member of this organization. The information laid before the meeting was that Drake had refused to sell strong beer to an intoxicated man at his East London 4.4 hotel, and that in reprisal the man had instigated a police raid.

"We have nine pledged now," said a business man who attended the meeting, "Each is willing to take one day. One is a commercial traveller, who asks that he be given any 24 hour period from noon Saturday till noon Sunday. He is on the road during the week. We are not countenancing violation of the law, nor are we criticizing its administration here. We simply believe that the penalty is out of proportion to a first offence, that the law is not supported by a large number of people, and that before the Legislature concludes its present session such a prosecution and penalty will be impossible in Ontario."

AROUND THE CITY

Chimney fires continue to give the Fire Dartment a lot of trouble. They received a call to 386 George Street at 10.15 last night, and this morning at 8.34 a.m. they received another call to 639 Armour Road and had hardly gotten back from that when they had to go to 565 Harvey Street. No damage resulted from any of the fires.

W.H. Bradburn, M.P.P., Moves Reply To Speech From the Throne Today; Stresses Advancement in Province

Hydro Commission Lauded For Its Saving to Municipalities and Peterborough Cited as Example of Economy of Operation Under Public Ownership of Power—Western Cities Must Affect Much Greater Saving, Mr. Bradburn Points Out.

GOVERNMENT HAS BUSINESS SENSE, ENERGY, AND PATRIOTISM TO DEVELOP ITS BOUNTIES WISELY

Peterborough was honored today by the selection of its member, W. H. Bradburn, to move the reply to the Speech from the Throne in the Provincial Legislature, which opened yesterday. Mr. Bradburn made reference to this in his address, in which he stressed principally the advance made by the Conservative Government in reducing the financial deficit, developing Northern Ontario, and encouraging a revival of business activity.

It is anticipated that what does not appear in the Speech from the Throne will bear the brunt of attack by the Opposition, rather than anything that is covered by it. Mr. Raney, it is understood, will contend that the Ontario Temperance Act has not been as well enforced by this Government as it was when he was Attorney-General, and other questions relating to prohibition will be brought up. A Government Control resolution will be introduced early by a private member, and the financial policy of the Government will be subjected to criticism by the Opposition.

W. H. BRADBURN, M.P.P.
who moved the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

TORONTO, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Moving the reply to the Speech from the Throne, in the Ontario Legislature this afternoon, W. H. Bradburn (Conservative, Peterborough West), paid compliments to the Premier and the Speaker and expressed his belief that the people of Ontario had shown good judgment in returning the Conservatives to power in view of the present good administration.

MR. BRADBURN'S ADDRESS

Mr. Speaker.—In moving the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, I desire to first thank the Prime Minister, and his Government for the honor done the riding I represent in the House, in asking me to move this address. I also wish to compliment you, Mr. Speaker, on the dignified manner in which you fill the duties of your high office as Speaker of this House, and for the fair and impartial way you have treated the Members. I would also like to congratulate the Prime Minister and his Cabinet on the efficient and business-like way in which the work of the different departments are carried out under their supervision proving to the people of this Province that they made no mistake in electing a Conservative Government in 1923 to administer the affairs of the Province.

It is with deep regreat I notice the absence of Mr. Sydere, through illness. He has been connected with the different Governments since Confederation. I trust he will have a speedy recovery.

WORK OF THE HYDRO COMMISSION

It is my intention to make reference to the great undertaking of the Hydro Commission in this Province, and in doing so I want to make mention of the great loss sustained by the Province, and also this House, in the death of Sir Adam Beck. Before Sir Adam was chosen chairman of the Commission, he had long been an active and effective advocate of public-owned power development and through all the stages of the development of the undertaking Sir Adam was its directing head and driving power I doubt if ever a public man was more completely absorbed in his official duties Many tributes have been paid Sir Adam, but all have fallen short of his merits. So long as unselfish public service is valued by our people, his name and his renown will endure. The Hydro-Electric development of Ontario is the greatest publicly-owned development of its kind in the world, $262,781,000 being invested by the Province and Municipalities. The share of the Provincial guarantee, and cash advances amount to $190 000,000, and at the end of the last fiscal year net costs advanced by the Province amounted to $146,500,000. In 1924 the total revenue of the undertaking was $16,897,660, and showed a surplus of $725,708. The Municipalities which retailed this power had a revenue of $18,798,723, and showed a surplus of $1,163 910.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to take up the time of this House for a few minutes, in showing the results of Hydro in the City of Peterborough. I am taking it for granted that the old rates under the private-owned corporation would have remained the same, and if correct the difference between those rates and those charged under the Hydro, the City saved in seven years the sum of $1,815,000, and the saving for the year 1924 on the same comparison was $351,104. I have not as yet received the figures for the year 1925, but they will reveal the same conditions. Now, Mr. Speaker, if these savings on the cost of light and power to the consumers in the City of Peterborough, where we have a river flowing past our doors or which power is developed within the Municipality, how much greater must the saving have been to the Municipalities in Western Ontario who were not so favorably situated as we are? I want to make this comparison to prove that Sir James Whitney was right when he placed behind the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario, the financial strength of the Province. This is in fact the electrical age, and if the Province is to keep up with the progress of events in every sphere of life, we must equip ourselves with electrical power under the most economical and reliable conditions.

DEFICIT IS GREATLY REDUCED

In dealing with the finances of the Province, I do not want to say too much as this will be taken up by the Hon. the Provincial Treasurer, when the budget is brought down in this house, but I would like to point out some of the outstanding facts relating to conditions as existed in 1923 and comparing them to the results of today. In 1923 we had a deficit of nearly 15 million dollars as compared with a deficit of $4 905,000 for the year 1925, or a total reduction in the deficit of $9 817,632. Our ordinary revenue increased $12,577,000 over 1923, and without including new taxes the revenue increased nearly four million dollars, and to go further into the details of the financial position of the Province, I would like to point out that there has been a reduction on capital expenditure over 1923 of over 15 million dollars. The Hon. the Provincial Treasurer is to be congratulated on his efforts to place the Province on a high financial

He Banked $13,000—And Now Forgets Where

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 11 (United Press) A few days ago Daniel Rossignoe, 30, of Fort Kent, Maine, had $13,000 in cash. It is still his if he can only locate it.

Rossignoe asked the police here to assist him in finding the bank where he deposited the money, which he obtained through the sale of two farms in Maine. After receiving the cash, he said, he went on a vacation, during which he banked his funds. He said he could not remember the name of the city in which the bank was located.

ITALIAN PAPERS SAY MUSSOLINI HAS TRIUMPHED

Personal Victory For Dictator and Win For Fascism Also.

MOCK STRESEMANN.

Grotesque Caricature of German Minister Published in One.

ROME, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press) —A chorus of pro Government newspapers today in commenting on Premier Mussolini's last shot in the Italo Germany controversy of the Southern Tyrol runs to the refrain: "Mussolini has triumphed personally over Stresemann; Fascist Italy has triumphed over Social Democratic Germany and Latinity has showed itself superior to Teutonism.

L'Impro, extreme Fascist, prints a striking picture of Mussolini captioned: "The masculine Latin leader" and a grotesque caricature of Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany which it entitles: "The Warwinesque contradictor of our leader."

Underneath these it prints comment: "It was a dialogue between eagle and crow—an encounter between paunch and blade."

Il Tevere remarks that the world to recognize that the League of Nations will never be the redoubt from which Germany can open fire with impunity.

"The incident is not closed, but clarified," the paper adds. "Our position has been clearly stated, and if action is taken against it, it will be necessry to reply in a not exactly pacific fashion."

POULTRY MEN MEET TONIGHT

Annual Business Gathering Will be Held in the Labor Hall.

PLACE CHANGED

Peterborough Poultry Association has had much trouble in obtaining accommodation for its annual meeting to-night, but it has been finally arranged for the Labor Hall, George street, at 8.30. Announced first for Wednesday night, the date was changed until Thursday so that it should not conflict with the Exhibition Board meeting. It was found last night that the schedule at the U.F.O. rooms was incorrect, and that the hall could not be obtained for tonight.

And He Probably Said— 'It's a Cold, Cold World'

LYNN, Mass., Feb. 11. — (United Press):—A son was born on Tuesday behind a huge snow drift on a Florida mountain in the western part of this State to Mr. and Mrs. Adam Rudowski, of Savoy, who were on their way to a hospital when the storm and stork halted their journey. The mother and baby were taken to a farmhouse, where they spent the night, and yesterday reached the hospital, where their condition was reported favorable.

UNITED STATES BARS COUNTESS

Refused Permission To Enter Because of Moral Turpitude.

ELOPED WITH EARL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press)—The Countess of Cathcart, divorced wife of the Earl of Cathcart, today was ordered excluded from the United States. The exclusion order was made by a special board of inquiry at Ellis Island which has been investigating the countess' case since her arrival here on Tuesday.

Admission of the Countess to the United States was denied on ground of "moral turpitude and her admission of adultery."

Vera, Countess Cathcart, whose elopement three years ago with the young Earl of Craven to South Africa after she had been divorced by her husband, was the sensation of British society was denied permission to land from the Cunard liner Carmania.

The countess, who said she made the voyage to visit friends here and produce a play, "Ashes," of which she is the author, was indignant.

"By the by, why have you a Statue of Liberty" asked the vivacious 28-year-old noblewoman, "When we came up the bay in the fog, we could hardly see it, but what's the use of seeing liberty if you are treated as a criminal just because you are a divorcee?"

Earl Cathcart divorced his wife in 1921, naming the Earl of Craven as co-respondent. The latter and Countess Vera than eloped.

Later the Earl of Craven returned to his wife and the countess came back to England, defiantly defending her conduct. She is at present engaged to a young English dramatist, Ralph Neal, whom she described as "fearfully good looking."

The countess a few years ago astounded society by writing a series of newspaper articles calling her ex-husband "he stingy earl."

BATTLE OPENS WITH SALVO BY FARMER LEADER

W. E. Raney Inquires Why Vacancies Have Not Been Filled.

PUSHES O.T.A.

Contends That Act Not as Well Enforced as by Farmers.

TORONTO, Feb. 11. Canadian Press. — The debate on the reply to the speech from the throne is not expected to develop any fighting features until next Tuesday, when W. E. Raney, the Progressive leader, will speak, and, it is understood, criticize the government on its temperance policy. This afternoon, W. H. Bradburn, West Peterboro, moved and R. N. Berry seconded, the reply in addresses purely complimentary to the government. Either Mr. Raney or Mr. Sinclair will move the adjournment of the debate. Mr. Raney will attack the government on what it does not say in the speech from the throne, rather than what it does say. It is understood that Mr. Raney will contend that the Ontario Temperance Act has not been as well enforced by this government as it was when he was Attorney General. There will also be a charge of favoritism in the issuing of beer licenses. Mr. Sinclair will also attack the government on its policy with regard to temperance. Despite the silence of the government on the temperance issue the question will be forced into the Legislative proceedings early, not only in the debate on the reply but also by resolution. Frank W. Wilson of Windsor intends introducing a government control resolution. It will be remembered Mr. Wilson introduced such a resolution at the last session which was debated on the last day, and then shelved. The financial policy of the government is also to be subjected to attack by the opposition.

Tenders Questioned.

R. H. Kemp (Progressive, Lincoln) asks: "Did the Minister of Lands and Forests announce the result of the opening of tenders for about 9,000 square miles of pulp lands at a meeting held in Port Arthur on October 23 last in the interests of Mr. Langworthy, the Conservative candidate in the Federal elections? Were the time and place chosen with a view to influencing the electorate? Why was not the announcement made in the usual way from the Minister's office?"

JAPANESE WOMEN IN SCHOOLS OPPOSED

Proposed Engagement in Vancouver Schools.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 11. — Canadian Press. — Opposition to the engagement of four Japanese women teachers to instruct pupils in public schools at Mission City and Ocean Falls, after the regular school hours, was voiced here yesterday by Mrs. A. T. Essery, the grand secretary of the Canadian Daughters League, a British Columbia organization.

"This would mean the thin edge of the wedge of bi-lingualism in this province, and Oriental bi-lingualism at that," said Mrs. Essery. "We will have to organize and protest to both the Dominion and Provincial governments."

Woman Should Not Loaf In Luxury On Alimony

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Feb. 11 (United Press).—"No robust young woman should be permitted to loaf in luxury on alimony supplied by an ambitious husband," ruled Vice Chancellor Fielding in a separation suit. Accordingly, he granted Mrs. Louis Lerner only $15 a week alimony, representing but a small part of the income of her husband, a Paterson furniture dealer.

Hundred Dogs Destroyed To Check Ottawa Rabies

OTTAWA, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—The slaughter of dogs continues in the Ottawa district as a preventive measure against the spreading of hydrophobia. Yesterday 16 stray dogs were destroyed in the City pound and Inspector L. Mulligan, of the Humane Society, estimates that he has himself destroyed more than 60 dogs within the past month. Altogether he estimates that approximately 100 dogs have been destroyed in the district since the outbreak of rabies.

FACTS ABOUT ELECTRIC UTILITY

NUMBER THREE.

Editor of The Examiner,
Sir:—

In this article, in regard to the Utilities owned by the City, the subject of the surplus revenue over operating expenses will be taken up.

The Ontario Statutes govern the disposition of any surplus that there may be from the operation of a Municipal Utility, and probably the clearest way to show what the law provides in this respect is to quote from it.

Section 39 of The Power Commission Act (R.S.O., Ch. 39) provides:—

"39. Whenever it appears from the accounts of a municipal corporation or a municipal commission, that, after providing for any payments required to be made on account of principal or interest of any debentures issued for the construction and equipment of Works and Plant for the production, development or distribution of electrical power or energy, and, in the case of a municipal corporation or municipal Commission receiving electrical power or energy from the Commission for distribution, after providing for the payments required by this Act, that there is a surplus at the credit of the Municipal Corporation or Municipal Commission such surplus shall be applied and disposed of in such manner as the Commission may by general regulation or special order direct,

"(a) in the reduction of any indebtedness incurred with respect to the construction and equipment of such Works and Plant, or

"(b) in the maintenance, repair or renewal thereof; or

"(c) in the extension of such Works or Plant; or

"(d) in the formation of a fund to be used at a future time for any of such purposes."

Section 40 of the same Act provides that any Corporation, Commission or individual, "neglecting or refusing to obey" Section 39 and other sections, "shall forfeit and pay to His Majesty for the use of Ontario, the sum of $100.00 for every day during which such neglect or refusal shall continue."

The Commission has used surpluses of the Electric Utility in the maintenance, repair, renewal and extension of the Plant, and has used them for no other purposes than those mentioned in the section quoted.

There is a further provision in Section 32 of the Public Utilities Act, which is as follows:—

"Subject to the provisions of 39 of The Power Commission Act, and notwithstanding anything in the Municipal Act contained, revenues arising from supplying any public utility, or from the property connected with any public utility work, after providing for the expenses and maintenance of the Works, shall be paid over to the Treasurer of the Municipality to be applied annually to the reduction or extinguishment of the rates required to be levied under any By-law for the issue of debentures of the Municipality for the construction, extension or improvement of the Works, and it shall not be necessary to levy any general rate to provide for sinking fund and interest or other payments on account of such debentures, except to the extent to which the revenues on hand are insufficient to meet the annual payments falling due on account of principal and interest of the debentures."

The Commission has paid over to the Treasurer of the City each year, sufficient money to extinguish the rates required for interest and sinking funds on all deventures of the municipality issued in connection with the electric system, and the Council has not levied any rate for that purpose.

There is a further provision in The Public Utilities Act made by Section 43 of the Act, which says:—

"43. The revenues, after deducting disbursements, shall, quarterly or oftener, if the Council so directs, be paid over to the Treasurer of the municipality, and shall be by him placed to the credit of the account of the public utility work, and if not required for the purpose of the work, shall form part of the general funds of the corporation."

There is in this section at least, a seeming contradiction of Section 39 of The Power Commission Act, but as the latter Act provides that any municipal Commission or individual not obeying Section 39 shall forfeit $100.00 a day, it would seem that Section 43 of the Public Utilities Act would apply to the Waterworks, but there is a provision in a Special Act of the Legislature applying to Peterborough which says (1903, P. 741, and 1905, P. 358):—

"3. It shall be lawful for the Commissioners of the Municipal Waterworks to form and maintain a contingent fund not to exceed at any time the sum of $50,000.00, and to use such portion of such contingent fund from time to time as may be necessary for making extensions, repairs, improvements and alterations in the said Waterworks, and the dam, power house, plant, mains and other appliances and appurtenances of the Waterworks system, and if considered advisable for purchasing land for a reservoir and constructing and connecting the same with the present Waterworks system, and if considered advisable putting in filtering appliances and such other improvements as may be found necessary for a proper and efficient Waterworks system—provided however, that any contract, scheme or work involving any expenditure of over $5,000.00 shall first require the approval of the Council of the corporation of the said town—such contingent fund to be invested by the water Commissioners until it is needed for the purpose aforesaid, and for the purpose of forming such contingent fund it shall be lawful for the said water Commissioners to retain the surplus annual revenue of the said Waterworks, after providing for all ordinary expenses of management and maintenance and a sum sufficient to meet the interest and sinking fund on the Waterworks debentures, until the said contingent fund amounts to the sum of $50,000.00, and while the said contingent fund remains at the said sum of $50,000.00 the whole of such surplus annual revenue shall form part of the general funds of and be paid over to the corporation of the City of Peterborough."

Further, in 1908, Page 642, there is a provision that the City Council may issue debentures for that portion of the contingent fund of the Waterworks which has been, or may hereafter be used in extensions in mains and services, and to hand the debentures over to the Commission as an investment with power to the Commission to sell them and use the proceeds for any of the purposes mentioned in the Act of 1903.

The present Commission is not responsible for any of these laws, but must try to carry them out.

E. F. MASON,
Chairman,
Peterborough Utilities Commission.

BILLION MARK PASSED BY SUN LIFE

It is seldom that a financial institution is able to mark the completion of its year with two such happy announcements as those made at the annual meeting of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. At the meeting in question, President Macaulay was able to announce that the assurance in force of the Sun Life Company is now considerably in excess of one billion dollars—a level never before reached by a Canadian company.

In the same address he stated that although, owing to the rapid expansion of business, it had been found necessary to greatly extend the head office building accommodation, (the formal opening of which followed the annual meeting itself), it was evident that still further space must at once be provided. This in spite of the fact that the new Sun Life Building is one of the finest and most commodious in Canada, is devoted exclusively to the use of the Company, and houses about eleven hundred of a staff.

The fifty-fifth annual report which appears in another column, reflects the enterprise which has marked the Company's operations, and the comprehensive way in which it is expanding, not only in Canada but throughout the world. It has become not only one of the outstanding financial institutions of the Dominion, but shares with one or two of the banks and transportation companies the honor of being one of Canada's best known institutions abroad. Its ramifications now extend to forty-four countries and states, and its branches girdle the globe.

The assurance in force was increased last year by $149,460,644, bringing the grand total up to $1,021,097,101. In keeping with this the assets were increased by nearly 29,000,000, making the total assets now $303,036,143. Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries of $35,441,582, brought the total amount so paid since the Company was organized to $210,239,710. The total net income for the year was nearly $70,000,000.

Policyholders will share in another increase in profits—the sixth consecutive increase of this kind.

The profits of the year based on valuation of securities made by government officials has been $21,666,284. From this amount it has been thought advisable to deduct $3,000,000. During the year there was paid or allotted as profits to policyholders the sum of $7,662,784. After deducting this sum, and accretions to shareholders' account, allocating $2,500,000 to contingency account, writing off $750,000 on buildings and real estate, and setting aside $350,000 to further strengthen the special reserve to provide for possible greater longevity among annuitants, the Company has added $6,532,642 to its undivided profits. Its total surplus over all liabilities, contingency accounts and capital is now $28,640,000.

The mean invested assets of the Company have earned during the year 6.41 per cent—a remarkable showing in view of the downward tendencies in interest. One of the important factors in producing this gratifying result was an increase in the dividends paid by some of the corporations in which the Company has substantial stock holdings.

The wise selection of investments, which has marked the policy of the Company is also shown in the remarkable increase in the market value of its securities. For many years the Sun Life has specialized in long term bonds and preferred and common stocks of outstanding corporations in both Canada and the United States. It is now reaping the reward of that policy. On actual sales of municipal debentures and other securities which had risen to high premiums, it realized a net profit of $2,215,772 while the increase in the value of securities still held has been even greater.

The company has not only highly efficient management, with Mr. T. B. Macaulay as president, but has a very strong board of directors including some of the leading financial and industrial figures in the Dominion. The board which has hitherto consisted of twelve is being increased to fifteen.

Altogether the report of the Sun Life, establishing new and remarkable levels in business, makes very heartening reading for the people of Canada.

POLICE FORCE ESTIMATES PASS

Only Change Was Deduction From Salary of Police Matron.

EFFICIENCY NEEDED

According to the decision of the Police Commission, as represented by a motion, the estimate for the amount of money required for 1926 will be substantially the same with the exception of $400, which will be deducted from the proposed salary of $800 which was allowed for a matron.

His Worship Mayor W. T. Holloway said that he had acted on Judge Huycke's suggestion that he confer with the Chief of Police. As a result he had concluded that there were no more ment on the force than necessity demanded and that all were kept busy on the beats. The mayor regretted that there was no other cause left open than to raise the assessment by two mills. He declared that neither the council nor he had any desire to foolishly sacrifice the efficiency of the various departments in order to obtain some slight financial advantage. He would gladly receive any intimation of a possible reduction in expenditure.

His Worship Magistrate O. A. Langley submitted the motion dealing with the estimate and included a resolution to the effect that twelve constables, with the chief and matron, were absolutely required for the proper policing of the city. His Honor Judge Huycke, who seconded the motion, said that he was in sympathy with the mayor and council in their efforts to curtail expenditure, but he believed that the force was not as efficient now as it was three or four years ago. He also urged that when the city attained a greater degree of prosperity, the police force should be augmented in order to assure citizens of the safety of life and property.

In the course of the discussion, tributes were paid to the work of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Smith of the Salvation Army for their conscientious work in police matters.

Accounts were read and passed at the conclusion of the meeting.

STIRLING STORE REMAINED OPEN AGAINST BY-LAW

Thomas Cranston, Councillor, Fined $5 and $14.75 For Infraction.

STUDENTS DANCE.

Under Auspices of Students at Agricultural Short Course.

STIRLING, Feb. 11.—An unique as well as an important case, has passed through the magistrate's court here and will be tried at the next sitting of the Division Court to be held in March. The case is unique in that one of the councillors (Thomas Cranston) was the defendant in the case, as having violated the early closing by-law of the village by keeping his grocery store open after 7 p.m. The case was begun on Monday, February 1, before Magistrate Brad, who after hearing the prosecution side, adjourned until ten o'clock yesterday when the defendant's side was heard.

After the argument by the lawyers, Mr. R. D. Poulton of Belleville for Cranston, and Mr. C. R. Bastedo for the prosecution. Mr. Bird gave judgment in the case by imposing the minimum fine of $5 and costs $14.75 on the defendant.. Mr. Poulton gave notice at once that he would appeal to a higher court so the matter will come before the Division Court next month.

The cutting of ice began last week, a good looking article of 14 inches in thickness is being taken out.

The county road men are opening up the Marmora road, where it has been badly drifted, so that motor traffic can be resumed.

Motors were held up for a few days last week between here and Belleville, but the way is clear again.

Short Course Lectures.

The interest in the agricultural and other lectures pertaining thereto still continues. Last week the students were treated to a practical demonstration in sheep judging and also the slaughtering and cutting up of a carcass of lamb. The demonstrators were Messrs. Harry Hilliard, meat demonstrator, and J. D. Thompson, wool grader, under the supervision of A. E. McLaurin, all of the Dominion Live Stock Branch. For two weeks, Mr. John Buchanan will teach Field Husbandry. Horse judging will also come under consideration this week.

The Home Economics and Nursing lectures have been valuable to the youg women and are well attended.

Last Wednesday night a very successful dance was held in the Town Hall, under the auspices of the students attending the short courses. Over one hundred and twenty-five couples were present, including guests from Peterboro, Campbellford, Marmora, Belleville, Frankford, Madoc, and other places. Delightful music was furnished by the Bon Ton Orchestra of Belleville.

Mrs. Geo. E. Green Dead.

Although it was known on Saturday night that Mrs. George E. Green was seriously ill from pneumonia, it came as a great shock to all, when it was learned this morning that she had passed away Sunday night. She had suffered for some years from diabetes but was in the village very recently in her apparent health.

She is survived by her husband and three daughters, Eva, Esther and Georgia; to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and mother.

The funeral service will be held at her late residence, Campbellford road, on Wednesday afternoon, conducted by her minister, the Rev. R. Simpson of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. Interment in Stirling cemetery.. This occurence is all the more sad from the fact that an aunt of Mr. Green's was buried just a week ago.

Personals.

Mrs. W. H. Stevens who came home to attend the funeral of her father, the late James Currie, is staying for a while with her mother.

Rev. A. H. Payne and family left on Saturday for Athens, Ont., where they will reside, Mr. Payne having accepted the appointment as rector of the Anglican parish there. Since coming from Shaunavon, Sask. they have been staying at the rectory with Mrs. Payne's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Byers.

HONORED CITIZEN WAS LAID TO REST

Many Attended Funeral of H. H. Ryley at Bethany.

BETHANY, Feb 11.— The large auditorium of the United Church was filled to its utmost capacity on Monday afternoon by those who had gathered from far and near to pay their last respects to one they had long known and loved, in the person of the late H. H. Ryley, who passed away on Saturday afternoon.

The funeral service was in charge of Rev. A. Poulter, pastor of the church. For his text he chose these words found in the 11th chapter of St. Matthew, "Come until Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest in your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." Mr. Poulter said he would make no elegy on the life of the departed as the many present bore testimonly of that, but he chose this portion of scripture for those who were left behind to mourn that they might look to a higher one for comfort. Two hymns, favorites of Mr. Ryley, were sung by the choir, "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go" and "Abide With Me" while Mrs. Poulter sang a beautiful solo "There Will Be No Night There". The many beautiful floral tributes were carried by thirty young men of the neighborhood, among them being wreaths and sprays from the Canadian Order of Foresters, L. O. L. No. 1022, Young Men's Bible Class of the United Sunday School, Athletic Association of Bethany, East Durham Athletic Association, Young Ladies' Bowling Club of the Y.W.C.A., Peterboro, and the staff of Prince of Wales school, Peterborough, besides many from the family and intimate friends of the deceased. The pallbearers were all brother Orangemen, William Brown, Thomas Jackson, Henry Ward, Offa Staples, Robert Morton and William Hanna, Jr.

Interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, the service being in charge of the Orange Order. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved wife, son and daughter.

Among those noticed at the funeral of the late H. H. Ryley from a distance were: Mr. Jack Ryley, Lindsay; Miss Mabel Ryley and Mrs. T. G. Ryley of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. James Magill of Springville; Mr. J. H. Bateman, Bowmanville; Mr. George McCartney, Peterboro; Mr. Percy Stinson, Millbrook; Mr. Sam Stinson, Janetville; Messrs. ENTERTAINMENT BY WILLING WORKERS Husbands Were Guests of Wooler Sunday School Class.

WOOLER, Feb. 11.—One of the finest social evenings of the season was held in the United church parlors on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the "Willing Workers" Sunday school class, the members of which entertained their husbands as guests, the company numbering sixty altogether.

The first stunt of the evening was for the benefit of the men. In case they used their right hand to shake hands or to write, paper bags were tied on their hands. This was very amusing, as nearly all were victims.

Then couples were furnished with costumes of ancient type to dress in, walk across the room, and back again and pack their club bags. A prize was given to the couple who completed the contest first.

A contest of naming twenty-five old photos was very interesting. Then there was a change in the programme. A solo was beautifully rendered by Jean Steinburg, "The Prisoner's Song." A recitation by Lulu McColl, "Tired Of Work" was given. Community singing was much enjoyed by the party, led by C. F. Wessels, with Mrs. L. H. Rowe at the piano.

The company was then invited out to the dining room, where the banquet was served on beautifully decorated tables, with floral baskets, and a full course meal. After the hot coffee was enjoyed, addresses by Rev. H. Neal, C. F. Wessels, E. M. Wessels and Mrs. Dr. Anderson were in order. An expression of gratitude to the hostesses emphasized the fact it was worth while to attend Sunday school.

Bylaw 671, empowering the Reeve and Treasurer to borrow by way of overdraft the sum of $4,000 as required and the rate of interest not to exceed 6 per cent., passed its first reading in open Council, passed its second reading, Mr. Fowlds in the chair.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. —11. The concert and basket social, which was given in the Temperance Hall on Friday night, under the auspices of the Girls' Softball Club and the Boys' Baseball Club, for the purpose of raising funds to finance the teams ready for the spring, was surely a great success. Not for many a day has the hall been so well filled.

The young people were favored with good weather and the different communities were well represented. Mr. Garnet Shield acted as chairman in his usual capable manner.

The programme was as follows:

Opening chorus, by the girls and boys of the teams.

Address by the chairman.

Instrumental duet—The Misses Kathleen Sisson and Helen McLean.

Vocal duet—Mr. and Mrs. Hoover.

Vocal solo and encore—Mr. Hubert Lowes.

Recitation—Miss Viola McCall

Vocal solo and encore—Mr. Stephen Paragreen.

Male quartette—Messrs. Bland, Best, McLean and Jamieson.

Reading— Miss Dorothy Paragreen.

The play, "Our Awful Aunt", which was well acted and formed a basis for a good moral, which is so often looked for in a play. The parts were well taken by local players. Gwendolyn Lough made the charming young widow Mrs. Hasleton. Greta Boyd acted the part of Alice Hasleton, her dignified daughter, who was disgusted at the thought of her Aunt Matilda Johnston's approaching visit to their home. Kathleen Sisson made a wonderful old maid in the person of Aunt Matilda coming to the home with all her luggage and hand boxes and herbs, that kept Petes (Mrs. Hasleton's colored servant) busy carrying in for most of an hour.

Eric McLean kept the audience in roars of laughter in the part of the negro servant. Evelyn Bland took the part of Carrie Benton, who was a visitor in the home and engaged to Frank Hasleton, Alice's brother. Hubert Lowes (who ably filled in Frank's part) was the wayward boy of the family, who had taken to card playing and drink and who Aunt Matilda was determined to reform. Aubrey Bland acted the part of Arthur Wallace, a regular fop and villain, who with his accomplice, David Mann (taken by Harry Jamieson) plotted for the robbery of Frank Hasleton whom they had previously drugged. Ray Boyd and Donald Hayes made two very dignified police.

Male quartette — Messrs. Bland, Best, McLean and Jamieson.

Vocal solo and encore—Mr. Stephen Paragreen.

Instrumental duet—Kathleen Sisson and Helen McLean.

Vocal solo and encore—Mr. Hubert Lowes.

Recitation—Mr. William Howden, who brought down the house with laughter, after which he made a very capable auctioneer for the baskets. They were both beautiful to look at and very numerous, ranging in bids from fifty cents to one dollar and eighty-five cents. Refreshments were served to all who did not have baskets.

Some of those from a distance who attended the social were: Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Magee, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cullis, Mr. and Mrs. Richard James and family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Howden, Mr. and Mrs. William Finley, Mr. and Mrs. William Howden, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fowler, the Misses Fife, Husk and Franks, Messrs. Fife, McCarrell, B. Finley and C. Finley, all of Orange Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rutherford, Mr. Laurence Sandy, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Jones and Miss Helen Rutherford of Omemee.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tinney, Mr. and Mrs. William White, Mr. Albert Hilliard of Cavan, Miss Myrtle Hootan and Messrs. Fred Hootan, Lloyd Hootan and Harry Brooks of Fairmount.

BETTER ACCOMMODATION.

The Parks Committee of the City Council has decided to include in its estimates for this year the sum of $450 with which to make a start on permanent dressing-rooms for bathers at Inverlea Park.

This policy will meet with the approval of the hundreds of citizens who use the civic swimming beach at this point.

For some time the only accommodation for women bathers has been a tent, and the conditions have been far from satisfactory.

The tent was stuffy and hot, there was no place where clothes could be hung, and the only floor was the ground, resulting, of course, in something that suggested a permanent mud-puddle in which the bathers had to stand.

Swimming has become such a popular pastime that the providing of proper facilities for its patrons has become a necessary civic duty, and the Parks Committee is well advised in planning better accommodation at Inverlea Park and in commencing the work this year.

Incidentally, it will be noticed that the whole appropriation of the Parks Committee, which include all the money that is to be spent in providing recreational facilities for the citizens, does not amount to 30c per head of the population, which cannot be regarded as extravagant, even in a year when an economical administration of public affairs is being sought.

THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

No legislation of spectacular importance is foreshadowed in the Speech from the Throne at the opening of the Ontario Legislature yesterday.

The Speech was awaited with considerable interest in the hope, or the fear, as the case might be, that it might contain a promise of changes in the method of handling the liquor problem in this Province.

It did not.

The question of temperance or prohibition was not even mentioned.

For months it has been rumoured that the Government would introduce legislation providing for a system of Government control, and although these reports were officially denied, the rumours still persisted.

The Speech from the Throne, however, failed to give a hint of any such legislation.

It contained a substantial programme in which the chief controversial feature was the Premier's bill to establish township school boards, which is unpopular in the rural districts, although unanimously favoured by educationists.

However, even this piece of legislation will not cause much trouble, inasmuch as Mr. Ferguson has already intimated that should the opposition prove to be still great the measure will be withdrawn for another year in the hope of educating rural opinion to see the merits of the plan as compared with the existing system.

THE EXHIBITION AND GAMBLING.

Peterboro citizens should not be diverted from the main question of the desirability of their becoming members of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition by side issues and controversies over gambling, etc.

It should be recognized that the so-called games of chance to be found on the midway of the Peterboro Exhibition, as on the midway of every other similar exhibition, are authorized by the law-makers of the land.

Patronizing them may be gambling, but in the final analysis, is not buying a piece of land in the expectation that it will increase in value, or buying a certain stock in the hope that it will go up or down, as the case may be, also gambling?

The fear of the effect upon children of these midway games is overdrawn, to say the least, and if the Peterboro Exhibition were the only thing that threatened to produce "juvenile depravity," as one correspondent put it, the moral future of the community is quite safe.

Exhibitions need a balanced ration—there must be a general mixture if the results are to be satisfactory, and the amusement side cannot be dispensed with.

The gambling discussion should not detour citizens from the main issue, which is the advantage from a general viewpoint that will follow a membership of 1,500 for the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition.

The time to join is right now.

THE NEW TELEPHONE SCHEDULE.

Whereas, the Peterboro Council has decided to take part in the protest entered by the Union of Canadian Municipalities against the Bell Telephone Company's application for a new rate schedule, the Lindsay Aldermen, on the other hand, after an animated discussion, came to the conclusion that so far as Lindsay is concerned no action will be taken.

It is difficult for the average citizen to come to any definite conclusion in the matter, but the Examiner believes that the Dominion Railway Board, by whom the application will be decided, can be counted upon to see that justice is done both to the company and to the public it serves.

As a matter of protection, municipal councils who stand for all the people are justified in opposing the request.

It will then be the privilege of the Telephone Company to justify its new schedule before the Railway Board, and if it succeeds in doing so to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, the new scale will follow.

It is well, in the general interest, that the whole matter be gone into thoroughly, and the company's chance of proving its case is not unfairly hampered by the municipal opposition.

If the company is right it should get its new schedule; if it is wrong the Commissioners can be depended on to protect the public, and the action of the municipalities is merely a gesture that indicates that they do not propose to meekly accept any programme that is outlined.

IT'S ALL IN HOW YOU SAY IT.

Mr. Speaker Lemieux, whose own encounters with the late L. P. Pelletier used to be among the tempestuous episodes of Parliament, has urged members to be as "gentle as possible during debate." It is good advice—if not taken too literally, says the Ottawa Journal. Nobody wants the crude vulgarisms that are the offspring of ignorance, mere echoes of back concession campaigning, still less those "inarticulate ejaculations" which Mr. Meighen so witheringly stigmatized the other night. But it would be a sorry Parliament, a poor, pale shadow of the best of Parliament's past, that degenerated into debate of insipid gentility, of passionless, polite insincerities.

Anger, it has been truly said, is one of the cleanest of vices. And the danger of Parliament is not that it should err on the side of strong expressions of righteous indignation, which, after all, reveal conviction, or sincere attachment to a point of view, or honest sympathy with a cause, but that it should become a House of Pretence, an anaemic assembly without strong faiths or passions, and consequently without the language of truth.

One can agree with Mr. Speaker, however, that much depends upon tone and manner of expression. Sir Wilfrid Laurier could say desolating things, could compress into an image or an epigram a devastating and, sometimes amusing attack upon an opponent's case, but as he ran his adversary through the body he charmed even his enemies by the skill with which he did it. Lloyd George has the same faculty. "Tiger Tim" Healy had as caustic a tongue as Westminster had seen since the days of Brougham, but once when "L. G." made a crushing but not bitter repartee upon him, "Tim" touched his heart and doffed his hat in token of a perfect hit—and the House cheered the acknowledgment.

Mere billingsgate, vulgar personalities, the vituperation that is redolent of hatred—these are all detestable. But for the sword that cuts cleanly, for the wit that does not burn and sear, for the epigram that can destroy a fallacy—the ranks of Tuscany can cheer. Parliament would be a poor place without them.

BILINGUALISM.

Nearly every speech delivered thus far this session in Parliament, certainly every important speech, has been delivered in the English tongue, and yet more than one-quarter of the members are thoroughly proficient in the French language and have the right to address the House through that medium should they so desire. The reason why they haven't done so is a practical one. French-Canadian members with a message desire to make that message understood to the larger number, and, therefore, even M. Bourassa has delivered himself, after due explanation and apology, in English.

Today we have somewhat of a crisis in parliamentary affairs and that crisis is in large part due to cleavage, not on matters of policy but to misunderstandings fostered by politicians between the English and French-speaking peoples of this Dominion. Canada would be in a mighty sound, strong position politically at the present juncture were the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario, whose interests are identical, united to thwart the piracy of the comparatively minor group of Progressives who boast that they hold the balance of power. There would be no such thing as balance of power, no such thing as a threat toward lower tariff, no such program as Hudson Bay Railway construction, if the judgment of Quebec and Ontario could be expressed as one united interest, actuated for the good of the country and not by political considerations.

Canadian unity is not a chimera, an empty dream. It would be a great thing for Canada if leaders of political parties, and followers, too, were proficient in the two languages. Three million Canadians speak the French language exclusively, and it is written in the charter of the Canadian constitution, the Act of Confederation, they shall forever enjoy right of address in their own tongue in Parliament of this Dominion. To speak in his own language to friend or adversary would help immeasurably to wipe out prejudices, to obviate misunderstandings and to lead to unity of purpose.

As things are, Ontario frequently welcomes some brilliant French-Canadian speaker to the Province, and the people are charmed with the mastery of English which the visitor reveals. It was so with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and Lemieux, Lapointe, Bourassa and others, keep up the tradition. What does Ontario contribute to the Bonne Entente? Our public men cannot reciprocate and the only public man in all Canada who has made a bold and tremendously hard effort to overcome this handicap is Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, who is also practical enough to send his son to a college in Quebec to absorb the atmosphere and to learn the language as it should be acquired, by contact.

One would think that four years' tuition in the Collegiate Institute would develop in a pupil a smattering of intelligible French, if that subject were taken as part of the course. Unfortunately, however, such a result is very much an exception. The time is coming, however, when Canadians will wake up to the need of more thoroughness in education in languages. Commercial necessity will demand proficiency in both French and German, and if Canada is to expand her trade in South America, our emissaries of trade will have to know Spanish. If Canadians are to take their proper place in the progress of the world they will first of all have to strengthen the national fabric. Suspicion and distrust can be allayed between Quebec and Ontario by a broader outlook by those who aspire to become leaders on the question of language. Perhaps the time will come when young men will choose statecraft as a profession, the same as they now choose law, medicine, etc. In that way, they will be properly trained and prepared for their responsibilities in a Parliament where two languages are spoken, and where two peoples unite for the good of all. As things are at present, English-speaking Canadian members of Parliament will have a long way to go to catch up to their and versatile French fellow-members.—St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Line up with the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition and help break new records this year.

Thirsty Ontario people listened in vain to hear anything in the Speech from the Throne that sounded like the popping of a cork.

They're off at Toronto, and the Legislature will now proceed to prove that all the talking is not confined to the Federal Parliament.

The Ontario Government has at least one advantage over the Dominion administration. It does not need to worry how the Progressives vote.

More Alberta coal is to be shipped into Ontario, and from the brand of weather we are experiencing it may be all needed.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

ENTHUSIASM.

Enthusiasm is the greatest asset in the world. It beats money and power and influence. Single-handed, the enthusiast convinces and dominates where the wealth accumulated by a small army of workers would scarcely raise a tremor of interest. Enthusiasm tramples over prejudice and opposition, spurns inaction, storms the citadel of its object, and like an avalanche overwhelms and engulfs all obstacles. It is nothing more or less than faith in action. Faith and initiative rightly combined remove mountainous barriers and achieve the unheard of an miraculous.

Set the germ of enthusiasm afloat in your plant, in your office, or on your farm; carry it in your attitude and manner; it spreads like contagion and influences every fiber of your industry before you realize it; it means increase of production and decrease in costs; it means joy, and pleasure, and satisfaction to your worker; it means life, real virile; it means spontaneous bedrock results—the vital things that pay dividends. —Henry Chester.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ANSWER TO A. B. CUNNINGHAM.

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

The letter in your columns yesterday signed by "A. B. Cunningham" is a masterpiece of lack of logic. He argues from a wrong premise and arrives at the naturally mistaken conclusion. As I read your article on Monday your "Fallacy Exploded" referred solely to the business end of the Exhibition, showing it utterly impossible to maintain the show or pay prizes without the attractions to bring visitors. But your correspondent, A. B. Cunningham, prefers for his purposes to twist your article into a defence of immorality, and he sets himself up as a moral reformer. What these fellows need is not re-form of any kind, but chloro-form.

If A. B. Cuuningham has any children, and he writes of "our children" as though he knows something about them, he has evidently failed in his duty of parental, spiritual and moral guidance if they delight in gambling. He calls it educational depravity—but if such a lamentable state exists on whom rests the responsibility? Upon the shoulders of those, I submit, who took the responsibility of bringing into the world children to be subject to temptation; upon the natural teachers of the childrens—the parents.

And allow me to suggest that the Exhibition has never been a closed corporation. The meetings are open. The membership list is open. The man who mounts a soap box on the side lines would find more scope for his talents, though maybe not so much limelight, if he paid his two dollars and worked his ideas from the inside.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your indulgence.

63 Mishaps on St. Lawrence Last Year—Only 15 Inquiries.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press)—In his presidential address to the Shipping Federation of Canada, delivered at its twenty-third annual meeting held yesterday, R. W. Reford spoke of casualties on the St. Lawrence and the need for having the Dominion Wreck Commissioner placed under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Justice rather than under the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Mr. Reford observed that there were 63 mishaps reported in the past year, inquiries having been made into only fifteen of these. This called for improvement, he said, and intimated that the government would be well advised to consider a change in the system which governs marine inquiries. At the present time the Dominion Wreck Commissioner is under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Commissioner Silenced

"There are, and have been, occasions on which reference should be made to the unsatisfactory condition of the channel in certain places," he said, "and in the matter of aids to navigation, but the Dominion Wreck Commissioner, through no fault of his own, is in the anomalous position of not being able to criticize conditions in the channel."

"It would ill behoove him to criticize his superior, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, but the difficulty could easily be surmounted if the Dominion Wreck Commissioner was placed under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Justice. He would then be in a position to comment upon the conditions of the channel and other aids to navigation where they had a direct bearing on an accident."

"This has a big influence on marine insurance, and until an improvement along the lines suggested has been brought about we cannot hope for any amelioration in this direction."

BODY OF OTTAWA GIRL, SLAIN IN NEW YORK, IDENTIFIED IN MORGUE

Elsie Regan, Waitress, Found Dead on Snow Bank Monday.

THROWN FROM CAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—The body of a young woman found shot to death on the East Side Monday was identified yesterday by Miss Eva Davis, a waitress, as that of her room-mate, Elsie Regan, 24, a waitress, formerly of Ottawa, Ont.

It was the third time the body had been "identified." A few hours before Miss Davis said the victim was her friend, Miss Dorothy Nottingham, a dancing teacher, said she believed the dead girl was Miss Lucille Finch and Lucille Truman. On Monday it was mistakenly believed the girl was Genevieve McGuire, known as "Supercilious Jinny."

Worked in Cafes.

Miss Davis said she had known Miss Regan since 1925, when they met in St. Louis, Mo. Since then they had lived together, working in cafes and night clubs in various cities. They were employed here in a Chinese tea garden in the Times Square district.

friend went out at 11 o'clock and did not return.

Police said that they learned from Miss Davis that in 1924 Miss Regan's father was connected with the Union Mission, Ottawa.

Found in Snow.

The body of Miss Regan was found on a snowbank in East 54th Street early last Monday morning by a laundry worker. The girl had been shot in the breast and head and police deduced that the body had been thrown from a motor car. A typewritten note found in the clothes indicated that she had been murdered because she gave some information to the police.

Shortly thereafter a man named Charles Mitchell, who applied at Bellevue Hospital for treatment for a bullet wound in the shoulder, was arrested on suspicion of complicity, and the police announced identification of the body as that of "Supercilious Jinny" McGuire, Mitchell's friend. Later it was admitted that Mitchell had nothing to do with the affair and the body remained unidentified until Miss Dorothy Nottingham told the police that it was that of her friend, Miss Lucille Finch or Truman. This information was disproved with the announcement of Miss Davis.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS COSTS US $165,271

Canada's Share of Expenses This Year.

OTTAWA, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Canada's share of the expenses of the League of Nations during 1926 will be $165,271. This is a reduction of about $3,000 from the previous fiscal year.

The report of Canada's delegation, as tabled in the House of Commons, shows that the general budget of the League, of the secretary, of special organizations, the International Labor organization and of the permanent Court of International Justice for the current fiscal year is 22,980,633 gold francs. Canada is assessed this year on the basis of 35 units out of 937, a slight reduction in proportion. Great Britain's share has been raised from 88 to 105.

The expenses of Canada's delegation to the last League assembly totalled $11,899. The delegation was headed by Senator Raoul Dandurand, who was made president of the last assembly.

COOLIDGE HEARS CHICAGO WATER STEAL PROTEST

Deputation From Great Lakes Harbors Association at Washington.

LAKES AT LOWEST.

Chicago's Draft Unnecessary For Proposed Barge Canals—Even Dangerous.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press)—Protest on behalf of Canada as well as the states of Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and Wisconsin, against the enormous diversion of water from Lake Michigan and the Great Lakes in general by Chicago, was presented to President Coolidge yesterday by a committee representing the Great Lakes Harbors Association. Former Mayor C. A. Maguire, of Toronto, represented Canada, and the committee was headed by William George Bruce, of Milwaukee.

The president listened to the views of the committeee for about an hour, but gave no promises or assurances. There was an extended discussion of the matter. One of the questions talked of was compensating works. It was pointed out to the president, however, that construction and operation of the St. Lawraence waterway would require all the water that could be had without permitting heavy diversion at Chicago.

The resolutions laid before the president were those adopted at the recent Detroit meeting and were accompanied by a protest which went into the details of the effect excessive diversion would have on lake levels to the injury of commerce.

Chicago's Pretext

"When the defenders of the Chicago water diversion realized that the paramount question at issue was one of navigation and navigation only," the protest asserted, "they immediately maintained that the 10,000 cubic second feet formally demanded for sanitation is now necessary for the operation of a proposed nine foot barge canal across the state of Illinois. The war department has repeatedly and consistently held that anything in excess of 1,000 feet is unnecessary for channel navigation, and that such a large volume of water will create currents that will render navigation of the said channel both difficult and dangerous. Moreover, to hold that this volume of water is necessary to render the Mississippi River navigable for a few months, the Great Lakes shall be robbed for twelve months in the year. Nor is it clear that the colossal flow of water that will be an aid in the dry season will not be a curse during the flood season.

Lake Levels Lowest

"The levels of the Great Lakes are at a lower stage today than they have been since such levels have been officially recorded. It is beyond dispute that the Chicago abstraction has contributed greatly to that lowering.

"We point out that the United States supreme court from the Great Lakes 'affecting the natural level or flow of boundary water from the Great Lakes is expressly provided against by the international joint committee and without the consent of Canaad as well as the United States, within their jurisictions.

GERMAN KULTUR NOT FOR ADIGE MUSSOLINI SAYS

Restrained Reply To Stresemann by the Italian Premier in Senate.

NOT FOR LEAGUE.

Discussion By "Any Assembly or Council" Unacceptable," Dictator Says.

ROME, Feb. 16. — (Canadian Press.)— Italy refuses to accept to accept any proposal to submit to the League of Nations the question of the treatment of the German-speaking population in the Upper Adige. Thus Premier Mussolini declared in the senate yesterday in his answer to Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the German foreign minister who on Tuesday in the Reichstag set forth Germany's side of the controversy with Italy over the former Austrian territory which Italy now holds by virtue of the Treaty of St. Germain.

Except for his reference to Dr. Stresemann's claim of German cultural tutelage in the Upper Adige and the suggestion of the possibility of appealing to the League of Nations, the Italian premier's address avoided even implied threats. It was calm and restrained, in sharp contrast to his first speech on the same subject, covering point by point the utterances of the German foreign minister."

"Roman Equity" Policy.

Mussolini was unyielding on the matter of Italy's refusal to permit violation of her frontiers, either physically or culturally. The Upper Adige, he asserted, does not belong to a Germanic cultural community, and Italy intends to continue her policy of "Roman equity" in a territory the possession of which, cultural as well as physical, is essential to the safety of the entire Italian nation.

"I declare explicitly," said Mussolini, "that the non-Italian speaking population in the Upper Adige does not constitute a minority as construed by the peace treaty. Italy does not accept any discussion of this matter in any asembly or council and will react with the greatest energy against any plan of this nature.

"These are not menaces, productive of dilemmas; they are undeniable affirmation, with force and dignity, as is the custom of new Italy which too many Germans make the grave mistake of not yet knowing."

The premier was frequently interrupted by applause, which became a frantic ovation as he resumed his seat. He was forced to rise again and acknowledge the plaudits.

Immediate Reprisals.

The Giornale D'Italia, commenting on the situation, says: "Dr. Stresemann can say what he chooses, but we are masters in our own house. If the melancholy cultural pretensions of the German people are not converted into acts against our dignity, sovereignty or interests, our reply, and if necessary reprisals, will be immediate and adequate."

GRAIN SURPLUS MOVING SLOWLY FROM DOMINION

Europe Reduces Purchases and Utilizes Product of Own Fields.

ELEVATORS FULL.

Movement To Terminal Points in Canada Exceed Last Year.

FORT WILLIAM, Feb. 11. Canadian Press. — Following is the report of E. A. Ursell, statistician to the Board of Grain Commissioners, on the movement of Western Canadian grain crops for January, 1926:

"Owing to the comparatively small quantities of wheat being imported by European countries from North America, the disposal if the Canadian surplus has been taking place during the past few weeks at a rate very much below what was expected. From a statistical standpoint supplies of wheat in exporting countries only exceed the estimated normal requirements of importing countries by a small margin. Economic conditions in European countries however indicate home grown supplies wil be utilized to the fullest possible extent so that imports will be cut down to absolute necessity only. Rye is also being used more extensively as bread grain. Another factor which exerts a marked influence against the importing of wheat is the fact that the price at which native supplies are available to mills in some countries, is far below that which would have to be paid for imported grain.

Elevators Filled.

"Until conditions change it is hardly to be expected that Canadas surplus can be disposed of very rapidly. In the meantime, by th end of January, upwards of 36 million bushels of wheat still remained in store at lower lake and Atlantic seaboard ports, Fort William, Port Arthur elevators were full and interior public elevators rapidly filling. Vancouver, with ample ocean tonnage available, is handling almost 40 per cent. of the total North Americ wheat exported at present and only prevented by lack of demand from shipping far more. Oriental purchases accounted for a large proportion of Vancouver shipments until the last few weeks when the shipments to Europe increased substantially. From present indications the volume handled through Vancouver this season will exceed all previous records.

Tonnage Rates.

"Ocean tonnage from the United States Atlantic seaboard ports is available a as low as 2s. 6d per quarter to the United Kingdom, and 10c per 100 lbs to Antwerp, Rotterdam and Hamburg, but frequently "distress" space is offered at even lower rates. From Vancouver the rate is quoted at 30s per long ton to U.K., continent, and 85 per short ton to the Orient.

"The volume of movement to terminal points in the western grain inspection division, although far below December, is much in excess of a year ago. During month 20,938 cars of all grain passed inspection, as compared to 56,716 in December, and 12,090 a year ago. The proportion of grain grading "no grade," tough or damp, still continues in excess of 50 per cent. of the total."

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press)—Speculative selling of wheat broadened out today in the late trading and together with a surprising decline at Liverpool as well as lack of export demand led to a decided setback in prices. Chicago closing quotations were heavy, 2 1-8 to 3 3-4c net lower, May (new) $1.67 3-8 to $1.67 5-8, and July 1.49 5-8 to $1.49 7-8. Corn finished 1 to 1 3-8c off, oats 1-2 to 7-8c down and provisions at losses ranging from 2 to 22c.

Unexpected weakness of the Liverpool market was variously explained as due chiefly to selling on orders from Chicago and to increasing offers from Argentina.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 10 (Canadian Press).—A weaker feeling developed in to-day's cash grain market for Ontario and Quebec oats and prices were reduced 2 to 2 1-2c per bushel, with sales of odd cars of No. 2 white at 51, 3 white at 49, and No. 4 white at 48c per bushel, ex-store. The inquiry for Canadian Western oats was better and a steady feeling prevailed with prices unchanged.

There was practically no improvement in the Spring wheat flour market today, the demand from domestic and foreign buyers being restricted, and the undertone to the market was easy, with prices unchanged.

The receipts of butter today were 75. There was not actual change in the condition of the market. The undertone being steady with a continued demand for supplies and a moderate amount of business was done at unchanged prices.

The receipts of cheese today were 110 boxes. There were no further developments in the market, business generally being reported quiet and the feeling steady. No changes in prices were reported.

A feature of the egg trade today was the weaker feeling that developed in the market for strictly fresh eggs and prices were reduced 1c per dozen. The demand from grocers and other dealers for supplies was only fair. Sales of extras were made aat 44c, firsts at 40c and seconds at 34c per dozen. The receipts today were 1,581 cases.

The tendency of the market for storage eggs continuer downward and prices scored a further decline of 1c per dozen today. The demand from consumers for this class of stock is very limited with the result that sales were slow and the volume of business small.

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND 55 a business man is found murdered in a cheap hotel in GRAFTON. The only clues are a woman's handkerchief and a yellow ticket stub from a theater in CHICAGO.

JIMMY RAND Henry's son goes to CHICAGO where he and DETECTIVE MOONEY trace the ticket to a THOMAS FOGARTY who says he gave it to a woman named OLGA MAYNARD. Police search for her.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL and gets a job in her office. Later he accidentally encounters Olga Maynard. He meets her at night and confronts her with the evidence against her. She faints when he says she is suspected of murder. He is in the street holding her when he sees Mary Lowell and a man companion watching them.

The next day Jimmy learns Mary's companion was SAMUEL CHURCH a wealthy lawyer. Mary refuses to speak to Jimmy and later in the day he is discharged. He gets a phone call from POLICE LIEUTENANT O'DAY to come down to headquarters.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIII.

"What's up?" Jimmy asked O'Day.

"Come down and see." O'Day hung up.

Jimmy went back to his telegram from Mooney. Olga Maynard, it said, had been seen in Grafton on the day of the murder—had interviewed two cabaret owners about a job. Mooney thought it best to place a charge of murder against her when she was found and hold her in Grafton.

"Look here," growled O'Day when he arrived at the police station, "the next time you run across somebody we're looking for, you let us know."

"What do you mean?"

"We've found the Maynard woman. She says you were with her last night. Why didn't you tell us?"

"I was going to bring her down here tonight, Lieutenant. I give you my word. I wanted to talk to her alone and see what she was like. She didn't do it, Lieutenant."

"She didn't, eh? Well, I'm not so sure. Come on upstairs. We'll need you when we talk to her."

Olga Maynard was white-faced without her rouge. Her eyes, shifting restlessly, wore a hunted look.

She flared at Jimmy when he came in with O'Day. "You told them!" she accused. "You said you were coming. You told them to get me."

"He did not," O'Day declared. "He just got a piece of my mind for not telling. We were looking for you, sister, and we've got you."

He produced a telegram. "This is from Mooney," he said to Jimmy. He turned to the woman. "Here's proof that you were in Grafton the day Henry Rand was murdered. How about it?"

"I've never denied it. Sure I was there—looking for a job. Why should I lie? But I don't know a thing about the murder.

"You're lying! O'Day shot back at her.

"I'm not. It's the truth—I swear it is. I went to the theater that night on Fogarty's ticket—I admit it. And the next night—Tuesday—I took the sleeper for Grafton. I got there in the morning and spent the day looking for work. I'm a cabaret singer and I've had some hard luck here. I tried to find a cabaret or theatrical job in Grafton.

"Mooney said you had interviewed a couple of cabaret proprietors," admitted O'Day, indicating the telegram. "All right, what did you do next?

"That's all. I didn't get anywhere, so I took the train Wednesday night back to Chicago.

"You didn't stay all night in Grafton—didn't register at any hotel?" O'Day asked.

"No, I didn't go near any hotel."

"You're not tellin' the truth. You were in the Canfield Hotel while you were in Grafton. We know you were."

"All right, I say I wasn't. I never even saw the Canfield Hotel."

"Then how did that ticket stub get in the room? You admit you used the stub. You admit you were in Grafton the day of the murder. Yet you say you never saw the hotel—and the stub was found in the room with Rand."

"I can't explain it. Maybe somebody found the thing and planted it there to throw you off the track."

O'Day laughed scornfully. "You'll have to do better than that, sister. We're dealing in facts—not fairy stories. How do you account for this? Before you left for Grafton you were living in a cheap rooming house. You're out of a job and broke. You go to Grafton and come back to Chicago and move into a pretty nice apartment. Where did you get the money?"

"I didn't get any money. I got back here Thursday morning and started looking for work again. I took the first thing I could get—a clothing model's job. On the strength of that I rented an apartment. I don't like rooming houses."

"Do you think a jury would believe your story?" scoffed O'Day.

"I don't know. Do you believe I committed a murder?"

"It looks like it. Whether you did or not, you're coverin' somebody up. You know who did it. You were in the room when the murder was committed. I believe you even got Henry Rand into that room—didn't you?"

"No!" cried Jimmy, leaping from his chair. "I don't believe that, Lieutenant. She might be covering somebody up, but—"

"Sit down, Rand." O'Day waved him aside. "Didn't you?" he continued, turning to Olga Maynard.

"No, I didn't, I tell you," she said fiercely. "I never even heard of him."

"Listen, sister," said O'Day. "I've been trying to place you and it comes to me all of a sudden. Seems to me you were one of those who got a ride in the wagon the time we raided the Studio Club. How about it?"

She turned away from O'Day's steady look—bit her lip. "What of it?" she asked.

"Nothing—except it wasn't very nice company. Not for a lady."

She flushed hotly. "All right, maybe it wasn't. But you can't hang me for that."

"We can come pretty near hanging you for something else. Come, now, tell us who was with you in Grafton. Who was this guy H. A. Jones who registered for the room?"

"I wasn't with anybody in Grafton."

"All right, what's the jury going to say when we show 'em you were in Grafton the day of the murder and your theater ticket was found in the room?"

She smiled sarcastically. "They wouldn't convict me on circumstantial evidence, Lieutenant. Pretty thin evidence, at that."

O'Day studied her through half shut eyes. "That ain't all," he said softly. "That ain't all. You still say you didn't go near the Canfield Hotel?"

"I still say it."

"All right. Then how di' this get in the room where the murder was committed?"

He produced the handkerchief and confronted her with it. "Come on, answer me." She was staring, white-faced, at the handkerchief, speechless with surprise.

"If—if I wanted to lie," she said slowly, "I'd say that wasn't my handkerchief. There's no initial or anything on it—"

"The perfume is the same as you've got on the one in your hand," O'Day cut in.

"Just the same, you couldn't prove it was mine, Lieutenant. This is a common enough brand of perfume, and so is the handkerchief. But I won't lie. It's my handkerchief. Do you mean to say they found it in the room with—with—"

"They found it in the room with Henry Rand, yes. The handkerchief and the ticket stub. Now do you admit you were in the room?"

"I'm still telling you the truth, Lieutenant." She looked appealingly at Jimmy. "I'll swear I am. Mr. Rand. I'm telling the truth. No, I was not in that room. I don't know how the handkerchief got there. But I think I begin to see a thing or two now."

"Listen. Maybe I've been covering somebody up that I didn't intend to cover up. That handkerchief gives me an idea, Lieutenant. I lost that handkerchief Monday night. I had it when I left the Paragon Theater, but I didn't have it when I went home, and I didn't have it when I went to Grafton.

"Do you see this?" She held up her beaded bag. "When I went in the theater I put the ticket stub in here—with my handkerchief. Well, after the theater I went to a place to eat and dance. You know, Mr. Rand—the Madrid, where you saw me the other night.

"This might sound like a weak alibi to you, Lieutenant. You might think I'm lying, but I'll swear I'm not."

"Go ahead," said O'Day.

"I'm trying to think." She passed her hand uncertainly over her forehead. "I gave that bag to the man I was dancing with, to hold for me. He put it in his coat pocket, and afterward he gave it back.

"My handkerchief was still in the bag, and so was the ticket stub, I guess. I remember asking him for my handkerchief after one dance—it was warm. I told him it was in my bag. He opened the bag without taking it out of his pocket and brought out the handkerchief. I remember he said, 'What kind of a pickpocket do you think I'd make?' He did it real cleverly.

"All right—what did you do with the handkerchief then?" asked O'Day.

"The music started for another dance, and I gave it back to him. He just stuck it in his pocket—didn't put it back in the bag."

"You mean he kept it?" Jimmy asked.

"Let me finish. We quarreled and I went home and left him there. Before I left I asked him for my bag. My money was in it. He kidded me for a minute or two—tried to make me think he was going to keep it—but I threatened to call the manager.

"He gave me back the bag, and it was still unfastened where he had taken the handkerchief out. I'd forgotten about the handkerchief, but he must have kept it not knowing he had it. The next day, as I told you, I missed it, but I didn't try to think what I had done with it. It was just a cheap handkerchief.

"I think that when he pulled my handkerchief out of the bag he also pulled out the ticket stub, and they were both in his pocket when he gave the bag back."

"And you think he's the man who left the handkerchief and the stub in the Canfield Hotel?" asked O'Day.

"That's the only explanation I can think of."

"All right—who was the man?"

Men Of Every Class, Creed and Business Meet On Common Ground In Peterborough Exhibition

Encouraging reports of the membership drive were given at last night's meeting of the Board of Directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Directors reported that they had no difficulty in selling the membership tickets, and that the appeal is universal.

This is one of the big features of the Exhibition—it appeals to all classes for its support, and it interests all classes. Wrapped up in the success of the Exhibition is the success of the city's industries and the country's farms. It is the show window of all production in city and country. It is the natural meeting place for urban and rural dweller.

A reference to the new members listed in another column today under the heading "Exhibition Boosters" will show this as nothing else can. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Roman Catholic Bishop of Peterborough; ex-Mayor J. J. Turner; G. H. Roper, secretary of the Y.M.C.A.; Rev. Paul Costello, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral; A. J. Reynolds, Manager of the Bank of Commerce; City Solicitor Joseph Wearing; and others prominent in the city rub shoulders with representative farmers.

Barriers of politics, Church, business, profession, sex and age are wiped out in this enterprise and have no place in the work or aims of the Exhibition.

And the lead that is set by these men points a plain path of duty and privilege to every other citizen of Peterborough and every other farmer in the district.

The Exhibition wants YOU as a member. Sign the application NOW.

BIRTHDAY GIFT TO JANE GORDON

Lakefield Woman Passes 96th Birthday With Friends' Good Wishes.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 11. — On Thursday afternoon last a little group of the friends and neighbors of the Misses Gordon called at their home to offer their good wishes to Miss Jane Gordon on her ninety-sixth birthday. Miss Mary Adams read the following address to Miss Gordon:

Lakefield, Feb. 4, 1926.

Dear Miss Gordon:

We, your friends and neighbors, take the present opportunity to congratulate you upon reaching another milestone in life's journey with undiminished vitality. Your cheerfulness, brightness and interest in the welfare of church and state is a stimulous to each one privileged to know you. Your unswerving regard for the things that count endear you to every member of the community. Great has been your power of winning and retaining friends.

To you and to your sister we extend hearty greetings and ask you to accept this slight token of our good will and earnest wishes for continued health, happiness, hope and memories tender and true. Very few are privileged to reach your advanced age with faculties strong and clear. When you leave us it will be just stepping on shore and finding it heaven, of taking hold of a hand and finding it God's hand, of breathing new air and finding it celestial air, of waking up and finding it "Home."

Mrs. Braden presented Miss Gordon with a basket of fruit decorated with mauve and silver and a bouquet of daffodils and Mrs Simmons presented Miss Sarah Gordon with a box of candy and a bouquet.

The ladies were taken by surprise but thanked their friends for the remembrance of the day, assuring them of their appreciation of the expression of the neighbor spirit. The afternoon was spent in music and conversation and in pleasant social intercourse. Before leaving all sang the familiar hymn. "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

Among those present besides the Misses Gordon and their niece, Miss Shields, were the Misses Adams, Mrs. Simmons, Mrs. Robert Garbutt, Mrs. Braden, Mrs. Renwick, Mrs. Trennum, Mrs. Wm. Graham, Mrs. Thomson, Miss Florence Fairbairn, Mrs. James Millar, Mrs. Andrew Millar, Mrs. James Hendren, Mrs. Frank Hill, Miss Nettie Preston and Miss Eva Northcott.

A.Y.P.A. Euchre.

The eighth of the series of euchres given under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. was held in the school room on Thursday night last with a good attendance in spite of numerous counter attractions. Prizes were won by Miss Gertrude Summers and Mr. Roy Everett, and the consolation prizes by Miss Angela Osborne and Mr. M. Hampton. Among those present were: Rev. and Mrs. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Chappell, Mr. and Mrs. George Charlton, Mr. and Mrs. Stenner, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Millage, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Woodhouse, Mrs. R. Allen, Mrs. B. Blewett, Mrs. Chads, Mrs. F. C. Crawford, Mrs. James Johnston, Mrs. Junkin, Mrs. Osborne, Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mrs J. Sanderson, Mrs. W. Stone, Mrs. Stuart, Mrs. Trude Waldon, Misses M. Connal, R. Crawford, H. Crawford, Curtis, Graham, Hampton, M. Johnston McKibbin, A. Osborne, W. Payne, G. Summers, Y. Stuart, and Webster. Messrs. W. Bullied, R. Everett, M. Hampton, Moore, Robertshaw, Summers, White, A. and F. Webster.

Business Change.

Messrs. I. C. Sherin and sons have sold their business to Neal & Flynn of Peterboro who will open up in a short time.

It is nearly seventy years since the Sherin business was founded by the late John Sherin and the store occupied by Mr. Fred C. Crawford was the first home of the business. Later Mr. Sherin built the brick stores occupied by the Sherin firm and Mr. Burgess' drug store. Mr. John Sherin died about twenty-five years ago and about twenty years ago Mr. I. H. Sherin sold the business to the Kline Bros. About nine years ago Mr. Sherin again took over the business which he and his sons have carried on under the old firm name. The passing of the Sherin business in Lakefield means the passing of an old landmark. Mr. Sherin and sons will continue in the wholesale business and will remain in Lakefield for the present.

For the past thirty-seven years Mr. Sherin has been the local agent for the C.P.R.

Fire In Store.

The fire alarm sounded about 8 o'clock on Thursday morning, the blaze being in the store taken over from J. C. Sherin and son by Neill & Flynn. The blaze was extinguished in a few minutes and was caused by a bunch of oil rags becoming overheated. The damage was negligible.

Motor Cars Laid Up.

The motor cars are nearly all laid up for better days when traffic is less hazardous so that once more the horse comes into his own again and horses and cutters are seen often in the streets. One day last week a young girl on a pair of skis provided amusement for both the girls and the villagers. Winter sports are varied in the extreme and one can always trust youngsters to find a new sensation.

Mrs. Peter Baptie celebrated her birthday on Tuesday last, receiving good wishes for the continuance of these pleasant anniversaries from her numerous circle of friends.

Master Donald Smith entertained six friends on Tuesday afternoon and evening on the occasion of his fourth birthday.

Mr. W. J. Webster and sons are in the midst of their annual ice harvest which is a good one this season. Loads of ice drawn by farmers for their ice houses are becoming more numerous as the season advances.

Skooters Active.

The "skooter" season is here and if the roads are good the going is much more satisfactory than a horse driven conveyance but there is always an "if" and the trip is not so pleasant when the "skooter" has to be pushed back to the road or through heavy snowdrifts. Trips have been made more or less satisfactorily to Buckhorn, Apsley and Warsaw.

Week's Programme.

This week's programme includes the following:

Monday, February 8th—Play in the Memorial Hall under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A.

Tuesday, February 9th—Twelfth annual Valentine Tea of the W.A.; Junior O.H.A., Markham vs Lakefield.

Thursday, February 11th—Euchre party of the A.Y.P.A.

Friday, February 12th—Dance and Euchre of the Holy Name Society; hockey match.

The February meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was held on Tuesday afternoon last.

The W.M.S. of the United church held its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the parsonage. About sixty members were in attendance. Papers from the study book "Building with India," were given by Mrs. W. Spence and Mrs. A. B. Greenbank. A vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. A. G. McDermott and was very much enjoyed by all. After the meeting lunch was served and a number of articles left from the Mission Band bazaar were sold.

It was decided to hold the next meeting in the Sunday school hall.

Two sleigh loads of young people from St. Andrew's Presbyterian church drove to the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Buchanan on the 10th line of Dummer on Friday night last where the February meeting of the Y.W.A. of that church was held. After the meeting a social time was spent in music and games.

The Young Woman's Auxiliary of the United Church (formerly Presbyterian) met on Friday night at the home of Miss Stella Burgess. A reading on the missionary fields of the United church was given by Mrs. John Weir and a vocal solo was beautifully rendered by Mrs. (Dr.) Mortimer Clarek.

A meeting of committees from the four Protestant churches of the village was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Weir to arrange for the programme for the International Day of Prayer to be held on Friday afternoon, February 19th.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was dispensed on Sunday morning in the United church. Seventeen new members were received into the church, some by certificates from other churches and some on profession of faith. The ordinance of baptism was given to three boys who were linking up with the church.

Norwood Lodge Independent Order of Oddfellows held another very successful euchre party in the lodge rooms on Friday night.

A show "Way Down South in Dixie" was given in the Town Hall on Friday night by a negro troop. There was a very small attendance which was perhaps due to so many counter attraction on that night.

The moving picture put on in the Town Hall on Thursday night under the auspices of the Woman's Institute was largely attended. An orchestra composed of a number of the young people of the village supplied the music between scenes.

A local talent concert under the auspices of the 40th Northumberland Chapter I.O.D.E. will be held in the Town Hall on Friday evening next. The proceeds are to be used for the educational fund of the chapter.

Miss Anna Brethen entertained about two dozen of her young friends at a dinner party at her home "Hillcrest Farm" on Friday evening. Later on in the evening all present enjoyed a very pleasant sleigh ride.

Mrs. George Wheatley was in Peterboro on Saturday where she met with an accident which necessitated a few stiches being put in her head. Her friends hope for a speedy recovery.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, and emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destrovs the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchical asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to direction. Ask your druggist Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

PRISCILLA DEAN
Famous Screen Star whose beautiful hair has much to do with her fascination

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified Cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES MEET AT OMEMEE

United W.M.S. and Anglican Women's Guild Held Meetings.

OMEMEE, Feb. 11.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Lamb on Thursday afternoon. There were fifty members and visitors present. The President, Mrs. E. W. Rowland, presided. The Scripture lesson from the 91 Psalm was read by Mrs. T. A. MacPherson, followed by prayers from Mrs. A. Staples and Mrs. R. Poast.

The business session followed, in which Mrs. E. T. Wilson was appointed to be responsible for the missionary programme to be given in the Sunday School the first Sunday in March.

Mrs. E. Bradburn. Mrs. C. Ivory and Mrs. S. T. Wilson were appointed as a committee to arrange the thirty strips which were handed in by the members to be made into quilts.

A letter from the President of the Bay of Quinte branch, Mrs. M. E. Ashton of Campbellford, was read by Mrs. J. Bushnell.

Owing to the church year ending the last Sunday of March, it was found necessary to change the date for the annual thank-offering, and accordingly the first Sunday of March was set aside for this purpose at the evening service when a special speaker will be secured, if possible.

Mrs. J. Widdis, the Corresponding Secretary, was advised to order the Missionary Monthly for the benefit of the Programme Committee, Mrs. H. Lamb and Mrs. L. Mahood to fill that capacity for the next two months.

A card of appreciation for the many kindnesses shown by the ladies of the church in their recent sad bereavement was received from Miss Lila Parsons, and at this juncture the President spoke very feelingly of the departed member, the late Mrs. Parsons, who had been present at the January meeting.

The Watch Tower was then called, responses being made by Miss Rita Kennedy, Africa; Mrs. (Dr.) Irvine, China: Mrs. W. J. Kennedy, India: Mrs. G. Haygarth, Indian; Mrs. R. H. Williamson New Canadians; Mrs. J. Widdis Oriental; Miss Marjorie Connell, Japan; Miss A. Neill, Korea.

A piano solo was then given by Mrs. Cecil Corneil in her usual efficient manner, after which the devotional leaflet, entitled "Workers Together in Prayer," was read by Miss Eva Race.

Misses Eva and Lillian Race then favored the gathering with a piano duet. A short reading, entitled "What Shall Our Easter Thank-offering Mean?" was given by Mrs. Mahood, and the interesting and profitable programme was brought to a close with prayer by Mrs. Irvine of Lindsay.

A social half-hour was enjoyed at the close, the hostesses being Mrs. Arthur Rutherford, Mrs. G. N. Earle and Mrs. E. W. Rowland.

Women's Guild.

The Women's Guild of Christ Church held its monthly meeting in the basement of the church on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 4. There were twenty-five members present. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Miss Irene Clemett; Vice-President, Miss Edith Curry; Secretary, Miss Clara Cornwall; Treasurer, Mrs. Fred. Bent.

On behalf of the Guild a vote of appreciation was extended to Miss A. Stephenson, the retiring Treasurer, for her faithful services, who on account of ill-health was obliged to resign her office.

During the afternoon two quilts, which had been placed in the frames, were quilted. At the conclusion of the meeting the hostesses, Mrs. R. Cornwall and Mrs. Vincent Jones, served refreshments.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. Jamieson.

There Was Nothing So Good for Congestion and Colds as Mustard

But the old-fashioned mustard plaster burnt and blistered. Get the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister.

Musterole does it. It is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Gently rub it in. See how quickly the pain disappears.

Try Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia.)

EXTRACTS FROM DIRECTORS' REPORT

Your Directors present the fifty-fifth annual report for your approval.

The Company's statements have for years reflected its constantly increasing expansion and prosperity, but this year marks an epoch in the life of the organization. It has now passed the Billion Dollars mark in assurance in force, the amount after deducting reassurances being $1,021,097,101.94.

.... Applications for new assurances have been the largest in our history, aggregating $220,534,526.67. The new policies paid-for numbered 57,944, for the amount of $193,477,057.26, after deducting amounts re-assured. The new business for the year exceeds the total amount of business the Company had in force only thirteen years ago.

.... The gratifying evidences of growth and expansion [exhibited in the accompanying statement] are paralleled in regard to strength and profitableness. Notwithstanding the general decline in interest rates, the Company has been able not merely to continue, but to slightly increase its record in this connection, the rate earned during the year on the mean invested assets having been 6.41 per cent.

Several factors have contributed to produce this result, not the least important being an increase in the dividends paid by some of the corporations in which the Company has substantial stock holdings.

Even more important than interest yield has been the advance in the market value of our securities. For many years we have specialized in long term bonds and preferred and common stocks of outstanding corporations, both in Canada and in the United States. We are now reaping the rewards of this policy. On actual sales of municipal debentures and other securities which had risen to high premiums, we have realized a net profit of $2,215,772.41, while the increase in the value of securities still held has been much greater.

The profits earned by the Company during the year, based on the increase in the valuation of our securities as made by the government authorities, has been $21,666,284.00. We have not thought it wise, however, to take credit for this entire amount, and .... have made a deduction of $3,000,000 from the official valuation placed on our assets. We have, moreover, added $2,500,000 to our Contingency Accounts, bringing these up to a total of $10,000,000.

Following the practice of recent years, we have written off $750,000 from the book value of our Head Office and Branch Buildings, and other real estate.

We have also, by setting aside an additional $350,000, further strengthened the special reserve to provide for possible greater longevity among annuitants, bringing the total amount under this heading up to $1,100,000 in excess of government requirements.

During the year we have paid or allotted $7,662,784.35 as profits to our policyholders. After deducting this sum, and the accretions to shareholders' account, and making the foregoing heavy allocations, we have yet been able to add $6,532,642.75 to our undivided profits bringing the total surplus over all liabilities, Contingency Accounts and Capital up to $28,640,000.69.

For the sixth consecutive year we are able to announce an increase in the scale of profits to be distributed to our policyholders in the ensuing year.

.... To provide for the expansion of our business, it has been necessary to make an extension of the Head Office building, which has now been completed, and will be formally opened on the day of our Annual Meeting. The building is devoted exclusively to the use of the Company, but it is already evident that we must at once provide for further enlargement.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Is it wrong for a girl to call up her boy friends? TOOTS.

TOOTS: No, it is not "wrong" for a girl to do this but it is better form for her to write her invitations. Then the gentlemen can accept or decline much more gracefully.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens. I went about with a young man for about five months. He said he thought the world of me. He then "threw me over." I wrote him a letter and asked him why he is angry, but he did not answer. Please advise me what to do.

BRIGHT EYES: If this young man has not answered your letter, you must do nothing more to indicate that you are interested in him. He should have written you to explain his negligence if he really valued your friendship, and since he has not done so, you must try to forget him.

NORWOOD PERSONALS

Miss Grace Gillespie, B.A. spent the week end at her home in Campbellford.

Miss M. Carter of the Public school staff is confined to her home through illness and Miss Stella Burgess is relieving during her absence.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

L. J. R.—You have a strong will power, also a good deal of creative power and tenacious strength. You should always employ cleverness and diplomatic methods in getting what you want, rather than strive to force things to come your way. You are skilful with your hands and have a good choice of language. You are courteous and affable when you feel like it, but can be very blunt at times. You are fond of good things to eat and to wear. You have the habit of putting things off and are also inclined to scold and nag, a very disagreeable trait. When you are interested, you will work hard, but you are inclined to be indolent. A quick temper, a scolding habit and a tendency to sarcasm are your bugbears, but withal, you have a warm, generous heart. Be careful of what you eat, as your stomach will give you much trouble otherwise. You will do best in circumstances where you are taking the lead, provided you learn to control your nagging habits. You are a good story teller and make an excellent entertainer.

You were born on Friday. The day you ask about, a Saturday, is one on which to be cheerful and generous. Do not put off any tasks on that day and assume any responsibility offered to you. Your colors are blue and silver.

M. L. N.—You have a keen mentality, well fitted for scientific or business achievement, also a fine feeling for art, especially in designing. You have a vivid memory and are interested in religious and educational matters. As long as you remain unmarried, you will have to seek success through hard work. It will not come to you otherwise. You would make a good cashier, accountant or bookkeeper, but should cultivate self-assertiveness, as you are not overly conscious of your own worth.

You are inclined to be somewhat restless and skeptical and sometimes talk too much for your own good. Before you are thirty-five, you will probably have a serious illness, after which steadier conditions will prevail in your life. You should learn the value of silence and realize that your inward restlessness and anxiety are at the root of much of your trouble. Dress in pale delicate shades and give more attention to the details of your toilet that you really wish to. Marry a man born in September, October, or July, begin important undertakings in May or June, and preferably on Saturday. You will probably have a long life. Cultivate precision, especially in housework, and the art of putting things back where you found them.

You were born on Monday....

The day you enquire about, a Monday, is a day for quiet meditation and self-communion. Do not try to accomplish much on this day. Let things take their course and do not worry. Your colors are tan and buff.

L. M. M.—You were born for the married state, and should not waste much time in thinking of any other career. But when you marry, remember that it is a life-long contract, and avoid flirtations. Marry a man born in January, September or October. May and July are your lucky months and Friday your lucky day. At all times, associate with others in any undertakings. Do not try to make your way alone. You will not succeed. You are not overly fond of housework, and should not marry a man who would strive to make a servant of you. If you do, you will probably leave him, and make a mess of both your lives. You are fond of parties and good times and of entertaining your friends. But do not be too much taken with showy appearances. You are inclined to think too much also of the physical enjoyments of life. Follow out your own natural talents, no matter what other folk may say to you. Control your temper, which, when aroused, is very dangerous. Patience and self-poise will help you over many difficult situations in life. Forget injuries and do not allow yourself to be irritated over small trifles. Do not imitate the conversation or manners of others. You are at your best when being original. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are orange and scarlet.

F. E. W.—You have creative and emotional ability of a high order and are well fitted to cope with the circumstances of daily life. You may not ever achieve much in a material way, but you will be a leader in a small sphere and have unusual understanding and sympathy for the trials of those about you. You belong to a class of people who are said to be the strongest and the weakest in the world, endowed with great possibilities, if they use them to good advantage. You can make yourself and those about happy, once you have learned from experience that perfect honesty and truthfulness are necessary to the characters of great men and women. You may suffer before this lesson strikes home to you, but you will never forget it. Study hard how to concentrate. Think carefully along a certain path, then do not swerve from it. Study yourself, and you will succeed. Do not be timid and apprehensive of danger, do not procrastinate and never break a promise. Do not be a dreamer, for application and concentration will bring you nearly everything you desire from life. Neither tea nor coffee is good for you.

You were born on Saturday. Your colors are red and brown.

A. T. R.—You were born for self-expression and entertainment, to bring joy and happiness to your own life and the lives of others, with a liking for music and painting and good cheer. But with all this, you will never achieve success in a material way, if you want that type of success, but by hard work—an everlasting plugging away at your job. The thing for you to do is to combine this characteristic lightness of yours with a certain amount of steady work. Do your work, whatever it is, well, but do not let it become monotonous drudgery that will snuff out the bright side of your existence. You are inclined always to be in a hurry and do not like to await results. You are easily annoyed and may be cruel at times to those who cannot keep pace with you. You are likely to be quite successful in money matters. You are apt to be misunderstood, and should remember that others have not the same quality of quick acting and thinking that belongs to your temperament. You are a stickler for the exact truth and a promise with you is absolutely sacred. Do not depend on appreciation and gratitude You will not always get them. Value your own strength and always maintain your own individuality. You may think all this is peculiar advice for a man of your age, but people of your temperament are never old. Their spirit is ever young. You were born on Saturday. The date you mention is past. Your color is black.

HER OWN WAY

by a Girl of Today

MOTHER'S TEARS.

"Oh, Julia," said my mother, "I never thought such a thing would come to me! To think that a daughter of mine would suffer such indignities!" she exclaimed, sobbing.

"If I had suffered only the indignity I think I could have stood it, but I suffered much more. I was wet to the skin. I ruined my clothes and I sprained one of my ankles. See how it's swollen." I stuck it out of bed and I myself was shocked to see how black and blue it was.

"I'm afraid I can't step on it," I said. "Perhaps I'd better have a doctor."

I could see that mother was not in favor of having the doctor or anyone else come to see my sprained ankle just at this time.

"But, Julia," she expostulated tearfully, "are you not engaged to Charles Becker?"

"I am not," I answered emphatically.

"Do you mean to tell me, daughter, that he has never asked you to be his wife?"

"I should hope not. What has he that he thinks a girl like me would marry him?"

"Well, your father must look into this. Whatever you have thought before this night, surely you must see that now, the only thing for you is marriage with Charles Becker. No young man can play fast and loose with my daughter in this way."

"Good heavens, mother, you talk as though I was ruined for life. I've only got a sprained ankle, a ruined gown and a cold in the head. Please, mother, don't sic dad on him. Please let me run it my own way. Already I think I've done something which has brought Chuck to his senses, which showed him at least that I could manage my own affairs. When he tried to hold me in the car, I gave him such a crack with my fist that for a moment I'm sure he didn't know what it was all about. It knocked him completely over the wheel, but I knew he was not hurt badly because he brought his army English into play immediately.

"I got out as quickly as I could. Chuck was so busy taking care of himself that he didn't notice anything else. I was considerably jarred myself but not enough to keep me from beginning my pleasant little hike home."

The sports outfit above is a smart example. The sweater is of tan and tomato color, while the kasha skirt repeats the identical tan shade used in the sweater. The hat and scarf use the same treatments.

Another effective frock is of pale gray knitted lace, trimmed with bands of pale blue kasha.

GERMAN INVENTION.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—A new device for locating sea depths was brought here yesterday. It is known as le sonde desm, and is a German invention.

The apparatus consists of a gun and a microphone. A gun, on the portside fires a projectile, which explodes one fathom below the wate. The surface detonation is recorded by the microphone, which is attached to the forward section of the keel beneath the water line and this is transmitted to an instrument on the bridge operating a dial.

When the cartridge strikes the ocean bed there is another sound which the michrophone also records. The dial on the bridge gives the depth.

FINE COSTUMES ARE EXPECTED

Rotary Carnival Will Be a Brilliant Affair.

Both Rotary and Kiwanis Club hockey teams are in training for Monday night's hockey match, which will be a big feature of the big Rotary Carnival.

The N.H.L. slogan, "the fastest in the world," will be considered a misnomer after the fans get a look at the two service club teams in action, and the management is considering the advisability of making a safety zone around the rink by barring spectators from the front seats for fear that some speeding Rotarian or Kiwanian will skid and go over the fence into the crowd.

The line-ups are being kept dead secret and neither club will show its hand in advance.

Besides the hockey match there will be a fine programme of races.

The carnival itself will bring out the funniest array of fancy dress costumes that have been seen in Peterborough and many well known citizens are planning to take part. There are many fine prizes for the successful contestants.

EXHIBITION BOARD APPOINTS COMMITTEES FOR THE SEASON

Plans Laid for 1926 Show at Enthusiastic Meeting of Directors.

NEW PARADE

Livestock Prizewinners Will March in Front of Stand at 3.30.

The 1926 show of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition was well started on its way last night in a meeting of the Board of Directors. Many suggestions were presented for the betterment of the Exhibition, and reports were made by the chairmen of committees.

It was decided to have the livestock parade at 3.30 on Saturday instead of 1.30, as in previous years. It was believed that this would give the visitors a better idea of the size and scope of Peterborough Exhibition.

Among the encouraging reports presented were those from the poultry, heavy horses and beef cattle committees. An attempt was made to have the time for arriving with livestock changed forward a day, but this was voted down, and the present rule stands.

The judging competition was lauded as one of the best features of the Exhibition, and proposals were made to have a platform for this feature. It was also suggested that before the boys are asked to judge the animals there should be a demonstration so that the competitors would know what was expected of them. A committee was appointed to discuss the matter.

There will be another meeting on March 4, when all committee prize revisions will be expected.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

— By Blanche Silver —

LINDA HELPS MAMA CHIMNEY SWIFT.

It was a rainy, cold day. Linda curled up in the arm chair before the fireplace to wait until her mama made a fire.

"To-weet, to-weet," came a soft low call. Linda looked around to see who it was. She was all alone in the room.

"To-weet," sounded again.

"To-weet, nothing!" piped up a second voice. "We will be out of luck if they ever build a fire in the fireplace. I told you this wasn't a good place for a nest. But you wouldn't listen to me."

"I know, Daddy dear," chirped a softer voice, "but it's too late now to say 'I told you so.' I'm going to fly down into the room and ask them not to build a fire until I teach the youngsters how to fly."

"Fly down and get baked in a pie," snapped the other voice. "Better move right away."

Linda heard a loud scratching in the chimney place and out into the room flew a dear little soot covered birdie.

"Good-morning, Miss Linda," chirped the Bird. "I'm Mama Chimney Swift. Daddy and I have a lovely nest full of babies up in your chimney. Please don't build any fires in the fireplace until we teach the youngsters how to fly. If you do, you'll smoke us out and down will come our nest and all."

"Then we'll have no fire," laughed Linda. "Was that you I heard to ki up in the chimney just a few seconds ago."

"Yes, Daddy Swift was scolding because I insisted on building in your chimney, "Mama Chimney Swift replied. "Don't you know we live up there. Come on up and see my family."

Before Linda knew what was happening, she found herself sitting on the edge of Mama Chimney Swift's little nest up in the sooty chimney.

"How in the world do you get it to stay up here." Linda asked. "I should think it would fall down."

"It would if you built a fire," laughed Mama Chimney Swift. "You see, it's just glued to the sides of the chimney with a sort of glue that comes from our mouths. If that glue gets warm the nestful of babies will tumble down. They will soon be old enough to fly, then we'll move."

"Fly away!" laughed Linda, opening her eyes.

"You sleeping?" asked her mama, coming in with her arms full of wood. "What's this about flying?"

"Oh please don't build a fire today, Mama," Linda cried. "Mama and Daddy Chimney Swift have a lovely nestful of babies up in our chimney and we'll smoke them out."

"All right, my dear," laughed her mama. "We don't need it now, the sun is coming out."

Linda heard more scratching in the chimney and she ran out doors to watch Mama and Daddy Chimney Swift teach their babies how to fly.

CITY MANAGEMENT IS DEBATED BY MEMBERS OF TWO CHURCHES

Affirmative, Upheld By St. Paul's Won Judges' Decision.

AT GEORGE STREET.

Management Plan is Preferable to Mayor and Council.

Monday evening of this week was a Red Letter day for the Men's Association of George street United church. The regular monthly meeting, and besides mental food and exercises, in a debate arranged between teams from St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and members of the Association. Looked on as a real polemical combat. Rules of debate to govern, of course. All concerned were on hand and with the debaters came a good number from St. Paul's to back up and encourage their friends. George street men needed no encouragement, for they were on home ground, so to speak.

With President Adair in the chair the preliminaries of some business on the slate, and introductions, were all despatched. There were two debaters on each side with an assortment of judges. Two time-keepers and an expectant audience made up the arena of action. The skill and acquirements of those who would argue was an unknown element that whetted the anticipations of expectancy. One of the rules provided for 80 per cent of marks based on argument with 20 per cent for style, eloquence, manner of delivery and general effect. This, no doubt, with the idea in mind of suppressing any city council catch-as-catch can style of polemical exertion.

During the evening a quartette of Messrs. Chenhall, Snelgrove, Sedgwick and Fleming, of St. Paul's, sang cheerfully and obliged with three numbers. Mr Vaughan Walker also obliged with vocal solos.

Dr. Craig was placed in charge of the debate, he being well known as a pacifist, growing out of his intimate connection with the School Board. He announced the rules. Four speakers, each to speak for twelve minutes. The leader (or speaker first to scratch and start), to have two minutes to review the feeble arguments of his opponents. An alarm to be sounded when the speaker had consumed ten minutes, and was about to stop, giving him two minutes to wind up and get in his body blows. The President, Mr. Adair, as a sort of inconspicuous referee. Three judges, all eminently wise men and with large forbearance. For St Paul's (the affirmative), Messrs. A. Sedgwick and Richard Lees. For George street (the negative) Messrs. Chas. Elliott and Charles Saunders. And might the best men win. The subject for debate, "Resolved that the city manager form the municipal government is preferable to that now in use."

Apologies are due to an expectant public for the brevity of this report. If written out "an extenso", it would have been an excellent thing to have handed to Member Bradburn of the Ontario House, opening this week, in order that he might have a model on which to run the Public Accounts Committee, which occasionally gets rather boisterous when in earnest confab. So only a brief resume of arguments may be offered for publication. The judges, Messrs. Basil Hall, H. B. Cowan and Alex Stewart. All men of a calm and contemplative mind and unbiased in all repects. While two were from St. Paul's, Mr. Stewart was the biggest and so would carry additional weight. The time keepers were Messrs. Dodds and Richardson.

Mr. Sedgwick (for St. Paul's) opened the debate, but took occasion to say that it was a most agreeable thing to come and participate in an evening with George street men and fraternize. There had been, he said, some late unpleasantness, but that was now at an end and amity and concord and unanimous effort would prevail for the future. All of which was audibly endorsed by the audience. His general argument in support of the resolution was that municipal service, no matter how haphazard it might have been in the past, called for the service of trained men. Voluntary and varied service to citizens had not been for the best. Untrained men were often at sea as to requirements and the desirable things to do. The ever changing city council offered no opportunity to become familiar with the real problems of municipal cares and betterments. Good city government was needed at a price that the citizens could afford to pay. In all walks of life we went to those who knew, to get our knowledge of detail. City councils, rightly enough, shaped policies, but the carrying out of these plans should be co-ordinated under one head, responsible to the council. With department managers to transmit orders and see that such were carried out. Policies would be thus carried out more economically and efficiently.

A city manager would be in touch with all employees, and who would know that service and attention would be insisted on. Cities could be cited which had put up with poor service, high taxes and poor credit. All this had been changed under city manager system. In larger places the effect had been to break up rings, nullify political influences and create a better state of finance and municipal frugality.

Mr. Elliott, for the negative, came next. He claimed that while a benevolent autocracy might be a very good thing, and wonderfully satisfying to many, city managers were not apt to be benevolent, but almost the reverse. It was out of the question to place in the hands of one man the direction of the intimate works of our municipal life. the plan as advocated ignored the fact that we had in many of our departments men well skilled in their individual functions, and to get one man who would combine all these in one personality was impossible. If the argument was made that we could add a city manager and do away with all department heads there would be the claim of economy put forward. But such a man, if found, would be a Moses and a Solomon, both. One man control meant that he had to rely on himself and not desire or invite the assistance of others, no matter how well skilled.

The council plan was safe. One man might be succeptible to influences, cajoled to permit things undesirable. To misguide a whole city council was impossible. While the ultimate decision as to a course of action rested with the council, when under city manager plan, the carrying out of the policies depended on the man who controlled. We had competent men in all our city departments, and if these were competent that did not need further control in the details of carrying out policies. If not competent then get some one who was. He enumerated the men now in charge, in this city, and doubted if any were not wholly approved by the council which knew the capabilities of each. A city manager would ever to be judged by his council, whereas now the council is the judge of its heads of departments. Even if found, a manager would cost us a large sum, per year, and this in addition to all salaries now paid.

Mr. R. Lees followed, maintaining that he was strong for the plan of a city manager. The employment of such men was in its experimental and theoretical stage, having been before the public not much longer than twelve years. Its use rightly based on the facts that all large enterprises, industries, organizations employed men well skilled as managers. Directors, of course, shaped policies, but being unaware of the details of carrying such out to completion, wisely engaged the services of someone competent. Generally a man of big business capacity. He had lived in Peterborough for nearly twenty years, and did not hesitate to say that among the twelve mayors who had officiated during that period, only three had shown the real business capacity, in a public sense, that should animate such a man in such a position. Of those in the council, we, professedly, secured the best we could.

Mr. Lees continued with a list of municipalities where city manager direction had prevailed, instances mostly drawn from places in the United States. He prefaced what he had to say by remarking that the general form of municipal government in the States differed very materially from that in Canada. Here our form of government had been of gradual growth, but had developed faults, which by our municipal laws we were trying to mend. Our Provincial Governments meddled very much more in the direction of municipal affairs than on the other side of the line For the cure of certain ills the city managership had been found as a remedy. In the States cities of from 12,000 or less of population to those of over 10,000 had adopted the plan and found it desirable. Cleveland, which had been an example of incompetency, had taken on a city manager at $5,000 per year and who had worked wonders.

Brandon, Man., with a population of 14,000 and a city manager was doing well and quite satisfied. Chatham, with 16,000 people and a mayor and seven aldermen is well pleased, so much so that if the matter were submitted to the ratepayers for approval, it is felt that it would be heartily endorsed. Westmount, Que., noted for good government, is a shining example of excellence, with its control by a competent city manager. Mr. Lees adduced much other matter, all thoughtfully brought forward, and endorsed the plan as thoroughly workable, and on the whole offering a commendable system, with the probability of improvement in the future as cities realized the practibility of the system and its beneficial uses.

Mr. Chas. Saunders, followed and closed the debate, so far as the arguments of the three speakers preceding were concerned. He said that he regretted to learn that old and tried and competent officials, who had done their best, and against whom no word of censure could be brought forward, were to be superseded and overshadowed by an official to be bouyantly installed and whose word would be tantamount to a new law. If a city manager were here installed it would be with the idea of benefitting Peterborough. If the manager controlled (and if he did not control, where was his usefullness), the Mayor and Aldermen would have no say. On the basis, as applied to Peterborough, the affirmative were out of court. But the point would not be pressed. Few cities in Canada had taken on city managers. He knew of Guelph, where he lived for some years, but then the circumstances were peculiar, at the time, and that city had one official of large resourcefulness, and the council approved of him taking up the function of city manager, without formally naming him and installing him in ofifce. He passed away and then the whole thing fell to pieces. In such contingency, we should have to find a new man, equally competent, or determine to return to the wholly practical plan of mayor, council and departmental heads management, as we now have it. Would the city manager plan benefit Peterborough. That was the point to be decided. Should we have one man control The heads of all departments would be submanagers only. Our form of civic government has been tried and has worked very efficiently. The city council frames the city policies, with the advisement of the departmental heads, who discuss the practibility of the schemes as put forward. Other impressions and arguments were adduced by Mr. Saunders, affirming that we had something growing out of long usuage and trial and why change for a fad. The risk would be too great to assume.

Mr. Sedgwick, as the leader, thanked the opposing debaters for their efforts and addresses, and refrained from bringing forth fresh matter.

The judges adjourned to another room and went into solemn altercation for half an hour, and emerged with a decision. In the meantime refreshments were served and presently the decision was announced that the affirmative (St. Paul's) had won out. Mr. Basil Hall presented the decision and reviewed the arguments pro and con, and considered the relative values of what had been put forward.

The refreshments having been consumed the audience stood up and made vocal effort in the National Anthem and then dispersed. It is proposed that another debate be staged, this time in St. Paul's territory, and of which further announcement will be made.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

FRIDAY FEBRUARY 12.

Conflicting situations are to be read from this day's peculiar stellar operations. It is difficult to translate the outcome of subtle figures which may mean strategy, duplicity and sinister assault from sources little suspected. False friends may attempt trickery, but preparation in this respect may defeat all hostile forces. Heart and home affairs may be happier but here, likewise, let precaution rule against suble complications.

Those whose birthday it is are enjoined to safeguard themselves against all manner of secret enmities and subtle attack during the ensuing year. With every precaution in this direction they may reap advantages and confound their enemies and false friends. A child born on this day should in early life have instilled the need of incessant precaution against being involved in false predicaments, either through evil association or the betrayal of unworthy friendships. This warning is emphasized in the caes of females.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The shaggy bear went out and came back with a large sheet of blue paper with white printing on it.

"Here are the by-laws and the constitution, sir," he said to Blue Whiskers.

Blue Whiskers took it and ran his finger up and down. "I'll see if there is any law about tongue-twisters," he said.

"Here it is," he exclaimed in a few minutes. "The very thing I'm looking for! It's a law that was made by my great grandfather, Straggle Beard. It says, 'The by-laws and blue-laws allow any king at any time for any reason whatsoever, to do as he pleases for the sake of hearing a good story.' That lets me out."

So saying he rolled up the paper and handed it back to the bear, who waddled out and put it safely away in the pantry again. It was kept in the sugar barrel.

"And now," said Blue Whiskers to the Twins, "I'll forgive everything and untwist your tongues, if each of you can think up a little joke or story to tell me."

Jupe, the kangaroo, looked extremely worried. "Dear me!" he thought. "This is the end of everything. I never thought these poor dear children would have to do a thing like that. It's all my fault for bringing them here. It only they had come in by the wicket!"

But he stopped thinking and began to listen again, for Blue Whiskers had not finished talking.

He was saying, "But, mind you, it's got to be a funny story. And I've got to laugh. If I don't laugh until I cry, I'll mix your tongues all up again, and beside that you shall have to swim the moat of cod-liver oil which surrounds my castle. Now commence."

"Thank you, your Royal Highness," said Nancy.

"Certainly, your Majesty," said Nick.

And then they looked at each other in surprise. For the first time in hours, they could say what was in their minds.

"If we make you laugh," said Nick suddenly, "will you tell us where the blue cherry is?"

Blue Whiskers would have fallen off his throne if Jupe and the shaggy bear hadn't caught him and straightened him up again.

"That is a word that hadn't been mentioned in my kingdom for a hundred years!" he cried. "It says so in the by-laws and constitution. But there! It also says that a king may do anything at any time for any reason for the sake of a good joke. I'll see what I can do."

"Very well, then," said Nancy. "I know a good story.

Jupe looked relieved and surprised as well.

"Proceed!" said Blue Whiskers, expectantly.

"Well, said Nancy, "once a very, very little girl went out with her daddy for a ride in their automobile. After a while they got hungry and so they stopped at a little stand beside the road to get a sandwich.

"'What kind of sandwiches do you want?' asked the stand man.

"'We'll have hot-dog sandwiches,' said the little girl's daddy.

"So the man made the sandwiches and handed one to the little girl and one to her daddy.

"The first thing the little girl did was to open up her sandwich and look in. 'Say, daddy, what part of the doggie did you get?' she asked. 'I got his tail.'"

Blue Whiskers laughed so hard at this that he not only cried, but he nearly choked to death. And Jupe laughed and the bear laughed and all the little pigs laughed.

The Twins were very happy.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Increasing attention is being given all over the world to the prevention of disease by improving the eating habits. In London a health society has been founded and an influential group has pledged its efforts to make the laws of health more widely known.

At a recent meeting of this organization, Lord Oxford and Asquith made a speech on the importance of good health. He noted the advance in the reduction of mortality, but stressed the importance of dealing with the preventable diseases, saying:

"These diseases are not the product of nature, but of civilization and the result of our ignorance and carelessness. Many of them are due to our faulty habits and feeding. While malnutrition from an insufficiency of food is, happily, on the wane, many children and adults suffer from malnutrition from wrong feeding."

These are true words. They give emphasis to the widespread neglect of food knowledge which is available to everybody. As Lord Oxford said, "In no part of the field of research has there been so much advance as in the matter of food. Dietetic works twenty years old are now practically obsolete."

Public attention is drawn to this fact in almost every issue of every newspaper. In spite of it, these inbred, faulty habits continue to control our choice of foods. All too frequently, chronic disease and early death may be traced to this source.

If you were told, even by a passing stranger, that a portion of a certain road had been undermined by a cloudburst, you would take a detour of twenty miles to escape the danger.

Is an automobile more important than your life? Why are you not willing to accept the admonition of your family physician, a man who knows your weaknesses and whose head is packed with scientific knowledge which he would gladly impart to you?? Why do you disregard his advice and go blindly on the way which leads to destruction?

You cannot study the faces of twenty persons selected at random without seeing in several of them the plain evidence of undernourishment. Out of the twenty will be one or two showing signs of disease, which in all probability has resulted from wrong eating.

There is no more important lesson to be learned than a mastery of the fundamentals of the science of foods. You need not become an expert and you need not be counted a "crank" on the subject, but you can learn enough of the science so you will no longer make a play-house of your stomach.

To eat correctly is the surest way to add years to your life and to add efficiency to every year of that life.

Havelock Grab Two-Goal Lead in the First Game With Intermediate Petes

FIRST GAME WON BY HAVELOCK GIVING RAILROADERS LEAD OF TWO GOALS FOR GROUP FINALS

Trent Valley League Champions Beat Petes Here, 4-2.

WEIGHT COUNTED.

The Petes Were Outplayed Around the Nets and Failed To Check.

(By C.J.B.)

Havelock Intermediates are sitting pretty with a two goal lead to protect in their second game with Peterboro, through their victory here last night by the score of 4-2 in a fast game.

The visitors outweighed the Peterboro players and out-played them around the nets. The home team had a little better combination but failed to check as consistently as did the visitors, who had an edge in experience too.

The visitors presented a line-up mostly familiar to the local fans. Quinn, the two Brennans, and Hooper are well known in Peterboro, especially Doug Brennan. Neal, the smart goal keeper of the Marmora-Hastings County League team, replaced Davidson in the Havelock net and turned in a good game, although his work looked sloppy at times. They were accompanied by about 200 loud-voiced fans, and the roar when the game ended was as loud as if Peterboro had won.

Weight counted for much in the game. The Havelock veterans, Brennan, Quinn and Cooper, were the heaviest men on the ice and held off the attacks of the light Peterboro forwards, who failed to work in on goal as well as they should have done to score.

Poor work around both nets cost the Petes the game. They failed to cover their men when on the defensive and the second Havelock goal was scored on a pass to Charlie Brennan who was uncovered in front of the net. Playing good combination in centre ice, the Petes tried to bore in alone when nearing the goal, or else tried to shoot from outside. The long shots usually made Neal look awkward, but he saved them, which was the main thing.

The Puck Eluded the Petes.

Doug. Brennan and Rugs Wright were the stars of the Havelock team. Brennan scored two goals on lone rushes and played a good defensive game. Wright was in every play and skated miles. He made the Petes look sick when he circled and dodged right through the whole team to beat McClory for a pretty goal. Quinn, carrying a little too much weight, was good on lone rushes, but had to retire to the defence for a rest after each. Pollock and Charlie Brennan played a hard checking game although Pollock marred his by consistent loafing. Jack and Hooper subbed and played well when called upon.

McMartin, Williams and Dundas carried most of the burden for the Petes. McMartin opened the scoring and was always dangerous when he went down the ice. Williams and Dundas checked hard and got in a number of hard shots at Neal.

Lackey was good on the defence, and his rushes took him in close a number of times. His shot lacked its customary sting. King scored a fine goal on a pass but was somewhat off-color in checking. McDougall and White started off poorly at left wing, being weak in checking especially, but they settled down and laid siege to Neal's citadel in the final period, although without result. McClory played a good game in goal, especially when there were scrimmages in front of the nets. He cleared quickly, which was necessary, as the Havelock forwards followed right in for the rebounds. The teams:

Peterboro: Goal, McClory, defence, Lackey and McMartin; centre, King; wings, Dundas and McDougall; subs., White and Williams.

Havelock. Goal, Neal; defence, Quinn and D. Brennan; centre, Pollock; wings, Wright and C. Brennan; subs., Jack and Hooper.

"Snorts" Coombs of Lindsay, was referee and let little get away. He kept the players in check although there was little deliberate dirty work, accidental trips and body checks in centre ice being the worst crimes.

First Period.

Havelock had the first shot on goal. Almost from the face-off Pollock went through and gave McClory a chance, to be followed quickly by Wright. McDougall gave Neal his first work, and then Dundas and White went down together. Dundas shot and White slammed back the rebound. The rebound from White's shot was just out of reach for Ira, when Neal was at his mercy. Charlie Brennan then beat McClory, but as he was away offside, the play was called back. Relieving from the Petes' end McMartin went down and sifted a fast one past Neal from the blue line for the opening goal of the game. Hardly had the puck been faced when Doug. Brennan secured near his own goal and went down his right wing and swung in, giving McClory no chance to save. Williams served time for a trip and then, just before the period ended, Hooper rushed and missed the net. He went into the corner unchecked and passed out to Charlie Brennan, who beat McClory from close range.

Second Period.

The Petes continued the somewhat listless game in the second period and let Wright dodge through the whole team for a goal. Quinn bodied Mc-

Wright Goes through to Score.

Martin in front of the blue line and, and both went off, McMartin for trying to hurdle his opponent. Hooper served a penalty for bodying. Dundas and King provided the next goal, when the period was about half over. The Petes were then commencing to display more of their real form. Dundas went down the right and when the defence moved over to intercept him he shot a pass right cross the rink to King who was unchecked and scored handily. The game was fast and furious for the rest of the period but no scores were made.

Third Period.

Play waxed rough in the final period. Both teams were trying hard, the Petes for the tying goal, and the visitors for a bigger lead, and were a little careless in their checking. Williams was the first miscreant. He was chased for swinging too hard at a Havelock stick. Quinn then administered a body check in centre ice, and visited the timers. Hooper followed almost immediately for a trip, and the Petes tried hard with their two man advantage. Neal was the hero of the encounter as he was almost swamped, but kept the puck out. Lackey tripped Doug. Brennan after the Havelock team had returned to full strength, but this advantage also was not taken. Then while the timers were ready to ring the bell, Doug. Brennan rushed and shot from the blue line. The puck hit the goal post and glanced in for the final goal of the night.

RAIN DELAYED TENNIS AGAIN

Helen Wills Receives Buoyant Cabelgram From U. S.

RIVIERA AGOG.

CANNES, France, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—The worries of Miss Helen Wills were allayed by a cablegram which she received yesterday from Julian S. Myrick, an official of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, advising her not to be concerned over the filming controversy, but to continue to play through the Carlton tennis tournament and meet Suzanne Lenglen.

Miss Wills was greatly cheered by this, and said she will now go ahead and try her hardest to give the United States a victory.

Never before have Riviera tennis circles been stirred so profoundly as by the developments connected with this tournament. The regional tennis committee decided to investigate the sale of exclusive motion picture rights for the Wills-Lenglen match and to make a report to the French National Tennis Federation. This is being done at the request of delegates belonging to other Riviera clubs.

Legal talent has been consulted and given the opinion that Albert Burke, who has leased the Carlton courts and is organizer of this tournament, and his brother, a tennis professional, are entirely within their rights in disposing of exclusive motion picture rights and that that the tennis governing bodies can take no action against them.

For the second successive day heavy rain prevented all play on the Carlton courts.

"Win or lose," Miss Wills said, "I am going to stay here some time longer."

Monday the American champion goes to Beaulieu for two international tournaments and later to Monte Carlo for another, at all of which Lenglen will be entered in either the doubles or singles.

"Even after this is over we will stay longer, perhaps to the end of April," said Helen, "but I want to put in a month in the Latin quarter of Paris before starting to the French-English championships."

One of the factors which undoubtedly counts in the invader's favor, though it has nothing to do with the quality of her tennis, is the strongly pro Wills attitude of the crowds. If that sentiment shows too markedly it may well disturb the temperamental Suzanne, who always is upset by applause to an opponent.

TUXIS BOYS WIN.

Beat Trail Rangers 4-2 at Millbrook Rink.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 11. — The Tuxis Boys and Senior Trail Rangers played a well-contested game of hockey on the Cosmos rink on Friday evening, the latter winning from the "big fellows" by a score of 4-2. The teams line up:

Trail Rangers—Goal, C. C. Garside; defence, A. Todd and W. Sayles; forwards, W. Skitch and E. Nattrass; centre, L. Rowland; sub., George Clarke.

Tuxis Boys—Goal, F. N. Alcorn; defence, J. Larmer and K. Skitch; forwards, E. Burnham and E. Carson; centre, Nelles Rowland; sub., B. Freelove.

Referee—A. McCorry.

Immediately after the game both teams sat down to a banquet and, needless to say, did full justice to the substantial menu provided through the generosity of the two mentors, Messrs. Garside and Alcorn.

The Tuxis Square will play against the Boy Scouts of St. Thomas' Church on Friday of this week. Mr. A. H. Barnes is Scoutmaster of the latter organization.

Some of the players on Friday evening were evidently unused to the strenuous exercise, but this fact only increased the fun for both onlookers and those handling the hockey sticks.

MARTHA NORELIUS SMASHES RECORDS

New Swimming Champion at 220 Yards.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Miss Martha Norelius, of New York, became national champion in the 220 yard free style swim of the American Athletic Union swimming championships for women here yesterday, and in winning the final, she broke all existing records for the event.

Miss Norelius' time was 2.44 3-4 in the final. The previous United States record was 2.46 4-5, established by Gertrude Ederle in Brooklyn in 1924. The old world record was 2.46 3-4 and was made in England in 1923 by Hilda James.

The world record was beaten twice in the 220 yesterday, for Mariechen Wehselau, Honolulu, was 2.45 3-5 seconds in winning the first heat in which Miss Norelius was second. Miss Wehsela was fourth in the final.

Another world's record was established for the 200 yard breast stroke event, which was won by Agnes Geraghty, of New York, in 2.58 4-5. The former world's record was 3.00 1-5, made in May, 1922, at Liverpool, by Irene Gilbert, of England.

BILLY EVANS Says:

STANDARD LOWER.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants, who knows his baseball stuff, says the players are on the decline.

High salaries, automobiles and numerous other diversions are held responsible by the leader of the Giants.

In all other respects McGraw believes the game has progressed. The parks are better and the accommodations for spectators and players much improved.

I am inclined to think that McGraw is correct in his observations. Over a period of 20 years of umpiring it is obvious to me that the standard of play of today is not equal to that of 15 years ago.

The old players really loved the game more than the modern athletes. In other words the chance to play was about as welcome as the salary.

* * *

The love of the game, the fighting spirit, is what makes all college sports. There is no question but that college football has more of the old fight, fight stuff than the pro brand.

PLAYERS DECLINE.

McGraw also makes another very interesting statement. He says the dumb player is always dumb. You can't get it out of them.

"He's just dumb," is an expression ball players often use in discussing certain players who seemingly have plenty of ability but make little or no progress.

In this connection I have observed that a high order of intelligence does not necessarily mean that the athlete possessing it is a smart ball player.

Take the case of Joe Jackson, now out of baseball as a result of the White Sox scandal. When Joe entered the majors he could neither read onr write, yet Joe Jackson was a smart ball player.

I never saw him pull a "boneheded" play." He always knew what to do with the ball, never threw to the wrong base and at the bat was a tough baby to fool.

On the other hand I can recall three or four players recruited from the college ranks, with several degrees dangling to their names who could do the dumbest things possible at the most inopportune time.

* * *

I guess McGraw is right when he says a dumb player is dumb, but there are exceptions to all rules.

* * *

FUNNY EPISODE.

Several years ago a certain major league club tried out a rookie southpaw who proceeded to become a sensation overnight.

He had plenty of stuff but the players realized he was "just dumb" and that a smart baserunning club could make plenty of trouble for him.

Opposed to the New York Giants one day, McGraw ordered his club to start running wild. The first batter up hit safely and while the pitcher stood on the rubber proceeded to steal second base unmolested.

When the inning was over and the players returned to the bench, the manager took the pitcher to task for his dumbness. He was rendered almost unconscious when the rookie insisted he didn't know there was any one on first base.

The manager, who had a keen sense of humor, proceeded to handle the rather embarrassing situation most diplomatically.

Calling over the catcher and the members of the infield he said to them:

* * *

"Any time there are runners on any of the bases I want you to keep reminding this pitcher of the fact. There mustn't be any secrets on this ball club."

POST-SEASON SERIES.

New York Angling For Extra Games.

NEW YORK, Feb .11 (Canadian Press)—A post-season hockey series that would see the New York Americans of the National League clash with the runners up, in the Western Canada League, is being drawn up for Madison Square Garden, says The World yesterday.

Tex Rickard is said to have allotted the local club eight playing dates after the National League schedule is completed here March 17. Should the Americans manage to squeeze into the playoffs, the series with the Western team would not be undertaken.

MUSHERS COME EAST.

Leave Winnipeg For Quebec Races.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Eight more of Northern Manitoba's racing dogs, accompanied by their youthful driver, Earl Brydges left Winnipeg yesterday on their way to participate in the Quebec Dog Derby, to be held on February 18 to 20. With him was G. E. Constable, another well-known "musher" of the Northland. Brydges captured first honors in the Quebec classic in 1924 and was runner-up in the 100-mile race recently staged at The Pas.

TED RAY—PITCH SHOT.

No need for me to stir up the old controversy as to the respective merits of the pitch shot and the run up, but it will suffice if I at once say that out and out I am for the pitch.

Probably one of the finest efforts I ever saw on the golf course in the way of a pitch was at Rochampton, in the closing stages of a professional tournament in 1921, which was won by Taylor. His ball lay in a sand bunker only a matter of feet from the pin, and it may safely be said that that was the most important moment throughout the tournament. The majority of the lookers-on were in a quandary as to how Taylor was going to play the stroke, but, to the consternation of those who watched, he thrashed his club-head into the sand quite four inches behind the ball, which he proceeded to lay within two inches of the hole. Of course, there was no question of a run up there, but it went to prove how successfully Taylor had studied the intricacies of a stroke from within short distance of the flag.

THE habit of applying Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving has been acquired by many men who previously experienced much discomfort on account of tenderness of the skin.

It is remarkably effective in making the skin soft and smooth and prevents and relieves irritation, eczema and Barber's itch.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 26—DEFENSE ON OPEN COURT THROW-IN

Many teams have suffered defeat in open court basketball because they grew careless and didn't guard closely their opponents on throw-in when the ball was returned to play after going out-of-bounds. This phase of the game furnishes fertile ground for comment.

Remember that you're on the defense when your team is responsible for the ball going out-of-bounds. The minute the referee, umpire or linesman signifies that the ball goes to the other side cover your particular opponent. Don't waste any time reaching a position of defense because you can bet the other side isn't going to go about putting the ball back into play in a leisurely manner.

Make sure every man is covered. If you are opposing the player on the other side who is making the throw-in and you see that an opponent is loose, hold the ball until the condition is remedied. If you can't do this and can knock the throw out-of-bounds again do so in order to let your teammates cover their rivals.

If you are one of the four players having opponents within bounds play a regular guarding game. Stick close to your man but don't chase him past mid-floor. If you are opposed to the player making the throw-in "stay with him." Make any effort that will possibly stop the throw, but failing in this don't stay stationary. Follow your man. The possibility of him getting loose after the throw-in is more dangerous than the throw itself and it is to be regarded in just that way.

ST. JOHN'S W. A.

Regular Monthly Meeting Was Held on Tuesday.

The regular monthly business and devotional meeting of the afternoon branch of St. John's W. A. was held on Tuesday afternoon with a large attendance. In the absence of the president, the chair was taken by Mrs. Mulholland, vice-president.

Dr. Blagrave opened with hymn and missionary prayers and Bible reading and also gave the members a very interesting talk on the forthcoming campaign for the Upper Canada Bible Society. Helpers for this work are urgently required.

Reports were read from the different departments.

The members were also reminded of the 'women's day of prayer' to be held again on Feb. 19th, notices of which will be given out between now and that time.

An interesting pamphlet was read by the literature secretary on "Our United Thank Offering and Its Aims and Objects," and the secretary asked for more members for this department.

Tea was served by Mrs. Budd's committee, after which the meeting closed with the members' prayer and benediction.

HUSKIES TRAVEL.

From The Pas To Quebec in a Special Car.

QUEBEC, Feb. 11.— (Canadian Press.)— Twenty-five world championship racing dogs from The Pas, Manitoba, arrived here last night in the pink of condition to race in Quebec international dog derby next week. Their fitness for the race on arrival was largely due to the fact that the dogs travelled with special car provided by the Canadian National Railways without heat all the way from The Pas. Not one single dog was sick or affected in any way by the train journey.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA CONCERT

(By Jeanette.)

The second in the series of concerts which the Peterboro Symphony Orchestra is presenting this season at the Conservatory of Music, was given last evening, before an audience which filled the hall almost to capacity and proved very appreciative of the fine programme presented. The entertainment was of a pleasing length and was made especially attractive by the group of songs given by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park. Mr. John Crane, president of the Orchestra, announced the various numbers.

The orchestra played splendidly last evening and received much applause after each selection. Their ensemble work shows increasing improvement in the massed volume of melodious tone and in the precision with which each section joins in the concerted rendition of fine music. The individual care and attention which each player in the organization appears to give to the score, and the interest taken by every musician in getting the most out of each instrument, is an outstanding attribute of this orchestra, and their increasing facility in playing together with ease and assurance, promises in the near future a compact, rounded ensemble tone that will make their music wonderfully attractive. The careful attention to detail and the thorough musicianship of the conductor, Professor Gliddon, is demonstrated in his direction of the orchestra.

The opening number was a bright, vivacious selection, von Suppe's "Jolly Robbers' overture, and the second selection was a repetition, by request, of "A Persian Market," the descriptive piece which aroused so much enthusiasm on its presentation at the orchestra's first concert, some time ago. The colorful music of this selection is extremely attractive and was played well. The languorous atmosphere of the Oriental market, stirred by the arrival of a Princess and her caravan, is pictured in the music, with its reiterated smothered beat of the drums, the tinkling clash of the cymbals, and the long rush of the bows over the strings. An odd accompaniment to several of the intervals is the low-voiced singing of the men of the orchestra.

The concert waltz, "Die Hydropaten," which was another selection by the orchestra, was a notable example of smooth, legato playing, and well rounded tone. The ensemble work was excellent in this smooth, gliding, graceful music.

The concluding orchestral number: Selections from Verdi, was interesting and difficult, with perhaps just a little less of the quality of all-together-ness which was demonstrated in its predecessor. The brasses and wood wind were more noticeable than the strings in this selection, which opened with a volume of finely-toned melody. The strings were highly pitched in this number, and outstanding instruments in its progression were well-played bits by the clarinet, the trombone, the bass clarinet and the cornet, all making their way to a smashing, dramatic finale. Repeated applause followed the presentation of this number.

Mrs. Park, whose singing is always an attractive addition to any programme, gave a group of Russian songs which demonstrated the splendid quality of her mezzo-toned voice, and the artistic way in which this singer handles her work. Mrs. Park prefaced her songs by a brief, illuminating description of their import, which made their presentation more attractive. "Oh, Thou Billowy Harvest Field," by Rachmaninoff, the words by Count Tolstoy, representative of an analogy drawn between a desolated field and the troubled country of his birth, was the opening number, sung beautifully, the low-toned melody swelling out to a voluminous finale. Two brief, interesting bits were Borodine's "A Dissonance," and Rachmaninoff's "Lilacs," the latter sung in pianissimo, dainty fashion. The most striking song of the group, and the one best adapted to Mrs. Park's individual style, was the last number, "Hopak," one of Moussgorsky's strange vivid songs. Done in the spoken style of vocalization, in which Mrs. Park excels, and calling forth in lurid words the picture of a depraved Russian woman, it was a dramatic, effective thing, one of the high lights of a very fine group of songs. "Hopak" is the type of song that its hearers would wish to hear repeated more than once. A bouquet of flowers was presented to the singer at the conclusion of the pretty encore which followed an enthusiastic outburst of applause.

A very interesting number on the programme was a cornet solo, with orchestral accompaniment, "Love's Old Sweet Song," by Mr. Joseph Minicolo. This was played beautifully, the volume of orchestral accompaniment providing a wonderful back ground for the fine, clear, sweet, unfaltering melody of the lovely old song, which Mr. Minicolo brought from his tenor-toned instrument. Applause called for a repetition of the final verse.

W. H BRADBURN, M.P.P., MOVES REPLY

footing. Now let us see what has been done in connection with the Audit Department. The policy of the Government in making an audit of all the revenues of the Crown is one that commends itself to the people of Ontario, and the Treasurer is to be congratulated on his efforts along this line. I have no doubt that the policy of the Hon. the Provincial Treasurer in having an audit in each department is responsible to a great extent for the splendid improvement in the Provincial revenues. While additional revenues amounting to a large sum have been collected by reason of these audits, the true results of this Government policy cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents, as the moral effect on those in charge of the collection of Provincial monies must certainly be felt in the more efficient handling of public funds.

TRANSPORTATION IS IMPORTANT

The problem of transportation in this Province is one of the greatest with which a Government has to contend. This difficulty has been greatly increased by the loose methods employed by the previous Government. The problem of today is not simply the construction of permanent roads in the best and most economical manner, but extends to the attracting of tourists to the wonderful scenic beauties and natural playgrounds of our Province. The tourist traffic adds materially to the financial welfare of the treasury and also to the community at large. In this connection, I would like to suggest that the Government might well by advertisement or otherwise, call attention to the wonderful waterways we possess, such as the Trent Canal system, and Rideau. The class of tourist visiting these waters is the very best and could be greatly augmented by the expenditure of a small amount of money. The Department of Fish and Game is to be highly commended on the energetic efforts they are making to keep these waters stocked with the best game fish.

I am pleased to notice the marked reduction in the cost of constructing permanent roads. As a comparison let me state, during the years 1922-23 there was a total expenditure for construction and maintenance upon the Provincial Highway of $22,944,917. This included 178 miles of macadam base. This expenditure gave the Province 443 miles of completed hard surfaced road. This expenditure at an average cost per mile of $52,580. The expenditure during the years 1924-25 upon this same mileage of road amounted to $13 249,637. This completed 405 miles of hard surfaced roads at an average cost per mile of $32,760.

It is quite apparent that the careful administration of the present Government in connection with the highway policy is giving to the people of the Province more and better roads at a very marked decrease in expenditure, nor has the quality of the roads suffered by any of these economies. It has been admitted that the type of roads constructed during the past two years in the Province of Ontario is not only of the most approved and highest quality of any roads on the American Continent, but that this work has been done at a lower cost, this being a compliment to the engineering skill and the type of labor which is obtainable within this Province.

GOVERNMENT DEVELOPING RESOURCES

No reference to the affairs of this Province would be complete which did not include New Ontario. The vast quantities of potential wealth brought to view by the Government in its survey of Northern Ontario is most gratifying. In the manufacture of paper and pulp Northern Ontario will take the leading place among the countries of the world. The wise policy of the Government by providing improved fire protection by insisting upon proper methods of cutting and by reforestration, assures the people of this Province that this wealth will be available not only for the present generation but for generations yet to come. With the costs of development now going on in our lines and with the new discoveries of china clay and gypsum brought to light by the energy of the Government, a wonderful future is assured for this part of the Province.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, we have every reason to congratulate ourselves upon the wonderful resources of the Province in which we live, and further in this critical period of our history we have a Government with the business sense, the energy, and the patriotism to develop wisely and well the bounties which Providence has given us.

LIGHT CAR MAKES TRIP TO ST. MARY'S

Sam Bell, of Bridgenorth, Found Roads Fairly Good.

Sam Bell, of Bridgenorth, returned this week after a long motor journey —from Bridgenorth to St. Mary's and back—a distance of 235 miles each way. The journey to St. Mary's took 16 hours. Mr. Bell left last Thursday at 1 p.m., arriving at St. Mary's towards 5 o'clock on Friday morning. The return journey was also accomplished in 16 hours.

The roads between Peterborough and Kitchener, he says, were fairly good, considering the prevailing weather, but beyond Kitchener progress was much more difficult. In some places the car had to plough through great drifts of snow, and the travellers had to act as auxiliary engines, pushing the car through the banks of snow.

Mr. Bell's car is a light serviceable vehicle, popularly known as "Spark Plug," which has frequently negotiated the journey between Peterborough and Bridgenorth on occasions when the roads have been impassable to all other autos.

TWO PERSONS DIE IN HALF AN HOUR

Death Tragically Visits Cobourg Home—Storke and Heart Attack.

COBOURG, Ont., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Within half an hour two deaths occurred in the home of John Forster, Albert street, on Tuesday afternoon.

The first was that of Mr. Forster's father, William Forster, who resided with him at the Albert street address. In the absence of Mrs. Forster at the funeral of the late W. H. Brooks, Mr. Forster Sr. was siezed with a stroke.

A neighbor summoned Mrs. Forster, but when she arrived home, her father-in-law had succumbed. The shock proved too much for her and she was stricken with a heart attack, which, a few minutes later, proved fatal.

IN POLICE COURT

Two cases occupied the attention of Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning, one, an alleged infraction of the laws for the protection of animals and the other being a charge of seduction which had been laid against a youth whose home is in the United States. In the latter case the plea of not guilty was changed to one of guilty and the young man was allowed to go on suspended sentence after furnishing the necessary bond.

Humane Inspector R. C. Smith acted as witness for the prosecution this morning in the first case he has had in this district since his recent appointment. He testified that on Charlotte street February 4 he had heard the yelps of a small sable and white collie dog and later saw it appear between the two rear wheels of a delivery truck operated by a local grocery concern. He had not actually seen the wheels of the car strike the animal nor did he say that the driver intentionally tried to commit any injury. He did say that the chauffeur was driving at a high rate of speed and that instead of stopping to ascertain the extent of the injuries he had turned around in the seat and "grinned at the dog trying to reach the sidewalk."

The accused swore that he did not grin and that he had tried to avoid the impact. The dog had rushed out, ran along beside his car for awhile and then ran ahead. If he had turned to either side to avoid it, he stated he would have hit the dog with one of the front wheels. He thought that the best thing to do was to try to "straddle" it with the wheels. Another truck driver said that he thought that the dog had been hit with the rear axle and that afterwards it had run a considerable distance and had stopped in front of his car which he had turned up Park street. He declared that the car which was supposed to have hit the animal was not going faster than ten miles an hour. He did not believe that the dog had been hurt seriously.

The magistrate in dismissing the case sustained the defense counsel W. Huycke in the contention that the injury to the dog was not the result of a wilful act.

James Wollaston who had some time ago pleaded not guilty to a charge of seduction notified the court through his counsel, J. A. O'Brien, that he wished to plead guilty. Mr. O'Brien in representing the case of the deefndant said that the youth had spent more than a week in the jail and had had plenty of time to see the error of his ways. In addition he had been occasioned considerable pain from an injured hip. There were usually two sides to such happenings, submitted the defense, and he thought that considering the fact that the accused was a stranger in the city and had very little money left it would be unwise to fine him as he would then be a vagrant and would in consequence doubtless be a public charge.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., said that he had made investigations and found that the ends of justice might be met by meteing out a suspended sentence. Proper bonds were then arranged.

LOVER A SUICIDE.

CALGARY, Feb. 11 (Canadian Press).—Conrad Olhausen, former sergeant-major in the German Death's Head Hussars, during the war, shot three times at Bertha Keim, 15, on a farm near Acme, wounding her slightly in the arm. Thinking the girl was dead, Olhausen then hanged himself. Unrequitted love was, according to the girl's story the cause of the tragedy.

RAKING ASHES FOR BOY'S BODY

Village of Elmvale Shocked By Triple Tragedy in Fire.

STORE DESTROYED.

ELMVALE, Ont., Feb. 11. Canadian Press. — Search as being continued last night for the body of Lawrence McWaters, who with his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McWaters, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed their store and dwelling here yesterday morning. The bodies of the parents were recovered on Wednesday afternoon.

From the position of the bodies and the way they were dressed it is evident they had been awakened by the fire and had succeeded in getting partly dressed and downstairs, but were prevented from escaping by the intensity of the blaze.

The fire is thought to have begun in the general store over which the McWaters lived. It threatened for a time to destroy several buildings but was confined to the building in which the McWaters lived by the efforts of a volunteer fire brigade. Pearson's butcher shop and James McDermott's insurance office was destroyed. The loss will total several thousand dollars.

The village and surrounding district are shocked at the tragedy. Although the village has been the scene of many disastrous fires yesterday's conflagration far surpassed anything ever experienced in this neighborhood.

Lloyd Pearson's butcher shop, Wilfrid Bunt's barber shop, and Jas. McDermott's insurance office, were totally destroyed. Mr. and Mrs. McWaters had two sons, Lawrence, who was burned to death with them, and Willis, in Belleville, who was notified by phone of the calamity which had overtaken his home.

The loss will total several thousand dollars and the village and surrounding country are shocked at the magnitude of the tragedy.

THREAT OF JAIL FOR WITNESSES

Jury Unable To Hear Them in Vancouver Trial.

PROFITS BARED.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 11 (Canadian Press). — Jail sentences for witnesses who did not speak loud enough for the jury to hear were gently referred to by Mr. Justice D. McDonald at the trial of the fruit combine charges against the Nash interests yesterday.

"Speak up, I don't want to send you to jail," His Lordship told Stanley O'Hara, book-keeper for the Acme Fruit Company of Calgary, after the jury had complained repeatedly of the "sotto voce" evidence.

O'Hara's testimony brought out the first explanation offered at the trial of the operation of the Nash jobbers, who purchased and sold the fruit handled by the brokerage houses.

The Acme Company handled fruit both by straight purchase or consignment, the witness said. A profit on berries averaged for 1924 approximately 75 cents, on rural sales and 50 cents on city sales, per case.

Later, on cross-examination by MacLeod Cinclair, K.C. he said the profit averaged close to 25 cents a case.

Cross examined by Mr. Davis, W. J. Holcroft of the Alexander Grocery of Camrose, and former credit manager of the Acme Company, Calgary, said that he never saw anything irregular or fraudulent in the conduct of the business.

"Were there any instructions from people above you to do anything dishonest?" Mr. Davis asked witness.

"No, Sir."

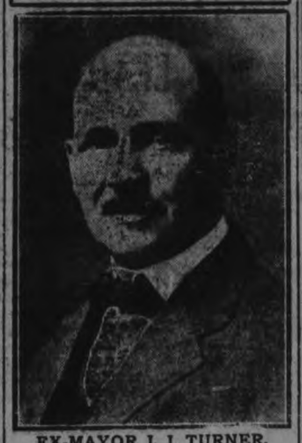
Proceedings at the February meeting to be held on the 16th will be varied by a paper on Hog Raising by V. S. Milburn, and an illustrated lecture on Y.M.C.A. war work in Great Britain and the continent, by Rev. W. S. Edgar.

Join the Exhibition!

ONE MAN'S OPINION



EX-MAYOR J. J. TURNER.

Dear Mr. President:

Enclosed find my application for membership in your Association and fee of $2.00.

May I say a word of praise on behalf of the splendid work accomplished by your Board of Directors under your leadership in building up a community work that will unite the Urban and Rural population in a Greater Peterborough. Not great perhaps in matter of population but great in working together in community interest, understanding one another—developing our viewpoint, for unless the whole citizenship in the City and on our borders is healthy and happy, then we fall short of community interest, which should be part and parcel of our life.

The Exhibition must either stand still or press onward and thanks to your vision and support of directors the Exhibition is developing in every branch and is one of the many splendid assets with which the name of Peterborough is associated.

I trust the present campaign for membership will result in the objective and perhaps a suggestion will help—namely, on Exhibition dates print a ribbon to read—member Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, and let us wear them about our daily work to advertise the Booster Club.

Sincerely yours,
J. J. TURNER.

ANOTHER FAST GAME TO-MORROW

Petes and Havelock Meet in Second Game of Round.

After last night's encounter there should be a record crowd at the second game between Havelock and Peterborough Intermediates. After their easy games with Lakefield the Petes failed to take last night's game seriously and allowed the visitors to get the jump on them. The game to-morrow should be better.

The tickets for the game are on sale at Bert McLeod's drug store.

K. K. Homuth (Labor, South Waterloo) asks upon what recommendations the new registrar of the Surrogate Court and new sheriff and new Division Court clerk in Waterloo County were appointed.

Raney Busy.

Mr. Raney, apparently, had decided to force the issue regarding the Government's temperance policy. This morning he filed a series of questions, among which were the following:

Has the Government or the Prime Minister given consideration since last session to the question of Government control of the sale of intoxicating liquors?

Has a bill been drafted for submission to the Legislature as a basis of discussion before the electors?

Mr. Widdifield (Ontario North) wants to know what plan of Government control was contemplated when the Government called for a plebiscite in October, 1924.

An immediate attack will be made by the Opposition groups on the Government for its failure to call for by-elections to fill the seven vacant seats in the House. W. E. Raney, former Attorney-General, has filed a question as to why the vacancies have not been filled, and if the Government is aware that the Legislative Assembly Act requires that writs for by-elections be issued immediately on the seat becoming vacant.

AT THE REGENT

DARING PLOT IN "COMING OF AMOS"

Love, Intrigue and Comedy, All in One Picture

Old fashioned melodrama, so enthusiastically received by the public in the days of the two reel thrillers, has been brought back on the screen again in the Cecil B. DeMille supervised production, "The Coming of Amos" which is now playing at the Regent Theatre with Rod La Rocque in the starring role.

This Producers Distributing Corporation release has melodramatic comedy for its theme, reviving the exciting actions of the hero, the heroine and the villain, plentifully garnished with humor.

Opposite Rod Le Rocque in the hero's role, Jetta Goudal portrays the role of the heroine in a manner worthy of her title as "the screen's most fascinating personality." Noah Bery, as the villain, add life and color to this featured role.

Around these three, love, danger, romance and struggle plus frequent bits of comedy fill the unusual plot of the picture, which in book form has been one of the season's best sellers.

The reception which this production has been awarded throughout the country has proved to DeMille that the universal appeal for melodrama of the old days, placed in a modern, up-to-date setting is not dead, in spite of the present day apparent sophistication of the theatre going public.

DEFECTIVE CHIMNEY WAS CAUSE OF FIRE

Flames Were in Between the Walls of House—Damage $300.

A fire due to a defective chimney occurred at 140 Park Street this afternoon. The flames got a hold between the walls of the house and gave considerable trouble to the firemen who were somewhat hampered by the dense smoke that prevailed. Chief Gimblett stated that the damage would be around $300.

J. MacDonald, the tenant of the house was just leaving for his work when he smelt the smoke. He started to look for the cause and noticed the flames going right through the wall at a corner between the summer kitchen and the main part of the house. He was at a loss to explain what caused the fire as he maintained there were no fires going at the time the blaze occurred. The damage was covered by insurance.
